NEWSPRINT INDUSTRY CENTRING IN CANADA WITH NEW TRANSFER

New Concern Plans to Acquire Two Plants in Quebec.

1,000 TONS A DAY.

Future Is In Canada, With Cheap Supply of Wood and Power.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The proposed purchase of Canadian paper mills, water power and timber lands by the International Paper Company, announced in dispatches from Montreal, means nothing less than the transfer of a large part of the American newsprint industry to Canada, according to A. R. Graustein, the recently elected President of the International Paper Company.

In an interview yesterday, Mr. Graustein said that the trend of economic developments in the past twenty years has shown clearly that the future of the newsprint industry is in Canada. American paper mills which cannot compete with the cheap wood supply and continuous water power of the Canadian mills, he said, will have to be diverted from newsprint production to other kinds of paper.

Mr. Graustein explained that the negotiations recently concluded, if approved at a stockholders' meeting of the International Paper Company on March 24, call for the payment of about $27,000,000 for the purchase of approximately 9,500 square miles of paper mills, water power, timber lands, &c.—an area larger than the combined area of Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

When the new Canadian development program is completed, which will be within the next few years, Mr. Graustein said, the company would be able to produce at least 300,000 tons of newsprint annually—1,000 tons a day—in its Canadian mills. He pointed out the significance of this by stating that the company's annual newsprint production today, both in the United States and Canada, is about 350,000 tons. The company already has one Canadian mill with an annual production of 100,000 tons. Under the new plan the company will be able to produce in Canada alone more than 80 per cent. of its present total newsprint output.

Seeks Two Other Properties.

The mill now owned by the company is at Three Rivers, Quebec, a locality made famous in the Stillman divorce case. If the stockholders ratify the contract between their company and a newly organized company known as the Canadian International Paper, Ltd., the International will acquire through this new company the property of the Riordan and Gatineau companies in Quebec, west of the Three Rivers property.

"Due to the diminishing supply in New York and New England of standing timber available for the manufacture of wood pulp, which is the basis of the production of newsprint, and due to increased cost and freight rates on pulpwood purchased in the open market," Mr. Graustein said, "it is becoming more and more difficult to meet Canadian competition in the newsprint field.

Equals American.

"The International Paper Company does not ptoduce any more newsprint today than it did when it was formed. The reason is that we haven't built any new mills. When organized the company did almost all the newsprint business on the continent. In the intervening years the business has been shifting to Canada, which, at the time our company was formed, did no newsprint business at all. In the last twenty years the Canadian newsprint industry has come up from nothing to a point where it equals American production, showing unmistakably that the newsprint industry has its future in Canada.

"The cost of production at a newsprint mill, and accordingly its earning capacity, is dependent upon the efficiency of the machinery, of course; but two modern mills equally well equipped may vary largely in their costs and profits. The variation will be due to the location of the mill. The mill site should be at a point to which pulpwood and power, coal and other supplies, can be delivered cheaply and from which newsprint can be delivered cheaply to the market. Of these factors, cheap pulpwood and power are the most important.

"In order to preserve the position of the company and to insure its growth as a newsprint producer under such conditions, it is necessary for us to develop in Canada. Three or four years ago we built at Three Rivers, Quebec, a mill which is one of the most modern and completely equipped newsprint mills in the world, and which has a site which may be described as almost romantic, if such a term may be applied to a mill. It stands at the confluence of the St. Maurice and St. Lawrence Rivers. The St. Lawrence, of course, is one of the historic rivers of the world, while the St. Maurice is the big power and big newsprint river of Quebec, there being more newsprint tonnage in the valley of the St. Maurice than in any other river valley in the world.

Good Dock Facilities.

"We are so situated at Three Rivers that ocean-going steamships can come right up to our dock, which allows us to ship wood and coal in and paper out seven months of the year by water. Back of the mill we have our own woods, 2,600 square miles, which insure the future wood supply. The mill now has four modern, electrically driven paper machines. We are preparing to install two more machines, which will increase the newsprint production of the Three Rivers mill from 100,000 to 150,000 tons a year.

"Even with the Three Rivers mill developed and enlarged, however, we have not made sufficient provision for future growth. That is the reason for the acquisition of the Riordan and Gatineau properties, whose future value to us, we think, fully justify the large investment which they represent.

"We intend to build on the Gatineau River, near Ottawa, another big newsprint mill like the Three Rivers mill, with at least the same capacity. The largest part of the new property consists of 5,700 square miles of Crown timber lands in practically one solid block, occupying the entire central portion of the valley of the Gatineau River. The Gatineau, a stream about 240 miles long, flows into the Ottawa River almost directly opposite the City of Ottawa, a good labor and transportation centre.

"The pulpwood cut from the timber lands above can all be delivered by water to a mill at the foot of the river. Just before the Gatineau reached Ottawa the river takes a tumble of 140 feet, a natural waterfall which is capable of development at low cost to produce 70,000 continuous horsepower, more than enough to meet the requirements of the largest newsprint mill. The combination of river-driven pulpwood and cheaper power should enable Gatineau mill to rank among the lowest-cost newsprint producers on the continent.

"In addition to the Gatineau Valley properties, the Riordan property includes two other timberland areas of 1,000 and 2,400 square miles respectively, the first on the Rouge River and the second on the Upper Ottawa River. Each of these tracts supplies a bleached sulphite mill with water driven pulpwood. These are the Hawkesbury mills (40,000 tons), and the Kipawa mill (50,000 tons), both in successful operation now.

"Bleached sulphite is pulpwood used in making writing paper and is also one of the compounds of book paper, the chief compound of tissue paper and the raw material out of which most artificial silk is made. The Kipawa mill for some years has made a specialized product which has been in increased demand from makers of artificial silk in the United States, Europe, and elsewhere in the world market.

Will Spend .20,000,000.

"The Gatineau Valley property alone has an area considerably larger than that of the State of Connecticut, while the Rouge River tract is as big as Rhode Island. All our new timber land together has a larger area than Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined. Of the $27,000,000 we are paying for the whole property, about $20,000,000 is for the mills, water powers and timber limits, while the rest is for current assets."

Mr. Graustein said that the completion of the company's Canadian program, which would come in the next few years, would mean a minimum annual production of 300,000 tons of newsprint, and that this figure did not exhaust the possibilities of future developments in Canada. Just how fast the development of the industry in Canada would go, he said, would depend upon business and marked conditions.

Asked whether the proposed Canadian embargo on pulpwood had had anything to do with the company's decision to increase its Canadian holdings, Mr. Graustein replied:

"There has been some agitation in Canada for an embargo on the export of wood from Canada to the United States. The program of the International Paper Company was conceived in no way as an answer to that agitation, but was based entirely on consideration of the economic factors which have already caused the Canadian newsprint industry to grow to a point where it now equals, and is rapidly outstripping, the American industry. These economic factors, especially cheaper wood and power, are enough in themselves to insure to Canada substantially all the future growth of the industry in the Eastern part of the continent. The company's action is merely a reflection of its desire to avail itself of these economic factors and to work with them instead of against them.

"The new Canadian mills are not direct substitutes for our American mills, but we recognize that gradually over a period of time some of our mills have to be withdrawn from the manufacture of newsprint and turned to the manufacture of some kind of paper protected by the tariff from competition with lower cost producers, such as the Canadian and Scandinavian.

Meets New Contidions.

"In the case of each mill so withdrawn, the change will not be the result of any fixed policy, but will be merely the recognition of the course of economic developments. Those of our American mills which are most efficient and which have the best supply of wood will continue as newsprint mills, while others will be converted to other purposes. The Niagara Falls mills, which formerly produced an average of 47,000 tons of newsprint a year, for example, has already discontinued the production of newsprint altogether, which had become unprofitable there, and now produces book and bond papers at a substantial profit. Similar changes are under consideration for other mills of the company."

Mr. Graustein, who became President of the International Paper Company last June, is a lawyer who formerly was of counsel for a committee organized in 1921 to represent the 8 per cent. bondholders of the Riordan Company, and for more than three years has had active supervision of the Riordan and Gatineau properties. The question of the acquisition of the properties has been approved by a subcommittee of the international directors, consisting of Percy H. Jennings, Ogden L. Mills and Rudolf Pagenstecher.

At the meeting on March 24, the stockholders will be asked to approve not only the contract with the Canadian International Paper, Ltd., a Canadian corporation formed to acquire the Riordan and Gatineau properties, but also to approve an increase of the authorized common stock of the International Paper Company from $20,000,000 to $50,000,000 no par value; creation of a new issue of $50,000,000 7 per cent. preferred stock and a new issue of $22,500,000 thirty-year 6 per cent. sinking fund mortgage bonds.

None of the stock to be issued will be sold at the present time, but part of it will be used in payment for the new properties to be taken over. Part of the bonds will be used for the same purpose. Holders of the present 6 per cent. preferred stock, on payment of $10 a share, can exchange their stock share for share for the new 7 per cent. stock. The recapitalization plan, it is announced, is for the purpose of consummating the Canadian deal, to retire bank loans and to provide a medium for future bond financing.

TRENT RIVER, March 11.—Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., of St. James church, Peterboro, delivered a missionary address at the Methodist Church Sunday service.

Rev. Dr. Thompson recently returned from China, will assist at the service Sunday, March 15.

The maple sap season has begun this week, several having tapped already.

Trappers were handicapped last week owing to the ice in smaller channels, but it is clearing out and trapping will soon be brisk.

Health and good looks —the reward of internal cleanliness.

IF YOU do not keep clean internally your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks and insomnia, each of which saps your health and vitality.

Avoid Laxatives—say Doctors

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition.

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GLANCES BACK OVER 1924 ACHIEVEMENTS

Not the Least Was the Use of the Headquarter Rooms for More Than 300 Meetings—Importance of Good Roads Subject of S. L. Squire's Address.

HOCKEY CLUB CHAMBER'S GUESTS.

"If you tell me of the roads of a nation I will write you the history of the people," was the quotation used by S. L. Squires, Deputy Minister of Public Highways, to preface his address to the Chamber of Commerce at their annual meeting last night.

Continuing, Mr. Squires said that roads were as old as civilization and had played their part in the rise and fall of nations. The status of a people is shown by its roads. The Indians had their paths through the forests, the pioneers had their tote roads, and the people of to-day demand hard, wide roads. Communication was the first line of development, and waterways were the first means of communication in Canada, and Mr. Squires said that Peterborough was particularly fortunate in this respect because of being on a natural waterway between two great lakes.

Steam railways were the next factor in the development of the country, and many a flourishing town that was passed by saw its neighbours make great advances while decreasing in size and importance itself.

Now, said Mr. Squires, the roads are the big factor in development. People measure distance by time, and business in many small towns is doomed because people motor into the larger centres to buy their goods while, at the same time, the residents of the cities are moving out five, ten or even twenty miles to build their houses and travel to and fro by road to their businesses in the cities. Where, a few years ago, a city's market lay within a radius of ten miles, now it extends for fifty or more miles. The roads are thus serving to build up the cities at the expense of the small towns.

Remove Barriers.

The place that roads occupy in life of to-day cannot be over-estimated. They serve to knock down the barriers which separate the residents of the country from those of the towns, thereby helping to develop a more satisfactory national life.

In speaking of the financing of roads, Mr. Squires said that when the fathers of confederation were discussing the division of authority between the Dominion and the Provinces they took the steam roads and waterways under their jurisdiction and left the roads, which they called a purely local matter, to the provinces. The provincial governments had the same view of the matter, and left them to the municipalities. These followed the example set them of passing the buck, and left it to the pathmasters. All these bodies acted on the view that the only man interested in any particular bit of road was the man past whose door it ran. All this produced a very unsatisfactory state of affairs through the lack of co-ordination, and as long ago as 1900 there was agitation for provincial assistance. In 1901, the first provincial grant was made. In the same year the total amount spent by the rural municipalities on roads was $866,000, as compared to the average in 1922, 1923 and 1924 of over $10,000,000.

In 1912, the city of Toronto made the first grant for a suburban road area. Since that time the cities have spent, on outside roads, $5,800,000. Mr. Squires submitted many figures to support his contention that cities were niggardly in their contributions, only paying 4% of the cost of these roads.

Mr. Squires said that the total assessment of the rural municipalities and towns still connected with the counties was $1,057,000,000, and that of the cities was $1,351,000,000. He had asked a prominent city official what he thought was a fair division of the benefits from improved roads between city and country, and received the opinion that it was about a fifty-fifty proposition. In view of the fact that the cities had paid only 4% of the cost of the roads, Mr. Squires was reminded of the man whose rabbit pies consisted of what he called a fifty-fifty mixture of horse and rabbit, which was one horse to one rabbit.

Motorists Big Share.

Of the $70,000,000 spent by the province on roads in Old Ontario in the last ten years, Mr. Squires said that $4,900,000 had come from the Federal Government, $5,800,000 from the cities, and $22,500,000 from the motorists. This left approximately $37,000,000 as capital expenditure. Added to this was about $13,000,000 loaned to the municipalities and an equal amount spent in Northern Ontario, making a total of $63,000,000, on which the province had to pay interest of about $3,150,000 yearly.

During the past few years, the average amount spent on roads, has been some $25,000,000 annually. As the requests for extensions are already coming in, Mr. Squires could see no expectation of spending a lesser amount in the next few years, so that with the interest of $3,000,000 on previous expenditures, there was a total of $28,000,000 to raise every year.

The roads must be built but they must also be paid for, and the only course the speaker would recommend, for either province or municipality, was a pay-as-you-go course.

Mr. Squires said that the revenue expected from the motorists this year was $5,500,000 from motor licenses and $2,000,000 from the gas tax. This total of $7,500,000 was only 25% of the total to be spent. In most of the United States, the motorists pay at least 30% of the cost of the roads. The demand for the improved roads had been from the motorists, and the cities, and the users must expect to pay part of the costs. Traffic census counts had shown motor traffic to be about 90% of the total. The gas tax being a metered tax, would fall heaviest on the people that used the roads most. It was not a new thing, as it was already in force in five Canadian provinces and 38 states.

Mr. Squires outlined other improvements the government intended putting in force, such as drivers' permits, "Easy to get and easier to lose," new road signs, and the elimination of bad railway crossings.

He congratulated the president, J. Wells Fraser, on the success of the Chamber during the year, and also congratulated the Peterborough Senior Hockey Club on their showing during the recent season.

The vote of thanks to Mr. Squires was moved by G. A. Gillespie and seconded by A. Brown, who expressed their appreciation of the address given.

Hockey Team Guests.

The Peterborough Senior Hockey Club were the guests of the Chamber of Commerce, and were introduced by the President with a few remarks, commending them for their good showing and sportsmanlike conduct during the season. He said it was an honour to have them present, and hoped that they would go further next year. Ed. Wright, president of the club, replied on behalf of the players and officers.

A telegram was read from G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., regretting that he was unable to attend, and sending his best wishes for the continued success of the Chamber.

Annual Report.

The president, J. Wells Fraser, read his annual report of the activities of the Chamber, detailing all their recommendations and works. He mentioned a scientific tariff board, the formation of a Provincial Tourist Association, the Trent Waterways development, the Cobourg ferry and the St. Lawrence power scheme as subjects on which the Chamber had deliberated. They had assisted in many local activities and had been represented at a great many meetings and conventions. The rooms had been used for over 300 meetings during the year, and information had been furnished to hundreds of applicants, both local and touring. He thanked the press for the publicity given them and the executive and members for their support and assistance.

Mr. J. J. Duffus, second vice-president of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of the province, spoke principally of the value of the tourist traffic. He said that different provinces had made grants, and estimated the benefits received in millions of dollars, and that the Ontario Tourists Association was being organized for concerted action in attracting tourists.

The treasurer's report showed the receipts for the year to be $1.86 over the expenditures, although certain outstanding moneys would raise this surplus.

County Represented.

H. B. Rye, Warden of the County, said that he thought the standard of all the roads should be raised, and not certain ones raised to an extreme standard. He agreed with Mr. Squires that the city should pay a larger share of road costs, and pleaded for a better understanding to do away with the friction over the Suburban Roads Commission. He expressed his appreciation at being invited to be present, as did Reeve Middleton of Smith, Reeve Robb of Norwood, and Mr. Cuffe of Norwood.

Mayor Turner installed the officers for 1925—J. Wells Fraser, president; G. A. Gillespie, vice-president, and W. R. Morris, treasurer. He said it had been a great privilege to hear Mr. Squires, and that he had gained a great deal of information, particularly about the tax on gasoline.

J. J. Duffus moved a vote of thanks to the office staff of the Chamber, saying that it was the best run office of the kind in Ontario, and that a great deal was being done on a very small fee. The motion was seconded by R. H. Turner.

The meeting was preceded by a banquet served by the Empress Hotel staff in a manner that made Mr. Duffus compare it with the service received at the different banquets he attended as a delegate from the Chamber.

Inventor Of Barbed Wire Celebrates 99th Birthday

....DEKALB, Ills, March 11 (United News).—The inventor of barbed wire is celebrating his 99th birthday. He is Jacob Haish, president of a bank here, which he conducts by telephone from his bed, having been an invalid for more than a year. Haish whose idea of fixing a barb to a line of wire, solved the problem of how to fence cattle for millions of farmers all over the world, expects to celebrate his 100th birthday conducting the affairs of his bank.

Unlike many who live to an advanced age, Haish has no ideas of life, love, philosophy, flappers or prohibition to expound. He says he is an optimist, and believes the world is better today than it was yesterday, and will be better tomorrow than it is today

Airplanes will be used, and it is probable an attempt will be made to reach the Pole, but the main objects of the expedition are scientific.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

STRIKE RELIEF FROM PROVINCE

Premier of Nova Scotia To Co-operate With Labor Unions.

TELEGRAM TO KING.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 11 (Canadian Press).—The Dominion Government will not take any immediate part in the strike situation in Nova Scotia, Premier King announced in the House of Commons yesterday, in answer to a question asked by J. T. Shaw (Independent, Calgary, West). Premier King said that as the Premier of Nova Scotia had intimated that his government was prepared to co-operate with the Labor unions in the matters of relief of distress, it was not for the Federal Government to interfere.

The matter came up when Mr. Shaw asked if the Prime Minister had received a telegram from Nova Scotia following a meeting of citizens who had no connection with the Labor unions, stating that conditions were exceedingly bad, and that the local resources for relief purposes were about exhausted. More than one hundred and twenty families had been fed last week by the relief committees, and there was no apparent aid coming from outside sources. The Prime Minister said he had received such a telegram.

Allege Pumps Removed.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 11.—The following telegram protesting the corporation's action, were sent to Premier Armstrong at the conclusion of mass meetings of the citizens of Birch Grove and Port Morien.

The first is from Port Morien and states:

"Honored Sir.—Having been appointed by the citizens of Port Morien, Cape Breton, a committee to investigate conditions pertaining to the removal of the pumps from the Birch Grove Colliery, we ascertain that the pumps are being removed from the area of the collieries in that district, and the said collieries are being allowed to fill with water. Your committee herewith beg you to prohibit this action on the part of the Dominion Coal Company and to use your best offices in protecting the said coal mines from destruction in the Birch Grove district which the people here are directly concerned."

Similar Protest.

"Being appointees of the citizens' committee of Birch Grove, we wish to acquaint you with the situation as it effects Dominion No. 21 Colliery, Birch Grove. The pumps have been removed at this colliery and it is fast filling with water.

"Evidently the same motive power is still existing at this colliery as was up to the time of dismantling and we know from existing conditions that the removal of three of these pumps was not necessary for at least one month. We understand the Union has offered men to have these pumps restalled. Up to the present, no action has been taken by the corporation. We hereby appeal to the members of your government as the trustees of the peoples' property about to be destroyed to take immediate steps to prevent the destructions of the said property."

Next to No. 10 colliery at Reserve Mines, No. 21 and 22 mines in the Birch Grove are regarded as the "wettest" mines in the district. Under normal conditions two turbine pumps with a capacity of 1,000 gallons per minute are required to keep No. 21 free. Conditions in 22 are not quite so bad, and so far both turbines are operating them.

PRINTERS SOUGHT TO RETAIN JOBS

Union Explains Action in Protesting Suppression of Racing Sheets.

"It is a thing we would not touch if we could have avoided it. The resolution was passed in the interests of 70 men who will be in search of work when the Government amends the Criminal Code to prohibit the publication of racing entries, results and odds."

This was the explanation made by L. A. Lewis, President of Toronto Typographical Union, of the action taken on Saturday night in the Labor Temple, where a resolution was passed asking the Federal Government not to jeopardize the positions of printers on racing sheets by an enactment suppressing news of assistance to bookmakers.

Seventy Men Involved.

Mr. Lewis said 70 men, employed as printers, pressmen, mailers and stereotypers, would likely be affected by the amendment proposed by the Government. They were employed, he stated, on two journals publishing racing news only, and in the number would be included printers who worked on late extra editions of the evening newspapers here.

"Officials of the union feel certain that it is the racing news contained in the late extras which sells them, along with other sporting news," he said. "I am unable to say if the effect of the amendment would be so important elsewhere as here."

Mr. Lewis said the percentage of men affected in Toronto would be about 3½ per cent. of the number of union mechanics of the four trades engaged on newspapers. He pointed out that there were 150 printers walking the streets here at the present time, and proportionate unemployment in other trades. He did not desire the union to be recorded as supporting the handbook, but as being forced to act in behalf of men threatened with loss of work.

TWO KILLED BY ENRAGED RHINO

WOMAN FIRED SHOT.

LONDON, March 11.—(Canadian Press). — A despatch to the Daily Mail from Nairobi, in Kenya Colony of British East Africa, reports that Mrs. Green, a noted Irish explorer from Dublin, and a British captain have been killed by a rhinoceros.

Mrs. Green had crossed Africa from the Belgian Congo to Nairobi, and was about to climb Mount Kenya when she encountered the rhinoceros at Nanuyki. The woman fired with a small bore rifle and wounded the animal, which thereupon charged upon and fatally injured her.

A British officer, Captain Atkins, accompanied by his wife, arrived later in a motor car at the scene. He was not aware of Mrs. Green's death and they alighted from the car. The rhinoceros then charged upon them. The Captain shouted a warning to his wife and tried to blind the animal by throwing his coat over its head. The rhinoceros, however, knocked the Captain down and trampled him to death. Mrs. Atkins made her escape and brought back riflemen to the scene, and they shot and killed the animal.

TO PREPARE PLANS OF POWER PLANTS

Toronto Engineer Appointed to St. Lawrence Project Staff.

OTTAWA, March 11.—(Canadian Press).—On the recommendation of the Civil Service Commission, the Government has approved the appointment of Arthur L. Mudge, lately associated with Messrs. Kerry and Chace, Limited, Toronto, to the staff of the Joint Board of Engineers, Canadian Section, St. Lawrence deep waterway project.

Mr. Mudge has had engineering experience extending over a period of thirty years, during which he has had much to do with designing power plants of large size. His particular duties in connection with the St. Lawrence investigation will be the preparation of plans and specifications for four possible power plants for the development of the St. Lawrence River, as well as the preparation of estimates of the cost of necessary electrical and hydraulic equipment. Mr. Mudge is a McGill graduate of 1894, and wide experience in the designing and construction of power plants in Eastern and Northern Ontario, it is intimated, enables him to bring to his new duties an intimate knowledge of power conditions in the central Canadian area.

SIXTY-EIGHT YEARS MARRIED; PORT PERRY COUPLE CELEBRATE

Mr. and Mrs. John Rolph Recall Pioneer Days—No Matches.

THREE SOVEREIGNS.

PORT PERRY, Ont., March 11.—To live together for three score and eight years, during the reigns of three British sovereigns,—Victoria, Edward VII., and George V.—is an honor and a pleasure to which few attain, and in this respect Mr. and Mrs. John Rolph, of Port Perry, Ont., are the exception to the rule of married life, probably throughout all Canada, and their experience is scarcely ever duplicated. Mr. and Mrs. Rolph had the unique experience of celebrating the 68th anniversary of their wedding recently.

Mr. Rolph was born in Wexford County, Ireland, on March 4th, 1829. In those days there were no matches and people used the flint and steel. Tobacco was in the form of a rope and was cut off according to notches in the counter. Firewood consisted of peat in winter and faggots, furze and blackthorne in summer. If the fire went out someone would go to a neighbor's for a coal and this would be fanned to a flame with a bellows. Oat hulls were sometimes used for fuel and in this case, someone remained fanning the fire all the time the pot boiled.

Bullrushes, with the pith taken out having been dipped in grease, were used for lamps; one burned about five minutes.

When he was eighteen, Mr. Rolph passed through the Irish famine, during which he saw hundreds upon hundreds of people starve to death. There was nothing to eat but enough Western American corn, which had become moulded, to make soup. He worked in a soup kitchen, and aws always in a state of hunger.

Mr. Roplh has fished, with a hook and line, for speckled trout, in a pond on the top of a building six storeys high, where there were a hundred servants in the building below.

In 1852 Mr. Rolph came to Canada and after an itinerary of two years settled in Prince Albert, Ontario, where he established a harness making business.

Mrs. Rolph was born in Devonshire, England, on October 15, 1836, and came to Canada with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Sanderson in 1839. Mr. and Mrs. Rolph were married in Prince Albert Ont., in 1857 and to them were born two daughters and three sons: Katherine, wife of I. Argue, Toronto; Clara and Arthur deceased; William and Clarence Percy, both of Port Perry.

After a sojourn of twelve years in Prince Albert, Mr. and Mrs. Rolph moved to Port Perry, where the stalwart veteran continues his interest in harness making. For over fifty years, Mr. Rolph has taken a keen interest in the work of Pine Grove cemetery and the Bible Society, having been secretary for nearly half a century. He and Mrs. Rolph are devoted members of the Presbyterian Church.

On the afternoon and evening of their anniversary several dozen of their close friends and neighbors called to wish them happiness and extend congratulations.

ELECTOR VOTED THREE TIMES

St. Catharines Inquiry Shows Up Many Irregularities.

ST. CATHARINES, March 11 (Canadian Press). — Further revelations were brought out here yesterday in the inquiry before Judge Campbell into the last municipal election.

Sevreal witnesses testified that they had not voted at No. 6, St. George's, Ward, though having been marked as voters during the day.

George Lindsley, Deputy at No. 7 Sub-Division, could not explain how Edward Doddington and A. Anderson were given ballots, having previously voted twice.

Doddington admitted having voted three times during the day, and did so, believing he had a right to do so.

Rum Crew in San Francisco Court Without Lawyer.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11. — (Canadian Press).—The trial of the members of the crew and supposed owners and agents of the British steamer Quadra, suspected rum-runner, which was brought into the harbor here as a prize, with a liquor cargo valued at between $500,000 and $1,000,000 on board, began Tuesday in the United States District Court.

The defendants, nearly sixty in number, are residents of British Columbia for the most part, the Quadra having cleared from Vancouver, B.C.

F. R. Anderson, prominent Vancouver lawyer, and one of the principal defendants, was not present, having fled the country and forfeited his $10,000 bail. He had come here to represent the defendants.

The new record is 20 tons above the previous high mark of 1,441 tons established on July 19, 1913.

PLAN TO MODIFY STEAMSHIP BILL

Subsidy May Not Pass Until Suggestions Have Been Debated.

OTTAWA, March 11. —(Canadian Press).— The contract under which the Canadian Government undertakes to subsidize the Petersen Line of steamships to carry trans-atlantic freight may be modified before the bill to authorize payment of the subsidy passes the Canadian parliabent. This was indicated last night in the course of a spirited debate on the contract in the House of Commons when Premier MacKenzie King stated that the Government would be perpared to discuss with Sir William Petersen any suggestions which parliament might make for the modification of the contract.

The Petersen contract promises to be the most controversial measure of the present parliamntary session.

There is Conservative opposition amendment before the house which if adopted would nullify the contract.

Neither the original motion or amendment eached a vote before adjournment, last night.

In the course of the debate, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture denied the suggestion that, United States grain in bond in Montreal might be carried on a subsidized ship. The Premier intimated that Sir William Petersen, W. T. R. Preston and also the shipping men who are arraigned in the Preston report will be asked to testify before the parliamentary committee, which is to consider the whole question.

URGE COLLECTION OF ALLIED DEBTS

British Chambers of Commerce Ascribe Business Depression to Taxation.

LONDON, March 11 (Canadian Press). — An influential deputation from the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, including many peers and British leaders of business, asked Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill yesterday to attempt to collect the Allied debts.

The speakers said the current trade depression, high cost of living, and unemployment were largely due to excessive taxation. They said payments to the United States on behalf of the Allies amounted to 9 cents on the dollar in the income of every British citizen.

SUGGEST FLOGGING FOR BLACKMAILERS

The British Home Secretary Would Increase Punishment and Hold Secret Trials.

LONDON, March 11 (Canadian Press). — Flogging for blackmailers was formally proposed to the House of Commons by Home Secretary Joynson-Hicks during a debate, in which it was suggested that blackmailing trials be held in secret so that the victims would not be afraid to come forward.

The Home Secretary opposed this, but favoured flogging in adidtion to punishment for life as at present in force.

Several Conservative members expressed approval of whipping, but it was opposed by Liberal and Labour members, who said it was a barbaric punishment, now imposed only in England.

CHILD BRIDES, SOCIAL PUZZLE

Russell Sage Foundation Report Shows Youthful Marriages in Great Number.

NEW YORK, March 10.— More than three-quarters of a million persons living in the United States today have been child brides who were less than 16 years old when married or have been married to brides under that age according to a report covering 90 cities in 28 states made public by the Russell Sage Foundation.

Contrary to general belief, the report, which is preliminary to a final statement covering extended research into child marriage in this country, declares that the majority of child marriages occur among white persons of native parentage

This is due to the fact that many states require no evidence of age than the affidavit of one of the candidates for a marriage license and that the legal minimum marriageable age is still only 12 years for girls and 14 years for boys in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Louisiana, Virginia, Florida, Maryland, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Colorado, Idaho, Maine and Mississippi.

Serious Aspect.

Those who have made a study of the Foundation's findings hold that the seriousness of the situation becomes more impressive when it is known that the report classes as child brides only those under 16 years of age; that it does not take into account the many marriages of children past 16 but under 18, and that the total of child brides and husbands is increased each year by thousands of additional child marriages.

Nor has the Foundation included in its estimate boys married at 17 or younger to girls or women older than 18 because the number of such marriages is relatively small.

The field work of the investigaters, who were under Mary E. Richmond, authority on family welfare work, was followed by exhaustive statistical studies, library research, and extended interviews and correspondence with representatives of social agencies, jurists, public officials, physiologists, and other authorities on the many phases of the problem. The study, which still is under way, covers not only the child marriage problem, but the whole subject of the administration of marriage laws.

Report To Be Published.

The sections of the report dealing with child marriages, prepared by Miss Richmond with Fred S. Hall as collaborator, will be published within a few weeks and immediately will be brought to the attention of leagues of women voters, marriage law administrators, school authorities, state and local legislators, clergymen, and social welfare agencies throughout the country.

An an illustration of the public apathy in the matter, the section of the report made public to-day cites the fact that in 14 states it legally is possible for a girl to marry at an earlier age than that at which she is permitted to become a wage-earner.

The marriageable age of girls has remained an inactive issue in these states, says the report, while their educational and child welfare agencies have kept the age of leaving school and of entering industry a burning one.

"This century has often been misnamed 'the century of the child'," says the report. "In sober truth, with a quarter of the full term behind us, it must be acknowledged that the twentieth century is no such thing; certainly not when conditions in a country as intelligent as the United States still make possible the marriage of children.

Such conditions constitute only a small part of the body of evidence against exaggerated claims of advance in the matter of child welfare, but they are a part which has not yet been developed in any detail. In the matter of child marriages, no group in any section of the United States has yet given serious attention to the social effect of existing laws and to their necessary daily adaptation in the license offices."

"It should be noted," says the introduction to the report, "that these facts concern the general public also, and parents more than any other section of the public."

IDEAS MAKE WORK

Style Set by Duchess Gives Employment to Artists.

LONDON, March 11 (Associated Press).—Hand painted slippers for evening wear, which are the vogue just now, have created work for numerous artists who had never thought of doing anything of the kind before but who have found that this kind of painting pays them better than turning out pictures.

The novelty was introduced in London by the popular Duchess of York, who is one of the smartest of the smartly attired young women. The idea spread like wild fire, and was quickly taken up by other society women.

The foundation of these shoes is satin, mostly in delicate shades, although there have been some exquisite models in old gold, bronze and black. On the toe cap, and tapering off along each side, neat designs are painted in delicate shades to match the color of the satin.

Get back that lost weight!

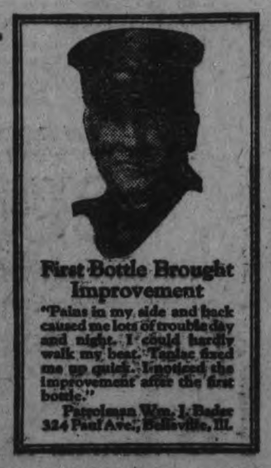
WHEN you start to waste away to a shadow, when the color leaves your cheeks and your poor, tired legs will hardly hold up your weakened body, it's high time you started taking a fine tonic and builder like Tanlac.

Tanlac will build you up and make you feel that life's worth living. Made from roots, herbs, and bark, gathered from the four corners of the earth, and compounded under the exclusive Tanlac formula, Tanlac is just what the poor ,starved body needs.

First of all it cleanses the blood stream and puts the digestive organs in order. You find, after a few days' treatment, that you want to eat. Pretty soon the welcome color steals back into your cheeks and the scales tell you that you're gaining weight. From then on it's only a short time until you're feeling fit as a fiddle.

Millions of men and women have taken Tanlac with great benefit. More than one hundred thousand people have written us glowing tributes to this wonderful tonic.

When you know it has worked wonders for so many folks it's folly not to take advantage of Tanlac's help yourself. Don't put it off another day. Get a bottle at your druggist's now and start the good work right away.



First Bottle Brought Improvement

MAIL LAW COURSE OF NO USE HERE

Clergyman Hoped to Become Lawyer—Sued By Correspondence School.

Judgement was reserved yesterday in the action of the Federal Finance Association against Rev. Donald McIntyre, of Ingersoll, to recover $128.40, balance alleged due on a note assigned to the plaintiffs by the Brodie-Burnham Company, of Chicago. The suit was the outcome of the acceptance by the defendant of a correspondence course from the American Extension University, ostensibly for the purpose of qualifying him to pass a barrister's examination of the Province of Ontario but defendant found, after signing a contract and promissory note, that he would have to be articled to a solicitor and attend Osgoode Hall for three years. After making some payments he declined to further carry out the contract.

After hearing the facts, Chief Justice Mulock declared emphatically that the undertaking by the American University Extension to qualify anyone to pass examinations for the legal profession in Ontario was on the face of it fraudulent, adding, 'However lacking the student may be, they undertake to qualify him by some patent process to pass." Mr. Justice Hodgins interjecte the remark that the American concern "offered degrees for money, and give you something or pretend to give you something." Counsel for the plaintiffs said they were prepared to do their part if the student carried out his to the best of his ability.

EDUCATION BOARD HELPS CUT TAXES

Guelph School Estimates Reduced—Tax Rate Down Three Mills.

GUELPH, Ont., March 11.—A reduction in the school estimates, which will mean a cut of three mills in the tax rate as compared to the appropriation of 1924, has been announced by the Board of Education. The Board will ask the city for $148,697.68 for school purposes, which amount is $35,727.84 less than the figure requested last year.

Of the sum needed $98,842.81 is for the Public schools; $30,012.52 for the Collegiate Institute, and $18,842.35 for the vocational school. The big cut in this year's estimates is in connection with the Collegiate Vocational Institute where there is a difference of $34,737.37 as compared with the appropriation for 1924. The reduction in the Public school figues only amounts to $990.47.

JEWS SUPPORT LEAGUE

Conference Called to Consider Organizing League of Nations Union.

JERUSALEM, March 11.—(Associated Press.)—The Jews of Palestine, whose political status in the national home is safeguarded by the League of Nations mandate entrusted to Great Britain, are being organized as supporters of the League.

A meeting was called recently in response to a suggestion from headquarters of the League of Nations Union in Brussels to organize a Palestine society for the support of the League. The conference was attended by leading Jewish residents, including the editors of the Hebrew press, and it was decided to proceed with the formation of a Jewish League of Nations Society.

191 Tennis Tournaments Open To-day At Ventnor

LONDON, March 10. — (Canadian Press).—The hard court lawn tennis season, for which no less than 191 tournaments have been officially sanctioned, opened to-day at Ventnor. With six tournaments scheduled for March, the number increases rapidly each month, until by July and August the crest of the tennis tournament wave is reached with an average of almost two meetings daily — 56 each month, to be exact.

Statisticians calculate that by the end of the season, allowing a fair estimate of average of 200 matches for each tournament that approximately 40,000 separate matches will have been played during which over 200,000 tennis balls will have been put into play. The claim is advanced on behalf of lawn tennis that, although thirty years ago saw it in its infancy it is now one of the greatest ball games in the world and substantiate this claim by the statement that twenty three nations entered for the Davis Cup games last year, a figure unrivalled and unlikely to be surpassed by any other game.

RESTORE COURTESY OF PRE-WAR FRANCE

Dowagers of French Aristocracy Form League of Polite People.

PARIS, Mar. 11—Dowagers of the Bauborg St. Germain, the so-called haven of French aristocracy in Paris have started a crusade against what they describe as the growing lack of politeness and boorishness of French men.

They have formed a "league of polite people," the rules of which were passed on yesterday over teacups in one of the most prominent salons of Paris society. One member of the committee explained that since the war masculine contempt for the traditions of French courtesy had known no bounds and that the purpose of the new league is to organize leagues everywhere with the view of recovering lost manners.

Books and pamphlets will be printed and circulated telling everyone exactly how they should act and what they should say in every given circumstance in conformity with the ancient laws of chivalry. It will apply, of course particularly to dealings with the fair sex. The league counts upon direct action by its members, which means, apparently, that the latter will—gently or severely, according to temperment—reprimand men in their respective circles who may be guilty of a breach of courtesy or respect.

ALIMONY FOR MEN

Illinois Senate Would Make Wealthy Divorcees Pay Husbands.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., March 11 (United Press). — Alimony would no longer be a male prerogative by provisions of a Bill pending in the Illinois Senate which would make women liable to alimony payment in this state.

Strangely, most active support of the measure comes from the only two lady solons in the Illinois Assembly. They are Mrs. Rena Elrod, Chicago, and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers' Grove.

"Why shouldn't women pay alimony if they have the means," Mrs. Elrod asks.

"Now that women have equal rights with men, they should assume equal responsibilities, they should be required to pay alimony when the occasion demands," according to Mrs. O'Neill, who was one of the earliest equal rights exponents.

J. Stanley Joyce, millionaire Chicago lumberman, who has turned over a fortune in alimony to Peggy Joyce in the last three years, and Harold McCormick, harvester magnate, are said to be behind the Alimony Bill.

Discussion of the Alimony Bill elicited the recommendation that alimony in Illinois be abolished altogether and that pre-marriage contracts take the place of alimony, following the French marriage code.

LLOYD GEORGE GUARDED

Scotland Yard Still Assigns Detective to Attend Ex-Premier.

LONDON, March 11 (Associated Press). — Although no longer in office, former Prime Minister Lloyd-George is still attended by a detective, says the Evening Standard.

WHEAT BREAKS 7C. WINNIPEG TO-DAY

Weakness of American Market Influenced Downward Movement.

WINNIPEG, March 11 (Canadian Press.—Wheat prices here broke seven cents on the extreme dip of a general bearish movement on the market today. May touched the low point of $1.87 5-8 shortly before noon, but later recovered 2 1-2 cents when buying strength reasserted itself. Lower Liverpool cables and weakness of the American market influenced the downward movement here.

G.W.V.A. TO REPLY IN THE NEGATIVE

Object to Associating With Provincial Police in Coal Strike Area.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 11 (Canadian Press).—A meeting of the G.W.V.A. will be held tonight for the purpose of framing a reply to the request made yesterday, by a representative of the Attorney-General's Department, that the offer of one thousand ex-service men as an auxiliary police in the strike area holds good in the event of outside labor being brought in to man the maintenance machinery of Cape Breton colleries.

Officials of the association have in the meantime intimated that their reply will be strongly in the negative, because such a promise would be to associate themselves with the provincial police, which it was not their intention to do.

BARN DESTROYED.

First Electrical Storm of the Year Caused Fire at Woodbridge.

WOODBRIDGE, March 11.— In the first electrical storm of the season the barn on William Bell's farm, near Elder's Mills, four miles north of here, along with the grain and implements it contained, was totally destroyed by fire last night when lightning struck an adjacent strawstack. The fire started in the straw stack at about 8 o'clock, and in a short time the barn was ablaze. The neighbors were telephoned to, and, working in the driving rain, succeeded in getting all the live stock out of danger. The loss is placed at $7,000, partially covered by insurance.

NO INVESTIGATION.

Probe Into Building of New Schools Refused by Board.

OSHAWA, March 11.—The matter of appointing an inspector to probe the building operations on Oshawa's new schools, in accordance with the general census of feeling of the City Council, was lengthily debated by the Board of Education here last night, but a motion to this effect was defeated. Several accusations were made against the School Board during election time, and it was in respect to these that the Trustees urged an investigation.

WELLAND, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Following the announcement of W. M. German, M.P., that he would not accept renomination for the Welland seat representative Liberals of that constituency are preparing to present Mr. German's claims to a seat in the Senate. With only one break, he has represented the riding for thirty-five years.

Considerable rivalry already exists as to who will be favored as Mr. German's successor in the lower House.

UNDERSTUDIES CHANCE

Players in Minor Roles Get Chance in Charity Showing.

VIENNA, March 11—(AP).— Understudies and supers are to have a great chance at the Vienna Burg Theatre. A performance of Beaumarchais' "Barber of Seville' 'will be given for charity in which all the leading parts will be taken by persons who ordinarily play very secondary roles in which they seldom have more than a single line to speak.

Figaro, one of the chief parts in the performance, will be taken by an actor who never before has been entrustd with more than one short sentence. Dramatic critics are discussing the performance with great eagerness and predicting that it may result in giving the Vienna stage a new star.

CONVENTION OF SUNDAY SCHOOLS PASSES TEMPERANCE RESOLUTION

Elementary Graded Union Favors Teaching Temperance in Sunday School.

PROTEST 4.4 BEER.

A convention of the Elementary Graded Union Sunday Schools of the city was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the auditorium of St. Andrew's Sunday School.

The sessions were presided over by Mr.. J. Edgar. The afternoon attendance was small, proving, as has been demonstrated at other meetings of this type that afternoon meetings are not popular in a city of this type.

There were about one hundred and twenty-five people present in the evening.

Miss Laine of Toronto Girls' Work Secretary, and Rev. R. B. Ferris, of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Religious Education Council, were special speakers, giving addresses on Teacher Training methods and on Daily Vacation Bible Classes. As a consequence of discussion of the last-named subject, one or two of these classes will probably be established in Peterborough during the sumer vacation.

Rev. J. D. Richardson, pastor of St. James' Methodist Church, reported on having conducted a very successful teacher training class.

The afternoon session was followed by a supper, followed in turn by the evening session, when departmental conferences were held, with Rev. Mr. Ferris in charge of adults, Miss Laine in charge of primary work, and Mr. Lloyd Holding of Toronto, in charge of the 'teen age department. Mr. Holding, who is director of religious education in Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto, also gave an interesting address on "The Challenge of Leadership."

Two resolutions with regard to temperance legislation were passed, a general resolution urging more systematic teaching along temperance lines in Sunday Schools, and a resolution to be forwarded to Premier Ferguson regretting the passing of the amendment with regard to 4.4 per cent. beer

President, John Edgar.

Vice-president, J. A. McKone.

Secretary-treasurer, Geo. Robertson.

The customary votes of thanks to the officials of St. Andrew's Church were tendered.

Gunmen Did Lots Of Work For Very Little Money

NEWARK, N.J., March 11 (United Press).—Three gunmen did lots of work for little money here today.

Entering the City Garage they bound and gagged Earl Duggett, beat another employee into unconsciousness and escaped in an automobile. All they got was $6.10.

GREAT ART EXHIBIT

Rembrandts Gathered in for Celebration of Amsterdam's 650th Birthday.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, March 11 (Associated Press). — Great preparations are afoot to celebrate the 650th aniversary this year of Amsterdams status as a city. It was in the year 1275 that the municipality received its first charter as such from Floris V., Count of Holland.

The centre of attraction is to be an exhibition in the famous Ryks Museum and the City Museum of all paintings, prints, sculptures, and other works of art having relation to Amsterdam during the past six and a half centuries.

In addition to such famous Rembrandts as "The Night Watch" and the "Staalmeesters," many others by the same master will be brought from Paris, Berlin, and other European capitals, having been temporarily loaned for the occasion.

RUSSIAN FACING CHARGE OF MURDER

A Roumanian the Victim, Who Was Struck With a Hammer.

BELLEVILLE, March 11.—(Canadian Press).—Sargei Tkacj, a Russian, was placed on trial here to-day for murder, the charge being that he killed Alek Crnuska, a Roumanian, at Point Anne, a suburb of Belleville, on December 22 last. Crnuska was struck on the head with a hammer, the attack following the drinking of wine and card-playing.

Sergeant Rae, of the Provincial Police, testified that the accused man had made the statement to him, "Alek hit me, and I hit Alek."

JUSTICE, BUT NO MERCY

Official Gets Sentence of 308 Years for Falsifying Documents.

MADRID ,Spain, March 11 (Associated Press), — An official of the municipal corporation of Bejar, a town near Salamanca, has been sentenced to imprisonment for periods aggregating 308 years.

The man was accused of falsifying public documents, and his punishment was fixed by the law courts of Bejar at a little under 15 years' imprisonment for each of 21 counts, with a fine of $150.

The same Court not long ago sentenced a former mayor to a series of terms of imprisonment totalling 396 years and 27 1-2 days.

Both men have begun serving their jail sentences.

Royal Winter Fair Was An Unqualified Success

TORONTO, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—That the 1924 Royal Winter Fair was "an unqualified success" was the report presented at the annual meeting of the Fair Association to-day. Exhibits at the Fair last November made a new record, and $71,402 was distributed in prizes. A surplus of $1,514 is reported, the total income being $188,889.

TORONTO MAN FOUND DEAD

MONTREAL, March 11. — An inquest yesterday on the body of Clarence Buffin ,of Toronto, found dead in a Windsor Street hotel here, revealed that his death was due to the taking of poison, probably as a medicine.

How Robert M. Koenig Found Remedy for Pimply Skin

For years my skin would break out every once in a while—and ointments did very little to help me.

I read a doctor's article stating that pimply skin usually comes from the stomach—and bowels not getting rid of the poisons.

I tried Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days—and since that time my skin is smooth and clear. Now I tell my friends the right way of getting rid of a broken out skin—and also of steering clear of upset stomach and sick headache. Carter's are all you claim for them.

SHOT SWEETHEART; TRIED FOR MURDER

Thomas Collinson Arraigned in Cornwall—Evidence of Shooting Beatrice Thorpe.

CORNWALL, March 11.—(Canadian Press).—In a court room in which every available inch of space was occupied, the trial of Thomas Collison, aged 27, for the murder of Beatrice Thorpe, the bright, pretty nineteen-year-old daughter of William Thorpe, in the village of Hulbert, in November last, opened to-day before Mr. Justice Lennox.

Collison appeared to be fit and neatly dressed when he was brought into court. He seemed to show, however, little interest in the proceedings after he had pleaded not guilty through his counsel, John M. Godfrey, of Toronto.

Charles Thorpe, half-brother of Beatrice Thorpe, told of his sister, himself and his sick brother being alone in the house on the evening of November 22 from 5.30 onward.

Beatrice was in the kitchen mopping the floor, and she was shot while working.

He saw Thomas Collison's face outside the window and a revolver in his hand.

Witness jumped up and threw a lantern at Collison. He did not know how many shots were fired. After the first shot, he said, Beatrice staggered to the back door, and witness went into the parlor. Two more shots were fired, one at himself and one at Beatrice. There were two bullet marks in the stairway door near where Beatrice was.

William Thorpe,father of Beatrice, said he had known Collison all his life. He had questioned Collison about Beatrice, and accused said she would not say she hated him or loved him. He had a revolver in his hand, and said he was going to shoot her. Witness told Collison he would not have him arrested, and Collison went away with the revolver in his pocket.

Samuel Collison, brother of the accused, said he saw Collison at the home of his sister, Mrs. Fawcett, about 7.30 or 8 on the night of the shooting, and he said to the people there, "Did you hear the news?"

"I have shot Beatrice Thorpe."

SCOTTISH RUGBY TEAM IS SELECTED

Play England March 21 In Intermediate Series.

EDINBURGH, March 11 Canadian Press cable)—With the exception of J. C. Dykes of Glasgow Academicals, whose place has been taken by his clubmate, H. Waddell, the team that Scotland will put on the field against England on March 21 will be the same that has established the Caledonians in the lead in the International Rugby series. The game, slated to be played on the new ground of the Scottish Union at Murrayfield—a suburb of Edinburg—will decide the international championship and also the disposal of the famous Calcutta Cup.

The Scottish fifteen, chosen last night, follows:

Full back, D. Drysdale, Heriot's College F.P.'s.

Three quarters: I. S. Smith, G. P. S. Macpherson, G. G. Aitken and A. G. Wallace, all of Oxford University.

Halves: H. Waddell and J. B. Nelson, both of Glasgow Academicals.

Forwards: J. M. Bannerman, Glasgow High School; D. S. Davies, Hawick; A. G. Gillies, Watsonians and Carlisle; R. Howie, Kirkcaldy; J. C. H. Ireland, Glasgow High School F. P's.; D. J. McMyn, Cambridge University; J. R. Paterson, Birkenhead Park; and J. W. Scott, Stuart's College F. P's.

There are no new international "caps" in the Scottish Fifteen, Waddell having already played against all four countries in 1924.

STOP THAT COUGH NOW!
WITH A FEW DOSES OF DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

Mrs. Alex. Foster, R.R. No. 2, Proton, Ont., writes:—"I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs, and my cough was so bad, at times, it seemed as if it were tearing my lungs to pieces. I sent and got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and I got relief after the first few doses, and by the time I had finished the rest of the bottle I was completely relieved of both my cold and cough."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 35 years; you don't experiment with some new and untried remedy when you buy it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FIGHTS, FLIES AND STUDIES LAW

SAN FRANCISCO, March 11.—Some boxers are "up in the air" while they are swapping wallops in the ring.

But Mike O'Leary, San Francisco junior welter- yeight, is in the air before and after fights.

And all because he possesses three airplanes as well as a pair of educated fists. He finds the airplanes of much aid in keeping up his fistic engagements.

Comes a hurry call for his services in Stockholm or Sacramento. O'Leary, always in condition, hops to it. His manager arranges the terms by telephone and O'Leary flies up for the battle.

Is O'Leary flying to fight or fighting to fly?

"Wrong on both counts" says the battling pilot. "I love the excitement of both. But I am out to save up enough money to firmly establish myself in the law business."

A youth with ambition but no funds, O'Leary determined to study law. He entered a law office and took up boxing to supply the proper finances.

Now O'Leary, through office and home study, has successfully passed the bar examinations in California. He's all qualified to hang out his shingle and fight with law books instead of gloves. But—

"Too many young lawyers have to drudge for years as law clerks before they can start for themselves,' he tells you. 'And as long as I can fight and fly, I'm going to use these sports to build up the stake I'll need to maintain an office while I'm getting started in law practice.'

59 GAMES PLAYED AT BROCK STREET ARENA

Were Scheduled at All Hours of Day and Night.

How many games have been played at the Brock Street Arena during the season just drawing to a close? Some sore-throated fan who has viewed the Petes, in all grades, Senior, Junior and Intermediate, in each and every home appearance, will answer in a voice still echoing a croak, "About fifteen or sixteen But that would fall far short of the true estimate. There have been just 59 games played at the local ice citadel. This is counting all matches—O.H.A. games and scratch matches like, for example, The Examiner versus C.P.C. battles, or when the Gas Works and Utilities men took the ice for a game that starfed friendly.

There were more games in January than any of the four winter months, 28 being the count. February comes next with 16 and so far for the present month there have been 13. December was the poorest month, only 2 games having been played.

In order to have seen all these games, it would have been necessary for the fan to have camped right at the rink, as the games have been staged all hours and under all conditions. They have been played morning, noon and night and one took place at the midnight hour.

The Duffus Motor Sales game, played at midnight, was the crudest exhibition of the winter pastime. Some of the players on this team might have skated once before, but it was so long ago they couldn't remember it. Some were as useful as a wooden leg in a forest fire.

The games during the last few weeks have all been won by small scores and not a few have ended in a tie, sometimes without the nets being bulged at all.

KELTERBOURNE OUT.

MONTREAAL, March 11. —(Canadia Press).— Montreal Victorias, Quebec champions will take a two goal lead to Toronto on Thursday, for the return game in the Allan Cup Eastern semi-finals, having defeated Niagara Falls, Senior O. H. A. winners, here last night 2 to 0 in one of the hardest fought battles the team from the village of roar has been in this season. Not a goal was scored during the first fifty minutes of play, though good chances were wasted by both teams. The Falls were without Butch Kelterbourne their good left wing player, while the balance of the team showed the effects of the hard campaign they have been through this winter.

PETERSON CONTRACT CONDEMNED

based on the report of W. T. R. Preston is ill-advised, costly, and futile, and unworthy of the serious consideration of this House."

Canadian Consolidation.

W. F. Maclean (Conservative, of York South) suggested the incorporation of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company with the Canadian National Railway, and the Canadian Pacific Steamship lines with the Canadian Government Marine.

He predicted that the agreement with Sir William Petersen would end where the Crow's Nest Pass agreement had terminated, in dispute.

The proposed consolidation would save millions of dollars to the country and also do away with the unnecessary competition between the two railway systems. How long could this country stand the present competition going on between the two lines?

Mr. Maclean declared that he was not suggesting the proposition that involved taking over anything that did not pay. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company was one of the most successful railways on the North American Continent, and if incorporated with th Canadian National Railways, the greatest pulic-owned railway in the world, the scheme would prove a vast success.

The taking over of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Lines and utilising them with the Canadian Merchant Marine would also be a splendid thing. Canada would benefit by having such a consolidation go through, the systems to be owned absolutely by the people of Canada.

Mr. Maclean understood that the shipping conference were to have their case presented in Ottawa by Mr. Geoffrion. The people of Canada should demand from the conference "a penny's worth for a penny spent," but the Petersen agreement was only leading to litigation and delay.

Progressive's View.

A. Speakman (Progressive, Red Deer) said that while the subject was of importance to the country as a whole, and to every member in the House, it was perhaps of particular importance to the agricultural community and to its representatives. It was generally admitted that the export trade must bear the cost of the ocean rates, and a large portion of the exportable surplus of Canadian products came from the farm.

Two questions must be answered in considering the matter:

(1) Was there a combine of a discriminatory and unfair nature?

(2) If such a combine existed, was the method proposed by the Government for meeting it sound in principle and adequate in performance?

Two facts were established. The first was that a conference did exist. "And I am somewhat at a loss to see where a conference ends and a combine begins," Mr. Speakman remarked. No objection could be found to a conference if it was created for legitimate ends, such as co-operation to attain better services and stabilise rates. But it must be remembered that the very machinery which could be used to improve conditions and lower costs, might also be utilised as an instrument of oppression.

Had the conference gone beyond its legitimate purposes? One thing stood out. That was that since the organisation of the conference, ocean rates had risen tremendously.

Rates Are Burden.

Mr. Speakman said that whatever remained to be said on the subject of ocean rates, it must be admitted that the increases in recent years constituted a crushing and paralysing burden on the stock raising industry. Insofar as these increases affected live stock they nullified the removal of the British embargo on Canadian cattle. He was inclined to agree with General J. A. Clark that the natural market for Canada's cattle lay in the United States, but because of the barrier which the Fordney Tariff had erected against the product of Canada's farms, any barrier to the British market became tremendously more important.

If the Government had any remedy for the present situation, then Mr. Speakan was willing to admit its policy must be in the best interests of the country, but he thoug it remained to be shown whether that remedy had been found. For instance, the Preston report threw no light on the question of whether or not high ocean freight rates had resulted in undue profits to the shipping companies, or whether any combine which might exist had operated to the exclusion of such tramp shipping as did not subscribe to the combine.

It was interesting to reflect that if these rates were so high as to produce undue profits, why were the ships of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine operating at a loss.

He suggested that Merchant Marine ships should have been used first, to ascertain what the actual cost of ocean transport was before any subsidy proposal was brought into the House. His section of the country had had several unhappy experiences with subsidies. The proposed policy simply meant that the Government would pay subsidy from the taxation of the people.

Grain Not Suffering.

"The grain which could be carried by ten vessels was trifling, continued Mr. Speakman, and he hardly thought that grain was suffering from the conference rates, anyway. As for cattle, they were shipped only during a very short season. The difficulty of the light return cargoes was likely due to tariff, and might be solved by increasing the British preference, or wiping out the tariff against Great Britain altogether.

In any case, the question before the House should not be made a political issue. "This is a business question, and can only be settled on business grounds," he added.

Dyspepsia is Out of Date

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Have Been a Great Factor in the Increased Consumption of Food.

More than a million old-time dyspeptics are now daily enjoying the best the market affords and all because they learned the helpfulness of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. It is a most enjoyable sensation to eat pork and beans, fried eggs and bacon, sausage and buckwheats or mince pie and coffee with rich cream and not a sign of distress. HOG "SACRIFICE" CASE DEFERRED she was in the United States where she claims she obtained a divorce. She stated that she had once been sent to Queen Street Asylum, but was not sure of the date. Later on she had been released. She is a strong-looking woman of 52 years, fair of complexion, with blue eyes.

For years she said she had been inspired by faith healing and Holy Light, and this was not the first time she had made sacrifices. She described another occasion in April, nine years ago, at Kansas City, when she and two other women offered up a young lamb on an altar in the woods near that city. "Just as God called Pastor Crockford, so he called me," she said. Voices gave her instructions.

Tells of Another "Sacrifice."

Vividly she recalled all the details. She went to the Kansas City stock yards and bought a little lamb. "It was kind of grey," she said, but not after she washed it. She and her two companions then hired a taxi-cab and drove out to a bush a few miles outside the city. "We went just like people do for sport," she said. "We went first class to do the work of God."

Here in the depths of the woods an altar was built. "My Bible told me to build an altar of stones and lay some sticks on it," she continued. Then the problem of killing the sacarifice arose. "Anna, you must stick that lamb yourself and wash your arms up to the elbow in its blood," the voices told her. This she did. One of the other women in the meantime had pulled up a wild grape vine. This and wild spring flowers decorated the pyre. This sacrifice, she said, had given her the power to cure all diseases which physicians could not, except one. But this offering of the pigs had completed her inspired gifts.

The Lord had assured her of this by means of the earthquake, she said. "He gave me the sign; He talked to me always."

"Are you a trained nurse?" she was asked.

"No, I am a gifted nurse," was her reply.

Mr. Underwood could see nothing unusual in Anna Reynolds' narrative. He is perfectly convinced of the healing powers as taught by the Faith of the Holy Light sect. He said that he should have sung hymns while threshing after his return from Toronto last fall when he discovered that the asthma did not recur even in the worst clouds of chaff from the machines. But he had felt ashamed to sing his praises before the hired help. Next season, however, he meant to sing praises.

The young man works a splendid farm belonging to his father just outside the little town of Bluevale, about five miles from Wingham. He is quiet and retiring and married to a very beautiful young wife who comes from a well-known family of the vicinity. All through the neighborhood there is nothing but respect for him.

GIANTS DEFEAT 1924 VICTORS

First of Training Games Goes to New York by 8 to 7.

AT PALM BEACH.

NEW YORK, March 11.—(Canadian Press). — Gentle breezes from the southland bring the news that the Giants have evened up the series with the Senators that came to such a sudden halt last fall, when Earl McNeely bounded a sizzling hit over the head of the youthful Freddie Lindstrom at Washington. The men of McGraw were victors at Palm Beach yesterday, in the first of thirteen training games, 8 to 7. Pep Young did the damage in the eighth. The line-ups looked like those of the last game of the world series a few months ago when the Washington team captured the world championship. Only Walter Johnson, Muddy Ruel and Hank Gowdy were missing.

Meanwhile Dazzy Vance of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and President Charles H. Ebbets reached an agreement at Clearwater, by which the League's most valuable player receives an increase of $5,000 in salary.

NO IMPUTATION OF NEGLIGENCE BY DEPARTMENT

Auditor-General's Reply to Acting Minister of Finance on Annual Report.

NOT MISLEADING.

Hon. Mr. Robb Says Newspaper Was Disturbed by Gouthier's Report.

OTTAWA, March 11 (Canadian Press). — Further correspondence was tabled in the House of Commons yesterday in the controversy between the Acting Minister of Finance and the Auditor-General, over the manner in which the later's annual report was submitted. On 28th February, the Hon. J. A. Robb drew the attention of Mr. Georges Gonthier to a newspaper article "evidently founded on your introduction to the report of the Auditor-General, 1924, and prominently displaying in the headlines, two disturbing criticisms of my department."

Mr. Gonthier, in his reply, disclaims any intention of implying negligence on the part of the Finance or any other Department, and assures Mr. Robb that he sought only to draw the attention of the House of Commons to certain outstanding amounts due the Government of Canada, and to make some comment on the methods which might be followed by his department. This, he conceived to be his duty.

To this, Mr. Robb replies that previous Auditor-Generals had known the proper value of these statements of arrears, and had "avoided making reference thereto in such a manner as to mislead Parliament and the public."

Mr. Robb adds that he is glad to have Mr. Gonthier's assurance that the later was not imputing negligence to the Finance Department, but the fact remained that the newspaper "had the material from your report to warrant them in being disturbed as to the efficiency of the Department of Finance."

Gonthier's Letter.

Mr. Gonthier, Auditor-General, said in part, in his reply:

"I am fully aware of my duty as chairman of the Board of Audit and of the duties the Board is called upon to perform, and I have no doubt that the Board will properly report on its activities at an early date. But as Auditor-General I have distinct duties to perform, and my remarks were made only for the purpose of calling the attention of the House of Commons to the fact that although Section 31 of the Act empowered the Auditor-General to prescribe regulations and forms for the guidance of accounts in making up and rendering accounts, very little was done in recent years by the Audit Office regarding the framing of these regulations and forms, the uniformity of which as applied to the various services is in my opinion most desirable."

The Acting Minister of Finance, in his letter to Mr. Gonthier, criticised certain passages in the Auditor-General's report. In his reply, Mr .Gonthier assumed that one of these was a reference to $168,000,000 of past due accounts carried without investigation into collectibility. Mr. Gonthier claims that a similar statement has been published in the Auditor-General's report every year for some time, and that it refers to arrears due the Dominion Government.

Mr. Gonthier adds: "In making reference to the fact that 'no examination was made in the past to ascertain the degrees of collectibility of these amounts,' I had in mind, as a matter of course, that no examination was made by the Auditor-General and consequently I was not in a position to assume responsibility for accuracy of the amount involved. As I pointed out, some of these arrears are of long standing, and I deemed it my duty t infrm the Huse of Commons of this condition of affairs.

Duty to Inquire.

"I did not say, nor did I have any intention of intimating there was any negligence on the part of the Finance Department or of any other department in regard to these arrears, but I certainly do think that it is the Auditor-General's duty as the special servant of the House of Commons, to inquire into the conditions under which they accrued, and to inform himself on the attitude of the department concerned in regard to their collection. There was no featuring in a prominent manner that I can see in my report of these arrears."

Mr. Gonthier then goes on to deal with the second section of Mr. Robb's leter, which drew his attention to the fact that newspaper comment on the Auditor-General's report contained "another prominently featured headline" to the effect that "no examination of securities carried in by (sic) Finance Department, the largest banking office in Canada." The Auditor-General replies: "I do not think this can be implied from my report which only states that no systematic examination was ever made by the Auditor-General's Department, although the Treasury Board had requested ,on 6th July, 1881, that such an examination should be effected."

Mr. Gonthier disclaims any intention to mislead the public, or to do more than carry out his obligations.

Under a third heading, Mr. Gonthier takes up Mr. Robb's complaint that his report had led to an assumption that there was "no standard system of accounting in Government offices," and to this he replies, that the Audit Board wil shortly report on its activities, and that any remarks in his report as Auditor-General ,which may have led up to such an assumption, were made up merely for the House of Commons.

Robb's Comment.

Mr. Gonthier's letter was tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Mr. Robb, who appends a copy of his reply, dated 7th March, which says in part to Mr. Gonthier:

"Your reply that a similar statement has ben published in the Auditor-General's report every year for some time, does not quite meet the present situation, because previous Auditor-Generals, knowing the proper value of these statements of arrears, avoided making reference thereto, in such a manner, as to mislead Parliament and the public.

"I certainly agree with you in your statement, that you have distinct duties to perform in reporting to Parliament, but I would say in this respect, that in the performance of such duties, you should exercise more care by refraining from presenting a report which would be misleading to Parliament and to the country.

"I am glad to have your assurance that there was no intention on your part of intimating that there was any negligence on the part of the Finance Department, or of any other department, in regard to these arrears; but the fact remains that the Financial Post had the material from your report to warrant them in being disturbed as to the efficiency of the Department of Finance."

'EDWARD' IS DEAD; LONG LIVE 'HOOT'

Gibson's Fans Did Not Appreciate His Society Touches and Impersonations.

Once upon a time there was a fine cowboy actor. In the parlance of the movies he was called a western. He got the job because he could ride like samhill, and because the company had liked his work in short stuff. He rose to fame because he really was a very human type and because of a striking nickname which was very "pat" for the type of hard-riding, smart-aleck, none-too-romantic acting demanded by his western roles.

This actor was "Hoot" Gibson.

Hoot wasn't pretty, he wasn't masterful, he wasn't a great lover. But he was mighty human and he was versatile.

And then Gibson's official name became "Edward," and his nickname went into parentheses. For a time Universal made an earnest attempt to tear down western reputation and make a Valentino out of Gibson. Evening dress, shoulder straps, hair polish and other aids to beauty were invoked. The Hootonians stood for it for a time, in sad resignation. But something had just disappeared. Gibson fans didnt' appreciate Gibson's dressed-up and slick impersonations. Then the exhibitors put up a holler that could be heard from California to New York. They judge pictures and stars by what they draw at the box-office. Fans wanted their hero in chaps or nothing. So strong was the chorus that Universal was forced to take notice.

So now "Edward' is sunk, the parentheses have disappeared and Hoot rides forth in all his western glory.

Musical Evening At Conservatory.

The musical evening planned by Miss Palmer, L.R.A.M., and performed at the Conservatory last night, suffered misfortune in the untimely thunderstorm, whose heavy rains dashed the hopes of many who had planned to enjoy an evening of Eligabethan music. The small audience that greeted with enthusiasm every number of a much-varied programme, congratulated themselves on braving the inclement weather, and sincerely hoped that Miss Palmer and her colleagues would not be discouraged by circumstances in their future undertakings, which are of such educational and entertaining value to Peterboro. Over forty young people gave freely of their talents and services last night, and showed by the quality of their work, and their happy ensemble, a deep interest in the central idea of the evening—the presentation of Music of the Golden Age of Art, the 16th and 17th Centuries.

Miss Palmer opened the programme herself by a talk showing how the composers of the period drew their inspiration from the folk music of the people—taking this living seed, tending it, and rendering it back—a perfect flower—to the giver. This was the history of the Art Song, the Madrigal, and the early forms of instrumental music. She then described the conditions of musical art in England in the time of Elizabeth and Drake, and showed to what an extent England led the world of music in those days. After a short description and sketch of the lives of the composers whose music was being performed on the programme, the musical part went forward with professional precision.

First, ten small boys from the King George School under the direction of Miss Fusee and Miss Eastwood, gave examples of Catches and Rounds. Those taking part were Delbert Whatman, Speros Yeotes, Norman Calladine, Roland Hill, Norman Yelland, Jim Willshaw, Willie Taylor, Richard Walsh, Joe Stenton and Garnet Davis.

Another youthful violinist, Ralph Clark, performed a Minuet, with sweet tone and true feeling for music. An Old English Dance was daintily performed by several pupils from the Y.W.C.A., under the direction of Miss Littlefield, in quaint old-fashioned costumes.

Several duets for soprano and tenor varied the singing of the songs; Miss Bertha Hill and Mr. Kenneth Jarvis giving a spirited rendering of "Here's a Health Unto His Majesty," and later, the very delightful songs by Miss LeBarr and Mr. Snelgrove, Morley's "Now is the Month of Maying," and the Old English song, "Madam, Will You Walk."

In the solo work, Miss Geraldine Collins sang delightfuly an old song, "Hope, the Hermit." Miss Greta Le Barr interpreted the famous song, "Where the Bee Sucks," from Shakespeare's "Tempest," and "Come, Lassies and Lads," with delightful charm of style. Mr. Harold Snelgrove's pleasing tenor was heard to good advantage in three songs, "Pedlar Jim," Ford's "Since First I Saw Your Face," and "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind," the beautiful Shakespeare song by Dr. Arne.

Miss Mary Harstone played an old Gigue by Dr. Arne very delightfully on the piano, and the charming music of Giles Farnaby, "His Toye —His Rest—and His Conceit' was interpreted by the Conservatory String Quartette, who played with very fine musical taste.

There were also given two scenes from Shakespeare's plays; one, from "As You Like It," introducing the lively duet, "It Was a Lover and His Lass," by Morley, very well sung by Misses Bertha Hill and Helen Lamb as pages, supported by Miss Iva Gilbank as Audrey, and Miss Helen Ross as the Clown. The costumes and stagin gof this were very pretty and effective. Another scene was given from "The Merchant of Venice," with incidental music given by Miss LeBarr, Mr. Snelgrove and their accompanist, Miss Florence Saunders, was very ably staged by Mrs. Bingham, and presented some very talented young people, the work of Bassanio (Miss Irene Breckenridge) and Portia (Miss Rhoda Cheyne), being specially commendable, especially as Miss Breckenridge had prepared the part at only a few days' notice. Other young people in the cast were Catharine Millard, Iva Gilbank, Irene Wright, Helen Ross, Eethel Cooper and Viola Martin. All credit is due to Mrs. Bingham, who spares neither time nor trouble in her interest in the dramatic training of her pupils. The bright colors of the costumes added greatly to the presentation of the scene.

At the close of the progtamme, Mrs. Leila Spriggs gave a very fine rendering of "Rule, Brittannia," supported by string quartette and chorus. Accompaniments were played during the evening by Miss Saunders and Miss Widdess. Assisting Miss Palmer in the training of those taking part were Mrs. Dorothy Allen Park, Mrs. Greenslade, and Mrs. Pearl Burford Curtis.

SKEPTICS SNIFF AT ROTOR-SHIP

But Test, Conducted in Same Place First Paddlewheeler Operated, Is Success.

GRANGEMOUTH, Scotland, March 10. — A second time in a little more than 100 years this busy shipping port becomes the scene of a noteworthy experiment in navigation. Away back in 1802, five years before Robert Fulton succeeded in making his first steamship, the Clermont, navigate the Hudson River safely from New York to Albany, Scottish engineers had built the Charlotte Dundas. And it was in this harbour of Grangemouth that she was tried out.

In those early days there were many sceptics among the shipping experts concerning the practicability of driving shops by any means save sails . They laughed at the funny paddle wheels of the Charlotte Dundas and the Clermont. And now the same type of men are wagging their heads and shrugging their shoulders at the appearance of a new kind of sailing ship, the ship that makes steam engines work its sails.

The Buckau, Herr Fletners rotorship, has completed a much more difficult trial trip than was that accomplished by the Clermont. As if bent on discouraging any further innovations in the way of ships, the North Sea behaved itself in its rudest manner, throughout the voyage from Dantzic.

Tossed by Waves.

It tossed the little schooner about unmercifully, so that at times the crew had difficulty in taking their meals. Nevertheless, the sailors themselves do not go back on their ship. They are not enthusiastic, but they do not seem dissatisfied.

The rotor-ship is an attempt to apply a principle that has been understood in part for a long time. It has two towers instead of masts and sails. These towers are revolved by power supplied by engines, and it is claimed that the force of the wind exerted on these revolving towers results in a much greater forward movement of the ship than could be obtained by the use of masts and canvas.

Shipping men, navigators, and experts are trying to figure out how much has been established by the trial trip of the Buckau. It is certain the ship has made the voyage in safety and has landed its cargo, opposed by difficult weather conditions. The average speed attained was between 6 and 7 knots per hour, which is better than could have been expected of a sailing ship.

Auxiliary Engine.

The explanation of this is that the Buckau is not solely dependent on the wind for propulsion. It has an auxiliary engine which operates as in an ordinary motor boat, and this engine was in use much of the time during the trial trip.

Nevertheless, the navigating officers and other experts who made the voyage to observe the ship's performance, generally agree the rotors contributed much to the satisfactory results. They tended to stabilise the ship, they increased the speed, and they enabled certain manoeuvring that would have been impossible with ordinary sails. In addition, there is considerable saving from the fact that the ship can be handled with a much smaller crew than would be required for a standard sailing vessel of the same size.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

NEWEST HOOT SHOWS BOLD WESTERN DAYS. "Ridin' Kid From Powder River" Booked By Royal.

Early days in the Far West have contributed some of the most stirring chapters in the history of the United States, and it is of this period that "The Ridin' Kid From Powder River," Universal - Hoot Gibson production, coming to the Royal Theatre to-morrow deals. Much of the material for the story was obtained by research work in the big library at Universal City, while the play is taken from Henry Herbert Knibbs' novel.

Hoot has the part of a young man who has grown up in the cattle country, and who, since youth, has lived for one thing alone and that is to avenge the murder of his foster father, the only person from whom he can remember having received kind treatment. To accomplish this he had to wander, for years, over the trackless West.

The old man's death came one night in a fight against great odds — a band of cowboys who had threatened the nester, as they termed him, in vain, and finally resorted to ambuscade and murdered him.

The time of the story is that period in the history of the country that was made exciting by the many battles between the cattlemen and the man who came into the country to become a farmer.

Tully Marshall, Gladys Hulette, Gertrude Astor and Walter Long are in the supporting company, which includes a bunch of the famous Universal Ranch Riders.

Edward Sedgwick directed the picture which was made in the vicinity of Long Pine, a small settlement typical of the old days but continuing a flourishing existence in a small valley that leads from the foot of the Sierra Nevada Mountains toward the Mojave Desert, California.

MYSTERY STORY IS ENDING RUN.

"The Girl on the Stairs," the great mystery drama based upon Winston Bouve's magazine story of the same name, closes its run at the Royal Theatre to-night.

This thrilling tale of a girl somnambulist indicted for a murder which occurred during one of her sleep walking expeditions, was directed by William Worthington under the personal supervision of Producer Elmer Harris, who also adapted the story for the screen.

FREE BICYCLE CONTEST.

Two of the best bicycles that the White Cycle and Sport can procure will be given away to the boy and girl winning the free bicycle contest at the Royal. Full particulars will be given at the Royal. Children from 12 to 16 eligible.

AT THE CAPITOL

ANCIENTS HAD PECULIAR GIFT.

Brandon Hurst, who impersonates the role of Caliph with Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad," which will be the attraction at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday, is a student on optical illusions.

In delving into the history of optics and their illusions, he found things credited to the ancients which make our modern trick stuff in the same class as Pussy-wants-a-corner when compared with auction bridge. "In olden times, he says, "spectacles were visioned out of the thin air by means of very clever trickery never entirely explained by historians. Grecian and Roman priests produced remarkable optical illusions, the principal one being to throw spectral images upon the smoke of burning incense, it is thought, by means of concave metal mirrors. These images were representations of divinities passing before the spectators in carefully darkened chambers. In the fourteenth century reflections of moving objects similar to those of motion-picture work were produced, and Sir John Mandeville writes that he saw these pictorial illusions at the court of "The Great Khan" in Asia.

In the middle of the sixteenth century Benvenuto Cellini saw phantasmagoric spectres projected upon smoke at night seances in the Coliseum at Rome. "The existence of the camera at that time is established as a fact in a good description written by Baptista Portia and published in 1558 under the name of 'The Magic Naturals.' Magic-lantern effects were common back in the fourteenth century, when glass lenses were more or less generally known. Roger Bacon, about the year 1260, wrote of glass lenses so made as to give good telescopic and microscopic effects. So we are not so advanced after all. If you delve into the ancient sciences and arts, you will discover that there is really nothing very new and we have even lost some of the things known in the past. Remember, Leonardo da Vinci made sketches that were forerunners of the modern flying machines. So it is possible that The Winged Horse, The Flying Carpet, The Cloak of Invisibility, and The Magic Rope in 'The Thief of Bagdad' may not have astonished our earliest ancestors as much as we think. They had some wonderful tricks of their own that might be wonderful even to our sophisticated eyes."

DETROIT UNITED RAILWAYS ARE PLACED IN RECEIVERS' CONTROL

Indebted to Yellow Coach Company For $24,789.81 — Surplus Assets Placed at More Than Eighteen Millions—Canadian Investments Involved.

DETROIT, Mich., March 11. — The Detroit United Railways, operating inter-urban and city lines in and between several Michigan cities, was placed under receivers yesterday upon the petition of the Yellow Coach Manufacturing Company, which was granted in Federal court by Judge Charles C. Simons.

At the same time Judge Simons issued a restraining order enjoining all creditors and others from interfering with the operation of the lines during the life of the receivership, granting the plea of the Yellow Coach Manufacturing Company to enjoin all creditors from "interfering with, or attempting to obtain priorities.

Directors of the D. U. R. at a meeting on Monday approved the receivership. In a statement to shareholders, directors of the company explained that no default in interest or dividend payments is contemplated.

Company's Statement.

Lack of ready assets to meet current obligations was given as the reason for the action.

The statement to share-holders follows, in part:

"You will have learned from the report for 1924, a copy of which was mailed to every share-holder, that the current financial position of the company was very unsatisfactory and that, as stated therein, some further financing would have to be done to reimburse the treasury for expenditures which had to be incurred for purposes mentioned in the report.

"The depression in business in the territory served by your lines still continues, especially in the automobile industry; indeed the situation as affecting your compnay has grown worse, and in consequence its revenue, particularly from passenger traffic, has been and is much less than was anticipated.

"While some important economies in the operating expenses have already been effected, they do not off set the decrease in revenue and the net results are far from expectations.

"In consequence of this and other circumstances, it has found impossible to effect certain temporary financing which it was hoped could have been arranged, pending further financing of a more permanent character, and your directors have decided it was to the best interest of the shareholders to let the court take custody of the property, assets and business for the preservation thereof and the protection of the interests of the shareholders, creditors and all concerned until it was possible to submit to the shareholders a plan under which the necessary funds might be obtained to place the company in such a financial position that complete control of their property can be resumed by them. Your directors have under consideration a plan having this object in view."

The annual statement of the company, December 31, 1924, gave the assets above all liabilities as $18,293,656.87.

Canadians Interested.

The Security Trust Company, Detroit, and Joseph W. Simard of Montreal were named receivers by Judge Simons. Many shareholders and several directors of the D. U. R. are residents of Canada. Elliott G. Stevenson, who died at Coronad Beach, California (Sunday) was president the meeting of directors on Monday at which the receivership was agreed to, was called by him.

The petition of the Yellow Coach Manufacturing Company sets forth that the D. U. R. is indebted to it to the sum of $24,789.81 which the coach company alleges is past due and that $276,686.75 "presently will become due for motor coaches and materials sold and delivered."

Mr Simard is vice-president of the Municipal Debenture Corporation of Montreal.

Revenue Dropped.

In a statement to shareholders, directors of the company declared that operating revenue during 1924 had not been as great as had been anticipated, and that indications were that immediate future revenue would not be sufficient to replace withdrawals from reserve It was added however, that no default in interest or dividend payments was contemplated, and that the receivers were being instructed by the court to continue such payments.

The Detroit United Railways business has been confined exclusively to inter-urban business in the vicinity of Detroit, since the Detroit Council purchased its Detroit City properties in 1921. It also recently organized motor coach lines to serve nearby suburbs.

BONES OF BABIES ARE TOO BRITTLE

So Brittle That They Break With Slightest Movement of Body.

LONDON, Ont., March 11. —(Canadian Press). —Two months ago, a child was born in London suffering from what is said to be one of the most rare diseases the world knows its academic name being "Osteogenisis imperfecta," interpreted this means brittle bones—so brittle, in fact, that they break with the slightest pressure or movement of the body.

And now, with the birth nineteen days ago of another infant suffering from the same disease, physicians marvel at the remarkable coincidence. The first child was born with a broken rib. Now it has broken arms and legs. The second baby has both arms and legs broken and two rib bones fractured. At the first feeble motion of the limbs, the bones as hard and brittle as ice flakes, cracked, many other bones went likewise.

Both babies are confined in the Children's War Memorial Hospital, where they are receiving similar treatment.

Physicans hold little hope for recovery.

Educational Controversy Over Jewish Children

QUEBEC, March 11 (Canadian Press). — The Provincial School Statute of 1903 is ultra vires of the British North America Act, according to a judgment handed down this morning by the Court of Appeals.

The Provincial School Statute concerned was submitted to the Court because of a controversy which has arisen over the education of Jewish children in Montreal.

The Provincial Government, it is expected, will bring down legislation in the near future to clear up the situation.

TECHNICAL ELECTION.

Rev. P. L. Jull Will be Clerk of Peterborough Presbytery After May 15.

The election of Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, to the position of clerk of the Presbytery of Peterboro, was technical only. The Examiner is informed to-day. He will hold the office until May 15, when Rev. P. L. Jull, of Lakefield, will take his place. This change is necessitated by the fact that Peterboro Presbytery went into Church Union with the Presbyterian Church courts, while Rev. Mr. Thomson is a non-concurring Presbyterian.

Rev. Mr. Thomson has given long and honorable service as clerk of the Presbytery of Peterboro.

Rembrandt Painting Loaned for Amsterdam's Anniversary Celebration.

STOCKHOLM, March 11.—(Associated Press.) — Sweden's most valuable Rembrandt painting, the gigantic "Claudius Civilis," which the city councillors of Amsterdam once rejected for their court house as not "handsome enough," the Dutch capital now wants to borrow back from the National Museum of Arts here to be shown at the jubilee exposition to commemmorate the 650th anniversary of Amsterdam as a city under that name.

Though the painting is now beyond price, not being for sale at any figure, the request has been granted. Other European museums will lend their choicest Rembrandts and for the first time the Swedish art treasure will be exhibited side by side with such famous pictures as "The Night Watch" and "The Weavers."

LONDONERS NOW EAT MORE FRUIT

Butchers Annoyed as Campaign Decreases Their Sales.

LONDON, March 11 (Associated Press).—An "eat more fruit" campaign throughout England has recently brought the American apple into prominence than it ever has enjoyed heretofore. The fruit is now being sold in the groceries and the luxury shops, and from push carts in the streets of London.

The campaign has brought to the fore also the American apple's neighbor, the Canadian apple, but in most cases the products of Oregon and Washington appear to be the favorite. American apples retail here at a few cents a pound more than they do in the cities of the United States.

In addition to American cranberries, Florida and California grapefruit and organges, various other fruits from the other side of the Atlantic, Americans in London this winter have enjoyed the privilege of being able, when they were willing to pay the price, to treat themselves to fresh corn on the cob at about one shilling the ear. The corn, in the husk, has full white grains and is imported in barrel lots from South Africa. It has much the same appearance as corn from America, excepting that the ears, perhaps, are a trifle longer and more slender.

Butchers are far from happy over the efforts to popularize the eating of fruit. Boosters for the apple recently set going a song, "Don't eat mutton, don't eat lamb," which made them particularly wrathy. In complaints to various official sources they described the song as an insult to the trade, and retaliated with another composition extolling "beef for brawn and brains."

KILL CALENDAR REFORM

Labor and Capital Fear Demand for Thirteen Months' Rent and Salary.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

GENEVA, March 11.— (United Press.)— Organized labor and organized capital are at last hand in hand, on at least one subject, and that is on the reform of the calendar.

Both unanimously agree that in any event, whatever reform is made in the present way of reckoning the days, months and years, the calendar must not be divided into 13 months of 28 days each.

Replies have just been received by the League of Nations from all of the leading governments, churches and organizations of the world relative to the various projects under consideration for reforming the calendar on a basis to meet present day needs and life.

One of the favorite projects was that of the thirteenth month year with 28 days to the month and some little odd or ends of of a day left over at the close of the year. Unfortunately both organized labor and organized capital have landed a blow to this project.

Organized labor has replied to the League of Nations that this project must absolutely be killed or otherwise unscrupulous landlords would take advantage of it to charge workingmen 13 months' rent instead of only 12.

Similarly organized industry has replied to the League of Nations that this project must absolutely be killed or otherwise organized labor all over the world paid by the month would demand 13 months' salary instead of only 12 as at present.

DANZIG IS LIKE A POWDER MAGAZINE

This Free City Preparing an Army to Aid Germany.

PARIS, March 11. — (Canadian Press — "Danzig is like a powder magazine," say the correspondent of Le Journal, who with the representative of Le Matin, went to that free city to investigate the difficulties between it and Poland.

Le Jounral and Le Matin correspondents arrive at the same conclusion, that is, that the free city of Danzig is neither free nor neutral and is preparing an army to aid Germany in wresting the corridor from Poland. Le Matin's representative says that Danzig, with its German population of a third of a million, can arm 60,000 men at the first call. He adds that the city is a regular arsenal of rifles and machine guns.

WOULD "BREED BRAINS."

President Cutten of Colgate Says Educated Should Marry Earlier.

PHILADELPHIA, March 11. — Dr. George B. Cuten, president of Colgate University Baptist Ministers' Conference that "the only way to get brains is to breed them."

He declared that the present increase in the nation's populaion came almost entirely from immigrants with a low degree of intelligence.

"Educated and intelligent persons should marry sooner than others," he said. "Preparatory school work should be cut down so that a man will be able to support a wife before the age of 30, which is almost impossible now."

He also declared that "we are overloading the human machine and as a result present-day life is too much for many persons."

INSTRUCTIONS FOR MAKING POULTICES

Paper Delivered at the Well Babies' Clinic by Miss Margaret Stevenson.

At the last regular meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic, the following interesting paper on "The Best Method of Making and Applying Poultices and Compresses," was given by Miss Margaret Stevenson, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson:

Mustard plasters are used to relieve pain and congestion by drawing blood to the surface, away from the site of congestion. They are made by mixing from one part mustard to three parts of flour up to one part mustard to seven parts of flour. Luke warm gater is added to this to make a thick paste and the mixture is spread on a piece of cotton two and one-half times as long as the required length of paste and twice as wide.

The paste is put on two or three inches from one end of the cloth and the edge doubled over. The sides are then turned in and the long end doubled up and tucked in between the sides and the short end.

The paste should then be placed between hot plates and with some vaseline, a pad of cotton cloth, a binder and pins taken to the patient.

The area to be covered by the plaster must be coated with vaseline. Then the plaster is applied, the pad put on to absorb any moisture and all held in place by the binder.

In applying pastes to children and babies, it is best not to use more than one level tablespoon of mustard to eight of flour and after it is mixed with the water add one tablespoon of olive oil, stirr in and apply as described above.

A mustard paste must be watched closely, lest the action be more extensive than intended and a serious blister result.

If the skin is not pink at the end of ten minutes it should be examined every succeeding five minutes until the necessary reaction is produced, when the paste should be removed immediately and the area covered by something soft and warm.

Poultices may be made of any non-irritating substance, which will hold and convey moist heat. One of linseed meal is most frequently ordered because it has these two properties to a high degree.

To make it, use about two cups of linseed meal to the same amount of water. Stir in the meal while the water is boiling and continue stirring while the poultice cooks until it is thick enough to drop off the spoon. Take it off the fire and beat until light. Then spread it over half an inch thick on a cloth and fold as for a mustard paste.

Roll in a small bath towel and take to the patient with vaseline, binder, pins, and a sheet of waxed paper or oiled silk.

Test the poultice on the inside of the arm for three minute, vaseline the area over which it is to be placed, apply the poultice, the waxed paper and the folded towel. Fasten the binder and leave from one to three hours.

A poultice should never be left on until cold, and must not be reheated and used again.

When hot compresses are ordered flannel or lamb's wool is best. Fold it to the required size and wring out of boiling water—either by lining the basin with a doubled cloth long enough to hang out on two sides so that by holding these two ends the compresses may be raised out of the water and wrung in the cloth, or by some such contrivance as a potato ricer.

The compresses should be applied as hot as they can be stood on the inner side of the arm. They should be covered with a pad of cotton, some waxed paper and bandaged into place.

Change them every ten or fifteen minutes.

Cold comeresses can be made of folded cotton wrung out of iced water, and applied like hot compresses. These also must be changed every ten or fifteen minutes.

Why Are Errors of Vision so Generally Neglected?

Often it is because the person does not know he has an error of vision. Not knowing that it exists, it is naturally not given attention. The wisest plan for everyone to pursue would be to have the Eyes examined, whether or not they seem to need it. Then every error of vision would receive proper attention. EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE IS NOT MORE DEMORALIZING, SAYS PETER HEENAN, THAN IS UNEMPLOYMENT

Labor Voice in Legislature Urged Creation of Employment Insurance Scheme.

BEER BILL COMING.

Will Be Brought Down Next Week—Seventeen Private Bills Introduced.

TORONTO, March 12.—It is expected that the budget debate in the Legislature will be concluded next Tuesday, when the leaders of the three parties will speak.

Yesterday Peter Heenan (Labor, Kenora) moved an amendment to the budget motion, but withdrew it on request of the Premier. The amendment was that the House saw with regret that the government had failed in its relief of unemployment and had also failed to provide for unemployment insurance.

The Premier said that it opened up a question on the budget debate which Mr. Heenan might well introduce in a form of a motion to be discussed by the House. He also stated that it would be a want of confidence motion, and asked Mr. Heenan to withraw it, which he did. If the motion had been pressed, it would have prevented amendments from either Liberals or Progressives. So far, there is no sign of an amendment.

Besides Mr. Heenan, other speakers yesterday were T. A. Thompson (Conservative, North Lanark) and R. H. Kemp (Progressive, Lincoln).

Heenan's Address.

Mr. Heenan devated most of his time to the unemployment situation, declaring that not much had been done by governments except passing the blame to others. The Dominion government passed it to the Ontario government, and the latter to the municipalities. He said that the new building being erected by the Ontario government gave no relief as it employed only 150 men. The offer to pay one-third excess cost of municipal work was worth little, because municipalities were doing little work. The payment of one-third of municipal relief was real relief.

Mr. Heenan contended that there had been overproduction in many lines of industry, and that Canada was not alone in this. This, he said, always meant unemployment. He declared that the people had no confidence, and that consequently there had been a reduction in buying and reduction of wages. A solution was to increase the buying power of the people. He suggested the creation of an employment insurance scheme. Labor, he contended, always bore the burden of restriction and curtailment of industry. On Canadian railways today, he said, there were 25,000 fewer men employed now than there were a few months ago.

Provide Work for Men.

"The fact is that civilization is not keeping up with the progress of machinery, and that the tendency is towards the maximum production with the minimum of help. We must provide for the human workers thrown out of work by machinery."

Unemployment insurance, he said, would not be as demoralizing to men as unemployment itself. He quoted Ontario government commissions as favoring unemployment insurance controlled by the Provincial government. He expressed the hope that the present government would take this question up immediately.

Mr. Heenan appealed to the Minister of Lands and Forests to open up more roads in the Kenora and Rainy River districts to give the settlers more work. He said 1,300,000 cords of pulpwood valued at $13,000,000 was exported to the United States last year, where it was turned into paper worth $90,000,000.

Work for 8,500 Men.

To manufacture this in Canada would give work to 8,500 men. However, he pointed out, there was another side. "If our settlers could not sell their pulpwood for export, they would be at the mercy of the Canadian manufacturer, and from experience they know what price they would receive—not enough to pay them for hauling it to market. Before we stop the export of pulpwood we must make provision that Canadian manufacturers take Cana-

Government Telegraph Offices Show Deficit

OTTAWA, March 12.—Half a dozen telegraph offices operated by the Dominion Government in Northern Canada cost for upkeep in fourteen years $94,274 more than they earned. This is shown in a return tabled in the House of Commons yesterday, which gives details of receipts and expenditure for six offices in the Peace River country. Of these only one, Grand Prairie, came near to paying expenses, which were $27,539 for the 14-year period, while its revenues totalled $23,839.

Peace River in the same period earned $31,249 and cost in upkeep $67,512; Spirit River earned $11,275 and cost $24,226; Dunvegan earned $3,069 and cost $26,745; Beaver Lodge earned $2,291 and spent $15,514, and Waterhole earned $1,377 and cost $5,888 to maintain.

PACIFIC COAST OPEN TO WORLD

British Columbia Member in Commons Urges Need of Stronger Defences.

GUNS OBSOLETE.

OTTAWA, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—A resolution proposing that "Canada should consider the question of defence of our sea coasts and of our ocean-borne lines of commerce," was introduced in the House of Commons yesterday by A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni).

Mr. Neill introduced the subject by suggesting that the question be taken up in a non-partisan spirit. He suggested that a small committee of the House might be formed to consider the matter with the aid of technical experts. A policy might be evolved of defence under the name of "the Canadian policy."

Mr. Neill urged the necessity for defence of coast lines and shipping. The dry-dock at Esquimalt, which was to be completed shortly, would be of vital importance to any British naval operations in the Pacific. Today, it was practically open to the world, with only a few obsolete guns to protect it. Mr. Neill quoted General McBrien as stating that the next war would be in the Pacific.

Defence of Shipping.

The value of public works in Vancouver and Victoria was estimated at $200,000,000; a coast line of 10,000 miles was absolutely defenceless. Most important of all was the defence of shipping. The greatest damage could be done there, and the object of any enemy would be a blockade and destruction of shipping.

Mr. Neill stated that we were told that there was no need to talk about war. We had a League of Nations, but Mr. Neill averred that he could talk on the disabilities of the League of Nations for some time. The League of Nations was a source of enormous weakness, and Great Britain would never have gone into it, had it felt that the United States would not enter it.

We were told that we should remain defenceless. Who was so expressed in his utterances for peace but the German Kaiser? Many of the men lay in France to-day because we had to rush them there unprepared for war. We paid because we had listened credulously to the assurances of the German Emperor.

Letter Urging Appeal Of Preferential Tariff

MONTREAL, March 12 —(Canadian Press)—Letter is being circulated by the Montreal Chamber of Commerce among legislators and others urging a repeal of the preferential tariff on all articles similar to those manufactured in Canada..

Britain Reduces Army By One Thousand Men

LONDON, March 12— (United Press).— Great Britain plans to spend £44,500,000 on its army during 1925 and 1926 according to estimates announced to-day. Lastt year's estimate was £45,000,000.

Britain's standing army now includes 160,000 men as compared to 161,6000 a year ago.

Recruiting during the last twelve months is reported to be disappointing.

Of the 34,000 men needed for routine replacement, only 30,000 have been enlisted. Sixty per cent of the applicants more over have been rejected owing to the standard of the requirements.

LATEST DIVORCE MOST CHARMING

Europe's Best Dressed Woman Separate From Her Royal Egyptian Husband.

TO BE QUIET NOW.

PARIS, Mar. 12.—(United Press). —"Kipling was right—the east and the west should never meet," Jean Nash said to-day, confirming the reports of her divorce in Cairo, from Sabet Bey, Scion of Egyptian Royalty, the "best dressed woman in Europe" added. "It was the most charming divorce I ever received—papers were granted immediately when my husband requested them of an obliging priest.

Match Not Suitable.

"We're still the best of friends, but we have found we are not suited to each other as husband and wife. The difference of religion (Sabet Bey is a Mohammedan) was insurmountable. I'm going to try to be quiet now," the former American girl said, "and cause less worry to my mother, who is still in the States."

The divorce was granted just one month after her marriage to the wealthy Egyptian.

MAIL BUSINESS TO BE EQUALLY SHARED BY C.N.R.

Hon. Chas. Murphy, Postmaster-General, Says There is No Discrimination.

MAKING CHANGES.

Resolution in Commons Withdrawn After Explanation by the Postmaster.

OTTAWA, March 12. (Canadian Press). —After a comparatively brief discussion, during the course of which Hon. Charles Murphy, post master general assured the House of Commons that no discrimination against the Canadian National Railways in the carriage of mails was being practiced. A resolution opposing such discrimination was withdrawn by its mover, W. J. Vard, Progressive member for Dauphin, yesterday

Mr Ward, in moving his resolution, compared amounts paid to the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways for carriage of mails to prove that the latter company was receiving the major part of the revenue. He admitted, however, that the post office department was making efforts to favor the Government-owned system mail contracts and said that the discrimination was gradually disappearing.

The PostMaster-General informed the House that changes were being made which would lead to an equalization of the mail business carried by the two roads. No discrimination was being practiced in the department. The belief that such discrimination existed was due to misinformation given unintentionally at a committee meeting of the House, last year.

W. F. MacLean (Conservative, South York) advocated consolidation of the two railway lines in Canada, which would put an end to the "awful extravagance' resulting from two railway services, two postal services, two telegraph services, and two express services.

Mr. Ward, the mover of the resolution, said that, having heard the statement of the Post-Master General he was prepared to withdraw his resolution.

C. N. R. Mileage Greater.

Mr. Ward said "that a comparison of amounts paid to the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railway for carrying mails in 1922-23 showed that the amount paid to the privately owned system was over a half million dollars greater than to the Canadian National. The figures quoted were $3,683,000. to the C. P. R., and $3,178,000 to the C., N.. R., when it was considered that the C. P. R. operated but 13,579 miles of railways in Canada, while the mileage of the C. N. R. was 19,975. It seemed unfair that the former should get the major part of this revenue.

No Discrimination.

Hon. Charles Murphy, Past-Master-General believed the resolution was "reflex" from mis-information given by a railway official before a committee of the House last year. There was no discrimination against the Canadian National Railway, he said. This fact, had been since admitted by the railway official who unintentionally misled the committee Changes were being made at the present time, which would lead to an equalization of the business done by the two roads. The difference at the present time was less than one half what it was when the committee considered this matter last year.

NO MENTION OF JEWS IN SCHOOL LAW OF QUEBEC

Jews Are Not Registered as Protestants in School Matters Court Decides.

SETTLES DISPUTE.

Jews Have No Right to Place on Montreal Protestant School Board.

QUEBEC, March 12 (Canadian Press). — Declaring that the Provincial legislation of 1903, which said that for school purposes a Jew was considered to be a Protestant, was ultra vires of the Legislature and opposed to the spirit and intent of the British North America Act and of legislation prior to the union, the Court of Appeals yesterday, which under Mr. Justice Greenshields had heard argument on eight questions relative to this matter submitted by the Board of Protestant School Commissioners for Montreal, rendered their judgment and were unanimous in all but two of the answers given.

Following are the questions and the replies:

Is the Provincial Statute of 1903 (3, Edward VII.), Caput 16, which regards Jews as Protestants for school purposes ultra vires-unconstitutional?

A.—Yes.

(a) Does this statute permit the appointment of Jews to the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal; and,

(b) Would the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of the City of Montreal be bound under that statute of 1903 to appoint Jewish teachers in their schools if these schools were attended by children professing the Jewish religion?

A.—To paragraph (a) Yes.

A.—To paragraph (b) No.

Has the Legislature power to pass a law providing that persons professing the Jewish religions be named—

(a) Commissioners of the Protestant schools of Montreal

(b) Members of the Protestant Committee of the Council of Public Instruction?

(c) Advisory members of these Boards?

A.—To paragraph (a) No.

A.—To paragraph (b) No.

A.—To paragraph (c) No.

Can the Legislature pass a law obliging the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of Montreal to accept Jewish teachers in their schools, attended by Jewish children?

A.—No.

Can the Legislature pass a law providing for the appointment of Jews on the Metropolitan Finance Commission, as suggested by the project submitted by Messrs. Hirsch and Cohen?

A.—No.

Divided Opinion.

Can the Legislature pass a law to establish Separate Schools for persons professing neither the Roman Catholic nor the Protestant religions?

A.—Mr. Justice Greenshields, Mr. Justice Rivard and Mr. Justice Letourneau—No.

Mr. Justice Flynn and Mr. Justice Tellier—Yes.

If the Act of 1903 is unconstitutional, have the Protestants the right, in virtue of the present law of Quebec, to permit Jewish children to attend their schools—

(c) Can the Province compel the Protestants to accept Jewish children in their schools under such conditions?

A.—To paragraph (a) Yes.

A.—To paragraph (b) Yes (Mr. Justice Flynn and Mr. Justice Tellier dissenting).

A.—To paragraph (c) No.

Purpose of Confederation.

Mr. Justice Grenshields, who presided over the Appeal Court, reviewed the school legislation of Quebec from pre-Confederation days, and said that there was no doubt that the fathers of Confederation intended to conserve the rights and privileges of only two classes of people, the Protestants and the Roman Catholics, because at that time only these two classes had statutory rights with respect to education. They did not define the meaning of "Roman Catholic" or "Protestant," but took it for granted that every one knew the meaning. A Christian who was not a Roman Catholic was a Protestant and vice versa.

No other religions were recognised

REV. CANON SCOTT SUGGESTS THAT NOVA SCOTIA SHOULD CANCEL BESCO LEASES AND GOVERNMENT OPERATE THE MINES

Steel Corporation Only Tenants of Provincial Property and Have Not Made a Success of Their Possession Governments Must Act Quickly—Deplorable Situation Exists.

QUEBEC, March 12. — (Canadian Press).—That the Nova Scotia Government should exercise its prerogative, and, if possible, take over the coal districts of that province, cancelling the lease of the British Empire Steel Corporation, was the opinion expressed here yesterday by Rev. Canon Scott, in discussing the present conditions in Nova Scotia. Canon Scott made an investigation of conditions prevailing in the Sydneys and the surrounding district at the time of the last strike.

"I do not think," stated Canon Scott, "that Canada is alive to the awful situation which has arisen in the rich coal districts of Nova Scotia. What the solution is to be no one seems able to suggest. Personally, I do not see how either the Nova Scotia or Federal Governments can vote sufficient sums of money to prevent the absolute starvation of something like 50,000 people if the strike or lockout, whichever it may be termed, continues for any length of time.

Anguish Acute.

"Yet Canadians in other parts of Canada cannot now sit idle and unmoved while their fellow-countrymen, including women and children are suffering acute anguish.

"What I would like to see would be for the Government of Nova Scotia to take over the coal fields and run them, buying out whatever rights the British Empire Steel Corporation may now have.

"Nova Scotia already owns the mines," he said. "The British Empire Steel Corporation are only the tenants. They certainly have not made a success of their possession. The mines are extraordinary rich, and as far as we know at the present, practically inexhaustible.

On Humane Basis.

"This country already subsidizes the Canadian National Railways. Let the Nova Scotia Government, with subsidies from Ottawa, develop the mines on a proper scientific and humane basis, furnishing facilities for transportation of coal and coke to every part of Eastern Canada. If this is done a new day may dawn both for Nova Scotia and those who have to work in the coal area."

"The thing is," said Canon Scott, in summing up, "the Governments interested must act, and act quickly, if we are to avert what may prove to be the greatest labor tragedy in our history."

Canon Scott admired the spirit of the miners when they vacated the mines. Everything was carried out quietly, and he thought that this was one big point in their favor. He also referred to general living conditions, and remarked that they were deplorable and not in keeping with the times by any means.

LIQUOR EXPORT TO CUBA STOPS; SELLERS WORRY

Orders Handed Customs Officers at Niagara Falls To-day.

LOBBY AT WORK.

Offices and Sidings Built by Exporters May Be Scrapped.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 12. —(Can. Press. —Export of liquor all kinds, including beer and whiskey, from the Port of Chippawa has been stopped.

J. D. Flynn, customs collector at the Port of Niagara Falls recieved orders to that effect to-day from the department of customs and excise and immediately notified all exporters.

There was something approaching consternation when the order was received, for special facilities including offices, sidings and chutes have been installed for what has proved to be a very prosperous trade to "Cuba" and 'Mexico" by way of the Chippawa River.

It is understood that a powerful lobby is being arranged to have the export privileges restored at Chippawa.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

To Alleviate Distress Among Ex-Service Men Affected by Miners' Strike.

OTTAWA, March 12. —(Canadian Press).— An immediate appeal for funds to alleviate distress among ex-service men and their dependents in the mining areas where work has ceased in Cape Breton, was decided upon by a conference of G. W. V. A. represenatives from all Provinces meeting in Ottawa to-day. Federal government financial aid will also be asked.

WOMAN KILLED; MAN SUICIDED; DEAD OVER WEEK

Believed That Man is Nathan McIlmoyle, Formerly of Peterborough.

SORDID CRIME.

Woman Had Been in Struggle, Marks Indicate—Man Poisoned.

FORT ERIE, Ont., March 12 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Rose F. Kahn, 27 years old, mysteriously missing from her home in Buffalo since Saturday, 28th February, was found murdered in a small cottage near Fort Erie yesterday afternoon.

She had been strangled to death.

Beside the bed upon which her body lay, was the body of Norman Mack, also known as Norman McElroy, nursery salesman for an Ontario firm who may be Nathan McIlmoyle of Peterboro.

His death had been caused by poison.

Mrs. Kahn evidently had made a fight for her life.

Her mouth was covered with blood and there were marks on her arms, indicating violence.

Besides the blood about her mouth there were black and blue marks on her throat.

The body was clad only in a dress and sweater coat.

Mack apparently had ended his own life with poison.

The condition of the bodies indicated that the tragedy occurred about a week ago.

Mrs. Kahn was the wife of Chas. C. Kahn, a Buffalo tobacconist.

Late yesterday one of the women operators of a detective agency learned that Mack, with a strange woman, had been seen near the Lillian Street cottage about a week ago.

Detectives went to the cottage, and discovered the tragedy.

The body of Mrs. Kahn was found prone upon the bed, in a poorly furnished room off a small kitchen.

Mack's body was lying beside the bed, doubled up as if the man had died in agony.

His lips apparently had been burned by acid.

His body was fully clothed, except for a coat and collar.

On the kitchen table detectives found remnants of a meal and in the ice-box and cupboards there was a considerable quantity of food.

Mack's acquaintance with Mrs. Kahn is said to have dated back to three or four years ago.

Mack represented a nursery firm, with headquarters at Ponthill, Ont.

He travelled extensively over the Niagara Peninsula, and was a frequent visitor at Buffalo. He was about 47 years old.

Two sisters and a brother live in Peterborough.

PROTOCOL DIES AS CHAMBERLAIN TELLS RUPTURE

British Government Cannot See That Proposals Meet the Need.

CROWDED CHAMBER.

Dominions in Agreement in Pronouncing Draft of Treaty Unacceptable.

(By Henry Wood—United Press Staff Correspondent).

GENEVA, March 12. — Anglo-French accord on the League of Nations' security protocol was ruptured to-day, when Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, announced in an address before the League Council that England had reversed her stand and that the protocol no longer was acceptable.

England has asserted, Chamberlain said, the protocol in its present form was unaccentable to Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India and South Africa.

He said that as these colonies were League members, they would announce their own views in the matter either before the Assembly or by communicating with the League Secretariat.

Ireland's stand on the protocol had not been ascertained, Chamberlain said.

Cartoon Caused Amusement.

GENEVA, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—All seats available to the public were eagerly taken up and the Council Chamber was packed when Austen Chamberlain rose to announce Britain's stand.

Much amusement had been caused by the publication locally of a cartoon depicting the funeral of the protocol.

The coffin is pictured as being interred by South Africa, New Zealand, Australia and Canada, who are represented by figures in their national costumes. Chamberlain, as gravedigger, stands at one end of the grave and the League Council at the other. Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League, surrounded by the League Secretariat, is reading the burial service. Crosses near the grave represent the resting places of the opium, disarmament and other agreements.

Dominions United.

One of the most important features of Mr. Chamberlain's address which outlined the British objections to the protocol, was that telegraphic communication with the British Dominions and India showed that Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and India were also unable to accept the protocol.

After emphasizing the sympathy that existed throughout the British Empire with any effort to improve international machinery for world peace, Mr. Chamberlain said that successive administrations in Great Britain with the full approval of the self-governing Dominions, not only had in theory favored arbitration, which was one of the features of the protocol, but had practiced it.

If, therefore, continued Mr. Chamberlain, Great Britain saw insuperable objections to signing and ratifying the protocol in its present shape, this was not because she felt herself out of harmony with the purposes the protocol was intended to serve or was opposed in principle to the plans for clarifying the meaning of the League of Nations' covenant or strengthening its provisions.

"Amendment and interpretation may in themselves be desirable," added the British Foreign Secretary, "but His Majesty's Government cannot believe that the protocol as it stands provides a suitable method of attempting the task."

Dealing with the insistence of the protocol that every possible dispute should be settled by arbitration, Secretary Chamberlain said the framers of the League covenant must have felt that objections to universal and compulsory arbitration might easily outweigh its theoretical advantages.

Mr. Chamberlain added that far from diminishing the objections to compulsory arbitration, the protocol increased them, because of a weakening of those reservations in Clause XV. of the covenant which were resigned to prevent any interference by the League in matters of domestic jurisdiction. This was the nearest Mr. Chamberlain got to the problem of immigration raised by the so-called Japanese amendment to the protocol.

CHINA'S MAN OF DESTINY DIED TO-DAY AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Dr. Sun Yat Sen Was First President of Chinese Republic—Fought Losing Fight Against Impossible Odds —Succumbed to Cancer.

STORMY PETREL IN POLITICS.

Sun Yat-Sen

PEKIN, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Sun Yat Sen, on whose head the Manchu Dynasty fixed a price of $300,000 when Dr. Sun was campaigning for the Republic of China died here this morning from cancer of the liver. He was 63 years of age.

Called "China's Man of Destiny" by many, Dr. Sun was identified with almost every phase of public life in his country. He was the first President of the Republic, created in 1912, and in recent years had maintained an administration, styled the Southern Government of China at Canton. In his declining years he opposed the Central Government at Pekin.

Fought for Life.

Surgeons who operated on Dr. Sun at the Rockefeller Hospital here Jan. 26 declared his case was hopeless, and gave him only ten days to live. The aged Chinese clung to life, however, the ten days passing, leaving him weaker, but stil alive.

On Feb. 18 against the advice of the hospital authorities, Dr. Sun was removed by friends and political associates to the head-quarters of the Kuomintang (People's party, to the former residence of Wellington Koo, former Foreign Minister. It was there that he died.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Ottawa, March 10th, 1925.

The Examiner, Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sirs,—In the editorial in The Examiner of the 9th instant it says that "Neither the Federal Government nor the Nova Scotia authorities can be congratulated upon the attitude adopted toward this very unsatisfactory situation."

Then it goes on to say that "Ottawa found no obstacle in the way of sending Ontario troops into the district on the occasion of a previous strike, and that there was much that could have been done by the Provincial authorities if they had handled the situation with judgment and decision."

I would like to add that Ottawa never sent any troops from Ontario, or any place else, to the Nova Scotia strikers.

Under the Militia Act, as it existed for the last quarter of a century, a requisition for troops to quell the riot was sent in; and no Federal Government, under the law, could prevent troops being called out by the officers commanding, once a requisition was sent in by the local authorities.

To say that either this Government or the late Government at Ottawa ever sent troops into Nova Scotia is incorrect, as they have no power to resist the troops being sent in to quell a riot.

However, last session the law was changed; so now no troops can be used for preventing disturbances, or even protecting property, until the Attorney-General of the Province in which the threatened disturbance exists, by his own signature, and under his own orders, directs the calling out of the troops.

That editorial gives a very wrong impression of the earnest and serious efforts that have been made by many men to try to get a settlement of a strike where twelve thousand men have left their work, and millions of dollars of property will likely be destroyed by the flooding of the mines.

Undoubtedly, much of the trouble has been caused by the attitude of the management of the company, refusing to deal with the men only upon a basis such as the company announced, with the result that the employees lost all patience, and went on strike.

As the Industrial Disputes Act of the Dominion Government has been found ultra vires by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the Dominion Government has no power now to prevent industrial disputes—that is purely within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature.

Yours truly,
G. N. GORDON.

WILBUR SACKVILLE BURIED AT BEWDLEY

Had Been Ill About a Month —Decline Was Rapid.

COBOURG, March 11. — (Special).—The funeral took place today at Bewdley of Mr. Wilbur Sackville, one of the ost prominent and highly esteemed residents of that locality, being a successful agriculturist and a man who enjoyed the confidence and warm regard of the public in a marked degree. Mr. Sackville was born at Sackville's Mills, a well-known spot in the early history of this district, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Sackville. He married Miss Mabel Albina Morton, of Hamilton township and they took up farming in that municipality, a location that Mr. Sackville henceforth carried on with increasing success. He was a valued member of the Bewdley Baptist church, and in politics a staunch Liberal. Mr. Sackville had been ill for about a month, but his death was very sudden at the last, he being seized early in the morning by a weak spell.

The Late Mrs. Fred Standley.

Mrs. Standley, wife of Mr. Frederick Standley, Grafton, passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. Foulds, Dowling avenue, Toronto, after some weeks of serious illness. She leaves no family. Mrs. Standley was a member of the Grafton Women's Institute and took a great interest in its work.

The Late William George Brown.

Mrs. Kent Payne was called to Port Hope to-day to attend the funeral of her brother, the late William George Brown, whose death took place suddenly following a severe hemmorhage. Mr. Brown is survived by his wife, before her marriage Miss Jeannette Kingborn, of Sault Ste. Marie, U.S., by two daughters and a son and by six brothers and three sisters.

The Late Miss Ann Carley.

Miss Ann Carley, a Morden lady, who was held in high regard, died at the home of her nephew, Mr. Jos. Plews, near Baltimore, Ont., in her 77th year. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Carley and was born on the old Carley homestead there, where her girlhood and early womanhood was spent. For several years she has resided with her nephew, James H. Plews. The interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery here.

EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

dian pulpwood at a fair price." He wondered why the government was not encouraging more pulp mills in Canada?

T. A. Thompson (Conservative, North Lanark) thought it a wonderful achievement for the government to reduce the deficit in two years from $15,000,000 to $8,000,000. He said that Ontario farmers should stop knocking their own business. He declared that greater markets were needed, and that the farmers could get them if they went after them.

Inspect Barber Shops.

Seventeen private bills were introduced in the House mostly concerning municipalities. Russell Nesbitt (Conservative, Toronto) introduced a bill for the inspection of barber shops and to make the apprentice term for barbers three years. F. G. MacDiarmid introduced the Union Bill of the non-concurring Presbyterians. Another bill, introduced by Mr. Nesbitt, provides that the estate of Sir Edmund Osler may make the gift of a park to Toronto.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor, arriving at 4 o'clock, gave royal sanction to fifteen bills including the bill which protects W. Ireland, chief Conservative whip, and F. C. Biggs, (Progressive, North Wentworth) from penalty for accepting money from the crown.

W. S. Haney (Conservative, West Lambton) got second reading for a bill providing that police villages in townships which have abolished statute labor may make a tax levy for road purposes.

Beer Bill Next Week.

The Premier announced that the Ontario Temperance Act amendments, including 4.4 beer, would be brought down next week.

Mr. Kemp appealed to the government to retain and keep in shape certain old cemeteries in the Niagara district. In some of these places, veterans of the War of 1812 are buried, and he thought it in the interests of Canadian history that such places should be preserved. He also spoke of the necessity of further development of hydro power for rural lines, and advocated something nearer a flat rate for power.

MUCH CONTRADICTORY EVIDENCE AT COBOURG RAILWAY HEARING

Plaintiff's Witnesses Say Bell and Whistle Were Not Sounded.

MORE EVIDENCE.

(By a Staff Reporter).

COBOURG, March 12.—The entire session yesterday of the Supreme Court was taken up with the hearing of further evidence in the suit for damages against the C.N.R., the plaintiffs in which are Mrs. Jessie Hodges and Dr. Alyea, of Colborne, mention of which was made in Wednesday's Examiner. There is more testimony to be submitted, and it is likely that the case will not be given to the jury until some time this afternoon.

The plaintiffs concluded their testimony at noon yesterday, and the afternoon was devoted to hearing the evidence of the defence. On all the main points at issue witnesses on each side were at variance. While all those who testified for the plaintiffs agreed that the engine as it approached the fatal crossing gave no warning by the sounding of either bell or whistle, the witnesses on the other side just as emphatically affirmed that the usual signals had been given.

Although there are two plaintiffs in the case, the testimony deals almost exclusively with the case of Clifford Alyea, the 18-year-old youth who was injured at the crossing in Colborne, when the fast train from Toronto to Ottawa struck the auto truck which he was driving on January 27 of last year. Melville Hodges, who was in the truck with young Alyea, was instantly killed.

Mrs. Jessie Hodges, mother of the victim of the accident, was the first witness called yesterday morning. The unfortunate youth was the same age as Alyea, and his mother, who is a widow, swore that the wages which he was able to earn were one of the sources of income required to support her family of young children.

Clifford Aylea's Injuries.

Mrs. Aylea and her husband both testified as to the injuries their son had received, and swore that he was still suffering as the result of the accident. Dr. Alyea, the father, testified that Clifford had given him valuable assistance in his business as a purchaser of cattle and hogs. Young as the boy was, the father did not hesitate to entrust him with the loading of stock cars and the weighing of cattle and hogs for which he paid, filling out the blank cheques which his father signed and left with him.

Worth $1,000 a Year.

Dr. Aylea estimates that if his son had not met with the accident, he would be worth to him, as an assistant in his business, $1,000 a year for the three years before he is practically unable to work, the father says that the son costs him about $500 a year for board and clothes. Medical attendance and other expenses due to the accident, including the value of the truck, which was totally ruined, the doctor swore amounted to $1,100.

Clifford Takes the Stand.

Clifford Aylea, who is a bright and good-looking youth, was on the stand during the morning session, and was allowed to sit down during the taking of his testimony. He gave his evidence without hesitation but has, he swore, no recollection of the actual accident. He recalls, however, that as he neared the cross ing he looked up and down the track but could not see a train. He heard neither bell nor whistle. He cannot remember being taken to or from the hospital or the names of the trained nurses who attended him. On account of the injury to his right arm, he cannot lift as heavy a weight as he formerly could.

Part of Clifford's work before the accident was to take to the various fairs in the district about 200 fancy fowl and pure bred sheep belonging to his father and for which he was always awarded a large number of prizes. He cannot do this since his injury, he testified, and has been unable to give his father much assistance in other ways.

To J. P. Pratt, solicitor for the railway company, Clifford said that he is troubled with frequent headaches and that one of his hips gives him considerable pain at times..

Witness from Manitoba.

One of the witnesses who tesified on behalf on the plaintiff was F. R. Crane, who resides near Winnipeg and who is vice - president of the Manitoba Dairymen's Association. Mr. Crane is sent east every year to purchase dairy cattle for his organization. He has employed Dr. Aylea, both before and since the accident, to buy stock in his vicinity and testified as to the help given to the doctor by his son before the latter was injured. He does not believe that the boy is of much, if any, use now, for this kind of work.

Defense Presents Case.

Photos of the vacinity of the accident and blue prints of the location were submitted by the defence and shown to the jury but it was the medical testimony that excited the most interest. Dr. John Mitchell, who formerly resided in Cobourg, a practitioner of 26 years experienece, and who is now chief medical officer for the C. N. R., swore that about a month ago he hade made a medical examination of Clifford Ayea in the office of Dr. Ivey ,Cobourg. He testified that the young fellow was a normal boy. The doctor could find nothing wrong with his right arm or with his hip. He had suffered no injury that would give him an abnoraml walking gait and his head had not been seriously hurt.

The doctor had submitted Clifford to tests as to his memory and found that, this was accessable.. He had also listened to his testimony in the morning and had come to the same conclusion with regard to the boy's ability to recall events. Any person who cames through an accident may have lapses of memory before and after the casualty, but this condition would not be permanent.

Dr Mitchell said the boy is in no danger of becoming a victim of epileptic fits, in the future, as one of the doctors had intimated on behalf of the defense. He believes that Clifford will completely recover except for the tendon in the arm but this will not handicap him.

Another Medical Expert.

Dr. George Wilson who made the medical examination of the plaintiff with Dr. Mitchell was the next witnes. He is head of the emergency ward in the Toronto General Hospital and is associated lecturer on surgery in the University in that city. Dr. Wilson agreed with his colleague on every point Cliford's arm, the witness swore was not not injured permanently, his memory was not impaired but was as good as that of any normal boy of his age. His walk too, is natural. The boy should have been perfectly recovered from his injuries three months after the accident.

Engineer George Kirby.

George Kirby, who was engineer of the train which ran into the auto truck, swore that he gave the usual whistle for the crossing when his train approached Colborne. The bell was ringing constantly automatically The train was not scheduled to stop between Cobourg and Belleville. It left the former station nine minutes late and was still running at the rate of 45 miles an hour as he neared ,Colborne and the usual running schedule for that portion of the track is 49 miles.

The fireman, as they approached the crossing, was looking out the window on his side of the cab and shouted to the engineer to stop as there was a rig near and moving toward the track.

Engineer Kirby at onec applied the emergency brakes and opened the sand tank. The train was on a down grade at the time but it came to a stop 850 feet beyond the crossing. The two boys were found on the buffer beam of the engine, Hodger dead and Alyea unconscious. The latter was placed in the baggage car and the train backed down to the Colborne station where the boys were removed to the waiting room.

Testimony Corroborated.

This testimony, with especial reference to the blowing of the whistle and the ringing of the bell, was corroborated by Fireman Hunter, Conductor Russell, Baggagemaster Gorrie, Brakeman Perch, J. K. McCutcheon, of Toronto, who was a passenger on the train; T. Fleming, operator, and J. Smith, baggageman at Colborne, and Martin Peters, section foreman. The latter testified that the crossing had been cleared of ice and snow at 7.30 on the morning of the accident, and swore that an auto could pass over it without a change of gear.

At 6.15 the court adjourned until 9.30 this morning.

Mexico City To Use Only Spanish For Movie Texts

MEXICO CITY (By Mail to United Press.)—"Gringoes" and other foreigners who wish to enjoy the movies in Mexico City must either learn Spanish or guess at the titles, unless they already have a knowledge of "the language in which to speak with God," as Charles V of Spain declared Spanish to be.

Municipal authorities have requested the amusements commission to take steps toward preventing the exhibition of films with English titles saying that the official language of the country is Spanish and only that language shall be used.

For many years titles of films shown here have been given both in English and Spanish, in order to satisfy the English-speaking patrons. A title is flashed on the screen first in Spanish and then in English. Subtitles are usually run together—the Spanish above the English.

A reasonable length of time will be granted the owners of moving picture houses to comply with the new regulations.

An order has also been issued including street and street car advertising in the new movement. This will affect some of the largest advertisers in the city, particularly oil companies.

BOGUS BANK BILLS SHOW A HUGE PLOT

Plans Had Evidently Been Laid to Raise Millions by Fraud.

TORONTO, March 12.— (Canadian Press.)—The counterfeiting of bank bills on a scale so extensive that the criminal band responsible apparently laid its plans to defraud financial institutions and the public at large of millions of dollars, has been disclosed.

The notes purport to be $100 bills of the Imperial Bank of Canada, and such remarkable productions are they that even a banker might be excused if he failed to question their genuineness.

Among the bogus bills which have been remitted to the Toronto banks from correspondent institutions in London, England, are some bearing numbers as high as 85,000. Of course the counterfeiters may not have numbered the notes serially, but such a course seems a likely one. If, then, 85,000 spurious $100 notes have been manufactured, the nominal face value is $8,500,000.

W. G. More, secretary and superintendent of branches of the Imperial Bank, stated last night that the Imperial Bank had not sustained any loss since it had not accepted any of the spurious notes. It appears that the great sufferers will be banks and other institutions in Britain and Europe.

Imperial bank officials do not accept the current report that the bogus bills are the product of genuine plates and that the plates were stolen.

Colds

In the chest—
Apply Red Pepper at once

Not a plaster not mustard. Not any old-time method. The modern way is Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing else applies such concentrated such penetrating heat. And heat that doesn't hurt. The old ways can't compare.

Rub it on the chest where congestion exists. A cold is congestion, you know. At once you feel the tingling, penetrating heat. Circulation starts, congestion is relieved. And soon you will feel the cold loosen.

This is just the age-old method of dealing with a cold, perfected by modern science. Red pepper, applied in this way, does what old ways could not do. Use it once and you will use it always. The difference will quickly show.

But have it ready — get it now. Every hour saved at the start of a cold may save many hours of trouble. Be ready to loosen it at once.

PROPOSE CENTRAL EXECUTION PLACE

Death Penalties in Maritime Provinces May Be at Dorchester.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 12. —A definite step toward bringing about a much mooted reform in the Maritime Provinces was taken by Attorney-General Walter J. O'Hearn in the local legislative assembly yesterday when he gave notice of a motion to petition the Federal Government to pass such legislation that all criminals sentenced to suffer the extreme penalty in the three Provinces would be removed to the Maritime Penitentiary at Dorchester for the execution of sentence.

This reform has been campaigned for by several Maritime newspapers for years and has been urged by various organizations and individuals. A movement looking towards the enactment of such legislation was started in New Brunswick only a few weeks ago in connection with the pending execution of a man in Fredericton Jail awaiting execution for a dual murder..

The motion provided that copies of the resolution be sent to the Legislative Assemblies of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island for whatever action they might deem advisable in connection therewith.

Woman, Boy and Dog Had Narrow Escape—Rope Saved Them.

TORONTO, March 12—(Canadian Press).—While crossing the ice at Hanlan's Point yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Tuck, her three-year-old son, and a dog went through, and would have drowned had it not been for the timely arrival of four men who, with a pole and a 100-foot rope, crept out on the shaky ice, fastened the rope about the woman and the boy and pulled them to shore, a distance of about one-eighth of a mile. Mrs. Tuck and her son, who live at Western Sand Bar, Hanlan's Point, were little the worse for their experience.

FIND HIDDEN WEALTH.

Bayano Oil Swindler's Estate Has $750,000 Taxes Due.

CHICAGO, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—Federal officials announced yesterday that secret service men had discovered the hidden wealth of Leo Koretz, Bayano swindler, who died recently in prison, following his arrest in Halifax, N. S., after being sought for months.

Before a referee in bankruptcy, the Government relinquished its claim to $750,000 back taxes against the present assets of $400,000, Assistant United States Attorney Cotter stated.

The Government will not give up its claim to back taxes. We have discovered other assets of Leo Koretz—an income at least part of which was obtained legitimately.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hore, Grand Road, received word on Wednesday that Miss Myrtle Ostrander, who attended High School in Campbellford a few years ago and made her home with Mrs. Hore, that she was brought home very ill from Gravenhurst to her home in North Bay. The doctor's report that she is in a critical condition. She, with her family, used to live in Hastings before moving to North Bay. Miss Ostrander was training for a nurse when she took ill.

Audrey Cassan, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cassan, Palliser Street, is very ill at her home. All last week she was ill with tonsilitis, and a few days ago she was seized by an acute attack of appendicitis. She will have to have an operation and have her tonsils removed, and as soon as she has recovered from this operation, it will be necessary to have the other operation.

Mr. John Boyce of Percy Boom and Warkworth, who had an operation in Peterboro about ten days ago, is improving slowly. Mrs. Nelson Stone, on Front Street, who is his sister hears reports of him every few days.

Mrs. Roy King of Hastings spent a few days this week with Mrs. Bert Gillespie, Front Street, and other friends.

Miss Nelly M. Hoover, Queen Street, left on Saturday for Orillia. Word was received on Friday that her sister, Mrs. Thomas Church and little daughter, Betty, were both ill in bed, so she has gone to care for them, and will likely be gone several weeks.

for school purposes. Subsequent legislation proved this t obe the fact and the law.

Only Two Classes.

"I am firmly convinced," continued Mr. Justice Greenshields, "that the schools previous to 1867 were Christian schools divided into two classes only, Protestant and Roman Catholic. The Protestant child might attend the Roman Catholic school or vice versa, but each body had the right to conduct its own affairs. The state recognised its obligation to give secular education to non-Christian children, but it did not recognise the right of the Provinces to establish Separate Schools for non-Christian bodies. To do so would be subvrsive of the spirit of legislation. The state should respect the religious beliefs of any child, and should not attempt to force other religious views on it.

"Non-Protestant and non-Catholic children should attend the common schools, but the Provinces should not interfere in any way."

The decision of the Court of Appeals closes the question which has for some considerable time troubled the affairs of the Montreal common schools. A commission comprising three Roman Catholics, Sir Lonier Gouin, Aime Geoffrion, K.C., and the late J. A. Richard; three Protestants, Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., E. M. Beatty, K.C., and Hon. Walter Mitchell; and three Jews, S. W. Cohne, Michael Hirsch, and Alderman Jos. Schubert, met in an effort to adjust the difficulty, and the net result of their investigations was the submission to the Legislature of several reports, one representing each of the three groups, and an additional Jewish minority report from Alderman Schubert. A brief general report declares that since there was a divergence of opinion among the parties concerned and since the Protestants and Jews seemed unable to agree, the commissioners desired to maintain the two school systems, Protestant and Roman Catholic.

They declared against the creation of a third (Jewish) system. Mr. Schubert's minority report dissented from this last item.

The opinions of two eminent lawyers were sought, those of Eugene Lafleur, K.C., and Wallace Nesbitt, but these were conflicting, and in an effort to solve the problem effectually recourse was eventually made to the Court of Appeals, with the foregoing result.

Croup at Night No Longer Feared by Canadian Mothers

Direct Treatment with Vaporizing Salve Immediately Reaches Congested Air Passages.

Many Canadian mothers, who in the past have worried over croup and children's cold, are delighted with the "external" remedy for colds, Vicks VapoRub.

You just rub Vicks over throat and chest for croup, children's colds, bronchitis or deep chest colds. When so applied the body heat releases the ingredients as vapors which are inhaled directly into the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and reducing the inflammation.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster and thus aids the vapors inhaled to break up the congestion. Croup is usually relieved in 15 minutes.

There is no dosing in using Vicks. Nothing to upset the delicate stomachs of small children. You just "rub it on".

FALSE ECONOMY.

The Life Assurance Underwriters' Association is desturbed by the announcement that the Federal Government intends to cut in two the $200,000 grant provided for the purpose of controlling venereal disease.

The underwriters' attitude toward the question is the same as that of all who have given any real thought to the matter, that the campaign against these diseases should be intensified rather than curtailed.

The need of retrenchment in Government expenditure is admitted, but it is dangerous economy to check the fight against venereal disease.

The Minister of Agriculture has been successful in securing a grant of $1,905,000 to fight tuberculosis in animals, a reduction of $95,000, it is true, from last year, but yet a sum that makes the appropriation for the control of venereal diseases seem ridiculously inadequate.

Nearly two million dollars to save cattle from tuberculosis, only one hundred thousand dollars to save humanity from the wages of a disease so terrible that it has been called not merely a killer of the individual but a race destroyer!

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The reports presented at the annual meeting of the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce demonstrated that the usefulness of the organization is not confined to the municipality in which it is located, and that the Chamber has succeeded in initiating several policies that have found Provincial-wide favour.

Outstanding in this connection, of course, was the movement to organize an Ontario tourists' association for the purpose of advertising this Province as a tourists' paradise, an effort adopted by the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Ontario and one that will have the support of the Provincial Government.

President J. Wells Fraser's report drew attention to the extent to which the services of the Chamber's staff and of the accommodation of the Chamber's quarters was used by the public, the figures quoted indicating that the organization has been performing a very valuable community service.

The Chamber of Commerce has developed into a very necessary body with widespread activities, and the enthusiasm which evidently permeates its officers and members is a very encouraging sign.

The organization should have the support of the citizens generally, and that support should be shown in a tangible way by a large increase in the membership during the year.

MAKING THE ROAD SAFER.

No part of the address given by S. L. Squires, Deputy Minister of Highways, before the Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday night was received with more applause than reference to the necessity of every precaution being taken to reduce the number of traffic accidents.

Mr. Squires' exposition of the Government's attitude toward drivers' permits—making them easy to get and also easy to lose—evidently found favour with the motorists present.

There is much sound common sense in the theory that an examination as to the mental and physical qualities of applicants for permits would not prevent licenses to be secured by many people who, while mentally and physically fit, are morally unfit to drive a car.

There are such drivers in every community, people who seem to lose all sense of their duty toward others as soon as they seat themselves at the wheel, who apparently think that pedestrians and occupants of slower moving vehicles have no right to be on the highways at all.

It is this type of driver that is responsible for a large percentage of automobile accidents, and if the permit system, as explained by the Deputy Minister of Highways, will drive such motorists off the roads, the Government will have done much to make conditions safer and more pleasant for the travelling public.

Men with no realization of the principle of the Golden Rule have no right to drive cars, and if legislation will cause them to change their viewpoint or will rid the highways of their presence, the result cannot fail to be in the public interest.

THE GASOLINE TAX.

The case built up by Deputy Minister Squires on behalf of the 3-cent tax on gasoline was so strong that opponents of the measure are left without a leg to stand on.

The contention that the people who use the roads the most and get the most benefit from them should pay the most toward their construction and upkeep is so sound logically that opposition to such a basis of dividing the cost is pointless and without a single argument to buttress it.

No tax is popular, and it is not to be expected, of couse, that the man who drives 30,000 miles in a year will throw up his hat and cheer the announcement that he will have to pay a tribute on the amount of gasoline he uses.

But, at the same time, he cannot successfully contest the logic of the principle upon which the levy is based.

The gasoline tax divides the cost on an equitable basis.

The man who merely uses his "flivver" for a week-end outing for his family will not be heavily taxed; neither will the farmer whose chief use of his car is to come to the city on Saturday.

On the other hand, the motorists who drive thousands of miles in a season will make a sizable contribution to the Provincial revenues.

In all cases the tax works like a meter; the car-owner merely pays for the service in the form of using the roads that he receives.

St. Catharines revelations indicate that there were some people there who were really interested in the municipal elections—an unusual condition of affairs.

TOBACCO.

It is not enough to brush aside with a mild pooh! pooh! the campaign recently heralded from Washington for the abolition of tobacco, says the Kingston Whig. To dismiss its promoters as amiable busybodies, powerless to do harm and perhaps useful in adding monetary gayety to a jazz-tired age, would be a grave mistake. It is the experience of history that we on this North American Continent—both Americans and Canadians—are so easy-going, so morally lazy or so good-natured, according to your choice of definition, that a persistent minority can write almost anything it wants into the laws.

On this very subject of tobacco our neighbors across the line have the humiliating example of several States in which it is a penal offense to roll or light a cigarette. Of course, the law is not enforced in any of them; but there it lies on the statute books, a mockery, serving only to tickle the vanity of a handful of kindly old souls who nagged the Legislature into passing it.

But that is not the sum of its evil. For every law that is defied or ignored is an object lesson in lawlessness, educating the public in contempt of all law, spawning criminals and making it difficult or impossible to enforce those laws on which the order, stability and welfare of the community depend.

That tobacco, used in moderation, has added much to the sum of human happiness can not be gainsaid. Whatever ills may have been the outgrowth of the habit are due to overindulgence. But no one proposes to pass laws to regulate eating, because it is an unquestioned fact that men and women, some of them blatantly righteous, overeat to the extent of keeping themselves constantly in the hands of physicians. It is not our purpose here, however, to defend tobacco. It is quite able to take care of itself. But we do want to utter a warning against the present-day supineness in the face of crank legislation. What we need more than anything else—and the Whig has stressed this point before—is a legislative house-cleaning. If three-fourths of the laws could be formally and legally repealed and measures taken to assist on strict accountability to those permitted to remain, we would have made a long step in the science of self-government and contributed to the moral growth of our citizenship.

UNDERMINING OUR ARBITRATION MACHINERY.

It was Paul F. Schnur, International Vice-President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union, who persuaded the Canadian Press telegraphers to embark on a strike that proved disastrous to them. He it was who refused arbitration under the Canadian Conciliation Board on the ground that justice could not be obtained from Canadian Conciliation Boards; he it was who scorned public sympathy as worthless when it was suggested that refusal of arbitration would alienate it; he it was who in response to all appeals from the Canadian Press for a peaceable adjustment of the dispute shouted: "We will lick you." One would have thought from the awful failure of this kind of rough stuff Paul F. Schnur would have learned a satisfactory lesson, but stupid obstinacy seems to be his prevailing mood.

The February number of the Commercial Telegraphers' Journal gives prominence to an article by Paul F. Schnur on the findings of two Conciliation Boards that investigated the disputes between the Telegraphers' Union of the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Telegraph Companies. In it Schnur says:

"It has been clearly demonstrated that justice cannot be secured for the workers through an impartial (?) tribunal composed of a majority of men with the capitalist viewpoint. Let the telegraph companies beware! If the workers cannot hope for justice and emancipation other than through the use of force, then force it shall be, for these workers are determined that amelioration of their present condition must be brought about by whatever means.

"Negotiations began in June of last year and the end is not yet. The officers have counselled against hasty action, working might and main themselves through every avenue to avoid war. If their efforts bear no fruit, then the workers themselves shall determine their course.

"What shall it be? Peace or War? The answer is awaited with expectancy."

The personnel of these two Boards was the same—the companies appointed F. H. Phippen, a lawyer, as their representative, the union named James Simpson, the well known labor man of Toronto. These two men selected R. Home Smith, an able Toronto man of affairs, as chairman of the Board. For all we know Mr. Smith's name may have been first suggested by Mr. Simpson, but one must certainly conclude that Mr. Smith's selection was satisfactory to the labor representative or he would not have agreed to it. A majority award of the Board was made possible because Mr. Phippen "for the sake of avoiding a disagreement which might render our work futile" agreed to concessions to the union suggested by Mr. Smith which he regarded as unfair to the companies.

Now we are wondering what would happen if the situation were reversed—if, for instance, Paul F. Schnur were a Canadian in the United States urging industrial war in that country and using inflammatory language of the kind quoted. From innumerable past incidents, is it too much to assume that Paul F. Schnur would be invited forthwith to leave the United States as an undesirable alien? In Canada we try to be tolerant, but Honorable James Murdock—who himself was once a Canadian labor leader in the United States—might have a serious talk with this swashbuckler Schnur.

It is against the interests of the workers, against the interests of Canada, that in these days of industrial depression anybody should be permitted deliberately to undermine the machinery carefully and conscientiously devised to compose disputes between employers and employes.—Ottawa Journal.

A THOUGHT.

Speaking of Business Methods, When is a Profit Honest.

When is a profit honest? When it replaces the energy used in production and adds a surplus for health ful expansion. A profit is always with reference to the business itself; the reward of those engaged is a part of the production cost. Legitimate profit is that which stabilizes the business and assures its continuance and improvement in service. This principle, therefore, includes public. A good business will make a profit for the buye: as well as the seller If the buyer is not better off than if he had kept his money in his pocket, there is something wrong. The profit that replaces energy should return to the buyer in the form of sustained service. The profit that permits expansion should return in better quality as lowered cost. Expanison to any degree is justified when it increases service and lowers cost—but not otherwise. (The Dearborn Independent).

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

With the probability of the export buyers being out of the market for a few days, there was a little slowing up in the general demand and trade at the opening lacked interest. Later there was more activity, as there is a good market just now for stockers and feeders, and this reacts in stimulating the demand for butcher cattle. Prices on the whole were holding steady at this week's advance for good to choice butcher stuff. On the inferior grades, a little easier feeling, but steadily cleaning up with little change.

Calves still on the easier side.

Few lambs offering and market steady.

Hogs firm, and holders asking 25c higher, but market unsettled.

Prices in the various sections are as follows:

Export cattle, choice and heavy steers, $7.75 to $8.50; bulls, $4.50 to $5.25; heifers, $6.50 to $7.25; stores, $6.60 to $7.

Choice butchers, $7.25 to $7.75; medium, $6.50 to $7; common, $5.25 to $5.75; baby beeves, $8.50 to $9.

Choice fat cows, $4.75 to $5.50.

Stockers and feeders, choice short-keep feeders 1,000 to 1,200 lbs., $6.75 to $7.25; choice stockers, 830 to 950 lbs., $5.50 to $6; light western stock, $4.25 to $4.50; choice western $6.25 to $6.75.

Calves easier.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs unsettled at $12 to $12.25 f.o.b. asked; $13 to $13.25 off cars: selects, off cars, $2.47 per head extra.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 11.—Bearish sentiment dominated all markets on the Winnipeg Exchange today, forcing drastic price recessions, in which May wheat declined to $1.89 1-2, a loss of 5 1-8 cents since yesterday's close. July closed 5 3-8 cents lower at $1.86, and October 3 1-4 cents down at $1.51. At one period of trading, the May future skidded down to $1.87 5-8.

The coarse grain markets reflected the weakness of wheat, rye experienced the severest break, declining 6 1-2 cents.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, March 11 — With the exception of sales of a few loads of Canadian Western oats made over the cable here to-day for March shipment, the demand from foreign buyers for grain was of a limited character. There was some demand from local exporters for oats and sales of add lots of No. 3 Canadian Western were made at 4 1-2 cent per bushel over the Winnipeg May option. C. I. F., Montreal, and No. 2 feed at six cents per bushel under the same option, C. I. F., Bay ports. The spot market was weaker for oats and prices were reduced 1 cent per bushel. Ontario No. 3 white was quoted a 60 cnttes and No. 4 grade at 53 cents per bushel, ex-store.

The sympathy with the renewed weakness in Winnipeg cash wheat, the local market for spring wheat flour was easier and prices were reduced another 20 cents per barrel, which makes a net reduction for the month of March to date of 80 cents per barrel There was no change in Winter wheat prices.

The mill feed market was without any new feature to note. Prices of standard grades of rolled oats were reduced another fifteen cents per bag.

A moderate amount of business was transacted in eggs and prices firm. A weaker feeling developed in the potato market and prices scored a decline of five cents per bag. The butter market was active and firm. The trade in cheese was firm and prices steady.

Beans were unchanged at $2.70 per bushel.

STERLING RATES.

Sterling demand $4.77 5-8.

Sterling cables $4.78.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 11. — Wheat crashed down 7 1-2 cents a bushel to-day to 180 1-4, May delivery. An unexpected setback in prices at Liverpool together with reports that offerings there were much in excess of immediate demand was largely responsible for the big break in values here. Chicago closing prices on wheat were unsettled. 3 to 5 7-8 cents net lower, May 181 7-8 to 182 and July 160 1-4 to 160 1-2. Corn finished 1 1-2 to 1 3-4 cents down, oats 5-8 to 1 cent off, and provisions at 7 to 27 cents decline.

Selling side had what was described as a running start in the wheat pit, and were quick to take full advantage of the circumstance. Houses with eastern and southern connections were persistent heavy sellers and the price downturns which resulted were given added impetus through standing orders from many other sources that holdings be closed out in order to stop losses at various definite limits. News of moisture to-day where drought has been affecting domestic winter wheat tended further to put a strain on the market and so likewise did indications of enlarged foreign crops during 1925.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 11. — The preliminary statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics on March 10th showed in storage on March 1st, 2,348 cases of eggs as ocmpared with 1,200 cases for the same date last year. The stocks of frozen poultry were also slightly heavier showing 2,831,435 pounds as compared with 2,133,817 pounds for the same date last year. There is little likelihood of much change in the market during the present week.

THIS Your BIRTHDAY

THURSDAY, MARCH 12—One of hte greatest faults of persons born this day is their inclination "to fly off the handle." They are high-tempered and usually talk too much. They rarely harbor a grudge and generally are sorry for cutting remarks as soon as they make them, but then damage has been done. They aren ot inclined to take the advice of others, and a pronounced strain of egoism is a characteristic.

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

CHAPTER XI.

While the lovely Nepeese was shuddering over her thrilling experience under the rock—while Pierrot still offered grateful thanks in his prayers for her deliverance and Baree was becoming more and more a fixture at the beaver-pond—Bush McTaggart was perfecting a little scheme of his own up at Post Lax Bain, about forty miles north and west. McTaggart had been factor at Lac Bain for seven years. In the Company's books down in Winnipeg he was counted a remarkably successful man. The expense of his post was below the average, and his semi-annual report of furs always ranked among the first. After his name, kept on file in the main office, was one notation which said: "Gets more out of a dollar than any other man north of God's Lake."

The Indians knew why this was so. They called him Napao Wetikoo—the man-devil. This was under their breath—a name whispered sinisterly in the glow of tepee fires, or spoken softly where not even the winds might carry it to the ears of Bush McTaggart. They feared him; they hated him. They died of starvation and sickness, and the tighter Bush McTaggart clenched the fingers of his iron rule, the more meekly, it seemed to him, did they respond to his mastery. His was a small soul, hidden in the hulk of a brute, which rejoiced in power. And here—with the raw wilderness on four sides of him—his power knew no end. The Big Company was behind him. It has made him king of a domain n which there was little law except his own. And in return he gave back to the Company bales and bundles of furs beyond their expectations. It was not for them to have suspicions. They were a thousand or more miles away—and dollars counted.

Gregson might have told. Gregson was the Investigating Agent of that district, who visited McTaggart once each year. He might have reported that the Indians called McTaggart Napao Wetikoo because he gave them only half price for their furs; he might have told the Company quite plainly that he kept the people of the trap-lines at the edge of starvation through every month of the winter, that he had them on their knees with his hands at their throats—putting the truth in a mild and pretty way—and that he always had a woman or a girl Indian or halfbreed, living with him at the Post. But Gregson enjoyed his visits too much at Lac Bain. Always he could count on two weeks of coarse pleasures; and in addition to that, his own womenfolk at home wore a rich treasure of fur that came to them from McTaggart.

One evening, a week after the adventure of Nepeese and Baree under the rock, McTaggart sat under the glow of an oil lamp in his "store." He had sent his little pippin-faced English clerk to bed, and he was alone. It was just six weeks ago that Pierrot had brought Nepeese on her first visit to Lac Bain since McTaggart had been factor there. She had taken his breath away. Since then he had been able to think of nothing but her. Twice in that six weeks he had gone down to Pierrot's cabin. To-morrow he was going again. Marie, the slim Cree girl over in his cabin, he had forgotten—just as a dozen others before Marie had slipped out of his memory. It was Nepeese now. He had never seen anything quite so beautiful as Perriot's girl.

Audibly he cursed Pierrot as he looked at a sheet of paper under his hand, on which for an hour or more he had been making notes out of worn and dusty Company ledgers. It was Pierrot who stood in his way. Pierrot's father, according to those notes, had been a full-blooded Frenchman. Therefore Pierrot was half French, and Nepeese was quarter French—though she was so beautiful he could have sworn there was not more than a drop or two of Indian blood in her viens. If they had been all Indian—Chippewayan, Cree, Ojibway, Dog Rib—anything—there would have been no trouble at all in the matter. He would have bent them to his power, and Nepeese would have come to his cabin, as Marie came six months ago. But there was the accursed French of it! Pierrot and Nepeese were different. And yet——

He smiled grimly, and his hands clenched tighter. After all, was not his power sufficient? Would even Pierrot dare stand against that? If Pierrot objected, he would drive him from the country—from the trapping regions that had come down to him as heritage from father and grandfather, and even before their day. He would make of Pierrot a wanderer and an outcast, as he had made wanderers and outcasts of a score of tohers who had lost his favor. No other Post would sell to or buy from Perriot if Le Bete—the black cross—was put after his name. That was his power—a law of the Factors that had come down through the centuries. It was a tremendous power for evil. It had brought him Marie, the slim, dark-eyed Cree girl, who hated him—and in spite of her hatred "kept house for him." That was the polite way of explaining her presence if explanations were ever necessary.

McTaggart looked again at the notes he had made on the sheet of paper. Pierrot's trapping-country, his own property according to the common law of the wilderness, was very valuable. During the last seven years he had received an average of a thousand dollars a year for his furs, for McTaggart had been unable to cheat Pierrot quite as completely as he had cheated the Indians. A thousand dollars a year! Pierrot would think twice before he gave that up. McTaggart chuckled as he crumpled the paper in his hand and prepared to put out the light. Under his close-cropped shaggy beard his reddish face blazed with the fire that was in his blood. It was an unpleasant face—like iron, merciless, filled with the look that gave him his name of Napoo Wetikoo. His eyes gleamed, and he drew a quick breath as he put out the light.

He chuckled again as he made his way through the darkness to the door. Nepeese as good as belonged to him. He would have her if it cost—Pierrot's life. And—why not? It was all so easy. A shot on a lonely trap-line, a single knife-thrust—and who would know? Who would guess where Pierrot had gone? And it would all be Pierrot's fault. For the last time he had seen Pierrot, he had made an honest proposition: he would marry Nepeese. Yes, even that. He had told Pierrot so. He had told Pierrot that when the latter was his father-in-law, he would pay him double price for furs.

And Pierrot had stared—had stared with that strange, stunned look in his face, like a man dazed by a blow from a club. And so if he did not get Nepeese without trouble it would all be Pierrot's fault. To-morrow McTaggart would start again for the half-breed's country. And the next day Pierrot would have an answer for him. Bush McTaggart chuckled again when he went to bed.

Until the next to the last day Pierrot said nothing to Nepeese about what had passed between him and the factor at Lac Bain. Then he told her.

"He is a beast—a man-devil," he said, when he had finished. "I would rather see you out there—with her—dead." And he pointed to the tall spruce under which the princess mother lay.

Nepeese had not uttered a sound. But her eyes had grown bigger and darker, and there was a flush in her cheeks which Pierrot had never seen there before. She stood up when he had done, and she seemed taller to him. Never had she looked quite so much like a woman, and Pierrot's eyes were deep-shadowed with fear and uneasiness as he watched her while she gazed off into the northwest—toward Lac Bain.

She was wonderful, this slip of a girl-woman. Her beauty troubled him. He had seen the look in Buch McTaggart's eyes. He had heard the thrill in McTaggart's voice. He had caught the desire of a beast in McTaggart's face. It had frightened him at first. But now—he was not frightened. He was uneasy, but his hands were clenched. In his heart there was a smoldering fire. At last Nepeese turned and came and sat down beside him again, at his feet.

"He is coming to-morrow, ma cherie," he said. "What shall I tell him?"

"And he pointed to the tall spruce under which the princess mother lay."

The Willow's lips were red. Her eyes shone. But she did not look at her father.

"Nothing, Nootawe—except that you are to say to him that I am the one to whom he must come—for what he seeks."

Pierrot bent over and caught her smiling. The sun went down. His heart sank with it, like sold lead.

From Lac Bain to Pierrot's cabin the trail cut within half a mile of the beaver-pond, a dozen miles from where Pierrot lived; and it was here, on a twist of the creek in which Wakayoo had caught fish for Baree, that Bush McTaggart made his camp for the night.

It was a splendid night that followed. Perhaps Baree would have slept through it in his nest on the top of the dam if the bacon smell had not stirred the new hunger in him. Since his adventure in the canyon, the deeper forest had held a dread for him, especially at night. But this night was like a pale, golden day: it was moonless; but the stars shone like a billion distant lamps flooding the world in a soft and billowy sea of light. A gentle whisper of wind made pleasant sounds in the treetops. Beyond that it was very quiet.

In this silence Baree began to hunt. He stirred up a family of half-grown partridges, but they escaped him. He pursued a rabbit that was swifter than he. For an hour he had no luck. Then he heard a sound that made every drop of blood in him thrill. He was close to McTaggart's camp, and what he heard was a rabbit in one of McTaggart's snares. He came out into a little starlit open and there he saw the rabbit going through a most marvellous pantomime. It amazed him for a moment, and he stopped in his tracks.

Wapoos, the rabbit, had run his furry head into the snare, and his first frightened jump had "shot" the sapling to which the copper wire was attached so that he was now hung half in mid-air, with only his hind feet touching the ground. And there he was, dancing madly while the noose about his neck slowly choked him to death.

Baree gave a sort of gasp. He could understand nothing of the part that the wire and the sapling were playing in this curious game. All he could see was that Wapoos was hopping and dancing about on his hind legs in a most puzzling and unrabbit-like fashion. It may be that he thought it some sort of play. In this instance, however, he did not regard Wapoos as he had looked on Umisk the beaver. He knew that Wapoos made mighty fine eating, and after another moment or two of hesitation he darted upon his prey.

McTaggart had heard no sound, for the snare into which Wapoos had run his head was the one set farthest from the camp. Beside the smouldering coals of his fire he sat with his back to a tree, smoking his black pipe and dreaming covetously of Nepeese, when Baree continued his night wandering. Baree no longer had the desire to hunt. He was too full. But he nosed in and out of the starlit spaces, enjoying immensely the stillness and the golden glow of the night. He was following a rabbit run when he came to a place where two fallen logs left a trail no wider than his body. He squeezed through; something tigbtened about his neck; there was a sudden snap—a swish as the sapling was released from its "trigger"—and Baree was jerked off his feet so suddenly that he had no time to conjecture as to what was happening.

NURSERY FOR COURT.

Hawaiian Judges Find Too Many Children When Mothers Tried.

HONULU, March 12.—Establishment of a nursery on the third floor of the federal building here, close to the portals of the United States district court, for infants whose mothers are being tried on prohibition charges, is advocated by Judge William T. Rawlins.

Recently five Japaneses women attended court, each with an infant in arms or one hanging on her skirts. They were only witnesses, but often court attaches say, women convicted of bootlegging appear for sentence with five or six young children, claiming parenthood of them all and pushing them foreward in a plea for mitigation.

PUBLIC SHOOTING GROUNDS IN WEST

Facilities For Hunting Game in Prairie Provinces.

OTTAWA, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—By recent Orders in Council, public shooting grounds have now been established in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In Manitoba six distinct areas have been set apart; in Saskatchewan, twelve, and in Alberta, thirty-two. The difference between the number of areas set apart in each province is compensated for, generally speaking, by the greater extent of the territory in Manitoba and Saskatchewan respectively.

Eleven new bird sanctuaries for the protection of game birds during the breeding season have also been established in Saskatchewan, in addition to those already set aside there and in Alberta.

Public shooting grounds are designed for the purpose of affording the public facilities for shooting the game in the open season. These areas safeguard breeding places and thus, with the bird sanctuaries, increase the specially protected nesting grounds in the important wild fowl sections of the Canadian prairies, where the majority of the continent's waterfowl nest.

Seven bird sanctuaries have been established on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, with the concurrence of the Province of Quebec, by an Order-in-Council just passed here under the terms of the Migratory Birds Convention Act. The sanctuaries are small groups of bare, rocky islands which are the breeding grounds of thousands of valuable geider ducks and other migratory sea-birds.

OPPOSITION TO PETERSEN PACT

Two Petitions From Montreal Submitted Against Shipping Agreement.

ALARMED BY SCHEME.

OTTAWA, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—The House of Commons is asked not to ratify the Petersen contract in two petitions tabled yesterday. They are from the Montreal Corn Exchange and the Montreal Board of Trade.

The Corn Exchange submits that the questions of ocean shipping is a complex and difficult one, and has been investigated by the best authorities for many years; that the conclusions of these investigators have not been unanimous; and that any drastic legislative action concerning ocean transportation is fraught with the gravest danger and should be based on a report from a properly constituted commission with fullest possible powers to thoroughly investigate the situation.

The Board of Trade submits that the reasons adduced by the Government for entering into the contract seem to have been predicated largely on the necessary authority or technical knowledge to conduct an investigation in a question which is international in scope and character. The Board of Trade further submits that it is impossible to influence ocean rates generally by the method proposed, because it provides lower rates on a small part of the traffic only, such lower rates benefitting only those shippers whose goods are carried by ships operating under the contract, at the cost of the already overburdened taxpayers. The petition says that the expenditure of such a large sum as called for under the contract cannot but be contemplated with alarm in view of the state of national finances.

TRADE CONDITIONS BETTER IN CHINA

Dying Sun Yat Sen Has Not Had Constructive Policy.

VICTORIA, B.C., Mar. 12—With Sun Yet Sen lying at the point of death at Peking, the opinion was freely expressed in Southern China that the passing of the stormy petrel of Chinese politics would not be widely mourned, according to C. F. Alleman, representative of the Oriental Department of George Borgfeldt & Co., of New York, who reached Vancouver today from China on board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia.

While he has been a great power in South China, Sun Yet Sen's policies have never been constructive, and the termination of his activities in the Chinese political arena might lead to a consolidation of the divided factions to the benefit of China as a whole.

Such was the impression gained by Mr. Alleman in his discussions on the Far Eastern political situation with the merchants of South China. Business is steadily recovering from the effects of the political unrest in China, stated Mr. Alleman, who looks for much improvement in trade conditions before many months have elapsed. There has been a cessation of internal fighting, and the products of the country are now moving steadily towards tidewater.

QUEEN'S FUND RAISED.

KINGSTON, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—The objective of $25,000 asked for by the Alma Mater Society in connection with the Students' Union drive which was held from last Friday up to yesterday has been oversubscribed by approximately $2,000, it was announced Wednesday afternoon.

SECRET TREATY METHODS UNDER LABOR ATTACK

Resolution in British House Defeated By Vote of 255 to 133.

DANGEROUS POLICY.

Government Lapsing to Secret Diplomacy, Declares Critics in Opposition.

LONDON, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—A Labor attack on secret diplomacy was made in the House of Commons last night, and C. P. Trevelyan moved a resolution that the consent of Parliament should be required for any foreign treaty or for any co-operation of the defence forces with a foreign state. His resolution was defeated 255 to 133.

Mr. Trevelyan complained of the present Government's refusal to be bound by the MacDonald Government's policy of submitting all treaties to the House of Commons, and both he and Arthur Ponsonby argued that the Conservative Government was drifting back to secret diplomacy and the conditions which prepared the way for the great war.

Mr. Ponsonby maintained that it was common talk in Europe that, while Ramsay MacDonald had employed methods of conciliation in foreign affairs, Austen Chamberlain, the present Secretary, had reverted to the method of dictation and arrogant imperialism. The Government, he declared, was "drifting back to the slippery slop of 1914."

Ronald McNeill, Under Secretary of the Foreign Office, maintained that Parliament still had all justifiable control of foreign affairs, and in any case, if such a reform as Mr. Trevelyan demanded was actually necessary, it should be done by Act of Parliament, not by resolution.

C.P.R. WAR ON HOBOES.

Announcement Following Murder in Alberta.

REGINA, Sas., March 12. — Hard times are ahead for that class of men who ride the bumpers.

Canadian Pacific Railway officials yesterday announced the beginning of a big effort to check up on the movements of all such men. It is, they said, the direct result of the murder at Walsh, Alta., of J. P. Calkin, by a man still at large, and not identified.

In Western Canada, the movement of hoboes is exceptionally heavy in early spring and early fall periods, immediately preceding seeding and harvest seasons. The annual spring movement is just starting and a special effort is to be made to control it.

Frank Ernest Walsh, who beat his way from Vancouver to Regina and intended, he admitted, to continue his free trip to a point sixty miles North of Winnipeg, was sentenced to ten days in jail yesterday.

GREY ROADS HURT EYES.

Many Minor Optical Ailments Caused by Roads of England.

LONDON, March 12.—The grey or white surfaced roads of England, at which the increasing number of automobile drivers are compelled to gaze intently in guiding their speeding cars, ar causing a mass of minor eye troubles, according to Arthur Upson in a recent address before the Institute of Opticians.

White roads reflect the harmful actinic rays, and Mr. Upson recommends that road builders mix green coloring matter with their surfacing material.

BUFFALO TREK.

Two Thousand Head Will Move 700 Miles From Wainwright.

EDMONTON, Alb., March 12.—Two thousand head of young buffalo will take a 700-mile trek this summer, from the park at Wainwright to the wild buffalo reserve on the Slave River, there to roam with the wild wood buffalo, already established in the woody tract between the Slave River, Hay River and Peace River.

C. N. R. EARNINGS

MONTREAL, March 11. — The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending March 7, 1925, have been $4,086,169.00, being a decrease of $764,223—over the corresponding week of 1924.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways from Jan. 1 to March 7, 1925, have been $37,288,679.00, being a decrease of $3,674,722.00 over the corresponding period of 1924.

BIG BEN IN TROUBLE

LONDON, March 12.—(United Press).—Big Ben, the great Westminister clock, took his first rest in several generations recently. Fogs were too much for it, gumming the mechanism of the giant timepiece. It stopped twice in a week, when it was decided that the famous chimes must lay off for repairs. Shortly before the chimes, which are broadcast, were heard by radio in Borneo—10,000 miles away.

C.P.R. STATION ROBBED.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 12. — (Canadian Press).—A lone bandit broke into the Canadian Pacific Railway station at High Bluff, Man., Wednesday morning and decamped with the cash box containing $71.90 in cash, a money order and cheque. The box was found later with only the currency missing.

26 INSPECTORS.

OTTAWA, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—Twenty-six inspectors are employed in Canada by the Federal Government, and their combined salaries in the present fiscal year amount to $42,112, it was stated in the House of Commons yesterday.

SEALING VESSEL CRUSHED IN ICE

Crew of 84 Men May Have Escaped to Ice Floes.

SHIPS SEARCHING.

ST. JOHN'S, N.F., March 12.—(Canadian Press).—Captain George Whitley and his crew of eighty-three men of the sealing steamer "Stella Maris," reported in a sinking condition yesterday, were still missing late in the afternoon, according to word reaching the Marine and Fisheries from the sealer "Prospero," at the close of a day's long search for the survivors.

The Government ordered the "Sable Island," which had just sailed for St. Pierre, to return to port, to pick up the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and to proceed north to join in the search.

Following the first S.O.S. call at daybreak Wednesday, when the "Stella Maris," reporting she had been crushed in the ice and was sinking by the head, nothing further was heard of the ship.

The general opinion among shipping men was that she was squeezed by closing, and the hope is expressed that the crew managed to leave her before she went down.

Premier Munroe announced in the Legislature that a message received from the "Stella Maris" had read: "Ship sinking. Crew trying to reach Prospero." He announced that, fearing that the crew was marooned on ice floes, the Government was immediately despatching the "Sable Island" from this port to rescue the men.

It was stated that Captain Windsor, Minister of Fisheries, himself an expert sealing skipper, was directing rescue operations.

The "Stella" was on her way to the northern grand banks with eight other steamers, seeking the young seals which are there found on floating ice floes. The hunting season will not open until Friday, but the steamers were permitted to sail earlier in order to give them time to find the herds and prepare for killing.

GRANTED 898,059 ACRES.

Land in Prairie Provinces to Hudson Bay Company.

OTTAWA, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—During the last ten years, the Hudson Bay Company has been granted 98,059 acres of land. The land is in the Prairie Provinces and North-West Territories. Of the total, 42,836 acres are classed as notifications and allotments of one-twentieth; of the remainder, 54,156 are classed under exchange account.

The above information was furnished by the Government in reply to a question in the House yesterday.

English women during the seventeenth century wore the engagement ring on their thumb.

BRIGHTON DEBATE FULL OF HUMOR

Local and Visiting Young People's League Had Enjoyable Time.

BRIGHTON, March 12. — On Monday evening, March 9, the Young People's League of the Methodist church, had as their guests the Leagues of Smithfield and Wesley Methodist church, Trenton.

The meeting was opened by a short song service after which an interesting programme was rendered by the visiting leagues.

Words of welcome were extended to the visiting societies by Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, Miss M. Hinds, president of the local league, and by Mr. Gordon Lapp, after which Mrs. Ezra A. Maybee, president of Smithfield League, took charge of their part of the programme, which consisted of a very interesting and instructive debate entitled, "Resolved that Eastern Canada has more advantages than Western Canada." The affirmative was taken by Mrs. Flindall and Mrs. O. L. Mary, and the negative by Mr. Cecil Bryant and Miss Nugent.

The humorous side of the debate was well taken care of by the leader of the affirmative and a climax was reached when he stated that in the matter of choosing a partner for the evening he would take his chances in Eastern Canada and let his opponent go west. The judges decided in favour of the negative side.

After the debate was concluded Mr. Arnold Campbell, president of the Trenton League, stated that on behalf of the visitors he wished to express the pleasure they felt in visiting with Brighton League. But as he had visited the kitchen he was afraid that they should not have come in such large numbers, and he thought that Rev. Wilson had made a mistake when he said that the local league was entertaining the leagues of both Trenton and Smithfield at once, in order to get it over with.

A varied programme was then given, consisting of music and readings. It was concluded by Miss Sweetman, who stated that she had been asked on several occasions her reasons for not marrying. She gave four reasons, namely; she had a stove that smoked, a dog that growled, a cow that chewed its cud, and a cat that stayed out late at nights.

Light refreshments followed the programme, and those present found their partners by a system of numbered cards. The meeting was closed by prayer by Rev. Mutton.

News Brevities.

Mr. Bruce David and family have moved to Brockville, where they will take up residence.

Miss Hazel Brown of Colborne has been visiting friends in Brighton recently.

A large number of local farmers have been drawing potatoes to town for shipment. In comparison with recent years the price has dropped considerably, fifty cents a bag being the present price paid.

Mr. Norman Montgomery of Toronto, who formerly lived here and who is now conducting a real estate office in Toronto, was in Brighton recently in connection with an auction sale.

The staff of the Standard Bank were surprised Monday night by the appearance of the auditors for their annual inspection.

Mrs. Roy B. Goheen is leaving Brighton for Orono, where she has accepted a position in the Public School.

Mr. A. P. Allen, Jr., of Colborne spent the week-end in Brighton.

Mr. T. S. Wells and family motored here from Bloomfield on Sunday to spend the day with their daughter, Mrs. M. R. Simpson.

Mr. A. L. Simpson of Toronto is spending a few days in town and reports that Mrs. Simpson is rapidly recovering after her recent illness.

ORLAND NEWS.

Less Trapping Area at Percy Boom—No Poaching Allowed.

ORLAND, March 12.—Mr. Wallace Muttons mill dam which broke away about ten days ago and was refilled by him has again broken away. The fesh filling did not adhere properly to the old part, and on the water being raised the strain was too much.

Jas. Herrington, who has been away from this place for three years and who arrived at his brother Harry's home at Hilton a week ago, was visitnig old acquaintances here today.

It is a great benefit to the public generally that the Dominion Express Co. has opened an office here for the transaction of business.

Early motorists are reporting quite dep mud in places between Brighton and Campbellford on the county and provincial highways.

The usual migration of trappers from the southback to Percy Boom is again taking place. They report a very much lessened area of trapping ground, as farm owners have staked out their property and will allow no poaching.

MOST OLD FOLKS REQUIRE A HEART AND NERVE TONIC

After middle age little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly as the heart action becomes weak and uncertain and the nerves are not as steady as they were in the younger days.

Now is the time when all aged people who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy unimpaired should use

COVERED SKATING RINK FOR STIRLING

Women's Institute Subscribe for Shares—Debate Holds Interest—Personals.

STIRLING, March 12.—The Epworth League of the Methodist Church attended the meeting of Bethel league, Rawdon circuit, last Thursday night, when a good attendance was present. An interesting and instructive programme was given and a profitable evening was spent.

Subscribe to 20 Shares.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the agricultural rooms last Friday afternoon, with a good attendance. Mr. L. Meiklejohn was present and spoke in the interests of the proposed covered skating rink. After some discussion of the question, Mrs. M. W. Sine moved and Mrs. R. W. Meiklejohn seconded, that the institute subscribe for twenty shares of $10.00 each in the new company to be organized for the purpose of building a rink. This carried.

In planning for their April meeting it was decided that the grandmothers furnish the programme and other members to supply the lunch. The programme will consist of community singing; a reading by Mrs. J. M. McGee, "How to Keep Young"; also a reading by Mrs. G. H. Luery, "How to Cook a Husband."

At St. Andrew's.

The Sunday services in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were conducted by Rev. Mr. Little, who preached here about a month ago.

Guild and League United.

The Guild of St. Andrew's Church was largely attended on Monday night. The Epworth League of the Methodist Church was present in a body. An interesting programme was presented under the direction of Miss Myrtle Spencer, 3rd Vice-President of the Guild.

Rev. Mr. Barrett of the Methodist Church gave the opening prayer. Miss Florence Marshall read the Scripture lesson, and Miss Hazel Burkitt and Miss Nellie Trillock gave an instrumental duet. Dr. M. W. Sine read a paper on the Christian attitude towards wealth and poverty, followed by a debate, "Resolved, that the school exercises a greater influence in moulding the character of the child than does the home." The affirmative was taken by Miss Findlay of the High School staff and Mr. Kay Atkin, District Representative of Agriculture for Hastings County. The negative was upheld by Miss McCallum of Mr. Atkin's office and Dr. Godard. The judges were Mrs. W. Anderson, Rev. Mr. Barrett and Dr. M. W. Sine, who after due deliberation decided the affirmative had been sustained by a slight margin of points.

While the judges were reaching a decision Mrs. Clifford Cain gave an instrumental solo and Mr. Harry Rulin, President of the Methodist league, spoke briefly thanking the Guild for the privilege of being present as they had all enjoyed listening to an intellectual feast.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

Sewing Meeting.

The sewing meeting held at Mrs. Thos. Spry's by the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church last week was largely attended, over 30 members being present. One quilt was quilted and considerable other work accomplished. An excellent lunch was served by the hostess.

Greater interest is being shown in these meetings by the increasing attendance.

Removing Snow Banks.

County road men were busy on Monday cutting down some of the remaining snow banks on the Marmora road.

ODDFELLOWS SAT AT BANQUET BOARD

Grand Master Present at Function Full of Interest and Pleasure.

COBOURG, March 12. — An event of signal importance in the history of Cobourg Lodge No. 136, I.O.O.F., took place here recently, when a banquet was held. The honored guest for the happy occasion was J. E. Anderson, K.C., Lindsay, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, I.O.O.F. Past Deputy Grand Master David Jex presided. Mr. Brown, tenor soloist of College Street Presbyterian Church, Toronto, delighted with his songs, after which the Grand Master, Mr. J. E. Anderson, gave an address of outstanding ability and interest in matters of paramount value to those associated with the I.O.O.F. Mr. Roy Service, Cobourg, sang and kindly responded to encore, and then the company repaired to the dining-room, where a sumptuous banquet was served. An orchestra rendered appreciated music and there was an interesting toast list, "The King," of course, called with the usual loyal response, the singing of the National Anthem. "The Grand Lodge" was fittingly proposed by Dr. Geo. H. Ferris and was ably responded to by the Grand Master, Mr. J. E. Anderson. Dr. Ferris, by the way, was one of three members of Cobourg lodge, the others being Messrs. Nelson Tait and Fred. Bentley, who were honored by being presented with jewels by the Grand Master, they having completed twenty-five years of membership in the Cobourg lodge. Another unique event in connection with the evening was the presence of Mr. Wm. Pratt, who has been for fifty-three years a charter member.

The toast, "The Town of Cobourg," was proposed by Mayor F. J. McArthur in a neat speech, and capably responded to by W. F. Kerr, K.C., County Crown Attorney.

Mr. J. F. McCullough proposed "Other Lodges and Visitors," and Mr. Abel of Allion Lodge, Quebec, a guest of the evening, made happy response, his appropriate remarks being ably added to by Mr. Moore, of Bowmanville, whose name was also linked with this toast. There were songs also by Mr. Gilchrist and Mr. Fred. Friend and others, which helped to round out a very happy evening. Mr. Brown also sang again and was heard with very great pleasure.

PRISON EDUCATION.

Courses Are Popular in Birmingham Jail—Committee at Work.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., March 12. —Lectures on Shakespeare have proved popular with inmates of the Birmingham city prison where education work was taken up recently by the jail visting committee which hopes to enlarge the viewpoint of the men and women and make them better fitted to gain employment upon their release from jail. The lectures are given twice each week.

Shorthand has been taught with great success, it was announced, and four proficiency certificates have been granted to inmates since the system was inaugurated a few weeks ago.

CUTICURA HEALS ITCHY PIMPLES

On Face, Neck and Chest. Were Hard, Large and Red. Lasted Six Months.

"My trouble began with pimples on my face, neck and chest. The pimples were hard, large and red and festered and itched very badly, especially at night. The irritation caused me to scratch and the scratching caused eruptions. The trouble lasted about six months.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they afforded relief, and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Harriet Gusdorf, 617 S. Elm St., Spokane, Wash., June 4, 1923.

Cuticura Soap daily, with Cuticura Ointment occasionally, prevents pimples or other eruptions. They are pleasing to use, as is also Cuticura Talcum, an excellent deodorant.

TEMPERANCE LADIES CAMPBELLFORD MET

Contribute to the Armenian Fund—Personals and News Brevities.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 12.—The March meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Ashton's, Inkerman street, on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Weston, president, in the chair. There were fifteen ladies present.

Communications were read, asking for a special donation to the Armenian fund for orphan boys in the home at Georgetown, Ont., and that the society give special attention to thebudget fund. After discussion, it was decided, on motion of Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Kingston, to send $15 to the budget fund and to increase this amount to $25 later. An order was drawn on the treasurer to pay for thirteen copies of the Canadian White Ribbon Tidings.

Great resentment was expresed by the ladies of the society at the stand Premier Ferguson has taken on the temperance question.

The next meting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. Scarlett, Grand Road. At the close the hostess served lunch and a vote of thanks was tendered her .

TRAPPING SEASON.

Trappers Waiting for the Ice to Break Up.

OMEMEE, March 11.—The trapping season opened on Sunday, March 1st, and although the trappers have their traps set in readiness for the first animal to step on. None have made their appearance, and are not expected until the ice breaks. The trapping grounds for many miles along the river have been leased and there is considerable rivalry among those who have indulged in the business for many years.

A number of Indians from outside points have set up camp in the region of Fee's Landing, one family having been resident there all winter.

Several residents are boasting of having seen robins in Omemee, also a flock of eighteen pretty birds resembling a canary (possibly grosbeaks), but anyway not a common bird to many villagers who were attracted by them. The pussy willows are out and many bouquets have been cut for spring decorations.

TEST PLANES FOR POLE.

Preparing For Amundsen's Flight to North Pole From Norway.

OSLO, Norway, March 12.—Successful tests have been carried out by the first of the two airplanes which Captain Roald Amundsen will use in his flight to the North Pole. The trial was conducted at Pisa by Lieutenant Dietrichsen, who is to pilot one of the machines when the actual flight is made.

A second airplane, now nearing completion, is to be tested shortly and should it pass the best both machines will be packed and shipped to Spitzbergen. Captain Amundsen intends to start on the flight to the Pole about June 1.

A JOLLY EVENING FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Deluge of Handkerchief, and Euchre and Dancing Heads Keene Activities.

KEENE, March 12.— A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Rev. McLauchlan, by the C.G.I.T. Class, on Thursday evening last. After a half hour of devotional exercises a pretty scene was enacted in the nature of a handkerchief shower for Miss Annie Burley prior to her departure for Belleville to train for a nurse. The rest of the evening was spent in games and music, after which a very dainty supper was served.

Miss Annie Burley left on Monday for Belleville where she has taken up the position of nurse-in-training. The Womens' Missionary Society will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Thos. Howson on Thursday afternoon at two-thirty.

School Re-Opens.

The High School re-opened on Monday after being closed during an epidemic of mumps.

Euchre and Dancing.

A large crowd of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs John Coward on Friday evening and all report having a most delightful social time. Progressive euwas the order of the evening until twelve o'clock, when supper was served after which dancing was indulged in until the "we sma hours."

Trappers Prepare.

Trappers in Keene and vicinity are busy getting ready for trapping. The marsh along the river and lake front is dotted with "no trespassing" signs, put up by the different parties renting the property.

A car from somewhere across Rice Lake was seen to be stalled on the river here, and on closer examination it was found to have broken through the ice. The driver secured a team and hauled the machine out.

The Welcome Robins.

Robins have been noticed around the village, so spring must be on its way.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Browning of Peterboro was in the village Monday on business.

Mr. Burton is relieving Mr. Pollard the C.N.R. agent here, who is on the sick list.

Mr. Jos. Taylor spent a few days last week at Toronto and vicinity.

Miss Rennie has been ill during the past few days with heart trouble.

Mr. Gil Howson is improving slowly from his illness, and he will still be cofined to his bed for some time.

BURNBRAE REPORTS SIGNS OF SPRING

First Crow, First Woodchuck and First Millinery Opening in Evidence.

BURNBRAE, March 12.—Rev. Mr. McKenzie delivered on Sunday last as the fourth of his series of sermons on the prophets, a splendid address on the life of Daniel. He took as his text, Daniel 6:3, citing Daniel as one who had an ideal and patterned his whole life to conform with that ideal. He gave a vivid description of the manner in which Daniel's faith carried him over the obstacles he encountered in a foreign land.

The Ladies Aid of St. Andrews met at the home of Mrs. Chas. Hutcheon on Thursday last. About fifty were in attendance and the collection exceeded seven dollars.

A Delightful Party

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little entertained a unmber of their friends at a delightful party on Friday evening last. The evening was pleasantly spent in progressive euchre, at the close of which a dainty lunch was served. All present agree that Mrs. Little is a splendid hostess.

Alfalfa and Wood

Ernest Eagleson has been drawing baled alfalfa to town this last week having had about twenty-five tons pressed.

CHILD SUICIDE HEAVY.

Japanese Children Slay Themselves by the Hundred—427 in 1924.

TOKIO, March 12.—A marked increase in child suicide in Japan is revealed by the psychological bureau of the department of education. In the last ten years 2,316 children have taken their own lives and for the year just ended there were 427.

TAX BOBBED HAIR.

British Tax Expert Recalls Seventeenth Century Import.

LONDON, England, March 12.—(United Press).—"Why not a tax on bobbed and shingled hair?"

This suggestion comes from S. R. Lewin, a British tax expert, at Bath.

He pointed out that much revenue was raised in the seventeenth century by the tax on the powdered hair of the ladies and on the wigs of the men of that period.

At any rate, it would be genuine "poll" tax, he said.

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 489L Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

MILLBROOK PRICES.

Eggs at 30c. and Dairy Butter 35c. a Pound.

MILLBROOK, March 10.—Considerable wood and hay is being drawn through the village lately, the farmers taking advantage of the sleighing which is rapidly disappearing for this season.

Hay is selling at $15.00 a ton; green wood at $10.00 and mixed hardwood at $13.00.

Dairy butter is 35 cents and creamery butter 38 cents a pound; eggs are selling at 30 cents a dozen. Potatoes sell at 75 cents a bag. Spy apples 75 cents a peck, and common cooking apples 50 cents.

Evidently the season's supply of logs is pretty well on hand at Attwooll & Sheppard's mill, as the farmers have been drawing in for some weeks now and the piles, which have been steadily growing in size and numbers, fill pretty much all the available space on the bank and in the shallow water about the edges of the pond.

DEBATE WESLEY AND KNOX WORK

Influence of Great Leaders in England and Scotland Argued in Millbrook.

FOR WHATTAM CUP.

MILLBROOK, Mar. 11.—The series of debates in connection with the Young People's League was continued on Monday evening, the increased attendance, including many of the parents and older folk, showing the interest being taken.

The subject this week was, "Resolved that John Wesley exerted more influence in England than John Knox in Scotland," the affirmative being upheld by F. N. Alcorn and Margaret Howard while the negative was presented with equal force by J. Larmer and Jean Burnham.

The judges were Miss Estelle Hetherington, Messrs. B. J. Dawson and W. G. Hetherington, and the plan of totalling their independent findings was followed, with the result that the negative won by a small margin.

Rev. F. H. Howard was chairman, and in complimenting the young people on the excellent manner in which the debate was conducted, referred also to the educational value of such events the amount of reading necessary to speak intelligently on the subject proving of lasting benefit. "In the two great leaders, Knox and Wesley, we have a common heritage for the United Church, and no other communions on earth have had greater founders than these two leading religious bodies, the strongest in the Protestant world."

The League meeting is withdrawn next week on account of the basket social on Tuesday evening, under the combined auspices of the C. G. I. T. and C. S. E. T. groups, these two organizations being affiliated with the young people's work.

The winning debaters from the local League will compete with the winners of the Cobourg district when the inter-league series there is completed, the Whattam Cup being the trophy each is desirous of having the honor of holding for the ensuing year.

First United Church

In these days when the question of church union engages much public attention, it is interesting to note that Blind River, Ontario, claims the honor of having the first United Church in the Province, and possibly in the Dominion.

It was in December of 1916 that the Presbyterian and Methodist churches at this point in Northern Ontarion began negotiations which in April of that year resulted in a basis of union being arrived, four stewards of the Methodist church, and four elders of the Presbyterian forming the Session Board for the new United Church.

This church has since carried on successfully, and when a meeting was held in December of last year to discuss entering the larger union to be consummated next June, a spirit of entire unanimity prevailed so that it was not considered necessary to ballot upon the question.

That not one voice was raised against a continuance of the arrangement which has been in operation for nine years speaks well for the success of Church Union where it has had a practical, and successful tryout for this length of time.

The many friends of Miss Dixon, who is spending the winter with Mrs C. M. Stewart, will be glad to learn that she is recovering from the attack of influenza from which she has been suffering for the past two weeks.

Rev. S. Gervan was in Peterboro, on Tuesday, attending the meeting of the Presbytery.

Messrs. J. Steele, J. R. Eakins, W. Belch, and W. T.. A.. Deyell were among the members of the local session who also attended the Presbytery, Mr Gervan's resignation coming up for consideration at this meeting.

DAZZLE-PLANE.

England's Latest Addition to Fighting Forces is Camouflaged.

LONDON, England, March 12 (United Press).—Airplanes "like flying zebras" have joined the British air navy.

Officially, they are known as "dazzle planes." They are splashed with color in an extension of camouflage so that even a short distance away, while in flight, it is impossible to tell what kind of machine it is.

Tests with several of these airplanes were made at one of the Royal Air Force stations.

Witnesses said that the dazzle-plane seemed "all out of proportion," with the fuselage in some places apparently badly bent. It looked, said one, as if the wings were about to fall off.

The colors chosen were mostly black and also jazzy yellow.

Human Body Changing As Use Muscles Lost

COBOURG, March 12. —According to the medical experts from Toronto, who were heard at the Cobourg trial the human body is gradually changing from what it was in pre-historic times, and is now equipped with muscles that are practically useless. The tendon in the right arm of Clifford Aylea, and which was injured, is of no value. Some people have it, while others lack it but its absence is no handicap. In time it will disappear altogether. Dr Mitchell said this muscle was useful in former ages as one aid to men in the human neck but the doctor There is another superfluous muscle in the human nec kbut the doctor believed that this, too, will have entirely disapeared in two hundred years or so.

GAS CAUSES DEATHS.

Poisonous Volcanic Vapor Has Had Effect on People of Java.

THE HAGUE, March 12.—(Associated Press.)—Seismic and volcanic action has been intermittent in Java, since the earthquake at Wonosobo last November, according to colonial dispatches received here.

Papandayang, a volcano about 8,000 feet high, 87 miles southeast of Batavia, the capital of the Dutch East Indies, is showing increased activity, several craters having formed into a huge one which is belching poisonous gases by which some native overseers have been killed and surrounding vegetation destroyed. The volcano is also emitting streams of hot mud, ashes and stones, and local earth shocks and tremors are felt continuously. Government geologists have gone to the scene to investigate.

A violent and destructive eruption of Papandayang occurred in 1772.

CONDEMNS STATUE.

Drapery on Peel's Statue Makes It Worst in Westminster.

LONDON, March 12.—(Associated Press.)—The statue of Sir Robert Peel, who organized the London metropolitan police force, has been characterized as the worst in Westminster Abbey by the Rev. Jocelyn Perkins, who has suggested that it be taken down. The statue reminded Rev. Mr. Perkins of a man going to a Turkish bath, because of the effect of its drapery, and since it was given publicity in this respect has become known as "Bath towel statue."

Sir Robert in his younger days was popularly known as Bobby, and it was from this name that the London policemen derived their nickname.

HE GOT ENOUGH

LONDON, March 12—In five minutes here a man was sentenced to one month for attacking the police, another month for neglecting his family, 28 days for default in paying alimony and fined one pound on each of five summonses for motoring offenses.

WINNERS IN DIARY CONTEST

Keen competition between diary experts—Dr. Chase's Almanac more popular than ever.

So many thousands of people are accustomed to keep diaries in Dr. Chase's Almanac that this annual announcement of the winners in the Diary Contest is looked forward to with keen interest.

Several of the winners have met with success before and each year there has been a struggle for first place. Very great difficulty was encountered by the judges this year in placing the first four awards and several that followed were of almost equal merit.

We only wish that all the winners could look over all the winning diaries and just see for themselves the literary and artistic, as well as the utilitarian, merits of the competing diaries.

The winners for 1924 are as follows:

WOMEN IN PULPITS.

British Pastor Would Have Churches Filled—Pulpits Empty Now.

BLYTH, Eng., March 12 (Associated Press).—Why not call in some of the educated women to become preachers of the Gospel? asked the Rev. J. Lineham, president of the United Methodists' Conference, speaking at a meeting of church workers in Blyth on the great decrease in the number of local ministers in the Methodist churches of the country.

"We might call in the women, because in these days women were undertaking tasks as they had never done before," said Rev. Mr. Lineham. "Women would do wonderful work as ministers, as they had love and sympathy and a delicate intuition which men had not. Take away women, and church life would be terribly weakened.

MAN AND HIS DOG ARRIVE TOGETHER

Professor Says Time for Evolution May Be Shortened.

BMy John Gunther.

LONDON, England, March 12.—(United Press.)—Man may be a little speedier than the older scientists believed.

Sir Arthur Keith, whose series of lectures here to the Royal College of Surgeons on the history of early man created a scientific and popular sensation, says that we may have to shorten the accepted figure for man's evolution—500,000 years.

Prof. Keith, who with Prof. Elliot Smith, is the leader of British anthropological science, amplified his lectures with an exclusive interview to the United Press.

Evolution, he declared, may not be quite as slow a process as is customarily believed.

As an instance he pointed out the discovery of the "Rhodesian" skull.

He also pointed out that in Central Africa a race of bushmen, who might be described as "living fossils," live to-day much as our forebears lived in the ice age.

"I have come to the conclusion," he said, "that the pure Negro of Central Africa is not an old type at all, but that most of his characteristics are of recent origin.

"When we are able to follow the Negro back to his primitive types, he will become less negroid and tend towards the bushman type, and by and by shall come to the type—not so long ago—which served as common ancestor for both European and Negro."

As a third instance, Sir Arthur pointed out some recent astonishing discoveries in Australia and Java.

A few years ago, in a fossil shelf of limestone near Brisbane, anthropologists came across a skull in perfect preservation called the Talgai skull. This skull, like the Rhodesian one, causes a revision of many of our notions about ancient man.

Sir Arthur pointed out that this discovery makes it clear that mankind reached the isolated continent of Australia at a much earlier date than is customarily supposed.

"The art of navigation is usually supposed to be no more than 5,000 years old, but the discoveries in Australia and Tasmania," he said, "compel us to believe that the first settlers of that continent had mastered this art, either by accident or forethought, at least 25,000 years earlier."

When this aboriginal man came one other creature came with him, also found in fossilized remains. It was the dingho, the Australian wild dog.

Thus man and his dog appear together at the very dawn of human history.

"When the anthropologist looks around the world to-day for a type which might serve as a common ancestor for black as well as white races of living man," Sir Arthur said, "this Talgai man of Australia who lived about 40,000 years ago, comes nearest to the ideal."

The skull of the Talgai thus dates back to comparatively "recent" times, geologically speaking, and shortens our ideas of evolutionary periods.

In New Guinea a similar skull has been found, that of the "Wadjak Man." He is closely related to his Australian cousin, said Sir Arthur, because at that time in the world's history New Guinea and Australia were part of the same land.

MOTHER CAN CATCH UP WITH JAZZ AND ROB IT OF DANGER

(By Cynthia Grey.)

Is your home an internment camp?
Or a base of supplies?
Or is it really home
These are not polite questions.

And yet many a mother must be asking them of herself night after night when half the youngsters in this country are spending their time in movies or dance palaces or in parked automobiles.

In a dozen forms, Jazz, the modern Pied Piper, has lured them all from home!

The boys and girls are escaping from it as if it were Libby Prison instead of the place that "Home, Sweet Home" was written about.

As a place to sleep and eat in, home still exists, of course. And it is convenient as a base of supplies for such things as clean clothes, lipsticks, golf sticks, and pocket money from dad, even now.

But as a social centre, it's the young crowd's idea of zero in entertainment, these too peppy days.

I know the head of a family who bought hte finest radio he could afford in an effort to keep Margery, his self-willed young daughter, at home nights with her beaus.

"But, dad," Margery cheerfully pointed out a week later, "all the best music comes in after midnight, anyway. So if I get home then I can still hear it and not miss my evening's fun."

Margery is 16 and a school girl. Ten or fifteen years ago a child of her age would have spent the evenings studying or playing checkers, or making fudge with her "boy friend" in the kitchen. At ten o'clock the "boy friend" would have gone home, and Margery would have been sent to bed for her nine hours' sleep.

To-day she snaps her fingers at all this, and smartly remarks that "Three O'clock in the Morning" is her own national hymn!

The flapper and her boy friend are the problem of the hour. All the latest books, from "Flaming Youth" to "West of the Water Tower," have been written about them and their playing with fire.

The terrible things — the degrading things — that happen in them couldn't happen to young people who were taken care of at home instead of being left to themselves. But these things truly are happening every day. The novel has always been a mirror held to life.

It seems to me that the home must be modernised as the church has been modernised. It is no longer the solemn, formal thing it was twenty years ago. The church to-day is more alive and progressive than it has been since the time of the Great Schism.

The mother who turns her house over to her son and daughter for a dance two or three times a month is doing a fine thing for them. For all young things love gaiety, and if they find it at home they won't go outside for it.

It is not expensive to bake a couple of hundred cookies, and provide a few gallons of cider, and a dozen up-to-the-minute dance records for a party.

Having done that, the wise mother will disappear from the scene to some vantage point where she can chaperone the guests without having them know it.

For young folks are like little children: They can have a better time when they think no one is watching them than they can when an older person is in charge.

And suppose the polished floors do get scratched, and the mantel-clock broken! It's better to turn your home into a clubhouse, a meeting-place for the whole neighbourhood, than it is to sit in an orderly room waiting up until Son John comes home or worrying because Daughter Mary is out so late in search of that it is the duty of the home to provide.

For youth will be served. And it is "up" to the home and the maker of the home to serve it.

The mother who does will have caught up with the Jazz Age, and robbed it of all its danger.

HISTORY OF CANADA.

Valuable Reference Work Added to Public Library Shelves.

A valuable reference work has been added to the reference department of the Public Library, e.g., "Canada and its provinces; a history of the Canadian people and their institutions by one hundred associates"; Adam Shortt and Arthur G. Doughty, general editors, 1914-1917.

"The work has been planned and undertaken on a comprehensive scale both in the sense that it covers the entire history of Canada and its provinces, and in the sense that those who write represent all parts of the Dominion and their more or less diverse points of view. The range of facts is so wide and the topics so various and complex that no one author could possibly compass them. Thus it will be seen that the work may serve the reader in a variety of ways: (1) as a general history of Canada; (2) As a special history of any one of the provinces; (3), As a comparative history of similar institutions in the different provinces or (4), As an independent study of any leading historical topic relating to Canada. For specific events of facts the general index in the cast volume will supply a full and ready guide." (From the introduction).

To examine work see Number 971 sh. in the Reference Dept.

BRITISH SEEK TO EXCLUDE TENNIS

Will Ask Elimination From Olympic Games.

LONDON, March 12.—The Lawn Tennis Association wants the game eliminated from future Olympics. The British delegates will submit a resolution, with this as an aim, at the annual general meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, to be held in Paris on 20th March.

None of the Olympic tennis competitors in the 1924 games in Paris seemed to enjoy themselves; every one complained about something. This new British decision is, perhaps, the upshot of that discontent, which at one time led the American delegation into a threat to quit the competition altogether.

The British at the forthcoming Paris gathering will record their vote in favour of the admission of Austria and Hungary to the International Association, but will take no action in Germany's case.

The British have also decided to support membership applications from Ireland, India, Egypt, Greece, and Ecuador.

After consulting with the United States Lawn Tennis Association and leading British players, the controlling body on this side has decided to submit the following wording of an amendment foot-fault rule to the Federation:

"Rule 6—Immediately before commencing to serve, the server shall stand with both feet at rest behind (i.e., farther from the net than the base line) and within the imaginary continuation of the centre mark and side line, and thereafter until the service has been delivered the server shall (a) not change his position by walking or running; (b) maintain contact with the ground; (c) keep both his feet behind the baseline."

MAY BE NO MAYOR.

Dublin Doesn't Know Whether It Has a Chief Magistrate.

DUBLIN, March 12. —(AP). — Dublin is discussing whether or not it has a lord mayor, and opposite opinions are held. The practice in the past has been that the lord mayor holds office until his sucessor is appointed, he is still the lord mayor. But the lord mayor is an official of the corporation, and there is now no corporation.

The entire municipal council was suspended by the Free State government, which put in its place commissioners who are now actually administering the city. The lord mayor must be an alderman or councillor and there ar now no aldermen or councillors. The solution of the difference will, it is said, be submitted to the Supreme Court.

CANADIAN WOOL CROP.

Value Increases More Than $600,000 in Year.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 12 (AP) —Sheepmen of Canada clipped a wool crop of 5,117,719 pounds in 1924, according to a report by the Dominion department of agriculture. Value of wool was $3,777,930, compared with $3,160,000 th year before, an increase of more than $600,000.

Greater demand for Canadian wool in world markets, the report declared, raised the price realized by the producer from 20 cents a pound in 1923 to 25 cents in 1924. Great Britain and the United States were the principal purchasers.

"Systematic grading of wool and classification according to quality under government regulations have done much to build up the wool industry," said the report. "Cooperative marketing has helped to make sheep raising popular by increasing profits to individual growers."

RESTIVE IN SPRING.

Baron Wrangel's Men Show Increased Activity as Winter Wanes.

PIROT, Serbia, March 12 (Associated Press).—Increasing evidences of activities are apparent among the troops of General Baron Wrangel, which found inter-Allied protection in the Balkans as a place of refuge after the collapse of the Wrangel anti-Bolshevik campaign in the Crimea.

These troops have been kept under supervision, in a disarmed and demobilized condition, during the intervening time. But a skeleton organization has been maintained and the commanders have been keeping in touch with their men.

It is now announced that these Russian forces, in both Jugoslavia and Bulgaria, will be reorganized this spring. General Wrangel himself will take command of this work in Pirot, covering the Serbian sector, and he will be assisted by General Scorp, in charge of the men living in Bulgaria.

Orders to report at Pirot have been sent out to many men scattered through Serbia and Bulgaria.

FEEDING POTATOES TO THEIR CATTLE

Farmers in Orland District Disappointed at Low Prices for Tubers.

ORLAND, March 11.—At a meeting of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board in the villiage of Brighton to consider the advisability of Cramahe Municipal Telephone system charging adjoining systems of 5 cents on conversations, it was decided to leave matters as they were, the Board deemed that Cramhe did not put up strong enough arguments to warrant a disruption of the present condition of affairs among the several systems involved.

Robt. Anderson who has occupied the William Ames farm, has moved to Cramahe Township on the old homestead farm of the late Edward Cochrane M. P. for East Northumberland.

Address by Major Belford

Major J. F. Belford addressed a large gathering under the auspices of the Methodist Church in the hall at Hilton, detailing an account of stewartship as M. L. A. He dealt particularly with the temperance question forcasting a tax on beer and all other proprietory soft drinks. He also took up for a few minutes the gasoline tax explaining the reasons of the Government for levying the same. A vote of thanks was moved and tendered the speaker One lady remarked that the temperance question had never been explained so clearly before and many were laboring under delusions as to the Government's actions.

Wood Hauling Difficult

The recnt mild weather has hindered farmers in this locality considerably in getting up their years supply of fuel.

Frank Plue, who took a contract to deliver 150 single cords of poplar bolts to Mr. Bowen's mill at Warkworth has been much handicaped by the weather man, first sending too much snow, blocking the road in many places with high drifts, and now the mild weather has removed all the sleighing, and Mr. Plue fears he will have to deliver the balance he has cut on wheels.

John Phillips is now very busy Mr. Willet Simpson reports that farmers are feeding large quantities of choice timbers to their stock.

A number of farmers are much disappointed over the low price paid for potatoes. It would not be difficult for a buyer to secure several thousand bags in the immediate vicinity at a very reasonable price. Many ply before the snow disappeared.

were fortunate in getting their supcutting wood for the farmers who he will soon start custom lumber sawing of the present mild weather continues. He has a big cut this spring and will need till his time to get through before threshing begins as he uses the same engine for both purposes.

RADIO HINTS FOR AMATEUR BUILDER

Things to Know and Short Cuts in Building a Receiver.

A fuse plug and an electric light socket provides a means of rotating a loop antenna. The plug is put on the end of the loop upright and the ends of the loop wire connected respectively to the threaded sleeve and the brass button in the centre of the plug. Leads from the loop to the set are connected to the socket screws.

Sometimes tuning can be sharpened by the use of a counterpoise instead of a ground. The counterpoise is erected like an antenna "head high" beneath the aerial. If an outside counterpoise is not possible, try putting it in the cellar.

File a notch in one end of a celluloid knitting needle for use in bending socket prongs. Use of metal for the same purpose might cause you to "blow" a tube.

Two nails driven close together in the workbench will provide a method of bending bus wire if you have no round-nose pliers.

Throw waste bus wire in a wide, shallow box for use as short leads in the next set you build.

Cut down the length of the antenna to about 60 feet if you are having trouble tuning out local stations.

WOMEN EXHIBIT AT LONDON DOG SHOW

8,000 Dogs Exhibited With Alsations Heading the List of Entries.

LONDON, March 12, (Canadian Press). — Eight thousand dogs, from comical little pups weighing but a few ounces to massive, moping St. Bernards, were entered this month in Cruft's Show, the greatest crowd of canines ever exhibited in England. Almost one-tenth of the entries were Alsatians. The interest in them beginning after the war has increased with unexampled rapidity, until the Alsatian has become the most popular of all show dogs in Great Britian.

Each year the proportion of women exhibitors increases. Most of the kennels scattered over the country are nowadays in feminine care.

The men, however, still are in the majority among the owners of sporting dogs. This year with King George among the exhibitors, the Labradors seem the most popular of all retrievers. Their smooth coats far outnumber the wavy-haired type of hunting dog. Sportsmen regard them highly, not only because of their surpassing hunting qualities, but with due regard for their good looks, docile disposition, intelligence and affectionate ways. They are both faithful companions and trustworthy guards.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

HEART WEAKNESS.

Symptoms Are Much Same For Many Other Diseases.

There is not a single sensation associated with real heart disease which may not be caused by other disorders, Mr. Mann of Anytown learned.

It is because of this that many persons give too much useless worry to symptoms which the heart has absolutely nothing to do with.

Regardless of this however, any painful sensation that seems to have its origin in the heart, should not be ignored.

Often if the heart is slightly affected, the disorder may be removed, or if not removed, the patient may shape his mode of living to enable him to live to a fairly ripe old age, despite the disorder.

Symptoms of heart disease have two distinct sources, those which develop in the heart because of its intrinsic damage, and those which develop in other parts of the body because the diseased heart is unable to maintain an adequate circulation.

If the heart does not give enough blood to the brain there is dizziness. When the lungs are affected, there is hsortness of breath and coughing. When it is the stomach or intestines, there are symptoms of indigestion. When it is the legs, the ankles swell.

This list could be lengthened to include all organs of the body, but enough has been said to indicate why a great variety of symptoms may develop as a result of heart weakness.

MASONIC LECTURE TO MARMORA CRAFT

Sunday School Presentation to Vetta Van Dusen.

MARMORA, Mar. 11.—The regular monthly meeting of the Masons, was held on Monday. After transaction of business, an oyster supper was given by the new officers to the members.

Wor. Bro. Linney of Muskoka Lodge, Bracebridge, gave an illustrated lectu on "The History of Masonry in Canada."

Farewell to Member.

The Cheerful Workers' Class of the Methodist Sunday School held a social evening at the Parsonage on Monday evening, as a farewell to one of their members, Miss Vetta Van Dusen, whose family moved to Trenton last week.

The evening was spent in music and contests. During the evening a newspaper was written — different groups being responsible for the different divisions of the paper. This afforded a great deal of amusement.

Miss Van Dusen was called upon and the following address was read:

Dear Vetta:

On this, the eve of your departure from our village, we, the members of the Cheerful Workers' Class take this opportunity of spending another evening with you.

Since joining our class you have been faithful in attendance, and you have been a willing helper in everything we have undertaken and a kind sympathetic listener.

We shall miss you, but we hope that in your new home, you will become associated with another Sunday School class as soon as possible, and that there you will also be a help, and remember our class motto. "Others."

We ask you to accept this Bible as a little token of remembrance and hope you have a happy future in your new home.

Signed in behalf of the Class; Annie Linn; Hazel William.

After a dainty lunch, the evening closed with music.

Personal Items.

Gordon Bedore and Fred Green of the U. S. Army are spending a month with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bedore.

Mrs. William Gray left for Toronto on Thursday to visit her stepdaughter, Mrs. Urban Shaw, who is very ill.

Mr. Wilfred Foley of Madoc was a Sunday visitor at Mr. George Bedore's.

Mrs. Louis Loft of Shannonville spent a few days last week with Mrs. E. Horton.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams of Jackson, Mich., are visiting Mrs. Williams' sister, Mrs. Wm. Linn.

Mrs. Fred Wells entertained a number of her friends at a Bridge party on Monday night.

Miss Violet Deacon has returned from Toronto and is preparing for her millinery openings. Miss Annie Linn is her assistant.

The children of the Junior Room in the Public School are having a holiday, as Miss Topper is supplying in the Third Room for Miss Williams, who is still on the sick list.

There was an aluminium demonstration at the home of Mrs. Phil. Sopha on Monday night.

Messrs Pat Doyle and James Terrion has their season's cut of wood completed and ready for the saw mill.

Miss Mary Murphy entertained the Young Girls' Club of Deloro at the home of Mrs. William Pearce on Friday night. A very pleasing time was spent by all.

ST. JOHN'S W. A.

Monthly Meeting—Extracts Read From Address on Foreign Missions.

The monthly business and devotional meeting of St. John's W. A. was held on Tuesday, with the president, Mrs. A. Turner, in the chair.

There was a large gathering and the meeting was opened in the usual manner with prayer and Bible reading.

After the business was attended to, extracts were read from Mrs. McKinnon's address at the Union service held at George Street Methodist Church recently. The address dealt largely with the large foreign Missions Convention, held at Washington in February.

At the close of the meeting, the members attended the mid-week Lenten Service, held in the church.

May Support Government On Steamer Subsidy Plan

OTTAWA, March 12 — (Canadian Press).—Robert Forke, Progressive leader, will, in the House to-day, state the attitude of the Progressive party towards the proposed subsidy to the Petersen Steamship Line. The view he will take, it is understood, is in support of the Government resolution, but with the idea of having a thorough investigation of the scheme by a special committee of the House.

SAME MUSIC, UNLINKED.

Stations KFI at Los Angeles and WOC at Davenport recently were heard broadcasting the same piece of music simultaneously even to the rhythm. But the stations weren't linked.

RADIO

HEARD LAST NIGHT OVER

A NORTHERN ELECTRIC

RECEIVING SET

From WAHD, Richmond Hill, Long Island, good programme by the Royal Male Quartette—also from WBZ, New England, transmitting from Hotel Brunswick, Boston, programme by orchestra, lady reader, and a character talk by Uncle Bill of Sweet Meadows, Vermont, that was brimful of quaint humour. The evening's pleasure was a fine tribute to the effectiveness of the Northern Electric Radio Set.

We are exclusive district representatives.

BARROW DENIES RUTH'S THROUGH

Secretary of Yankees Says Slugger Has Five Years Yet.

FORTUNE SPENT?

NEW YORK, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth is "far from broke" and has "at least five more years" of major league campaigning ahead of him. This was the statement last night of E. G. Barrow, secretary of the New York Yankees, made with reference to a story published yesterday by a New York newspaper asserting that the Yankee home run star, "growing old and fat," has "nothing to show" for his spectacular diamond career, and that "his best days are behind him."

The New York club has no facts concerning the suit brought against Ruth, growing out of alleged racing debts, declared Mr. Barrow, "but as for the assertions that Ruth is 'broke' and a physical wreck, I cannot deny them too vigorously. I know that the Babe has worked more faithfully this year than ever before to put himself in condition for what he hopes will be one of his best years. Witness the battle he staged with his waistline at Hot Springs. He is now suffering from a slight injury to his finger, but his general condition, according to all advices I have from Manager Huggins, is excellent."

"As for Ruth financial condition, I can say with authority that he is far from being 'broke.' His yearly salary from the Yankees is $52,000 under a contract which has two more seasons to run. Taking into consideration his earnings outside the game, I would place Ruth's annual income at between $70,000 to $75,000."

The story in the Evening World follows:

Babe Ruth has little to show today for his arduous years of toiling in the big leagues.

This was gleaned from a talk with Ruth on the steps of the Yankee clubhouse at Crescent Lake Park.

A country home in the shadow of the famous inn at Sudbury, Mass., where he might farm in his later years, is all that Ruth really possesses to-day, with the exception of his wife's holdings.

Ruth has passed the shadow line of his youth. He is growing fat and old. Youth is collecting its toll. His best days are behind him.

During the last three seasons Ruth was known as the highest salaried baseball player in the history of the game. He received $52,000 a season.

A Racing Debt.

The revelation of Ruth's financial status came as a result of his being sued in New York for a racing debt incurred last summer at the tracks in and around New York.

The suit was brought by Harry Lichtenstein, to whom the claim was assigned by Edward J. Callahan.

"Yes, I owe the money," Ruth said. "I made the bets last May. I lost $7,700. I went to Callahan, who was making a book, and told him I could not meet the obligation just then, but to give me until the end of the season, when I had some more money and I would pay him.

"He said 'All right.' A few months later, forgetting or disregarding his agreement, he demanded that I pay him.

"I said I did not have the money. He told me, 'All right, I'm going to expose you. I'll have it published in the papers.'

"I said, 'All right, if that's the kind of a fellow you are, go ahead.'

Bilked By Sharks.

"I feel that inasmuch as Callahan had a gentleman's agreement with me and violated it, and by squawking that I welched and revealed that he is a gambler, I believe that he should be barred from operating on New York tracks.

"I would have paid the debt had he kept his word."

Ruth's money has been taken away from him by "sharks." He has given freely to charity. Just a few days ago he was having his finger X-rayed in a doctor's office when a cripple came in. He handed him a dollar and remarked: "Gee, here I am complaining of a busted finger."

In his career as one of the greatest southpaw pitchers in the game, and unquestionably the greatest of hitters, Ruth has earned a small fortune. But to-day, with old age creeping on, he has very little to show for being the most colorful baseball player in the history of the

VANCE SIGNS CONTRACT.

$47,500 For Three Years With Brooklyn.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 12.—Dazzy Vance, the Robins' speedball pitcher, finally has attached his name to the three-year contract calling for a total salary of $47,500. The signing took place here Tuesday while the other members of the team were working out.

On coming to terms Vance received an advance of $5,000 on his salary. Ebbets, however, said that the contract which Vance signed contains the ten-day clause and other sections to which the pitcher previously had objected. Under the terms of his three-year contract, Vance will draw an annual salary of $15,833.33.

SUDBURY WON 3-2.

Aura Lee and the Fans Surprised When Cubs Won.

TORONTO, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—Sudbury Cubs surprised Aura Lee and the fans last night when they held the Junior O.H.A. champions to a 3-3 tie in the first game of the Memorial Cup elimination series, and the husky youngsters from the nickel belt deserved the even break. The game was a great exhibition of junior hockey, both teams giving a thrilling display of skating and stick-handling, and the combination, in spite of the close checking, was spectacular at times. The second game will be played on Saturday afternoon.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

In the 1905 world series between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics every one of the five games played resulted in a shutout victory.

The Giants won four games and the Athletics one. Mathewson was credited with three triumphs, with McGinnity getting the other for the McGraw team, and Chief Bender turning in the single win for the American Leaguers.

Only a grand total of 18 runs was scored during the series, a low record for the annual classic.

SCOTTISH DRAW

GLASGOW, March 12.—(Canadian Press)—The draw for the semi-finals of the Scottish Football Association Cup announced here Wednesday afternoon was as follows:

Rangers vs. St. Mirren or Celtic, at Hampden Park, Glasgow.

Hamilton vs. Dundee at Tynecastle Park, Edinburgh.

The semi-finals will be played off on March 21

GIANTS' SECOND FROM SENATORS

New York Won Twelve-Inning Pitching Duel at Palm Beach.

BROWNS WIN.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11.—The New York Giants advanced another step toward the Spring world series championship with the Washington Senators, coming from behind in a hard fought, closely contested 12 inning pitchers' battle today, winning 2 to 1.

The Giants, led by Hugh Jennings, won the opening game yesterday, 8 to 7. Score:

JESSE DOYLE IS SURE OF PLACE

Toronto Recruit Considered Certainty For Detroit Team in Camp.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 12.—Jesse Doyle is a recruit in camp only seven days, but nevertheless assured of a place on major league pitching staff. Doyle has been picked as the best of four young pitchers signed by Detroit and he has been chosen in a group of eight that excluded three pitchers with the club three years. Doyle already is accepted as more of a regular than Sylvester Johnson, Herman Pillette or Bert Cole.

But Doyle has a fault he must correct. It is a fault that is said to have caused him annoyance while he was with Toronto in the International League last year. Opposing teams complained about it and International League umpires listened to their complaints.

Doyle's fault is in his foot action as he pitches to batters. Doyle lifts his right foot as he starts his delivery. Baseball rules prohibit this, for when the lifting is pronounced it serves the purpose of an extra stride in the direction of the plate and adds to the power behind the pitcher's delivery. The right foot should be on the rubber during the windup and remain there until the ball leaves the pitcher's hand. Doyle was pitching to batters in practice yesterday, when his foot movement was noted. Cobb watched him. Doyle did not always lift his foot and he never did when a bunt was called, a play made assuming a runner is on first. Without his windup Doyle's action was perfect.

Movement Illegal.

Later Cobb called the attention of Billy Evans, who is visiting Augusta, to Doyle's movement. Evans watched Doyle throw over three balls to a batter. Doyle lifted his right foot as he started his windup for the third pitch. Evans declared the movement illegal. Doyle wound up and threw another ball. This time the lifting of the foot was less evident.

"No umpire would pay attention to an action as slight as that," Evans said, and was of the opinion that the entire fault could be eradicated if Doyle were impressed with the necessity for eliminating it. Doyle says he lifts his foot unconsciously.

Dan Howley, who is training his Toronto club here, says Doyle's habit will not bother him in the American League. "Doyle did it last year when there was no one on base," Howley said, "and he often had a strike or two on the batter when a kick was made. The kick never bothered Jesse and when his mind was on it he could throw without violating any rules."

Doyle Curving Them.

Doyle won 19 games for Howley last season.

Doyle was one of three pitchers who curved balls yesterday for the first time. He broke his curves close in and over the outside corner of the plate and always low. Doyle also used a change of pace. This latter offering of Doyle's is not as pronounced as the one used by Edwin Wells, but is a disturbing contrast when varied with fast balls and curves.

Outfielder.

Born—Cable, Ill., Aug. 16, 1890.

Major League Career—Sold in 1915 to Detroit Tygers by Chattanooga of Southern Association. Traded few days later to Browns for Pitchers Loudermilk and James. (Known around circuit as "Baby Doll," though over six feet in height and weighing around 210 pounds).

Outstanding Feats—Accepted 495 chances in 1924 for new major league record. Made three triples in game played on Sept. 9, 1922, tying American League high mark. Batted .355 in 1920.

DEMPSEY NOT A RING IMMORTAL

Corbett Believes Gibbons the Cleverest Among Present Day Heavies.

DETROIT, Mich., March 12.—Tommy Gibbons has a better chance than Harry Wills to wrest the world heavyweight title from Jack Dempsey, in the opinion of James J. Corbett, former champion of champions.

"The Wills of seven or eight years ago might have been able to beat the Dempsey of today," said Corbett, "but Wills is now too old. He is an in and out fighter. That is a sure sign that he is slipping. Besides, Wills' hands are bad.

Wills made a poor fight against Firpo and a poor fight against Bartley Madden, according to Corbett. If he should fight Dempsey as he fought Firpo, Dempsey should win in a couple of rounds.

"Of course, Wills would have an outside chance if the referee permitted him to hold and hit. That is one of his habits. He is stronger—much stronger—than Dempsey in the clinches and he might wear him down. But if the fight is conducted according to the rules, I dont think Wills will bother the champion.

Gibbons Can Bother Jack.

Gibbons is the type of fighter that will bother Dempsey, in Corbett's opinion. Corbett called him the most intelligent and most clever of present-day heavyweights and said he undoubtedly learned some things about Dempsey in the Shelby fight that would be useful in a second meeting.

"You know Gibbons doesn't have to fight all the same way all the time. He knows a lot about boxing. Dempsey, on the other hand, fights all of his bouts the same way. He simply rushes in and slugs."

A Similar Case.

Corbett illustrated his point with a reference to the two lightweight bouts between Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler. "Tendler really beat Leonard in their first bout," said Corbett. "I saw the fight. It was a no-decision affair, and of course no title changed hands. But if I had been the referee and empowered to give a decision, I would have given it to Leonard.

Leonard unlike Tendler, learned a lot of things in that fight in Jersey City, continued Corbett. When they met the second time, Tendler fought the same way, Leonard didn't. He changed his style to suit the occasion.

"That is what Gibbons will do when he meets Dempsey again."

No Great Fighters.

In spite of his praise of Gibbons and his admiration for Dempsey's slugging ability, Corbett does not think that any of the present-day heavyweights will rank with the immortals of pugilism.

"The last of the great heavyweights was Jack Johnson," said Corbett. "Johnson had his faults in and out of the ring, but he was a better fighter than any of those in the game now."

HOCKEY SCORES

Results of hockey games played yesterday were as follows:

COBOURG HOCKEY TEAM IS HONORED

Collegiate Squad Received Ovation as Central Ontario Winners.

COBOURG, March 12.—Upon their return from Port Perry yesterday morning, where they won the cup offered for the championship of the Central Ontario Interscholastic Hockey League, Cobourg Collegiate hockey team received a great ovation from the staff and pupils of the school. They were met at the depot by the boys from the C.C.I. and the first step in the celebration was to pass up and down the main street in a large truck, which had been sent to the depot and placed at their disposal. Arriving finally at the C.C.I., a parade was soon formed, and boys and girls marched to the four corners and back. Then there were short address by some of the C.C.I. staff. Headed by several members of the Cobourg Citizens' Band, playing suitable selections, and with flags flying and streamers announcing their victory, they then paraded the streets for a couple of hours. A group photo of the parade was taken by a local photographer.

It was a close game at Port Perry, and Cobourg scored the one goal of the evening, the score at the end of the game standing 1-0 in their favor. In a game played here a few nights before the score was tied, 3-3.

The C.C.I. team is a fast bunch, and may yet show up well in Junior O.H.A. hockey in coming seasons.

BABE ADAMS IN FEW GAMES LAST SEASON

Babe Adams, veteran Pittsburg pitcher, took part in nine games during the 1924 season. He was credited with three victories and charged with one defeat. He pitched 40 innings all told.

CANADIENS HAVE ONE GOAL LEAD

Defeated St. Pats 3-2 at Montreal—All Hockey in Second Period.

N. H. LEAGUE.

MONTREAL, March 12 (Candian Press).—Canadiens have one goal margin to take into the second game of the National Hockey League semi-finals against St. Pats at Toronto on Friday night. The one goal margin came as the result of a 3 to 2 win for Canadiens over St. Pats in the first of the series, played before 6,000 spectators here last night. All the hockey was crammed into the fast second period. St. Pats looked like certain winners, as they were all over Canadiens in the listless initial session, counting one goal on a shot by McCaffrey. Canadiens could not seem to get going, but in the second period the champions showed a sudden spurt. They hemmed St. Pats back around their own net, and when the middle session was over, Canadiens were leading 2 to 1, as the result of two spectacular goals by Howie Morenz, and the lead was maintained to the end.

Fish and Game

BY MORRIS ACKERMAN

As I write this I am in Hot Springs, Ark. Last week a number of the world champion Washington baseball players were here at the hotel. I climbed the mountains with them, played golf and rode horseback with them.

It was great fun to fan with these luminaries—not of baseball, but of fishing and hunting, the pastime that keeps them fit and helps them pass pleasant and invigorating offseasons.

Walter Johnson just bubbled over with enthusiasm when I talked big game hunting. For the past three years he has lived in Reno, Nev. "I've hunted all my life, but for real thrills give me those that come from bagging a mule-deer buck in the Sierras," he exclaimed.

Warren Ogden, who visited Walter during the past winter, seconded the motion. "And the duck and goose shooting out there is the best I ever saw," opined the handsome Swarthmore grad.

Joe Judge is most fond of duck and quail shooting. He and Sam Rice have hunted ducks down on the Potomac River for several years. Late last fall Joe, Sam and Nick Altrock had a successful quail shoot near Winchester, Va. Fred Marberry lives in Texas. He is a lover of bird dogs and does a lot of quail shooting. Roger Peckinpaugh has a cabin at Crow Lake, Ont. He goes up there each fall and catches muscalunge and hunts deer and black bear.

"Goose" Goslin spends much time with the migratory waterfowl and shore birds down Barnegat Bay way, on the New Jersey coast. "Dutch" Reuther indulges in duck and goose hunting on the California shores.

Mike McNally hunts grouse, pheasants, deer and bear in Pennsylvania. He is going up in Potter County, Pa., next fall on his annual bear hunt. Muddy Ruel does most of his hunting in the "show me" commonwealth. He wants a trip in Canada this fall.

Stanley Coveleskie has hunted all of the past open season in Pennsylvania. He bagged both his bear and buck. He is all set with his fishing outfit for the Tampa fresh and salt water tribers. Coveleskie, Peckinpaugh and Reuther are all experts with the bait rod.

NORTH MONGHAN COUNCIL.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council of North Monaghan Township was held this week in the Court-House. Reeve Rye occupied the chair, and all the members were present.

The first business discussed was the appointment of road commissioners. Reeve Rye reported that he had been assured at the Provincial Good Roads Convention in Toronto that legislation was going through at the present session providing for special cases such as the Township of North Monaghan, of which there are quite a number in the province, and making provision in some way for the proper handling and collection of statute labor rates suitable to both rural and urban sections of the township. The Township of North Monaghan has withheld from the passing of a by-law for the abolition of statute labor or commuted statute labor and levying a straight rate of so many mills on the dollar in place thereof for the present system on account of putting a double levy on the rural part of the municipality.

A petition was presented to the Council, requesting the appointment of a new commissioner for road division Number Four.

Mr. Frank Pratt was present and presented a number of charity bills certified to for payment:

W. J. Byers, groceries	$1.92
W. J. Byers, groceries	1.71
W. J. Byers, groceries	16.52
W. Fitzgerald, wood	43.25
A. Comstock, ambulance	3.00
W. J. Grady, groceries	1.93
New Centre Meat Market	1.00
T. A. Holden, groceries	1.93
A. E. Saunders, groceries	7.04
A. E. White, groceries	13.50
Nicholls Hospital	7.50
Nicholls Hospital	10.50
Nicholls Hospital	115.50
Freeport Sanitarium	368.50
	$493.45

Mr. E. B. Fowler was present and presented his auditor's report of the accounts of the Township of North Monaghan for 1924. The auditor's report was accepted as read. Motion was passed that the auditor's salary be passed and paid.

Mr. E. B. Fowler, salary, $50.00.

The following bills were passed and order to be paid:

Trebilcock Bros., supplies .. $35.95
E. C. Vance and Co., dog tags 9.87
Clerk, births, deaths and marriages 18.25

The clerk was instructed to advertise for tenders for a dump ground for the township.

By-law Number 864 was introduced, read and passed, authorizing the total abolition of statute labor in the township, and substituting in place there of a general levy, or levies, of so many mills on the dollar.

By-law 865 was passed, providing that every male inhabitant of the township over twenty-one years and under sixty years of age, and not otherwise exempted by law from performing statute labor who has not been assessed on the assessment roll of the township shall, instead of such labor, be taxed five dollars yearly therefor to be levied and collected by the collector, and that the said poll tax shall become due and payable to the collector or at the Bank of Nova Scotia, Peterboro, within ten days after demand.

The Council then adjourned, the next regular meeting to be held at the Court-House on April 6, at 1.30 p.m.

PETERBORO' BOY HAS IMPORTANT NEW POSITION

Dr. W. S. Madill in Charge of Administration of Dental Clinic.

PROVINCIAL MOVE.

Most Skilled Care Given People Who Cannot Afford Private Treatment.

TORONTO, March 12.—The Provincial Dental Department, organized last month by Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, M.P.P., Minister of Health, and to which Dr. Fred J. Conboy was appointed director, has arranged a new service in co-operation with the board of governors of the Toronto Western Hospital. It will be the first completely organized dental service in Canada, or as far as is known, in the world, to be placed at the disposal of the public, under Governmental auspices.

A new department of dental surgery and dental pathology has been created at the hospital, to which has been appointed Dr. Harold K. Box, as chief, with Dr. W. S. Madill and Dr. H. G. Robb, clinicians. The new department will be affiliated with the Royal Dental College, and the services of senior dental students and dental nurses will be available for the in-patient and out-patient clinics. A dental surgeon will be selected from the graduating class each year, and will be granted an internship by the hospital, where he will live for twelve months, during which period he will combine practical work on the wards and clinics with research work in the laboratories.

Highest Class Service.

While the Toronto Western Hospital now has the largest out-patient dental clinic in Toronto, the new department will be much broader in scope and will place at the disposal of people who cannot afford the services of a private dentist, the most skilled care. Every feature of modern dentistry will be available, the X-ray and pathological laboratories will work in close co-operation, and the most advanced work carried on.

Every patient attending the hospital out-patient department and every patient in the public wards will have a routine dental examination and such treatment as is necessary. Thus the very people who most need dental treatment, those in ill-health, quite possibly originating with the teeth, will receive attention. It is thus possible to reach several hundred people monthly who would otherwise receive no dental care. Every patient will be furnished with a tooth brush and cleanser, and instructions in oral hygiene.

World-wide Reputation.

Dr. Box, who will be in complete charge, is well known for his remarkable successes in his dental research work, being an original investigator in periodentitis (commonly called pyrorrhoea), and who has a world-wide reputation in connection with the diagnosis and treatment of this disease. Dr. Robb, well known to the professor in Ontario, will be in charge of oral surgery, exondotia and dental radiography. Dr. Madill, who has for several years been carrying on the hospital dental clinic will be in charge of administration.

Medical and surgical members of the other hospital services will co-operate in the dental treatment of their patients. The Western Hospital has already a well equipped dental surgery with a two-bed ward attached for patients resting after anaesthesia. Much new equipment is being installed, including an additional chair. The hospital anaesthetists will give their services, using chiefly nitrous oxide gas anaesthetic, which is much to be desired for extraction work.

Dr. Stanley Madill, who is to have charge of administration, is a well known Peterboro' boy and son of Mr. Wm. Madill, Aylmer Street. His appointment to this very important position indicates the strides he has made in his profession.

Pedestrians Seek Rights.

Society Organized to Fight For Safety—Protect Speed Limit.

LONDON, March 12.—(Associated Press.)— Recent proposals to permit automobiles to pass through the London streets at greater speed than at present has brought about organization of the Pedestrians' Protection Society. Members of the association will oppose vigorously any steps to abolish "that important factor of public safety, the speed limit of motor vehicles," as has been suggested in pending legislation.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

PAST GLORY OF WEST FOR HOOT

Knibbs Novel, "Ridin' Kid from Powder River" Filmed.

ROYAL TONIGHT

Tully Marshall, Gladys Hulette and Walter Long Support.

"The Ridin' Kid from Powder River," Hoot Gibson's latest Universal production, which will be shown in the Royal Theatre commencing today, is a motion picture story produced as an example of the truth of the statement that "Fact is stranger than fiction," according to the producers.

The story is based on a number of incidents of early days in the Southwest, said incidents having been garnered from various sources by the research department at Universal City. Gibson, the star was born in Nebraska, and from memory of tales he had heard he supplied some of the data, while the gist of the story is from Henry Herbert Knibbs' novel.

The locality of the story is the Southwest as it was in the early '70's, when it was a country in the making. At that time virtually the only industry was cattle raising and longhorns ranged for miles over richly-grassed plains. Here and there a small settlement furnished crude amusement for the cowboys who herded the cattle, and a living for the vicious men and women who made the place their home.

Into this land of lawlessness came the nester and at once there was born a bitter enmity on the part of the cattlemen, who forsaw he beginning of the end of his lordship over the range. Nesters were slain, their houses burned, the few crops they did raise destroyed, but other persevered, and in the end the nesters won.

In this new production Hoot has the part of the foster son of a nester who refused to abandon his purpose and paid for his bravery with his life. The boy vowed vengeance. By reason of his apparent restlessness he became known far and wide as "The Rambler."

In a small town the youth has an unfortunate encounter with a bull terrier, unfortunate because he chastises the dog only to find himself subject to the wrath of the most beautiful young woman he ever had seen.

Becomes Vengeful Outlaw.

In partly accomplishing his vow the youth found himself with a price on his head and adventures at every turn.

Gibson is supported by a cast, virtually every member of which has gained laurels for Western characterization. Tully Marshall, Walter Long, Gladys Hulette and Gertrude Astor have the principal supporting parts. Others in the cast are William A. Steele, Sydney Jordan, Howard Truesdale, Frank Rice, Nelson McDowell, Fred Hume, Bowditch Turner and Newton House.

Edward Sedgwick, who has directed Gibson in all of his recent features made under the Universal banner, directed, and the filming was done in a picturesque location at the edge of the Mojave Desert.

AT THE REGENT

BUCK JONES FEATURE PROVIDES THRILLS AND COMEDY GALORE.

"Yes sir, pardner, I sure am going to favor this right arm of mine from now —" this from Buck Jones, William Fox western star, in his dressing room at the big Fox West Coast Studios, one morning following his return from a two weeks' location at Victorville, California, where exterior scenes and stunts had been taken for his latest western thriller, "The Arizona Romeo," coming to the Regent Thearte on Thurs., Fri., and Sat.

This answer came from a query when the Fox star was taken unaware while gently rubbing a muscular right arm preparatory to "making up" for the day's work at the studio.

"I have had my share of close calls since I entered this business of making "movies," Buck continued, 'but I had one in Victorville this last time that will stay with me for many days. We were shooting a stunt in which my horse Silver Buck, figured prominently and using as a prop a train traveling at a thirty-five mile an hour rate.

"Right here I want to tell that thirty-five miles per hour is much faster than I ever before imagined The girl I have to rescue is aboard the train and I am to dash along side, board the train, take the girl and then again remount Silver from the platform of the coach with the girl on my arm.

'Well, the scenes started and Silver stepped right out and I negotiated the first part of the stunt in ship shape fashion. From the on the breaks were against me. My leather jumper hindered my grasp on the girl, I slipped when I started to make the exit and even now I don't know what kept my right hand on the rail when I started to leap to Silver's back.

At the opportune moment the road bed became chunky, I guess for when my feet started through the air for Silver's back they encountered nothing but thin air, the horse having shied away from the fast moving train because of a dip in the ground. Here I was holding on by one arm with Lucy Fox leading lady, hanging on to me for dear life and both of us shooting through space at what seemed to me almost one hundred miles an hour.

AT THE CAPITOL.

GLORIOUS FANTASY IN DOUG'S NEW FILM

Douglas Fairbanks in "The Thief of Bagdad" will have its presentation in this city at the Capitol today. It is significant that those interested in his new Fairbanks picture have not resorted to the use of adjectives that have become nauseating to moving picture devotees, such phrases of the "super-picture," "super-special," "classical masterpiece of filmdom," "superlative achievement of ultra-supremacy." "The world's first example of artistic perfection," and all that sort of thing. Here is a picture that does not call for sesquipedalians to describe it. It is something so new and heretofore undreamed of in picture making, that it requires no absurd overstatements. It is what was heretofore thought beyond the camera's capacity to realize. The moving picture here reaches its apex. Yet, one might well imagine that when the critics of such cities as have seen "The Thief of Bagdad," have come to write of it, they had first swallowed a bushel of alphabets and crammed down all the various books of synonyms on the market, —so rhapsodical have they been in describing it. And all this goes to prove that when a great picture comes along it is wise not to make too big a brag about it in advance; that is, give those who are invited to see and judge a chance to venture an opinion. As to the substance of the story; it is a glorious fantasy of the Arabian Nights,—a fanciful story of love and adventure, laid in an imaginary world of fancy, and abounding in amazing happenings—or as one scribe has put it, "unbelievable wonders," such, for instance, as the Flying Carpet; the Winged Horse, that flies through the clouds, and numerous other like flabbergasting conceptions, actualty brought to life. And for its presentation in this city, "The Thief of Bagdad" will offer all the atmospheric effects, a symphony orchestra trained by the composed of the music; full scenic and stage effects, a band of Arabian musicians with the instruments of their native country, as well as a Mohammedan Prayer Mat. When "The Thief of Bagdad" is shown, here, there will be brought into use all the late inventions of motion pictures, including Edison's newest high-tension lamps, as well as the newly invented silk and rubber screen. This latter device holds the illumination, with less reflection, providing a clearer picture than heretofore.

EVERYBODY WONDERS HOW "DOUG" DID IT.

It is evident that when Douglas Fairbanks produced "The Thief of Bagdad," which will be on view at the Capitol To-day, he had in mind to make the apparently impossible an accomplished fact. In every city where this picture has been shown the same strain has been : "I wonder how.....this or that .....

When the redoubtable Doug clambers up a rope that is suspended in thin air, one begins to take notice then he dives to the bottom of the water, kills an undersea monster and when his sub-oceanic business is finished, he calmly propels himself to the surface

He enters an enchanted wood, where a tall tree, at the wave of a hand, comes to life and walks about with uncanny disrespect to all accepted ideas of tree conduct.

Later in the picture, the Thief climbs a flight of a Thousand Steps that leads to the clouds and mounts a beautiful Winged Horse that gracefully flies away with Doug on his back. By now, you are ready to belive that anything is possible and when as a climax, you see Douglas and the Princess step upon a Magic Carpet. it seems quite proper for the rug of its own volition to rise up,sail out of the window, circle the house-tops of Bagdad amidst the plaudits of the multitude, and disappear with its human freight across the rising moon.

The magic introduced into this film is so unusual that it would seem likely to be the dominating interest, but very wisely Douglas keeps everything subservient of the Thief and the Princess is both compelling and dramatic with a well balanced admixture of thrills and surprises.

AT THE GRAND

THE WINTER GARDEN VARIETIES.

The Winter Garden Varieties continue to win popular favour at the Grand, and last night's performance was thoroughly enjoyed. The two comedians, Moe Parker and Jimmy Taylor, had the audience convulsed, and the specialties and musical numbers were warmly applauded. The varieties have a fine galaxy of talent and they see to it that there is not a dull moment in their revue. There is a wealth of comedy, plenty of music—all of it of the kind that sends the audience away whistling, and the production is clever and entertaining at all times.

To-night there will be a complete change of programme—new acts, new music, and a big evening's show. A capacity audience is likely.

To-morrow night, the members of the Peterboro Senior O.H.A. team will be the guests of the management at the Grand.

FOR MAN'S BENEFIT.

Dr. Charles H. Franzoni Submitted to Most Hazardous Surgical Operation.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 12 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Charles H. Franzoni, a prominent Washington druggist and physician, yesterday submitted himself to one of the rarest and most hazardous of modern operations, that of angina paectoris. The delicate operation was performed at Garfield Memorial Hospital by Dr. Henry Hyland Kerr, graduate of McGill University, in the presence of a number of distinguished surgeons from various sections of the country, now in Washington for the ninth annual clinical section of of the American congress on internal medicine.

Dr. Kerr is the only surgeon who has ever performed this new operation in Washington, and this was his fifth effort. Patients recovered in three of former cases.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL?

Toronto Globe Regrets Trend of Provincial Government —Calls It Weak.

TORONTO, March 12. —(Canadian Press).— The Toronto Globe says editorially this morning..

"Rumour that the Ontario Government intends to introduce a new system of distributing intoxicants by rationing and licensing individuals is disquieting It would mean the introduction of Government control, which was expressly negatived by the plebiscite of October 23 last. Unfortunately the measure legalizing 4.4 per cent beer in an indication of the governments weakness under pressure of the wets, and this lends some semblence of probability to the report which would otherwise be incredible."

MINERS UNDECIDED.

Executive Has Not Arranged Yet About Maintenance Men.

SYDNEY, N. S., March 12 — (Canadian Press).—Up to noon today the District Mine Workers' Executive had made no decision as to whether to maintain their hundred per cent. strike or order the maintenance men back to the engine-room and boiler houses to pump and the fan the mines, according to President John W. McLeod, who also maintains that his Executive has as yet no instructions on the subject of the international president, John L. Lewis. He declared the previous published statements that Lewis had ordered the maintenance men back to the mines unfounded.

WEAVING CLUB SHOWED WORK

Women's Art Association Heard Paper and Saw Hand Looms.

PRACTICAL TALK.

An exhibition of the work of the Weaving Club took place at the last meeting of the Women's Art Association, held at the Conservatory of Music Studio. A demonstration of the hand looms in operation also preceded a paper on "Weaving," given by Mr. James Heffernan of the Colonial Weaving Company.

This was a very practical talk, with illustrations, and was followed by two vocal solos by Mrs. W. R. Widdess, who sang, in costume, "The Song of the Loom," an old folk song given while seated at the loom; also "Baby," a composition of Bertram Brown, with accompaniments for both songs played by Miss Margaret Widdess.

At the conclusion of the programme, tea was served from a table prettily centred with Spring flowers and presided over by Mesdames Morphet and Lang, assisted by members of the Weaving Club.

Mr. Heffernan's paper dealt with the various stages of silkworm growth. "The possibility of using silk for commercial purposes was discovered in 1700 B.C., and this discovery is credited to China. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the silk industry spread to France, Italy and America. The raising of silk worms in America was a failure, owing to climatic and labor conditions.

"Silk in its initial stages comes from a specie of caterpillar called the Mulberry silkworm."

Mr. Heffernan went on to describe the growth of the worm and its spinning of the cocoon. When the cocoons are ten days old they are placed in a steam heater and the inner chysalis stifled, after which they are soaked in hot water to soften the gum which makes the threads stick together—then three or four threads of the cocoons are united and run onto a reel forming a skein.

In thoroughly cleansing the gum from the silken skeins, the silk usually loses one-third of its original weight. "To regain this weight, it is allowed to soak in a solution of tin, but by doing this the silk is greatly weakened. That is the reason why some fabrics that appear to be of heavy quality silk tear and crack easily. Pure dye silk, that is, silk free from weighting, lasts much longer."

The processes of dyeing, winding and warping were also briefly described.

PLEA OF INSANITY.

Thomas Collinson Puts in Defence in Charge of Murder.

CORNWALL, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Evidence for the defence today in the trial of Thomas Collison on charge of murder for the killing of Beatrice Thorpe, concerned chiefly the prisoner's mental condition in recent years, the allegation of the defence being that Collison was insane when he committed the deed.

Miss Thorpe, who had discouraged Collison's attentions, was shot in her own home, the bullet having been fired through the window.

It is expected the trial will be concluded today.

OBITUARY.

HENRY WHEELER

The death occurred yesterday of Henry Wheeler, aged thirty-two. He was a life-long resident of Smith Township and was unmarried. He had been ill for a number of years. He leaves to mourn his loss, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wheeler, of Smith, three sisters, Mrs. Wm Robinson of Bridgenorth, Mary and Daisy at home and two brothers, William of Belleville and Roy at home. The funeral will be on Friday, March 13, at 1.30, from the family residence, Concession 8, to Lakefield cemetery, the Rev. Mr. Edgar of Gilmour Memorial Church officiating.

DOMENICO MEMMO.

Domenico Memmo died last night at his home, 455 Elm street, after a long illness. He was a native of Italy and had lived in the city for 22 years. He was well known in Peterborough, having played in the Peterborough Rangers Band for many years. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one sister, Mrs. Crebar, in Peterborough, and his mother, one sister and one brother in Italy.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning, March 13, at 8.45 from the family residence, 455 Elm street, to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery.

INVENTORS ENCOURAGED.

Many Obscure Men Brought to Light by Contests.

LONDON, March 12.—The simple expedient of offering prizes of $50 has resulted in the discovery that there are 152 amateur inventors in England whose inventions have a commercial value. The Institute of Patentees offered prizes for the best inventions in several classes, and about 500 inventions were submitted from which four major prize winners were selected. The 152 inventions will be sumitted to various manufacturers.

The major prizes were awarded to the inventors of a kettle with a lid that will not fall off; a portable fire; a rotoscope based on the theory of relativity for gauging the speed of machinery, and a machine for bending rods and tubes.

Sir William Grey-Wilson, head of the institute, is an inventor of renown and his house is full of his handicraft. One of the most ingenious is in the chicken house. A few grains of corn are placed in a tin beneath the perches. When the chickens wake and peck at the corn, a spring is released which opens the door of the house.

FEMALE OFFENDERS REPEAT OFTENER

83 Per Cent. Convicted Before, as Against 62 Per Cent. of Men.

LONDON, March 12.—(Canadian Press.—The most habitual offenders against the laws of Great Britain are women according to the report of prisons and the directors of convict prisons for the past year. No fewer than 7,258 out of the 8,801 women received into prison in the year had been convicted before, or 83 percent, compared with 62 percent of the men. More than 1,000 women had been convicted 11 to 20 times and 2,886 more than 20 times.

The report also shows that the total number of prisoners received under sentence was 58,216 compared with 60,832 for the preceding year, a decrease of 2,616. At the convict prisons 466 persons were sentenced to penal servitude in 1922-24, as against 485 for the previous year.

Referring to the general conduct of prisoners in all establishments the commissioners say there is no doubt that there is a different tone in the prison population of today due partly to the fact that the majority of the persons received are of a less violent type than formerly, but due also to a change in the attitude of the authorities towards the prisoners which tends to bring about a better spirit in the prison communities.

Closing Quotations —— on Principal —— Active Stocks.

CHICAGO

Wheat traders were as bearish at the close yesterday as they were bullish Tuesday. There is a great deal of bearishness among the trade here and with the big professionals active on the selling side it has created a growing belief that grains should be sold on sharp bulges and bought only on declines. So far the bull leaders have not changed their opinions and are believers in purchases on breaks as export business is developing on declines although buying yesterday was limited in wheat while Winnipeg reported a big business in oats, Germany being the buyer.

Weakness in wheat was the main influence in the corn and oats markets, both declining with considerable selling of corn by local traders who have been active on the buying side of late. There was little activity in export circles at the seaboard.

MEIGHEN SCENTS HALF-HEARTED SUPPORT BY DUFF, LIBERAL, FOR THE PETERSEN SHIP CONTRACT

Government Deserves Credit for Effort to Secure Lower Rates, Duff Says.

EXPECTS RESULTS

Opposition of Vancouver Board of Trade Conveyed by Conservative Member.

OTTAWA, March 13 (Canadian Press).—William Duff (Liberal, Lunenburg), resumed the debate on the contract between the Dominion of Canada and Sir William Petersen, in the House of Commons Thursday. Mr. Duff reviewed the previous attempts of various governments to secure control of land and ocean freight rates. Any steamship company operated by the Government should not, said Mr. Duff, sit in on any conference to fix rates.

The matter of discrimination in rates, stated Mr. Duff, had been taken up on a number of occasions; and while the agreement might not be an ultimate solution of this great question, the Government should be given credit for the courage in tackling the problem. It decided that a real grievance existed, and was attempting to remedy the matter.

"It seems to me that this question is entirely too big to introduce personalities," declared Mr. Duff. It was not sufficient answer to the Government's proposition to say that, because the gentleman who had prepared the report had participated in certain elections and by-elections, fair consideration should not be given. The question to be decided was one as to whether or not a combine existed. Mr. Duff had understood the Minister to state the other day that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine was not now in the combine. "but my information is," he declared, "that they are still in the combine in regard to the fixing of rates between the Maritime Provinces and the British West Indies."

The Government had taken the proper step in deciding to refer this matter to a committee. The people felt that there was something wrong in regard to the matter of these rates.

Complaints of Shippers.

Shippers had complained of the discrimination and there was no question that the rate from England to Canada was higher than that from England to the United States. This possibly was due to the amount of cargo carried to this country as compared to the United States.

"What would be the efficacy of ten vessels against the alleged combine?" asked A. J. Lewis (Progressive, Swift Current).

Mr. Duff replied that, while putting on ten ships might not have the desired effect of breaking the combine, it would show the people that the Government was trying to get low rates.

Donald Sutherland (Conservative, South Oxford) asked why the Government had not appointed a committee last session to look into this matter of ocean rates. The appointment of such a committee had been recommended by the special committee on agricultural conditions, the previous session.

Belated Action.

Mr. Duff replied that he could not speak for the Government. Perhaps the Government would have been wise to take action earlier. However, it was taking action now, and should be given credit for it. The previous government had done absolutely nothing, even though it was aware of the condition in regard to ocean rates.

Mr. Meighen asked Mr. Duff if he though the House should approve the contract before sending it to the committee.

To this, Mr. Duff said a bill last year had been sent to a committee and altered while there before being presented again to the House which had again amended it. He did not want to give the impression that he was opposed to the contract, he said.

"I think you are,' interjected Mr. Meighen.

"Time will tell, again," remarked Mr. Duff. He said that he thought the C.P.R. should join with the Government in its attempt to break the combine.

Offset of Taxes.

William Irving (Labor, Calgary, East) asked Mr. Duff if he did not think that the increased taxes required to raise the money to subsidize the steamship companies would more than offset the benefit to be derived from their efforts.

Cruisers Failed To Find Crews Of Hull Trawlers

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Mar. 13.—After three weeks of unsuccessful search, which took them across the Arctic Circle, the British light cruisers, Harebell and Godetia, returned to port Thursday reporting that all hope must be definitely abandoned that the crews of the Hull trawlers, Field Marshal Robertson and Scapa Flow, and the Icelandic steamer Leiferhepar, missing since late February, had escaped. The missing vessels were caught in a fierce gale which swept the Icelandic fishing grounds for four days.

The Scapa Flow had fourteen men on board; the Field Marshal Robertson had 30, and the Leiferhepar, 40.

DOUBLE RESCUE FROM ICE OF ST. LAWRENCE

Rescuer of Old Man Was Himself Saved by Government Steamer.

QUEBEC, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—Sending a 71-year-old, one-armed man named Mantel ashore in the canoe in which he came to his rescue, Aime Lafleur, a resident of St. Antoine Des Fonds, near Ste. Croix, Lotbiniere County, remained on a broken batture of ice to rescue Martel's team of horses, and was swept down the river until 3 hours later he was rescued with the team by the Canadian Government steamer Lady Grey. He was in an exhausted condition, and one of the horses was all but drowned when it sank to its middle in the spongy ice just before the Lady Grey's arrival.

When the batture broke Martel and his horses were cut off from shore. Lafleur answered his cries for help and sent him ashore in his canoe, himself staying to rescue the team. He disappeared down river from the sight of watchers on shore as the large cake was carried away by the tide. Word was sent to the Lady Grey and the rescue effected.

NARROW ESCAPES.

SASKATOON, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—The machinery section of the engineering buildings at the University of Saskatchewan, was destroyed by fire this morning. A short circuit in the wiring is thought to have been the cause of the outbreak which started at three o'clock.

The loss is estimated at half a million dollars. The building, which was the largest of the university group, was entirely destroyed. The water pressure was so inadequate that streams reached only to the bottom of the second storey windows.

Twenty below zero weather added to the difficulties confronting the firemen.

The explosion of a large quantity of gasoline when the fire was at its height blew the south-eastern corner of the building to fragments and many persons had narrow escapes from the flying debris.

VETERAN OF THREE WARS.

One of Oldest Volunteers in C.E.F. Dead.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13.—George Francis Fortney, one of the oldest volunteers to go overseas with the Canadian forces in the World War, died here Thursday. He was 79 years old.

Mr. Fortney was a veteran of three wars, a pioneer of the Yukon gold rush, and captain of the first cargo steamboat to reach Winnipeg by the historic Red River route. He took part in the Riel Rebellion, being one of the first prisoners captured by rebel forces. In the last war, Mr. Fortney enlisted with the 100th Battalion, which left Winnipeg in 1915. He returned to Canada in the following year ,but paid his own passage back to England, where he re-enlisted in the Imperial Army, after being given his honorable discharge in Canada.

He is survived by seven daughters and one son, twenty-two grandchildren, and twelve great grandchildren.

WORLD'S SPIRIT UNPREPARED FOR COMPULSORY ARBITRATION AS AN INSTRUMENT OF PREVENTING WAR

Idealism of Ramsay MacDonald and Edouard Herriot Virtually Wrecked on the Rocks of Realism—Immigration Issue by Japan Resolved Britain's Antagonism.

SPECIFIC TREATIES PROPOSED

Cause of International Disarmament Believed to Have Received Serious Setback as Britain and Her Dominions, Except Ireland, Reject Proposed Agreement.

GENEVA, March 13 (Canadian Press). — That internaitonal disarmament has received a setback was the impression shining forth like some sinister beacon at Geneva last night as a sequence to Thursday's memorable meeting of the Council of the League of Nations, when Great Britain and all her Dominions, except Ireland, rejected the Geneva peace protocol, which was erected to achieve disarmament by establishing in the world the reign of compulsory arbitration and security.

The debate ended this morning with the adoption of the proposition by Dr. Benea, Czecho-Slovakian Foreign Minister, to refer to the next assembly the declaration regarding the protocol made by British Foreign Secretary Chamberlain and other members, together with any further declarations received from the members of the League. This examination by the assembly, he declared, should naturally include a studyot Mr. Chamberlain's recommendation made yesterday, that the League covenant be supplemented by special defensive treaties between nations whose differences might lead to a renewal of war, treaties whose sole object would be the maintenance of unbroken peace.

Great Britain yesterday not only threw the protocol overboard, but declared it was hopeless to try to rescue it with the idea of successful revision. Austen Chamberlain, the British Secretary for Foreign Affairs stood rigidly against compulsory arbitration of all disputes ,which is one of the main features of the protocl, and, alluding to the immigration issue, which was indirectly raised by Japan in connection with the protocol, he asserted that British objection to compulsory arbitration had been increased because the protocol had weakened those League covenant stipulations which were designed to prevent interference by the League in matters of domestic jurisdiction.

He condemned the protocol because it destroyed the balance and spirit of the covenant and because instead of emphasising friendly cooperation, it stressed too much the preservation of peace by organising for war on the largest scale.

France for Covenant.

Of the other countries represented on the Council, France stood solidly by the covenant in a defensive address by M. Briand, yet offered a kind of welcome to Mr. Chamberlain's substitute suggestion of special treaties.

M. Briand declared that a system of alliances was made possible under the protocol. If it were the best means of assuring peace, he affirmed, then well and good. Alluding to France's friends, like Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, he insisted that such a system must never cast aside certain nations, who also had the right to be protected against war.

Italy, through Vittorio Scialoia, a former Foreign Minister, came out flatly for Mr. Chamberlain's proposal of special treaties, while Viscount Ishii for Japan announced that Tokio had not completed examination of the protocol, but appreciated its lofty and noble ideal, and would continue its study in profound sympathy and co-operation.

Belgium represented by Paul Hymans, saw in the British proposal a way to stabilise peace while awaiting attainment of general security.

Brazil pledged her support to any scheme of mutual assistance, provided it was general in character.

Spain, through Count Quinones De Leon, adopted a similar attitude.

Sweden declared that her eventual attitude would be that of the great Powers; and Uruguay recommended throwing the whole question before the next assembly.

It seemed clearly to appear from the general discussion, as well as the private utterances of the leaders of the various countries after the Council's adjournment that the Geneva protocol as now framed has little hope of survival.

Excessive Idealism.

A frequent opinion heard was that the last League assembly, under the leadership of Liberals, like Ramsay MacDonald and M. Herriot, had gone too far in the direction of idealism. Quite apart from any consideration that they had perhaps produced an unworkable, even a dangerous, instrument, there was a rather mournful admission that the world as at present constituted and with existing political conditions must content itself with lesser things

Floor Collapsed With Bargain Hunting Crowd

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 13.— Twelve persons, mostly women, were slightly injured when the tile flooring at the entrance to a retail store on Granville street, gave way on Thursday when the store was crowded by hundreds of bargain hunters.

The people were packed so densely in the passage between the sidewalk and the door that the floor was unable to support them.

FAMOUS PREACHER HERE NEXT WEEK

Dr. S. D. Gordon, of New York, Will Speak at George Street.

The people of this city are to have one of the great opportunities of a lifetime to hear a outstanding Christian leader, next week. The famous preacher, Dr. S. D. Gordon, of New York, is to speak every afternoon and evening—March 16th to 20th—in George Street Church.

Dr. Gordon is recognized as one of the great forces in the Christian life and thought of our generation. He is most widely known through his books. His eighteen published volumes have been circulated to the enormous total of one and half millions, and have been translated into twenty-eight different languages

Dr. Gordon has recently returned from a four-year speaking tour in foreign lands. His itinerary took him through the British Isles, Continental Europe, and thence through China, Korea and Japan. Since his return, he has been conducting series of services in the leading cities of this continent, including New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Boston.

Those who remember the visit of Dr. Campbell Morgan to this city eighteen months ago will be interested in his comment on Dr. Gordon and his work. He said recently: "I sat from day to day with growing wonder and growing profit at the feet of that wonderful man, Dr. S. D. Gordon. It is a long time since I have had a week in which I have been more conscious of the power of God."

Dr. Gordon will speak twice daily, from Monday to Friday, all the services being held in George Street Church, the gatherings each day commencing at three and eight p.m. Further details of subjects will be announced in due course.

COOK WITH SMELL

BERLIN, March 13. — Electric light and heat to cook meals in four new German liners will be provided by smells. Waste gases from Diesel engines will go through a specially designed boiler. The heat will raise steam to drive dynamos which will supply current for light and heat.

FAILURE OF DETROIT RAILS HITS MONTREAL

Church Organization's Investment in D.U.R. Excelled $5,000,000.

MONTREAL, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—The Star in its financial columns Thursday says:

"The collapse of the Detroit United Railway enterprise has caused a great many financial hardships in Montreal, and to a smaller extent, throughout the Province, it being estimated that approximately 90 per cent. of the stock has been carried by people in this province.

"Stock that had an approximate market value of $20,000,000 in 1916 has, in less than ten years, been depreciated to the extent of $19,000,000 as the market value of the shares at this time is less than a million dollars, the number of shares outstanding being 153,750.

"While the loss sustained by one large ecclesiastical organization, whose interest in the company is said to exceed $5,000,000, is an outstanding feature, losses by many comparatively small holders is likely to cause a great deal more direct suffering.

GAVE $1,200,000 TO DENNISTOUN

"Little Nest Egg" From Lady Carnarvon When He Married Her.

ANOTHER CROWD.

LONDON, March 13.—There was no diminution in popular interest Thursday in the trial of Mrs. Ian Onslow Dennistoun against her former husband, Lieut.-Col. Dennistoun, now the husband of the former Dowager Countess Carnarvon, for amounts of money she alleges he owes her. There was the usual early morning crush for admission to the courtroom, and the chamber was filled throughout the day.

Much of yesterday's testimony turned upon $1,200,000 which Lady Carnarvon, when she married Dennistoun, settled upon her husband and herself as "a little nest egg on which they always could rely." A. W. Fyzer, counsel for Dennistoun, said in connection with this money that it was the desire of Lady Carnarvon to "surround her husband with the utmost dignity." Neither this sum nor the interest on it, he added, could be touched in law by Mrs. Dennistoun, even if she won her present action against her former husband.

Question of Conduct.

One legal point in the case on which the judge laid emphasis was whether in the verbal agreement said to have been made between Colonel and Mrs. Dennistoun in 1921, there could be read an implied condition that Mrs. Dennistoun should observe good moral conduct. In this connection, Mr. Fyzer replied, regarding an allegation that Mrs. Dennistoun had been hounded by detectives, that observation of her activities began in February, 1924, but was not kept up, except on a couple of isolated dates. Last January, he added, information was obtained from a Paris hotel, that Mrs. Dennistoun had been stopping there with Major Woevodsky. The shadowing of her ceased last month.

This raised the suggestion that huge costs had piled up in defending the case. Mr. Fyzer said he already had received from £10,000 to £12,000, of which amount Colonel Dennistoun had paid £5,000 out of the inheritance he received from his father. Mr. Fyzer denied suggestion that Dennistoun had agreed to make provision for his former wife.

During the session a Swiss hotel keeper testified that Mrs. Dennistoun had occupied communicating room with a Spaniard named Bolin in a hotel near Geneva and that she was known as Madam Bolin.

STEEPLEJACK FELL FROM CHURCH SPIRE

Camille Gallant Dashed on Roof and Ground To-day—Died.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 13. —(Canadian Press).—Camille Callant, 42, while engaged in taking down the staging from near the top of the spire of the new Catholic Church, East St. John, to-day, fell to the ground, hitting the roof of the church on the way, and died later in hospital.

COURT IMPOSED DEATH PENALTY FOR COLLISON

Cornwall Man Found Guilty of Murdering Beatrice Thorpe Last November.

EXECUTION MAY 29

V. J. McElderry of Peterboro Conducted Prosecution for the Crown.

CORNWALL, Ont., March 13.—Thomas Collison was yesterday found guilty by a jury of the murder of Beatrice Thorpe last November, and sentenced to be hanged on May 29 next. Miss Thorpe, who had discouraged Collinson's attentions, was shot in her home through a window.

Mr. V. J. McElderry, of Peterboro, conducted the prosecution for the Crown, assisted by J. G. Harkness, County Crown Attorney, Cornwall.

The jury was out exactly 53 minutes, and when the verdict was announced the accused sat in the box in the same manner as had characterized his attitude during the trial. He showed no signs of mental anguish when Mr. Justice Lennox sentenced him to death. The verdict contained a recommendation for mercy.

The trial, which began Wednesday morning, was featured by the plea of insanity offered by the defence.

The evidence yesterday continued to deal with the accused's mental condition, and from time to time sobs could be heard from that part of the court-room where his sisters and other relatives were seated.

Russell Collison testified that he had left Tom's home because the prisoner would sit around all day and not speak to him. The prisoner had told him of a "letter in blood" he had received from a Mr. Harkness. He was afraid of Tom doing something so he had taken some shells away from him.

Gordon McDonald of Halifax, who had worked with accused in the north, said Collison had told him of his trouble with Miss Thorpe. Prisoner acted queerly and witness feared he would commit suicide.

Didn't Mention Girl's Name.

Mrs. Bertha Collison, wife of Russell, told of accused snapping his fingers and walking the floor, saying: "The devil is in the cellar and he is after me." He had also spoken to her of a letter in blood. She had never heard him mention Beatrice Thorpe's name.

Earl Collison, another brother, said Tom had changed a lot in the last few years. Once Tom had wrung his hands and told him to keep away from him, as he was a murderer.

Called by the defence, Dr. C. A. Porteous, medical superintendent of the Verdun Protestant Hospital for the Insane, testified that he believed accused was insane when he committed the act. Statements made by the accused led witness to believe that his mental development had been impaired. In reply to a question witness said it was unlikely that Collison would have committed the deed if a policeman had been present.

Dr. Lavall of the parole board had no reason to suspect Collison's mentality when he was released from Guelph. A man was never paroled whom the board did not think capable of reasonably looking after himself. An absolute condition of Collison's parole was that he should not visit Iroquois, his farm, or the Thorpes.

Believes Him Sane.

The Crown then called Dr. Peter McNaughton, head of the Ontario Hospital for the Insane at Brockville. He had examined Collison on December 13, and again on Tuesday of this week, and believed him perfectly sane when the act was committed. When examined the second time the prisoner's attitude was different to that of the first time, but this did not cause the witness to change his opinion.

Edward Ryan, superintendent of Kingston Penitentiary, said that Collison was industrially normal, basing this on the fact he had, at 22, bought a farm. Regarding auditory hallucinations and dream states, witness did not think any auditory hallucinations existed. He could find no evidence or persecutions after close questioning of the accused.

INSURANCE POLICY SHOWS THAT VICTIM OF FORT ERIE TRAGEDY IS M'ILMOYLE OF PETERBOROUGH

Autopsies Fail to Show Cause of Deaths—May Be Ptomaine Poisoning.

NOT A CRIME.

Investigations Practically Shatter Murder and Suicide Theories of Private Detectives.

BUFFALO March 13 (Canadian Press). — The autopsies performed yesterday at Ridgeway, Ontario failed to reveal the cause of death of Mrs. Rose C. Kahn and Norman Mack ,whose bodies were discovered by private detectives on Wednesday afternoon in Mack's Fort Erie home.

The internal organs of the two were removed and sent to the University of Toronto laboratory for analysis. As this research will require at least three weeks, Coroner W. R. Stackhouse of Ridgeway adjourned until and April the coroner's jury he empanelled immediately upon arriving at the scene of the double tragedy. By a process of elimination, Provincial authorities are holding the ptomaine poisoning theory as the only feasible one to account for the double death. Investigations, they say, have pretty well shattered the murder and suicide pact theories that originally were advanced. The theory that the two might have died from gas poisoning likewise was discredited when the autopsy performed by Dr. G. R. Stewart, of Rideway, failed to show indications of asphyxiation.

From Brown Brothers Nursery Company of Font Hill, Ont., where Mack was employed as a salesman, it was learned that the dead man has relatives living in Lakeview, Ontario. Telegrams were despatched immediately and replies were expected giivng instructions regarding the body, which now is in the undertaking rooms of H. B. Dell at Ridgeway. An insurance policy found at the scene of the murder indicated that Mack's real name was Nathan McIlmoyle. The beneficiary was his wife, Abbie McIlmoyle.

BURNED BABY'S BODY ON BRUSH

Fire Started Outdoors to Destroy Trace of Birth—Mrs. Forshaw Committed.

GRUESOME STORY.

OSHAWA, Ont., March 13. —(Canadian Press). — The preliminary hearing of Mrs. Jennie Forshaw, charged with offering indignity to the dead body of one Richard MacLaren on or about June 3rd, 1924 was opened in the local police court here yesterday before Police Magistrate Hind and the gruesome story of how the remains of a month old child were disposed of in a bush fire was related in day and evening sessions of the court, after which the accused was committed for trial boil being referred to the County Judge.

Rose Mary MacLaren, the young unmarried mother, whose baby died and was a fey days later cremated on a bush pile on the Forshaw farm north of Thornton's corners, testified that she found the baby dead about 7 o'clock on June 2, 1924 and told Marion Wedley, a hired girl who in turn notified Mrs. Forshaw, sister of the MacLaren girl. She then declared that she spoke of calling for a physician but Mrs. Forshaw thought that the body could be buried privately and that after thinking the matter over she agreed and that day left for Oshawa where she had already been engaged as a domestic. She tesified that she had nothing further to do with the case and did not personally know what disposal had been made of the body. Marion Wadley gave the most important evidence for the Crown. She told of placing the body in a suit case and that a few days later at four o'clock in the morning she buried the suit case containing the body in the orchard. Later she was instructed to dig up the body and place it in the attic, from where it was taken on the following day and placed on a brush fire upon the instructions of Mrs. Forshaw, who then left the scene, but told her to remain by the fire. This she did not do, but returned when the fire had burned itself out, and in raking through the ashes found a part of the skull of the baby, which she placed in a match box and burned.

Both witnesses were given the protection of the court.

Mrs. Forshaw was not called. She apparently did not take the hearing seriously, as smiles continually broke across her face at various statements of the witnesses.

TROUBLES OF THE MARITIMES TOLD KIWANIS

A. M. Belding, of St. John, Tells of Situation in Eastern Canada.

CROSSED CONTINENT.

Found Distinct Problems in Every Part of the Country.

A. M. Belding of St. John, New Brunswick, was the speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon to-day on the Maritime situation. Mr. Belding was sent out by the St. John Telegraph-Journal and Times Star to travel across the continent telling the people of other parts of the country about the probelms of the Maritimes and to study the problems of the other sections. He said that the bout the problems of the Maritimes was that they produced astute politicians who were always coming to Ottawa asking for more.

Mr. Belding said that the loyalty of the Maritime Province made Confederation possible. It was the only thing they had in common with the other provinces. Thier geographical and economic connection was with the New England States to the south of them. When they entered Confederation there were many promises made of developing their ports and providing railway connection with other provinces. The railway was built but it followed the longest possible route. When the other railways received subsidies, said Mr. Belding, they were required to build east and west but much of the winter traffic goes through the ports of Portland, and New York. It is the feeling of the people of the Maritime ports that the exporters should route their goods by the Canadian ports. The value of Canada's own harbors was shown during the war when all shipments of men and munitions in the winter had to be routed through St. John and Halifax.

In the matter of industrial development it is impossible for them to compete with Ontario and Quebec but they expect to develop industries utilizing their own raw materials to manufacture goods for export. Another complaint of the maritimes, the speaker said, was that the immigration department routes all immigrants to the western portion of the country. He spoke of a man from St. John who went into the immigration office in an English city and asked for information about the Maritime Provinces and was advised to go west. Many people from the seashore ports of Europe who would be better on the sea coast of Canada, are sent out to the prairies.

In speaking of what he had learned on his journey, Mr. Belding said that every province had its own problems In British Columbia, the people are intensely interested in transportation between Eastern and Western Canada by the Panama Canal. In Alberta, they are interested in the sale of their coal would meet Nova Scotia Coal if the railways would draw it in trainloads when there is not much wheat being shipped. In Manitoba and Saskatchewan, he found that they are anxious for the completion of the Hudson Bay railway and they urged the co-operation of the Martime Provinces to this end as material could be shipped into the heart of the prairies from the Eastern ports. In Ontario and Quebec he found that the British Preference and the lack of a dump duty were the principal complaints. The general feeling in the East and West was that the central provinces had got the best deal and that they were selfish with regard to the needs of the other provinces. The great problem of all Canada was that people were trying to fight geographical and economic laws to build up the Dominion and there was a great attraction for the young and ambitious to go to the United States.

Mr. Belding urged as a remedy for these condtions the formation of a committee of business men to meet together with the idea of give and take to formulate a real National Policy without any politics and then submit it to the government at Ottawa.

Everywhere he went he had found people intensely interested and had been asked to come back again or send someone else and he had found several Boards of Trade willing to take steps to call such a conference.

Mr. Beldings visit was arranged for by the officers of the Chamber of Commerce and a number of the manufacturers of the city were invited to be present.

Levi Bond was the booster for the day. Mrs. Fenton Box, who is singing to-night in George Street Church, contributed two songs which were well received.

BELIEVES BODY IS THAT OF HUSBAND

Mrs. Abbie McIlmoyle Will Attend Inquest Into Fort Erie Tragedy.

TORONTO, March 13 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Abbie McIlmoyle, of Buckhorn, wife of Nathan McIlmoyle, who was found dead in a cottage at Erie Beach on Wednesday, beside the body of Mrs. Rose Kahn of Buffalo, when interviewed to-day said she would attend the next sitting of the coroner's jury at Ridgway.

Asked if she thought it was her husband who had been found dead, Mrs. McIlmoyle stated:

"I just got the report last night. I had heard nothing about it until then. From information I have, I believe it is my husband who is dead."

Asked if she had any serious domestic trouble with her husband and if they had been separated for some time, Mrs. McIlmoyle replied, that she did not care to give any information about that. "My husband was home at Christmas time, and hasn't been seen since," she asserted.

"Did you know Mrs. Kahn or that your husband knew her?"

"Anything I know about her I will keep to myself," she replied.

There are no children surviving McIlmoyle.

LAST POST SOUNDS.

Adventurer of Three Campaigns, Dies at Age of 79.

WINNIPEG, March 13. — George Francis Fortney, one of the oldest volunteers to go overseas with the Canadian forces in the World War, died here yesterday. He was 79 years old.

Mr. Fortney was a veteran of three wars, a pioneer of the Yukon gold rush, and captain of the first cargo steamboat to reach Winnipeg by the historic Red River route. He fought with the Union forces during the American Civil War. He took part in the Riel Rebellion, being one of the first prisoners captured by the rebel forces.

In the last war Mr. Fortney enlisted with the 100th Battalion, which left Winnipeg in 1915. He returned to Canada in the following year, but paid his own passage back to England, where he re-enlisted in the Imperial Army after being given his honourable discharge in Canada.

He is survived by seven daughters and one son, twenty-two grandchildren, and twelve great-grandchildren.

FRANKFORD MAN SHIPPED CATTLE

Four Car-loads of Dairy Cows for Colonization Purposes.

FINEST STOCK

FRANKFORD, March 13.—T. R. Mallory, Frankford, shipped four cars of dairy cows to Alberta. These cars were consigned to the Live-stock Commissioner of the Province of Alberta. It is believed they are really the property of the Canadian Pacific Railway and are to be used for colonization purposes. They were all black and white in color, three cars being high-grade Holstines and one car of pure-bred Holstines of a very fine type.

They were all tested for tuberculosis and not a single animal was rejected. The vicinity of Frankford can feel very proud of this record, and the farmers from whom these cattle were selected are to be congratulated upon the showing made.

Mr. Mallory, who made the selections for this shipment, is a well-known Holstine breeder. A few years ago he sold Senator Hardy of Brockville the famous cow, May Echo Sylvia, whose record for milk has never been equalled and whose son was purchased by the Carnation Stock Farms of California at the record price of $106,000.

Held Concert.

Frankford Citizens' Band held its first open-air concert of the season on Saturday evening. Lloyd Ketcheson and Mr. Richardson are to be congratulated in bringing the band to its present high standing, as many of the members made their first appearance in public.

MEIGHEN SCENTS

Mr. Duff informed Mr. Irvine that strong protests against the rates were being received from Mr. Irvines own province. The rate on cattle was particularly stressed.

Mr. Duff was subjected at this point to a good deal of interruption. Hon. Edmund Bristol (Conservative, Toronto, Centre), said that grain rates were fixed by the competition of tramp steamers with regular sailing, and could not be affected by a few subsidized sailings. Mr. Irvine asked Mr. Duff to give him some commonsence reason for believing that the Petersen Line could reduce ocean rates. Mr. Duff retorted that the Government deserved credit for tacking the problem and going into the preesnt scheme "in the hope and expectation of good results."

The possibility of the Petersen ships visiting the United States ports and picking up Canadian freight which should have gone through Canadian ports, was next suggested. L. J. Ladner (Conservative, South Vancouver) asked if there was anything in the contract to prevent this. Mr. Duff thought there was, but Mr. Ladner and Mr. Meighen interpreted the contract otherwise. Mr. Duff retorted that if this contract was made effective, no Mipister of Trade and Commerce would be worthy of his trust, if he permitted the Petersen ships to encourage diversion of Canadian freight from Canadian ports in the manner which governments had permitted the Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships to do. Mr. Meighen observed that there was nothing in the contract to prevent it, all the same.

Change the Contract.

Mr. Duff thought the committee could change the contract to make sure of it. A. J. Lewis asked if the Prime Minister had not made it clear that the contract could not be changed without Sir William Petersen's consent. Mr. Duff said that that could be arranged, too.

It did not become the shipping companies, said Mr. Duff, to complain of the subsidy to Sir William Petersen's company, while they themselves were receiving $13,000,000 in subsidies for the carrying of mails.

The Contract should be sent to the committee for complete examination into all the facts, and it would be time enough then to act one way or the other. It was ridiculous to say that the contract was based on the Preston report, when obviously it was entered into twenty-one days before the report left London. In any event, the Government had sufficient evidence stretching over a number of years to justify entering into the agreement. It was time the air was cleared. And in the interests of all concerned, there should be a showdown, said Mr. Duff, who concluded his speech at six o'clock.

Vancouver Opposition.

L. J. Ladner (Conservative, Vancouver South) read a copy of a letter addressed to the Prime Minister, from the Vancouver Board of Trade, containing a resolution expressing its strongest opposition to the granting of the Petersen subsidy on the ground that it was not in the public interest, and would not be effective in reducing ocean freight rates.

The Vancouver Merchants' Exchange, representing the shipping and export interests of that port, was also opposed to the payment of such a subsidy, Mr. Ladner added.

Mr. Ladner considered that the Preston report contained statements in the nature of election propaganda. If the Government had desired to arrive at the unadulterated truth, it would have been better had some semi-judicial body heard all sides of the case. Mr. Ladner was of the opinion that Sir William Petersen could make an annual profit of $600,000 under his agreement with the Government.

One-Sided Contract.

After some criticism of the manner in which the contract had been drawn up, Mr. Lardner suggested that in any case ,the control of Atlantic freight rates would be a one-sided arrangement and might increase the effect of the discrimination against the Pacific, which the present land rates constituted.

Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, asked Mr. Ladner if he did not think that the Government, if it succeeded, as it hoped to do, in gaining control of rates on the Atlantic, would not apply the principle to the Pacific. Mr. Ladner asked if the Government would promise to do that.

Mr. Graham: "Assuredly."

Mr. Meighen: "That is a perfectly safe promise."

Mr. Ladner went on to say that in any case, the present scheme could not be really effective, since the proposed ten-ship line could only affect two per cent. of the traffic.

Mr. Graham: "Why, then, is the other 98 per cent. making such a fuss?"

Mr. Meighen remarked that business men were entitled to make a fuss over such a contract.

Mr. Graham retorted that if he was one of the shipping men, he would make a fuss, too.

Mr. Ladner suggested an amendment to one clause of the agreement which would make impossible any discrimination in the operation of the contract against the Western Provinces using the Pacific route. Mr. Ladner claimed that if Sir William Petersen wanted to put on fifty ships, he could do so under the contract, and collect subsidy for them from the Canadian Government.

Mr. Ladner referred to the contract of 1897 which Sir Wilfred Laurier had made with Sir William Petersen, and advised the Minister of Trade and Commerce to reform the present contract, along the lines of the former one. There had been clauses in the earlier contract completely in the interests of the people of Canada, which had been omitted from the present one. Some of the features of the 1897 contract were: A deposit of sterling from Sir William Petersen was required; the ships could not call at foreign ports; the dates of sailing were subject to the approval of the Minister; and a list of specific Canadian Ports was included.

JEWISH FLAG ON HIGH SEAS

Ship Flies Judean Banner For First Time in 2,000 Years.

ZIONISTS ABOARD.

NEW YORK, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—For the first time in more than 2,000 years the flag of Judea again floats on the high seas. Amid the cheers and tears of more than 10,000 Jews, participating in an emotional demonstration, the President Arthur of the American-Palestine Line sailed yesterday noon on her maiden voyage, carrying 500 Zionists to the Holy Land. Her cargo of 4,000 tons included farm implements, donated by Nathan Straus, and a large quantity of medicines given by Jewish women's organizations.

Paris Accepts Bobs As Prevailing Mode

NEW YORK, March 13.—(United Press).—Panic stricken flappers who feared that bobbed hair was no longer au fait may take comfort. Paris has taken the ban from the bob and decreed its uninterrupted reign, according to Armand Blatt of New York, designer of hair styles for women. While no new styles of coiffure in long hair are being evolved, chic, fresh effects in bobs are being worked out by Paris experts. The newest fashion edict is that the bob must bear a resemblance to classic sculpture. "Venus de Milo bobs," "Juno swirls," "Sappho waves" and "Aspasia curls" will soon sweep across the Atlantic into popularity with American women.

TRUE RELIGION NEAR THE CROSS

Lenten Sermon by Rev. George Oliver Davies at Marmora Service.

MARMORA, March 12.— The third of a series of Lenten addresses was given at St. Paul's Church on Wednesday evening by the Rev. George Oliver Davies, B. A., of Rawdon. The subject for the evening was Worship based on Psalm 95-6. "What is Worship?" the preacher asked. "It is the prostration of the whole being of a rational creature in reverence before the Creator. It must carry with it the outward impulse and the inward feeling.I It literally means prostration before God.

The root of worship is true love toward God. Worship is connected with sacrifice as illustrated by Abraham's ascent of Mt. Moriah when he said, "I and the lad wul go yonder to worship. People who cease Church attendance have so done because the idea of worship was never rooted in them. There has been the tendency to look upon worship as an indulgence of sentiment. His works were not the main object of our Lord's ministry. He assisted people to worship God as they should. The Church's main business is to put the souls of men into the way of being saved rather than to become a social or political organization.

Stimulus to Action.

To disparage worship is to strike a blow at the church's very heart. Worship is a stimulus to action when it is sincere. It puts us into living contact with the Highest Living Reality. We have the thought then "It is He that hath made us and not we ourselves. We are His people and the sheep of His pasture." In connection with worship, the Church attempts to appeal to the eye as well as to the ear. She is, therein wise in her method. The modern day school has copied this idea of teaching through the eye The eye is one of the gateways of knowledge So for over a thousand years the Church has taught through the functioning of the eye .. The altar speaks of sacrifice The flowers often placed there tell of the joy of religion.

Why Lights Used.

They tell also that the true joy of religion is to be found near the Cross. The lights used in some churches are a reminder of the lights used in the catacombs in the days of Christian persecution. When God could be freely worshipped in churches, the lights were continued as a rememberance of the dark days. They also speak of Jesus as the Light of the World and where two candlesticks are found on the altar, they speak of the Divine and human natures of Jesus. Through her furnishings the church as a structure teaches when men are silent. It never seems empty even if you are in it by yourself. The Church is a great mother who teaches us that goodness should endure in our lives throughout the week as well as on Sundays and as a house of prayer, its doors should never be shut but always kept open. The Church as an organisation is one to which loyalty, love and devotion should ever respond.

Church Democratic.

Lastly, the Church is democratic in the best sense of he word. She, without pondering, serves her members in whatever circumstances they are placed. The same baptismal service is used for the child of the King as for that of the lowest and poorest. Concluding, the preacher remarked that to utter one's faith means that it is driven back again into His own soul. Attractions should not be allowed to take the place of definite worship. It is a very superficial judgement utter all that charges the Church with formalism.

Mr. Sandy Burrows of Belleville, called on friends in Deloro on Wednesday.

Miss Mildrel Gawley, teacher at S. S. No. 6 was taken ill in school on Monday, in consequence of which her pupils had no school the following day.

Mr. E. S. Bennett is confined to the house through illness.

WORLD'S SPIRIT UNPREPARED

than the ideals behind the Geneva protocol.

Many of the French frankly admitted that Britain's alliance suggestion meant the maintenance of military force in order that the powers in an alliance might be able to preserve the world's peace.

M. Hymans' accepance of Britain's special agreement proposal was followed by the pathetic declaration that the principles behind the protocol would never disappear from human conscience. His hope was that the day would come when the state of men's minds would make it possible to apply them.

Disarmament, it is believed, has received a setback because the virtual temporary rejection of Geneva instrument, which prepared the way for the disarmament conference, has created an entirely new atmosphere of doubt and apprehension. Moreover, League officials declared, the British conception of special treaties, which presumably include Germany, is in nebulous form, and, at all events, based upon the use of armed force.

Slight Hope Remains.

A saving hope here is that a system of pacts may be so arranged as to operate within the frame of some new protocol and be so watertight in affording security that armament reduction will logically follow. Yet this hope is not too strongly entertained, despite British insistence that any special pacts must not only substitute the covenant and be framed in its spirit, but also work with and be guided by the League.

Mr. Chamberlain contended that those brooding fears that keep huge armaments in being have little relation to the ordinary misunderstandings inseparable from international life—misunderstandings with which the League was so admirably fitted to deal. They spring, he said, from deep lying causes of hostility, which for historic or other reasons, divide great and powerful states. If these fears exist, he argued, they cannot effectually be removed by even the most perfect method of dealing with particular disputes by the machinery of inquiry and arbitration.

"For what is feared in such cases," he added "is not injustice but war—war deliberately undertaken for purposes of conquest or revenge."

If so, he asked, could there be better ways of allaying fears like these than by adopting some scheme which would prove to all the world that such a war would fail? He then outlined his special treaty deal.

M. Briand illuminated his address, which was mainly tragic, by sparks of wit, which caused even Mr. Chamberlain to laugh. He predicted that the United States would one day join the League because of her love of idealism and because also a reasonable interpretation of her interests would require it. He lauded the protocol as an instrument which brands war as an international crime, defines aggression and inflicts punishment.

WEDDING BELLS.

POWELL—ILLINGSWORTH

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Knox Manse, by Rev. McKinnon, on Tuesday afternoon, March 10th, when Eva, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Illingsworth, 483 Albert street, and youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearcy of Leeds, Yorkshire, England, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Asa G. Powell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Powel, 10 Lundy's Lane.

Jennie Illingworth, cousin of the bride acted as bridesmaid while Melton Frost supported the groom.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served at the home of the groom. The happy couple will reside in Peterboro.

COURT IMPOSED DEATH PENALTY

The only evidence of suspicion was that the Thorpe parents were keeping Beatrice from him. There was no indication of emotional indifference, and witness said there was no doubt in his mind that Collison knew his act was wrong.

This concluded the evidence.

Counsel Address Jury.

In his forty-five minute address to the jury, Mr. J. M. Godfrey made a strong appeal on behalf of the prisoner, asking the jury to return a verdict of insanity. He scored the prison officials for letting such a man loose in the community. The evidence was, he said, such as to clearly indicate that accused was suffering from dementia praecox.

Mr. McElderry said that when Collison, after the murder, asked permission to go to the Thorpe home to see Beatrice, he must have realized the nature of his act. As he outlined Collison's love for Beatrice, the prisoner was affected very perceptibly, tears streaming down his cheeks.

Leading Spring Fashions

Spring is just around the corner, and feminine thoughts turn to new clothes, which mean so much to the happiness of every fashionable woman, and so her fancy will naturally direct her steps to the McNabb Store, where she will find displays most extensive and interesting.

Coats Suits Frocks

All at prices notably moderate, expressing the McNabb idea of style without extravagance.

Distinctive New Frocks

THAT ANTICIPATE THE TREND OF THE MODE IN MOST BEGUILING WAYS

$25.00 to $65.00

Smart likeable fashions in styles becoming the matron as well as the miss. Including individual New York models exclusive to the McNabb Stores. Developed in Satin, Crepe, Georgette, Crepe Marocaine and Rodier fabrics. Complete choice of spring colors and in sizes for the miss, matron and stout.

New Suits

FOR EVERY HOUR OF THE DAY

$25.00 to $49.75

Tailored models of mannish smartness and simplicity. Fashioned of fine quality tweeds and twill cords.

Springtime Coats

IN THE NEWEST COLORS AND FABRICS

$12.95 to $59.50

Stressing, as always, the slim, straight silhouette, but with many new departures by way of collars and novel sleeve treatments, looped bands of self, fancy braids and button trimmings. On many fur also appears as banding at hem, or gives accent to collar and cuffs. All are beautifully tailored, and come in sizes for stout women, matrons, misses and juniors.

THE COST OF ROADS.

In regard to the gasoline tax it is argued that roads do not exist merely for the benefit of those who drive over them, but are also of benefit to other people, the producer whose goods are hauled to market over them and the consumer who profits because of easier marketing conditions.

That is quite true, but it is not a sound argument against the gasoline tax, for the car-owner shares in these benefits, too, and, in addition, has the benefit of good roads over which to drive.

For this additional privilege, which represents the expenditure of millions of dollars a year, he should pay his fair share of the cost—hence the gasoline tax.

It should not be forgotten that the non-motorist also helps to pay for the roads, but it is surely not justifice to that he should be asked to pay on the same footing as his fellow-citizen who makes daily use of them and helps to wear them out.

THE NORMAL SCHOOL.

A little delving into the public accounts as tabled by Hon. W. H. Price in the Legislature last week reveals the value from a financial viewpoint of the local Provincial Normal School to this city.

The Normal School is as important to Peterboro as some of the local industries, inasmuch as the accounts show that the staff of the institution receives a total salary of $30,500, almost all of which is spent in Peterboro; the Normal School contributes $141.97 to the Utilities Commission for its water supply, fire, light and power, all purchased locally, at a cost of $2,931.92; $1,050.00 is paid to the local Board of Education, and sundry other items run the total up to over $35,000 a year, practically every cent of which goes to local firms.

In addition to this, several hundred students pay a large sum for board in Peterboro for many months in the year, and are purchasers of many articles in the city's stores, the aggregate of trade from their presence in Peterboro reaching a very substantial figure.

Altogether the Normal School represents a cash value each year to Peterboro of not much short of $100,000, and must be viewed as one of the city's most important institutions.

PASSING IT ON TO POSTERITY.

The Citizens' Research Institute in its latest bulletin, a copy of which has just been received by the Examiner, condemns most emphatically the practice of trying to reduce municipal costs by borrowing money.

"The belief in the possibility of a perpetual motion machine is practically extinct," says the bulletin, "but the number of citizens who can be convinced that it is possible to reduce municipal costs by borrowing money is still large, if not increasing."

That is why the candidate for popular favour is still able to juggle the tax rate with brilliant efficiency and put off the evil day of financing retribution until at least his own political generation has passed from the scene and left the field to successors who will have to deal with an irate posterity which, luckily for him, has no votes, during his term.

There are, as the Institute shows, a number of ways of getting even with posterity for what it might do to the present generation if it had the chance.

But do such expedients really lighten the burden of those now living?

When a debt is incurred interest and repayment charges begin at once. The average taxpayer probably expects to live ten, fifteen or twenty years, at the end of which periods the "burden saving" debt will have been discharged at perhaps twice the cost in total payments.

Human life is really too long to pass on burdens effectively to posterity.

The only way we could do this would be to issue the bonds and then commit suicide.

CANADIAN TRADE.

Any one who imagines that Canada is standing still should examine the figures relating to trade. Dealing for the present with exports alone, we find that in 1913 the export of Canadian produce was $355,754,000. The war led to an abnormal increase, the peak of more than a billion and a half being reached in 1918. This was followed by a decline, the lowest point being $740,240,680, in 1922. Then began a process of recovery, the billion mark being approached in 1923 and passed in 1924. The figures published the other day bring the results down to Jan. 30 of this year, and show a further improvement of nearly $44,000,000 over the year ending Jan. 30, 1924, making the total nearly $1,064,000,000, or about three times the value of the exports of 1913.

Of course, allowance must be made for fluctuations in prices, but this works both ways. If prices today are much higher than in 1913 they are much lower than those prevailing in the latter part of the war and for two years afterward, and when this is considered the trade of the past year compares not unfavorably with that of any war year except 1918. When it is remembered also that during the war production was stimulated to the utmost, the fact that we are again approaching the war standard is a most encouraging sign of progress in Canadian industry.

Imports, on the other hand, show a decline in recent years. They reached the peak of nearly a billion and a quarter in 1921. In the year ending March 31 they were under a billion, and in the year ending Jan. 30 of this year they had fallen to less than $800,000,000. A contemporary which is feverishly eager for bad signs tried to explain away the favorable balance by saying that the things we exported were dear and the things we imported cheap. The evidence in support of this remarkable theory is not given, nor is it explained why, if it is sound, Canadians should be down-hearted because their products command good prices in the markets of the world. One is reminded of the young gentlemen described by Shakespeare who would be "as sad as night only for wantonness."—The Globe.

REVIVING THE CANOE.

A lone Canadian canoeist, George Smyth, has been stirring two continents by his exploits. He paddled from Halifax to New York, took ship to England, paddled to France, and has started to make the journey from Paris to Rome by the same means. Recent pictures show his spectacular departure from Paris by jumping off a Seine bridge with the canoe over his head, as if on a portage.

The canoe is the distinct contribution of the North American Indians and early French-Canadian settlers and voyageurs to the transportation facilities of the world. It is easy now to laugh at its commercial possibilities, but when there were no roads and no railways the canoe was the one means of transit on the countless lakes and rivers.

The birch-bark creation, so carefully made, was the basis of the fur trade and of exploration in the great wilds of the North and West. The iron-nerved skill of the "rattling, roving, rollicking rake," as Samuel Matthewson Bayliss called the coureur-de-bois, in running the rapids, sometimes earning the title "white-water man," in reference to the foam, was exhibited in the loneliness of the northern wilds. Explorers sought out the last unknown oceans and wildernesses by use of the canoe, and Sir Alexander Hackenzie journeyed to the Arctic and to the Pacific, mainly in th efrail craft designed by the red men.

As commerce increased the canoe became no longer profitable for transportation. In 1823 Sir George Simpson, resident Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, found that canoe transportation was half as dear again as boat-carrying, and since then the canoe, under the further competition of steamships and railways, has become less and less a factor in commercial life. A year or two ago an Ontario Government party descended the northern slopes by canoe to Hudson Bay, but returned by aeroplane. The contrast had its own meaning for the future of the canoe for business. Various adaptations of the canoe, such as the batteau, in which the Loyalists journeyed up the St. Lawrence to found Ontario in 1784, the Durham boat and the York boat, better fitted for cargo, have been devised and still have their place in the North.

The Canadians had a natural gift for the canoe by habit and temperament. Sir George Simpson made this clear in a note: "Canadians preferable to Orkneymen. Orkneymen less expensive, but slow. Less physical strength and spirits. Obstinate if brought young into the service. Scotch and Irish, when numerous, quarrelsome, independent and mutinous."

There you have the primitive life of the days of the canoe. Today it remains the favorite small craft for pleasure, dotting the waters near the cities and being indispensable for the vacation grounds of the back country. As such its life may be indefinitely prolonged.—The Globe.

FOUR POINT FOUR AN ANTI-CLIMAX.

There is something very refreshing about Premier Ferguson's speech on the Ontario Temperance Act in the Legislature. We have grown frightfully tired of the side-stepping endeavor to please everybody that has been so generally adopted by Canadian politicians. And no subject has lent itself to more twisting and turning and splitting of hairs than the prohibition question. Premier Ferguson's deliverance to the Legislature is the first truly bold utterance on a vital question that we have had from Ontario political leaders since the passing of James Phiny Whitney, whose rugged honesty in the declaration of his views brought him the respect and sometimes support of many voters who did not always agree with his policy.

It required some courage for Premier Ferguson to speak his mind without restraint on a problem so full of high explosive. For it must be remembered that a majority of the constituencies in the last referendum gav eevidence that they are opposed to the Premier's line of thought. He slashed into the Ontario Prohibition Union in a manner that members of that Union will doubtless greatly resent; he charged the prohibitionists with failing to do their duty and with using the stiletto; he dared to say that sentiment in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act is at ebb tide.

"If the prohibition question comes into party politics as a party question," said Mr. Ferguson, "then I am content, and there will be no more referendums because this Government will take responsibility for its actions and we will not do as has been done before, ask private members to move Sandy bills or McCreary resolutions." These are fine words, brave words; they make an appeal to the sporting blood in us. We are constrained to hope that the days of hypocrisy among politicians are at an end for a while in the Toronto legislative halls.

The only pity is that such a gallant stand should not have been made for a policy with a little more kick behind it than is to be contained in the new beer. If 4.4 beer is non-intoxicating, how is it going to save the O.T.A. and help to put the bootlegger and the illicit stills out of business? If 4.4 of alcohol is harmless, why the necessity of providing, as Mr. Ferguson says he will provide, "that it shall be sold by those only who get a permit at a nominal charge in places which we approve and not sold to boys under eighteen nor in candy booths and other similar establishments"?

Premier Ferguson has roused all the ire of the prohibitionists and he has taken as strong a stand against them as he possibly could take; but he has not met at all the demands of those who want Government sale of real beer and whiskey. Premier Ferguson finds justification for his introduction of 4.4 beer in the fact that cities like Toronto and Ottawa voted against the O.T.A. in the referendum and that there is a growth of opinion against prohibition, but the majorities in Toronto and Ottawa and the other places certainly voted for something better than 4.4 beer.

It seems to the Journal that Premier Ferguson is spending his energies on a cause that isn't worth bothering about. Four point four beer is an anti-climax to his splendid stand.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The liquor export trade between Chippawa and "Cuba" and "Mexico" is at end. Neither Cuba or Mexico will notice any falling off in trade as a result.

National prohibition is the aim of the Dominion Alliance. The Quebec organizers will not have to complain of lack of work when they try to "sell" that policy to the people of the sister Province.

According to some authorities, Babe Ruth is in bad shape financially. Nothing to look forward to but $50,000 salary and a possible slice of the World's Series money.

A THOUGHT.

A GOOD RECIPE.

To be honest, to be kind—to earn a little and spend a little less, to make upon the whole a family happier for his presence, to renounce when that shall be necessary and not to be embittered, to keep a few friends, but these without capitulation—above all on the same grim conditions, to keep friends with himself—here is a task for all that a man has of fortitude and delicacy.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 12.—The fact that there is a probability that export buyers may be out of the market next week, has taken a little of the edge off, and trade may not be quite so keen as in the opening markets of this week. At the moment no word has yet been received that any vessel space will be available from shipping ports next week, though it is probable that word may be received later. In the event of there being no boat, buying of export cattle will be limited to a few loads that would of necessity have to be carried over for a week or more at added expense.

For this reason some of the commission houses are advising their customers not to overload the market next week with too heavy shipments. Although the market was well cleaned up yesterday, and today's small receipts were quickly disposed of, there was a little shading off in prices, the market generally averaging about ten cents lower on all grades of cattle.

Small meats steady with light receipts.

Hogs are firmer, the market settling yesterday at 25c higher, on basis of $13.25, thick smooth, off cars.

Prices in the various sections are as follows:

Export cattle, choice and heavy steers, $7.75 to $8.50; bulls, $4.50 to $5.25; heifers, $6.50 to $7.25; stores, $6.60 to $7.

Choice butchers, $7.25 to $7.65; medium, $6.50 to $6.90; common, $5.25 to $5.50; baby beeves, $8.50 to $9.

Choice fat cows, $4.75 to $5.50.

Stockers and feeders, choice shortkeep feeders, 1,000 to 1,200 lbs., $6.75 to $7.25; choice stockers, 830 to 950 lbs., $5.50 to $6; light western stock, $4.25 to $4.50; choice western, $6.25 to $6.75.

Calves, steady.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs, $12.25 f.o.b.; $13.25 off cars; selects, off cars, $2.52 per head premium.

A PARTNER OF SUNLIGHT

Cod-liver oil has aptly been called the partner of sunlight. Both out of Nature's storehouse of energy are of supreme importance to a child with rickets.

Scott's Emulsion

and sunlight have been used for decades to give strength to weak-bones. A little of Scott's Emulsion with each feeding does wonders for a malnourished child or adult.

Keep your boy or girl out in the sunlight and give them Scott's Emulsion everyday—regularly!

PORT INSPECTED FOR RECEIVING CANADIAN FISH

London Business Men Visit Newport in Monmouthshire —Facilities Adequate.

MAKING PROGRESS

Importers Have Hopes of Admitting Meat and Dairy Products.

LONDON, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—A large party of commercial and business men from London, interested in the importation of fish from Canada, yesterday visited Newport, Monmouthshire, and inspected the facilities this port has to offer for the development of this trade.

Although the business has as yet only reached the experimental stage, the results are highly encouraging. Six tons of Nova Scotian fish were recently sold at Billingsgate and at Glasgow and on two French markets, the dealers of which, although skeptical at first, afterwards admitted that buyers for the big hotels and stores had been unable to distinguish between the Canadian fish and that ordinarily offered.

Attention has been more particularly directed to Newport as an incoming point by reason of the existence of a large area of covered sheds, now vacant, which adjoin the quays and railways, and which could be readily converted into markets. Ambitions of importers are not confined merely to Canadian fish, but hopes are entertained of admitting Canadian dairy products and meat on a large scale.

A tentative scheme has already been negotiated with the Canadian Government Mercantile Marine for chartering steamers.

Among the participants in Thursday's inspection at Newport was Chief Inspector of Fisheries Cowies, of Ottawa, who has just arrived to report on the situation generally.

The Great Western Railway has promised to provide a quick special service from Newport to British marketing centres and the chief continental markets.

Apart from this a population of ten millions exists within one hundred miles radius of Newport. The party returned to London greatly impressed with the opportunities this port offers in this line, one Canadian, a recent arrival here, remarking that he had seen more shipping at Newport than he had ever beheld at Montreal, though until yesterday he had never heard of Newport.

FEW SAILING SHIPS

Only About 125 Left in Commission Now—Only 5 British.

HULL, England, March 13.—(Associated Press).—Windjammers have become so scarce on the high seas that to-day a sailing vessel of any kind attracts more or less attention in almost any port, and especially after a long voyage. In the eyes of seafaring men the full rigged ship is rapidly disappearing and it has been estimated that there are but 125 of this type of vessel in commission in all the world to-day. Of these only five are owned by British interests, compared with hundreds a few years ago.

After one of the worst voyages ever recorded on her log, the four-masted German sailing ship Georg Kemme arrived in Hull recently from Mobile, Ala., loaded with cotton, after being marked up as nearly five weeks overdue. The ship was caught in a West Indies hurricane in December, blown back on her course for hundreds of miles, lost most of her sails, and was nearly dismantled. She was on the verge of being tossed ashore when her anchors caught and held just in the nick of time.

THE EDITOR.

ELECTRIC POWER EXPORT.

To the Editor, The Examiner.

Dear Sir: On March 4, 1925, a report was tabled in the House of Commons, showing 532,000 H.P. of Hydro-Electric energy generated, and of this amount 317,000 H.P. was used in Canada and 214,000 H.P. exported, during the last year.

Isn't it singular that we expect over one-third of our Hydro-Electric product, and see Toronto and other home town places struggling along with a power famine at their door?

Why not put an embargo on the export, and relieve our home famine immediately?

Has anybody ever heard of any Hydro-Electric Power being imported into Canada? Yours truly,

W. O. SEALEY, 61 Hunter St. W.

MORE ABOUT DANCE.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: In reply to the letter in The Examiner of March 6 re the disorderly conduct on Friday evening, February 27 in a certain hall, the management of the dance held in Victoria Hall is not blamed, neither are they held responsible for the actions of individuals outside the dance hall, but on several occasions when disorderly conduct has been going on in the hallway underneath; it has always been on the night of a dance in Victoria Hall and a further menace is obvious that in the careless handling of matches, cigarettes, etc., it might eventually bring about the destruction of the building by fire. EYE-WITNESS.

IN DEFENCE OF EMPIRE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir: In the current number of The Listening Post a man signing himself "Bostonian," makes an unjustifiable attack upon Great Britain, an attack that should never have appeared in any reputable Canadian magazine.

Referring to the possibility of a Japanese invasion of the Pacific coast, he intimates that Canada would in such an event be dependent entirely upon the American navy and air force. After hinting at the possible invasion of Canadian neutrality in case of a clash with Japan, this writer says, "As far as the British Navy is concerned it is, of course, quite open to question whether Britain would join America in a contest with Japan." Doubtful, he says, whether Britain would defend Canadian neutrality! The lion cubs rushed to aid the old lion when she was hard pressed—and "Bostonian" thinks the mother might refuse to defend her favored cub! And he may remember, although American memory is remarkably short except where debtors are concerned, that at that time the old lion bared her fangs in defense of a foreign nation's homes. And the American eagle screamed—and screamed; and then screamed some more.

However, to leave unpleasant memories and revert to the more instant unpleasantness in Bostonian's creed, it is to be noticed that he adds insult to his libel. After saying it is open to question whether Britain would join with America against Japan—even, he implies, if Canadian neutrality were violated by the latter—he says: "Personally, I am inclined to think that she would wait a few years, until the British nation recovered some of the millions they paid or promised America during the last war. . . . We shall be compelled to use your airplane fields, your wireless stations and any forts you may have, if we are to help you "defend your neutrality."

The Listening Post originated as a Canadian Soldiers' magazine on the battlefield, does itself no credit in the publication of Bostonian's rabid attack on the British Empire.

Did he ever look outside the despatches about the American Expeditionary Force to read about those other fighters—the men of the British armies who for two years held the enemy on three continents and on six fronts, and helped their Allies on two more fronts? Did he everlook beyond United States less than 36,000 dead in that war—fewer than Canada sacrificed for the motherland and the humanity United States prates about and neglects—to see the 658,000 dead of the British Empire?

And then he writes of secession—and protection by United States for Canada—and insults Canada by lecturing her as one might a naughty child.

Referring to the bond of Empire, Bostonian writes: "The tender link of allegiance has gone—completely busted—and you have nothing left but a flag, and only some of you know what it is or use it."

The Listening Post, though published in Montreal, should still be more sane than to publish such falsehood, and nonsense. Yours truly,

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

WINNIPEG FUR AUCTION

Total Sales Thursday Aggregated $150,000.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13.—Three thousand beaver skins offered Thursday morning at the fur auction sale met keen demand. Average lots sold up to $20; large and extra skins brought $27 and selects as high as $32, most of the offering was sold at prices about that prevailing in the open market.

Marten sold well. Top prices were $41; while the average was $16 to $24. Northern Alberta and Northern Manitoba were most sought after.

Total sales aggregated $150,000.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

The yelp in his throat died in a gurgle, and the next moment he was going through the pantomimic actions of Aapoos, who was having his vengeance inside him. For the life of him Baree could not keep from dancing about, while the wire grew tighter and tighter about his neck. When he snapped at the wire and flung his weight of his body to the ground, the sapling would bend obligingly, and then—in its rebound—would yank him for an instant completely off the earth. Furiously he struggled. It was a miracle that the fine wire held him. In a few moments more it must have broken—but McTaggart had heard him! Factor caught up his blanket and a heavy stick as he hurried toward the snare. It was not a rabbit making these sounds—he knew that. Perhaps a fisher-cat—a lynx, a fox, a young wolf——

It was the wolf he thought of first when he saw Baree at the end of the wire. He dropped the blanket and raised the club. If there had been clouds overhead, or the stars had been less brilliant, Baree would have died as surely as Wapoos had died. With the club raised over his head McTaggart saw in time the white star, the white-tipped ear, and the jet black of Baree's coat.

With a swift movement he exchanged the club for the blanket.

In that hour, could McTaggart have looked ahead to the days that were to come, he would have used the club.

CHAPTER XII.

Half an hour later Bush McTaggart's fire was burning brightly again. In the glow of it Baree lay trussed up like an Indian papoose, tied into a balloon-shaped ball with babiche thong, his head alone showing where his captor had cut a hole for it in the blanket. He was hopelessly caught—so closely imprisoned in the blanket that he could scarcely move a muscle of his body. A few feet away from him McTaggart was bathing a bleeding hand in a basin of water. There was also a red streak down the side of McTaggart's bullish neck.

"You little devil!" he snarled at Baree. "You little devil!"

He reached over suddenly and gave Baree's head a vicious blow with his heavy hand.

"I ought to beat your brains out—and I believe I will!"

The stick fell. It fell again and again, and when McTaggart was done, Baree lay half stunned, his eyes partly closed by the blows, and his mouth bleeding.

"That's the way to take the devil out of a wild dog," snarled McTaggart. "I guess you won't try the biting game again, eh, youngster? A thousand devils—but you went almost to the bone of this hand!"

He began washing the wound again. Baree's teeth had sunk deep, and there was a troubled look in the Factor's face. It was July—a bad month for bites. From his kit he got a small flask of whiskey and turned a bit of the raw liquor on the wound, cursing Baree as it burned into his flesh.

Baree's half-shut eyes were fixed on him steadily. He knew that at last he had met the deadliest of all his enemies. And yet he was not afraid. The club in Bush McTaggart's hand had not killed his spirit. It had killed his fear. It had roused in him a hatred such as he had never known—not even when he was fighting Oohoomisew, the outlaw owl. The vengeful animosity of the wolf was burning in him now, along with the savage courage of the dog. He did not flinch when McTaggart approached him again. He made an effort to raise himself, that he might spring at this man-monster. In the effort, swaddled up as he was in the blanket, he rolled over in a helpless and ludicrous heap.

They began to journey before the sun was up, for if Baree's blood was almost dead within him, Bush McTaggart's was scorching his body with the heat of his anticipation. He made his last plans as he walked swiftly through the forest with Baree under his arm. He would send Pierrot at once for Father Grotin at the Mission seventy miles to the west. He would marry Nepeese—yes, marry her! That would tickle Pierrot. And he would be alone with Nepeese while Pierrot was gone for the missioner.

This thought flamed McTaggart's blood like strong whiskey. There was no thought in his hot and unreasoning brain of what she might think. He was not after the soul of her. His hand clenched, and he laughed harshly as there flashed on him for an instant the thought that Pierrot would not want to give her up. Pierrot! Bah! It would not be the first time he had killed a man—or the second.

McTaggart laughed again, and he walked the faster. There was no chance of his losing—no chance for Nepeese to get away from him. He—Bush McTaggart—was lord of this wilderness, master of its people, arbiter of their destinies. He was power—and the law.

The sun was well up when Pierrot, standing in front of his cabin with Nepeese, pointed to a rise in the trail three or four hundred yards away, over which McTaggard had just appeared.

"He is coming."

With a face which had aged since last night, he looked at Nepeese. Again he saw the dark glow in her eyes and the deepening red of her parted lips, and his heart was sick again with dread. Was it possible——

She turned on him, her eyes shining, her voice trembling.

"Remember, Nootawe—you must send him to me for his answer," she cried quickly, and she darted into the cabin. With a cold, gray face, Pierrot faced Bush McTaggart.

CHAPTER XIII.

From the window, her face screened by the folds of the curtain which she had made for it, the Willow saw what happened outside. She was not smiling now. She was breathing quickly, and her body was tense. Bush McTaggart paused not a dozen feet from the window and shook hands with Pierrot, her father. She heard McTaggart's coarse voice, his boisterous greeting, and then she saw him showing Pierrot what he carried under his arm. There came to her distinctly his explanation of how he had caught his captive in a rabbit-snare. He unwrapped the blanket. Nepeese gave a cry of amazement. In an instant she was out beside them. She did not look at McTaggart's red face, blazing in its joy and exultation.

"It is Baree!" she cried.

She took the bundle from McTaggart and turned to Pierrot.

"Tell him that Baree belongs to me," she said.

On the floor of the cabin Nepeese dropped on her knees and finished unwrapping the blanket. She was not afraid of Baree. She had forgotten McTaggart. And then, as Baree rolled in a limp heap on the floor, she saw his half-closed eyes and the dry blood on his jaws, and the light left her face as swiftly as the sun is shadowed by a cloud.

"Baree," she cried softly. "Baree—Baree!"

She partly lifted him in her two hands. Baree's head sagged. His body was numbed until he was powerless to move. His legs were without feeling. He could scarcely see. But he heard her voice! It was the same voice that had come to him that day he had felt the sting of the bullet, the voice that had pleaded with him under the rock!

The voice of the Willow thrilled Baree. It seemed to stir the sluggish blood in his veins, and he opened his eyes wider and saw again the wonderful stars that had glowed at him so softly the day of Wakayoo's death. One of the Willow's long braids fell over her shoulder, and he smelled again the sweet scent of her hair as her hand caressed him and her voice talked to him. Then she got up suddenly and left him, and he did not move while he waited for her. In a moment she was back with a basin of water and a cloth. Gently she washed the blood from his eyes and mouth. And still Baree made no move. He scarcely breathed. But Nepeese saw the little quivers that shot through his body when her hand touched him, like electric shocks.

"He beat you with a club," she was saying, her dark eyes within a foot of Baree's. "He beat you! That man-beast!"

There came an interruption. The door opened, and the man-beast stood looking down on them, a grin on his red face. Instantly Baree showed that he was alive. He sprang back from under the Willow's hand with a sudden snarl and faced McTaggart. The hair of his spine stood up like a brush; his fangs gleamed menacingly, and his eyes burned like living coals.

"There is a devil in him," said McTaggart. "He is wild—born of the wolf. You must be careful or he will take off a hand, ka sakahet!" It was the first time he had called her that lover's name in Cree—Sweetheart! Her heart pounded. She bent her head for a moment over her clenched hands, and McTaggart, looking down on what he thought her confusion, laid his hand caressingly on her hair. From the door Pierrot had heard the word, and now he saw the caress, and he raised a hand as if to shut out the sight of a sacrilege.

"Non Dieu!" he breathed.

In the next instant he had given a sharp cry of wonder that mingled with a sudden yell of pain from McTaggart. Like a flash Baree had darted across the floor and fastened his teeth in the Factor's leg. They had bitten deep before McTaggart freed himself with a powerful kick. With an oath he snatched his revolver from its holster. The Willow was ahead of him. With a little cry she darted to Baree and caught him in her arms. As she looked up at McTaggart, her soft, bare throat was within a few inches of Baree's naked fangs. Her eyes blazed.

"You beat him!" she cried. "He hates you—hates you——"

"Let him go!" called Pierrot in an agony of fear.

"Mon Dieu! I say let him go, or he will tear the life from you!"

"He hates you—hates you—hates you——" the Willow was repeating over and over again into McTaggart's startled face. Then suddenly to her father, "No, he will not tear the life from me," she cried. "See! It is Baree. Did I not tell you that? It is Baree! Is it not proof that he defended me——"

"From me!" gasped McTaggart, his face darkening.

Pierrot advanced and laid a hand on McTaggart's arm. He was smiling.

"Let us leave them to fight it out between themselves, m'sieu," he said. "They are two little firebrands, and we are not safe. If she is bitten——"

He shrugged his shoulders. A great load had been lifted from them suddenly. His voice was soft and persuasive. And now the anger had gone out of the Willow's face. A coquettish uplift of her eyes caught McTaggart, and she looked straight at him half smiling, as she spoke to her father:

"I will join you soon, mon pere—you and M'sieu the Factor from Lac Bain!"

"For economy's sake I buy a supply and let it age"

—says Mrs. Experience, speaking of the economical use of soap.

"I always keep a good supply of Sunlight Soap on the shelf because I find that Sunlight actually improves with age. It becomes harder and so goes much further.

"With this added economy of lasting longer, I've learned that Sunlight is by far the most economical soap I can buy. The reason is that every particle of Sunlight is pure, cleansing soap—a little of it does a lot of work. Sunlight, you know, is guaranteed to contain no injurious chemicals or harsh filling materials to make the bar large and hard. These filling materials, of course, are just so much waste as far as cleaning goes.

"To any woman who wants to get real cleaning value out of a soap for her money, I decidedly say, 'Use Sunlight,' and keep a good supply on the shelf." Sunlight is made by Lever Brothers Limited, largest soap-makers in the world.

LINDSAY, March 13.—J. B. Chamberlain, Lindsay's stormy petrel and the man who unsuccessfully contested the mayoralty two years ago against ex-Mayor Carew, is again in the limelight as the result of a charge of assault preferred against him by the turnkey of the county jail. Mr. Chamberlain has also given notice that he will institute a damage action for $3,000 against the town, as he alleges he contracted certain troubles while being incarcerated in the county jail some time tgo, pending examination for insanity. At the time of his committal, Mr. Chamberlain was charged with carrying firearms, and the question of his sanity was raised by the County Crown Attorney. Mr. Chamberlain at the time remarked that the only evidence of imbecility so far was concerned was in the fact that he continued to live in Lindsay.

In his letter to the council, Mr. Chamberlain refers to the indignities which he claims he was subjected to while in the county jail. He was unable to take a bath, his bed was not clean, and one night he discovered on his person an insect of the genus Phthirius inquinalis. He captured the prowler, so he declared, and despatched him on his collar, intending to use it as "Exhibit A," but it could not be found in the morning. After leaving the jail, he declares he suffered bodily torment as a result of the itching sensation experienced. Hence the action for damages.

In another letter to the council, Chamberlain pertinently asks how he was to make a living. He charges that during his term in jail, neighbors allowed their hens to enter his garden and destroy his vegetable corp. As a result of this loss, he declared, both he and his wife were on short rations. He claimed recompense from the town for the loss sustained.

Mr. Chamberlain also asserted that the magistrate who had sentenced him to jail, later informed him that he could see nothing wrong with his actions in court. He further declares that the magistrate had no authority to send an insane man to the county jail. Mr. Chamberlain informed the council that he had visited the Attorney-General's Department in Toronto, and had been advised to place his case before the town council.

On Monday last, while Mr. Chamberlain was attending a court session at the court house, he became engaged in a conversation with the turnkey relative to the alleged condition of the jail quarters in which he was confined. It is charged that Mr. Chamberlain laid his hand on the official, and also called him a liar. In self defence, the turnkey hit back, and there is no telling what might have happened had not other officials intertered. The outcome of the assault charge as well as Chamberlain's threatened damage action against the town is awaited with interest.

SEWING COURSE BY INSTITUTE

Marmora Women Discuss Plans for Couse Beginning Next Week.

MANY ACTIVITIES

MARMORA, March 12.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute of Marmora was held at the home of Mrs. D. R. Clare on Wednesday evening.

The main business of the evening was planning for the sewing course, which is being taken up by the ladies under the direction of Miss Collins. This is to commence on March 16th. Arrangements were made for securing the required number to take the course and for the hall, sewing machines, etc., for the course.

It was announced that the public meeting for the summer course would be June 26th.

A date was set for the programme committee to meet.

Mrs. Clare gave a short account of the life of Miss Martha Ostenso, that brilliant young writer who won the $13,500 prize last October.

Miss Ostenso was born in Norway, but at the age of 2 years, the family moved to North Dakota and later to Manitoba. Miss Ostenso got her later education in Brandon, and Winnipeg. She served on the staff of the Manitoba Free Press. Then joined the ranks of pedagogues and taught in an Icelandic settlement on the banks of Lake Manitoba. Here she got the material and inspiration for the book, with which she was so successful. Although it was not written until some time later when she was in social service work in New York. She has also written a book of poems, "The Far Land."

Miss Taft delighted those present with an instrumental solo.

Told of Trip.

Mrs. A. P. Williams of Bonar Law, gave an account of her trip to England and Scotland last summer. Starting from Montreal, she traced their trip down the majestic St. Lawrence and across the Atlantic, up the Clyde to Glasgow. In describing the wonderful work on the Clyde river, the question was asked, "Did Glasgow make the Clyde or the Clyde make Glasgow?" Loch Lomond was visited and the spots made famous in the "Lady of the Lake," also the home of Robert Burns.

In England many historic places were visited, including the mint and Westminster Abbey. All through her descriptions, Mrs. Williams wove the history of the past with the descriptions of the present in a most fascinating manner.

Scope of Education.

Mrs. Brown of Bonar Law, who is District President of the W. I., spoke next. She spoke on education being three-fold, Intellectual, Physical and Moral. She said our Institute was doing its part intellectually by keeping up the public library of the town, but she felt there was a need for the women of the community to help the young girls morally. The present age seems to be one of liberty, too much freedom among the young people and a general laxity of conduct that caused the young people to lose respect for themselves and for others. She made an appeal to mothers to try and help, even at the expense of being thought old-fashioned. One judge in speaking of these present conditions, gave as the reason:

(1) Lack of parental guidance and control.
(2) Automobiles.
(3) The immodest dance.

A short discussion followed.

Miss Taft again gave a much appreciated piano solo.

A contest followed which was won by Mrs. Brown.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Those present were: Msr. Gladney, Mrs. (Dr.) Jones, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Donnelly, Mrs. Doupe, Mrs. Nickle, Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Sanderson, Miss Taft, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Bleecker, Mrs. Clare, Mrs. B. Osborne, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Pitts.

Personals.

Mrs. H. Conner went to Madoc on Wednesday on account of the serious illness of her brother.

Mrs. Victoria Nickle returned home on Monday after a week's visit in the country.

Mr. S. Burroughs, of Belleville, was a visitor in town on Wednesday.

Mrs. Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jones motored to Belleville on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell of Toronto, have moved to town and are staying with her mother, Mrs. R. O. Jones.

On Tuesday night Miss Stella McGarvey entertained a number of friends as a farewell to Miss Vetta Vandusen.

Miss Vandusen left for her new home in Trenton on Wednesday.

Extensive Arrangements Are Being Made For Annual Affair.

The meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association Board of Directors was held on Monday afternoon. The reports of work in the different departments were very encouraging.

Extensive arrangements for the Annual Gymnasium Pageant to be held in the Grand Opera House on May 1 and 2, are being made and the pageant promises to be even better than last year's record. Members of the board were asked to give as much time as possible to the sewing as there are still about 300 costumes to be made.

A new class to be started this month will be the St. John Ambulance First Aid course. This course is being promoted at the request of a number of people who realize how worth while it is.

It was decided to hold the annual meeting of the Association on May 15, and as this year is the 21st anniversary in the present building the meeting will take the form of a "coming of age" party. Invitations to be present will be sent to all former presidents and secretaries. An item of interest to all who have been connected with the "Y" during the last ten years will be the burning of the Swimming Pool mortgage.

Mrs. J. D. Richardson gave a talk on the work of the Y.W.C.A. in foreign countries and the members who were present contributed generously toward the $150 which the girl members are raising as Peterborough's share toward the work in Japan. A gift of $30 from three members will be a great encouragement to the girls.

MAKE WEMBLEY BETTER THAN EVER

Authorities Hope to Arrange Excursions to Bring Tourists.

LONDON, March 13.—It is the intention of the authorities to make the Wembley Exhibition of 1925 far beter than of 1924.

"From the day it opens during the first week of May," said Sir Travers Clarke recently, "we are going to make the British Empire Exhibition go with a swing." The new Wembley will be much more a social center than last year, he added, and provincial districts are already planning for a greater invasion of London. It is hoped, however, that the steamship companies that are now arranging tourist excursions to the United States and other countries will reverse the procedure later and bring visitors from those lands to Wembley.

SMALLEST THING VISIBLE

Scientist Says Spots on Soap Films Are Least Eye Can See.

LONDON, March 13.—The tiniest things which the human eye can see are the black spots and patches sometimes visible in soap bubbles, said Sir William Bragg, lecturing recently on "Ray and Soap Films" at the Royal Institution.

The rainbow-colored soap films are, therefore, not the tiniest things the human eye can detect. The black areas are so thin that if the soap bubbles could be magnified to the size of the earth and the thickness of the enveloping film increased in proportion, the film would then be only the thickness of a sheet of glass.

NEWS OF HAVELOCK

Many Organizations Hold Meetings—Prepare for Bazaar.

HAVELOCK, March 13—The Ladies Aid Society of Knox Church met on Wednesday in the basement of the church.

About sixteen of the members were present and during the afternoon two quilts were quilted. Lunch was served at the conclusion and a most profitable afternoon's work was completed.

W.C.T.U. Met.

The regular meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. (Rev.) Stanley and although the attendance was small a very pleasant social time was spent.

Y.W.A. Meeting.

The Young Womens' Auxiliary of Knox Church met at the home of Mrs. David Greenley on Tuesday evening with a fair attendance.

After the business of the evening which included plans for the St. Patrick's Tea on Tuesday next, the balance of the evening was spent in doing fancy work in preparation for the bazaar to be held at Easter.

WOMEN GET JOBS

Female Unemployed Being Absorbed Faster Than Men.

LONDON, March 13.—(Associated Press).—The women and girls of England are being absorbed back into industry far more quickly than the men and boys, according to recent statistics on unemployment. Hair dressing, owing to the bobbed hair craze, has given employment to a large number of young women who earn better wages than the men barbers because of the extra charges made for trimming bobbed locks. Men in London pay approximately 25 cents for a hair cut, while women pay double that amount.

Last spring there were 300,000 women among the unemployed of Great Britain, while today the number is something like 250,000. Although about 1,000,000 extra women and girls are now at work compared with the figures of the year before the beginning of the war, women and girls together do not represent one-quarter of the total number of unemployed. Government officials say there is every indication that the number of unemployed, both men and women, will be greatly reduced during this year.

WAIT YEAR FOR RESULT

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Mar. 13.—(United Press).—At least a year must elapse before astronomers know exactly what they learned from the eclipse of the sun on January 24, according to Dr. S. A. Mitchell, director of the Leander McCormick Observatory, of the University of Virginia, here. Mitchell is a world authority on the sun and solar phenomena.

Mitchell expects to complete his work of measuring the lines in the "flash spectrum" of the sun's chromosphere — the incandescent gases that surround the orb—in that time. There are more than 4,000 lines to be measured carefully and compared with previous photographs of the spectrum, which is taken just at the moment of totality and when totality ends.

The best previous photographs of the flash spectrum were taken by Mitchell in 1905 in Spain, where he journeyed with a party of the United States Naval Observatory. Conditions were very favorable for observations this year, however, and his results may even surpass those of two score years ago.

On the outcome of his measurements depend the possible solution of many important problems, such as the nature of the various layers of gases that cover the sun, how they affect the spectra of the photosphere or the sun's surface, their heights above the surface, and just where the "reversing layer" which has baffled solar physicists by its absorbing of solar radiations just above the sun's surface.

4 out of 5 are victims

The law of averages is immutable. Dental statistics prove that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are marred by Pyorrhea. Do you want to escape?

It takes healthy gums to keep healthy teeth

Bleeding gums are Nature's first warning of Pyorrhea. Then they begin to recede, lose that rich, pink color. Disease-breeding poisons collect in pus pockets and often drain through the entire system.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea, or check its progress—something ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to do. It contains just the right proportion of Forhan's Astringent (as used by the dental profession in the treatment of Pyorrhea). It is safe, efficient and pleasant tasting. Even if you don't care to discontinue your favorite dentifrice, at least start using Forhan's once a day.

PETERBORO

BANK COMMERCE MANAGER FROM PRINCE ALBERT

A. J. Reynolds Takes Over Peterboro Branch From W. H. Dunsford.

BIG SEND-OFF

New-comer Was Associated With a Dozen Projects in West.

(Prince Albert Daily Herald.)

Citizens of Prince Albert and district gathered in large numbers at a banquet at the Avenue Hotel to offer a tangible expression of the appreciation of the many services of A. J. Reynolds, for five years manager of the Prince Albert branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and at various times a vice-president of the Prince Albert Board of Trade, vice-president of the Prince Albert Choral Society, an active member of the Agricultural Society's directorate, head of the local Knights of Columbus organisation, president of the Prince Albert Motor League, one of the originators of the Prince Albert Golf Club, a charter member of the Kiwanis and Keewatin Clubs, chairman of the Separate School Board, a president of the Saskatchewan Associated Boards of Trade, the North-Eastern Saskatchewan Associated Boards of Trade, of the Prince Albert Bankers' Association, and a jolly good friend an dcompanion to boot, all given willingy and efficiently on behalf of the community.

Mr. Reynolds has been transferred to the managership of the Peterborough, Ont., branch of the bank. He is succeeded here by Allan McKenzie, who was present at last evening's proceedings and was extended a warm welcome.

Silver Tea Service.

The presentation took the form of a silver tea service which was handed to Mr. Reynolds with all good wishes for Mrs. Reynods, their family and himself by ex-Mayor Davis. Mayor S. J. A. Branion presided and other speakers on the programme were ex-Mayor T. C. Davis, P. W. Mahon, president of the Prince Albert Board of Trade; T. Bibby, president of the Prince Albert Agricultural Society; S. N. Davidson, of the Bankers' Clearing House Association; J. B. Kernaghan, president of the Kiwanis Club; and C. S. Lacroix representing the Knights of Columbus.

The gathering was one of the largest of its kind ever assembled in Prince Albert, and was representative of the many sided conspicuous services Mr. Reynolds has rendered while here.

Chairman's Address.

Mayor Branion, opening the expressions of esteem to Mr. Reynolds, said that it was a general belief that public service was the most thankless service, but that belief was getting a jolt that night, and it was a matter for congratulation that so many could get together to pay respect to one who had served the community so well.

He was born in Sligo, Ireland, and left Irelana in 1883 to go to St. Thomas, Ont. He joined the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London, Ontario. Since he came to Prince Albert in 1920, he had been connected with nearly all the different things which had been promoted for the welfare of the city.

Mr. Reynolds had also given unstintingly of his time to the business interests of the district, and particularly to the farming community.

Board of Trade President.

Ex-Alderman P. W. Mahon, president of the Prince Albert Board of Trade, said that they felt that Mr. Reynolds would assist in putting the Western viewpoint before their Eastern friends. The city would undoubtedly gain a great deal by having a man like him in Ontario, and one thing he would have to tell the East was that they must build the Hudson Bay Railway.

T. Bibby, president of the Prince Albert Agricultural Society, added his mede of praise and said that their guest had been an ideal citizen, and a friend to the farmer. If a farmer wanted a couple of hundred dollars from him, he could get it, but Mr. Bibby did not know how the next applicant fared.

S. N. Davidson, chairman of the Bankers' Clearing House Association, was sorry to think that Mr. Reynolds was leaving the West, which they could describe as the front-line trenches of the battles of Canada, and going back to the reserve, but perhaps the East was taking him to jazz it up, and he took with him all the good wishes of the bank men in the city.

President of the Kiwanis Club.

J. B. Kernaghan said Mr. Reynolds had always been a leader — one who told the boys to come on, not one who merely told them how to do things and they wished him God-speed.

Alderman C. S. Lacroix on behalf of the Knights of Columbus also wished Mr. Reynolds prosperity. He had been a power in fraternal work.

Mr. Reynolds arrives in Peterborough this week to take over his new duties.

TOKIO SUBWAY PLANS

TOKIO, March 13.—Plans for the proposed Tokio municipal subway system have so far advanced that the committee in charge is ready to submit the scheme to the Government. The system is to consist of about 50 miles of underground trackage and the estimated cost is $100,000,000. The project is to be completed within 15 years and the greater part of the funds is expected to be raised by foreign loans.

BUTTERFLIES AT GREAT ALTITUDES

Animal Life Found on Mount Everest Far Beyond Snowline.

LONDON, March 13.—(Associated Press.)— The cannibal spiders that live near the top of Mt. Everest exist at higher altitudes than any other animals known to man. They were described recently to the Royal Geographical Society by Major R. W. G. Hingston, naturalist of the Mt. Everest expedition of 1924.

These spiders live in inslands of broken rock surrounded by snow and ice, and for food they eat one another. Traces of this permanent animal existence were found far above the Himalayan snow line, and some 4,000 feet above the last vegetable growth, Major Hingston explained.

A general idea of the natural life on the mountainous desert of the Tibetan plateau was given in the lecture. The atmosphere is so dry that the skin and nails of human beings split, and the ordinary decomposition of flesh is prevented altogether.

Wild sheep and mountain hares climb up the ranges, even to the barren slopes at 17,000 feet. "There is a little red-start which builds its nest at the same inhospitable height, and we found grasshoppers at 18,000 feet, near the furthest limit of vegetable growth," Major Hingston declared.

"There were bees, moths and even butterflies at 21,000 feet," he said, "and cloughs, a kind of crow, at the immense height of 27,000 feet."

To contend with the scarcity of food in those regions, some of the birds had specially modified bills for digging into frozen soil, so that they might reach hibernating insects. Burrowing and hibernating are the means by which many animals escape the extreme cold and manage to exist.

Some birds formed communities with mammals. Many little birds associated with mouse-hares, and there was perfect confidence and harmony among them. At greater heights, was an association of cloughs and wild sheep. The clough sits on the sheep's back, and searches for insects in the animal's hair.

MARKET FOR LOCUSTS

South Africa Ships 18 Tons of Insects to Holland.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, March 13. —(Associated Press).—Locusts, the plague of South Africa, may yet be found to have a commercial value. Eighty-eight bales of the insects, dried, weighing 18 tons, were forwarded recently from Kazerne to Durban for shipment to Holland. It is recalled here that an oil for use in airplane engines, which retains its liquidity at very high altitudes, can be extracted from locusts, and that a by-product of the process is a food for cattle and poultry.

FRENCH HOARD GOLD

Government Estimates People Have 2,000,000,000 Francs in "Old Socks."

PARIS, March 13.—According to conservative estimates there are two billion franes in gold coins hidden away in the traditional "old stocking" of the French people, and if France had this hidden gold at its disposal the country's financial situation would be distinctly improved. Every kind of appeal but one has been made to induce the holders to let the state have their hoarded coins, and during the war much was recuperated under patriotic influences.

What remains seems to form an unattainable residue as far as the state is concerned. Every now and then, however, cases come before the courts wherein people are condemned for going round the country buying up 20 franc pieces, which they induce the hoarders to surrender in retrun for from 40 to 50 francs. Their real value is more like 70 francs, but this traffic is illegal and dealers in it need high rates of profit.

Jose Thery, a financial writer, is advising the state to offer enough paper for gold to bring out this two billion. Theoreticians, he says, will be shocked at the idea of the state admitting its 20-franc gold coin is worth more than its 20-franc bill. The humblest laborer knows this, so what harm can the state's admission do? he asks.

LUMBER EXPORTS UP.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 13.—(United Press).—Almost 100,000,000 more feet of lumber was cut and exported by sea from this port in 1924 than in 1923.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

COBOURG RAILWAY CASE ENDS IN AWARD OF $8,600 DAMAGES

Mrs. Hodges Allowed $5,000 in Suit on Death of Her Son.

JURY OUT 4 HOURS.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, March 13. — Mrs. Jessie Hodges, Colborne, who sued the C.N.R. for $10,000 damages for the death of her 17-year-old son Melville, who was killed when a train struck an automobile in which he was riding on 27th January last year, was awarded $5,000 by a jury at the Assizes in session here. Clifford Alyea, who was driving the automobile that was wrecked, and who was seriously injured, was awarded $2,500 damages.

Dr. J. P. Alyea, the latter's father, was allowed $1,100 the full amount of his claim for medical service for his son and for the auto truck which was a total loss.

Mrs. Hodges sued for $10,000 and Dr. Alyea, on behalf of his son, who is a miner asked for the same amount.

The jury was out over four hours and did not reach an agreement until ten o'clock on Thursday night.

Justice Rose granted usual stay of fifteen days in each case, and the lawyer for the defence intimated that an appeal would be taken.

"The responsibility is yours, gentlemen, not mine," commented Justice Rose, when the verdict was announced.

Case Lasted All Day.

The taking of further evidence, the addresses of counsel on both sides, and the justice's charge to the jury took up the time of the court until 6 o'clock. When the session opened, Provincial Officer Cousan's of Cobourg, part of whose duty is to investigate auto accidents in this district, testified that within one hour after the tragedy at Colborne, he was on the scene, and found the crossing in good shape for the season. He had no difficulty in passing over it in his car on high gear.

Allan Kemp and Harry Bestwick, section men at Colborne at the time of the accident, swore that the crossing had been cleared of snow and ice on the morning of January 27th. This closed the case for the defence and F. S. Webb, who represented the plaintiffs, called no witnesses in rebuttal.

Accidents Will Happen.

At the opening of his address to the jury, J. P. Pratt, of Toronto, who appeared for the railway company, said that the defendants regretted the fatal accident as much as any one. Such accidents, however, will continue to happen until the country is rich enough to eliminate all level crossings. For the present, this is an impossibility, as neither the people or the railways are able to bear the expense of the change. He asked the jury to deal with the issue as one between individuals and to keep out of the discussion the fact that the defendant was the C.N.R. or the Dominion Government, which is all the same. He carefully reviewed the evidence, and argued that the company was not responsible, that it had not been negligent, and that by the exercise of ordinary care, the boys in the auto might have avoided all trouble. He claimed that the medical testimony, while the foctors failed to agree, tended to show that Clifford Aylea was not permanently injured. The crossing had nothing to do with the accident, Mr. Scott asserted, and the train men had given the signals required by the statute as they approached the point where the tragedy occurred.

Spoke ofr Two Hours.

Mr. Webb, for the plaintiffs, address the jury for nearly two hours, in which he combatted almost every point raised by the lawyer for the defense. Dr. Aylet, he said, had been put to a heavy expense on account of the injury to his son and accerding to the testimony of two doctors would be deprived of the services of the boy for three years as the latter would not be physically able to work as he did before the accident, before the exp'ration of that time. Mrs. Hodges, had been deprived of the support of her oldest son and far that reason was entitled to damages.

Questions For Jury.

Justice Rose submitted the following questions for the consideration and guidance of the jury.

Was the defendant guilty of negligence,

Was the accident due to their negligence?

Were Hodgson and Aylea guilty of negligence?

Was the accident due to their negligence?

After the jury had been out for two hours they returned to the court room to ask Justice Rose if they could find that the railway company had not been negligent and at the some time award damages to Aylea. The justice informed them that they were concerned only with the facts and had nothing to do with results. The jury then returned to their room where supper was provided.

The first two of the above questions were answered in the affirmative and the others in the negative. The jury then discharged.

Two More Cases

There are tow more cases to be tried. Both to a jury—and the session is not likely to be concluded before this evening.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE PLEASANT EVENING

Mrs. George Brown Entertained Ladies at Her Home on Thursday.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13.—A meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute was held on Thursday, March 12, at the home of Mrs. George Brown. The meeting was opened by singing the Institute Ode ,after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated.

Moved by Mrs. George Brown, seconded by Mrs. McKee, that Mrs. McCullough be paid for sending for a play which the Institute intends to give. A letter was read from Mrs. George Dunham thanking the Institute for the plant which was sent to her when she was ill.

The Roll was called, each member responding with a suggestion for next year's programme, and a committee was appointed to look after the printing of it. Moved by Mrs. McKee, seconded by Mrs. George Brown, that Mrs. Roy Fleming, Mrs. M. Longmuir, Miss Kathleen Longmuir, and Miss Irene Brown be the committee to look after next month's programme.

A song was given by girls of the Institute: "Annie Laurie."

A splendid paper was given by Miss Mary Stevenson entitled "Systems of Housekeeping."

Reading: "St. Patrick's" by Miss Alma Brown.

Guessing Contest, which was prepared by Miss Mary Stevenson.

Lunch was served at the close of the meeting. The next meeting will be held at Miss Mae McArthur's.

Judging Class.

The Menie District Ayrshire Club is holding a judging class at Mr. William Stuart's Farm on Friday afternoon, March 20, at 1 o'clock. Agricultural representatives for Hastings and Northumberland counties are expected to be present. All those interested in dairying are cordially invited to be there.

Mr. F. M. Rutherford is loaning his herd sire, "Robin Hood," of Springbrook to the Ontario Department of Agriculture for demonstrating purposes for better live stock. Mr. Rutherford is leaving on Monday for Toronto, and expects to be gone about two weeks.

WEDDING BELLS.

THAIN—TINNEY.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13. — Mrs. Wilson Thain, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thain, of East Seymour, and Miss Sarah Tinney, of Campbellford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tinney, Bancroft, were married on Wednesday at the Seymour parsonage, on Rear street, by Rev. Chas. Daniel. A wedding dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Free, at which there were only the nearest relatives.

The bride and groom left on the noon train for Toronto and other points.

DON'T LET YOUR BOWELS GET CONSTIPATED

A free motion of the bowels every day should be the rule of every one who aspires to perfect health, for once the bowels become constipated and clogged up, all the other organs of the body become deranged.

Keep Your Bowels Regular By Using

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will clear away all the effete and poisonous matter which has collected in the system, give you a free, easy and natural motion of the bowels every day, start the sluggish liver working, and give tone and vitality to the whole intestinal tract.

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are for sale at all druggists and dealers; put up only by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

NO MORE COLLEGIATE

Cobourg Town Council Turns Down Request for Addition.

COBOURG, March 13.—The Co-rg Town Council, at a special ing held on Tuesday night, de-l to take no action in regard to uest from the Cobourg Colle-Institute for a grant for the on of a nine or ten room ad-n to the school. At present e of the collegiate classes are commodated outside of the school building. The amount of expenditure necessary for the erection of a new wing is estimated at from $65,000 to $80,000 and some place it as high as $100,000. It is not felt by many citizens that the town can undertake such an expenditure owing to condition of things, at the present time.

Real Estate Transfers.

Mr. B. Jayne, Baltimore, has purchased one of the farms, belonging to the late Robert Hewitt in Haldimand township.

John B. Hamden has sold to Wilfrid W. Chatterson, part of lot 8, concession 2, Haldimand township.

Howard C. Barnard has sold to Wilfrid F. Howson, part of lot 8, concession A, South Monaghan.

Wm. Davey has sold his house on James street to Miss Elizabeth Ouleton.

Joseph Flynn has sold to Amanda Taylor, part of lots 14 and 15, concession 1, Haldimand township.

DAUGHERTY OUT.

WASHINGTON, March 13. — James M. Beck, solicitor general of the U.S., has dedicated the second edition of his book on the federal constitution to "the Masters of the Bench of Gray's Inn, London." The first edition was dedicated to Harry M. Daugherty.

BUDGET NEXT WEEK.

No Sweeping Changes Expected in Robb Estimates.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 13 (Canadian Press).—No sweeping changes are expected when Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, brings down his second budget next week. There will probably be some revision of the tariff, but reductions of importance in taxation are unlikely. General trade conditions have not been so good as was anticipated a year ago. There has been a considerable falling off in revenue.

When Mr. Robb makes his statement, the fiscal year will not have been completed.

AT PETHERICK'S CORNERS

Lumber Mill Busy—L. O. L. Held Arch Meeting—Trees Tapped.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, March 13.—The weekly prayer service was held as usual on Thursday evening, and despite the condition of the roads, a large crowd was in attendance. The meeting was in charge of the devotional department, under their Vice-President, Thomas Fry, who gave a very instructive paper.

L.O.L. No. 2322 met on Tuesday evening in their hall and held a very interesting arch meeting.

Mr. W. J. Allan reports a very successful season in the lumbering business, his mill being well piled up with logs awaiting the saw.

The Rylstone community spent a very pleasant evening in the Union school-house on Friday, an excellent programme being rendered. The chief item of the programme was a play, entitled "A Matrimonial Trial," which was a joke from beginning to end. Howard Gain very acceptably acted as chairman for the meeting.

Those who spent the week-end under the parental roof were: Misses Alma Simpson, Gladys Spencer, Agnes Thomson, Bessie Meiklejohn, Leak Mackeown and Roy Barnum.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brown spent Sunday in Campbellford.

Mr. Garnet Kerr has been busy for some time drawing out the summer's supply of wood for the Crow Bay cheese factory.

Signs of Spring.

Miss Agnes Thomson, who is teaching at Mason's School, Hoard's Station, has begun to live at home for the summer and is motoring to and from the school.

Miss Gladys Simpson spent the week-end as the guest of Miss Hazel Brown.

A number of farmers about the community have tapped and are reporting some very good returns.

Mr. P. B. Mckenzie has rented the "Sarginson" farm and has moved all his household effects.

TARGET WORK FOR CRIMSON HURLERS

Harvard's baseball pitchers will shoot at canvas targets to develop control this season. The mark is to be about the size of a home plate with a hole in the center of it. The Crimson catchers will stand behind the targets and endeavor to grab any balls that come through the bullseye.

If You Said "Pooh, Pooh" Last Month—Watch Your Step Until Midnight Strikes To-night

(By United Press).

If you said "Pooh Pooh Pooh," or in other words verbally thumbed your nose at Friday, the 13th of February, and got away with it, just watch your step to-day, which is Friday, the 13th, all over again.

It is reported that the days hoodoo is angry at receiving the Haw-Haw on his last day of opportunity, is out to get some of the scoffers.

So if you would be dead certain to avoid yawning, man-hole covers, and falling safes and ladders, it might be just as well to stay in bed.

This business of Friday, the 13th, coming two months in succession is quite unusual, and seriously, all kinds of things may happen to-day. There have been three such ominous dates in the last year, the other one having passed off fairly uneventfully, in June, 1924. The next one, if to-day's accidents leave any of us to see it, will come in November.

Spring Exposition

Saturday Our Spring Exposition Reaches Its Zenith

A GOLDEN SUN lights up the avenue and casts into limelight many silken frocks sprightly with prints, many boyish dresses of softly colored wool, many wraps of silk, many briskly tailored suits. New clothes go abroad. For now 'tis Spring and many fashion-wise women are already busy selecting their Spring wardrobes from the attractive assortments at this Store.

Our Ambition To Be Always Fashion-first and Fashion-right

All fashion is a gamble—that is, it is never perfectly definite about itself beforehand. But always in its results it is firm. There was no reason under the sun why Ina Claire should have taken the fashion world by storm just because she happened to wear a velveteen dress designed by Chanel, yet look what happened! Fashion has played hundreds of other similar tricks. We watch them continually—in Paris, in London and in New York—and try to set them before you just as they actually occur.

All Paris Wears the Double Breasted Coat

This very smart tailored Coat will be particularly attractive for spring street wear. Not too severely cut, it is quite suitable for both morning and afternoon wear, and will always have about it an air of smartness.

Graceful Flares Feature Silk Frocks

No more stiff bouffant lines! The new silk Frock has a fullness, but always it is soft and flowing, whether the flare comes from the waistline or quite whimsically begins at the knee.

New Shoes that Come with the Spring, Tra La

One is the aristocrat of Light Tan Pumps, the color only possible in the highest grade of leather. Turn sole, with covered Cuban heels. Plain and tailored pattern, with invisible elastic gore. A small piece of champagne kid inlays the vamp. At $10.00.

A Patent Pump with a basket weave band of apricot kid and Cuban heel, covered likewise, with turn soles, at $11.00.

Penny Brown Satin Pumps with trimmings of gold kid bands, Spanish heels and turn soles. Distinctly new, at $10.75.

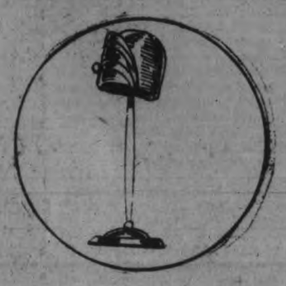
The Smart Diversity of the Spring Hat

Milan seems to be the prevailing material for sports and street Hats. It distinguishes itself by ridges down through the centre or sides and by is simple but pertinent bits of ribbon or flower trimming. Felt, more pliable, can be creased into all the odd little shapes which so typify the spring millinery, and is prettiest in colors harmonizing with the pastel tones of the new frocks.

SECOND FLOOR.



Clever Collars Distinguish New Wraps

The new Wraps, brightly colored or, if satin, black, still wrap around, giving a double-breasted effect even to the dress coat. And like the frocks, they, too, have a fullness achieved in circular cuts or pleats.

Banish the Last Traces of Winter

Isn't it a joy to replace the dark draperies on your windows with bright spring Cretonnes? And don't the children get excited when they see you making sofa pillows and table covers for the porch? That means that James will bring the swing up from the basement and hang the flower baskets. Come in and see our lovely new Cretonnes while the choice of patterns is still large, so that by the time the warm weather has come to stay, your home will have completely discarded its winter attire.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT INFLUENCED BY UNITED STATES IN OPPOSING PROTOCOL

American Policy of Refusing to Participate in Proposed Scheme for Compulsory Arbitration of Disputes Quoted in Announcement to Commons.

OTTAWA, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—"We do not consider it in the interest of Canada, of the British Empire or of the League itself, to recommend to Parliament adherence to the protocol and particularly to its rigid provision for application of economic and military sanctions in practically every future war. Among the grounds for this conclusion is the consideration of the effect of non-participation of the United States upon attempts to enforce the sanctions and particularly in the case of continguous countries like Canada."

Premier Mackenzie King, in the House of Commons yesterday summarized in the above paragraph the attitude of the Dominion Government in regard to the Geneva protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes. The paragraph was quoted from a despatch sent by the Prime Minister to Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, two days ago.

Mr. King explained to the House that by an understanding between the British Government and the Canadian government no commuications were to be made public until the British Foreign Secretary spoke before the League of Nations Council.

The cable sent by Premier King acknowledged receipt of a copy of the protocol and noted that it was open for signature by representatives of all members of the League. It added that the Government had concluded "that Canada should continue to give wholehearted support to the League of Nations, and particularly to its work of conciliation, cooperation and publicity."

Believes in Arbitration.

The third paragraph states "that as Canada believing firmly in the submission of international disputes to joint enquiry or arbitration, and has shared in certain notable undertakings in this field, we should be prepared to consider acceptance of the compulsory jurisdiction of the Permanent Court in justiciable disputes with certain reservations, and to consider methods of supplementing the provisions of the convenant for settlement of non-justiciable issues, including methods of joint investigation, reserving ultimate decision in domestic issues and without undertaking further obligations to enforce decisions in case of other states."

Fourthly, the communication sets forth "that Canada would be prepared to take part in any general conference on reduction of armaments which did not involve prior acceptance of the protocol."

FOSTER'S CRITICISM.

OTTAWA, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—The government was criticized by Sir George Foster in the Senate yesterday afternoon for not having given more exhaustive consideration to the Geneva protocol. It was, he said, an important subject which should have been discussed in conference, while the protocol could not eliminate war entirely, it could remove one of the dangers of war.

PREMIER READY TO CONTRIBUTE

To Relief Fund for Miners—Government Not Asked to Intervene.

MEMBERS ANXIOUS

OTTAWA, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—"It is a highly improbable procedure for the Federal Government to interfere in a Provincial Government matter," said the Prime Minister in the House of Commons Thursday, in answer to questions respecting the Government's attitude toward the conditions in the Nova Scotia mine fields. In the matter of relief of suffering, the Prime Minister thought that the situation deserved the special consideration of every member of Parliament individually. He himself was prepared to give to a relief fund.

J. S. Woodworth (Labor, Winnipeg Centre) asked if there was any definite information whether or not the Nova Scotia Government were actually taking any action for the relief of distress. The Prime Minister replied that there had been no information from Nova Scotia.

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter (Conservative, St. John) said that there should be no difficulty in getting all parties together in such a matter as this. There were hungry people, who were apt to over-step restraints. He asked the Prime Minister either to go outside Parliament, to get a group, or to create a group of members representing all parties to send to Nova Scotia to see what could be done.

Miss Agnes McPhail (Progressive, South Grey) asked if the Government had not sent money for relief purposes on previous occasions. The Prime Minister replied that there had been no requests from Nova Scotia.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) asked if the Prime Minister had a request to send money to Japan for relief there. Mr. King believed there had been a request at that time.

EPIDEMIC TAKES HUNDREDS LIVES

Chicago Visited By Highly Contagious Disease of Mysterious Nature.

23 A DAY.

CHICAGO, March 13 (Canadian Press).—Warning that a dangerous epidemic of an as yet unidentified and highly contagious disease, developing into influenza or pneumonia has claimed 201 victims in Chicago during the first nine days of this month, was sounded by Health Commissioner Bunderzen last night.

There were eighty cases reported to his office yesterday, and 23 deaths in 24 hours ending at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. On Wednesday there were 95 new cases and 27 deaths. The daily death average for the first nine days in March, according to the Health Department records was 23.3 and during January and February it hovered around 13.6 daily.

LINDSAY MAN LOST HIS BIRDS IN COCKPIT RAID

Fines Totalled $1,000 in Police Round-up at Windsor.

LINDSAY, March 13.— Although it is reported locally that a couple of Peterboro "sports" were gathered in when provincial police made a raid on a cockpit near Windsor last week and captured occupants, birds and a large amount of booze, it is now claimed the Electric City devotees of cock fighting were conspicuous by their absence.

It appears, however, that a Lindsay man took in the event, and he did not go empty handed, either. He took with him some fifteen or sixteen birds of no mean fighting ability and they were at the ringside ready to prove their worth. It appears that the party who staged the fight had been given a hint that a raid of some kind was to be pulled off that night, but never dreamed that he was to be the victim. The fight was well under way when the police reached the pit and the clean-up was complete. The Lindsay man lost all his birds save one. The spoils of the chase together with the fines imposed, totalled in the neighborhood of $1,000.

COYOTE LOST IN FOG.

HIAWATHA, Kas., March 13.—A full grown coyote was seen dashing down the main street here one morning during a dense fog. The fog was so dense the animal had wandered into the town.

WESTWOOD NEWS

Saw-mill Will be Busy for a Long Time With Logs Piled Up in River.

WESTWOOD, March 13.—Gordon Girven, the new assessor for Asphodel township, was in the village on Saturday.

Robert Douglas motored to Peterboro on Saturday evening.

The sawing mill will be kept very busy for some time, judging by the piles of logs which extend a considerable distance up the river bank.

Mrs. James Stewart, Toronto, spent a few days in the village this week, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Sargent and family.

Mr. William Nevins, Peterboro, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nevins.

A number from the village and vicinity spent Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Comstock.

Mrs. McEwen and family, who have been visiting the former's sisters, Mrs. S. Graham and Mrs. D. Hope, expect to start for the west on Wednesday.

Mr. Harry Ingram, Lakefield, is spending a few days with Mr. Thos. Cardwell, Sr., and other friends in the village.

Mrs. Robt. Nevins spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. D. Breckenbridge.

Miss Helen Carter is holidaying with friends in Peterboro.

THE COUGH OR COLD That Settles on the Lungs Is Hard to Get Rid of

These are the kin dthat are dangerous; the kind that weaken the lungs, the kind that allow the germs of consumption to get a foothold in the system.

Mr. John E. Luloff, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"Last year I had a cold, and a cough which seemed to stick on my chest. I tried different preparations, but they did not seem to help me any. I was advised, by a friend, to try and when I had taken a few doses I began to feel that it was doing me good, so I kept at it and inside of a week I was relieved of my trouble."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 35 years; you don't experiment when you buy it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BARE MEADOWS ARE WORRYING FARMERS

Fear Poor Hay and Grain in Warsaw Section.

WARSAW, March 13. — Farmers are growing uneasy about bare meadows and grain fields. Exposed fields with heavy frosts are likely to mean poor hay, pasture and grain, probably necessitating tearing up the fields and re-seeding.

The Boundary is not yet opened all the way and only vehicles on runners have been on the near way to Lakefield from Warsaw; on the Dummer Road, mostly wheeled vehicles are used.

Sugar may be had for $7.60 per cwt. Eggs bring 31 cents per dozen.

At Dan. Kennedy's sale on Thursday horses went from $48.00 to $97.00, cows as high as $67.00, hens over $1.00, and sows were as high as $60.00. The foal which took the first prize at Douro Fair brought $43.00.

Crows have been seen and heard for about two weeks. Robins have made their appearance.

Fred Calder tapped his trees, and had some finished syrup by Saturday. Others planned to do so this week, but so far none are reported.

SAP IS RUNNING IN CAVAN WOODS

Farmers First Tapped Trees This Week—Roads in Bad Condition.

FARM HELP SCARCE

CAVAN, March 13.—Spring is expanding in the township. Some farmers began this week to tap their maple trees, and report sap running rather freely.

The first thunder and lightning Tuesday evening was a sharp reminder that winter is retreating. Roads are in bad condition with neither sleighing or wheeling.

Help is Scarce.

On the majority of Cavan farms help is scarce. On many hundred-acre farms the owners are not even looking for help—just intending to do what they can alone, and in busy times, haying, etc., change work with a neighbor, or chance getting a day man. On other farms help is wanted, but does not seem to be forthcoming. Of course, many already have secured help.

Mr. Jas. Paul is busy assessing.

Mrs. S. Richard's many friends will be pleased to know that she was able to be taken to her sister's, Mrs. S. Hutchison, to spend part of last Sunday. This is the first that she has been able to be out since her serious and prolonged illness last winter.

Managing Farm.

Mr. E. M. McGill, Manvers, will be manager on Mr. T. A. Kelly's farm for the ensuing season.

Mrs. H. Lang is visiting friends at Garden Hill.

Mr. Walter Coulter, Hamilton, visited his father, Mr. John Coulter, over the week-end. His daughter, Mrs. Walker, is also home from the West visiting him.

A number from the vicinity attended Mr. Leal's sale on Tuesday on the Millbrook line and report a good crowd in attendance and things sold very well. The rain after dinner threatened to diminish the attendance, but it brightened up later and the rain cleared off.

The storm in the evening put some of the rural telephone lines out of order

Mac Newton, who has an attack of scarlet fever, is progressing nicely. It seems to be a mild form of the disease.

U. S. TAKES OVER TWO EXPLORATIONS

British Organizations Lack Funds to Support Scientific Expeditions.

LONDON, March 13. — (United Press).—Great Britain's pride as the premier country for scientific exploration—as the land of Cook and Darwin and Wallace—is being sadly disturbed by America's lavish contributions to science.

Almost every one of the great archeological expeditions which England formerly sent to Egypt, Asia Minor and Greece from her own funds and for her own museums, is now affiliated with and partly supported by some American organization, like the Metropolitan Museum of New York, the University of Pennsylvania, the Field Museum, Chicago, or the University of Chicago.

And now word comes that two British scientific expeditions, planned by Englishmen but not sufficiently supported by Englishmen, have passed definitely into American hands.

One is Colonel Fawcett's proposed exploration of the Amazon Valley. He began his arrangements under British auspices, but the lack of contributions forced him to turn to New York for help. His expedition leaves shortly for the Amazon under American auspices.

Another is the proposed British expedition to study the Saragossa Sea. This has been completely eclipsed by the American expedition under Beebe, which has already felt New York and is, by this time, at work.

I.O.O.F. EUCHRE

Lakefield Lodge Had Largely Attended Entertainment —News of Village.

LAKEFIELD, March 13.—The members of Lodge No. 358, I.O.O.F. held a progressive euchre in their lodge room for members and wives and lady friends on Monday. About forty were present and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Mrs. N. A. Moore and Mr. A. H. Clarke won the first prizes and Mrs. Miller of Warsaw and Mr. N. A. Moore the consolation prizes. Refreshments were served by the gentlemen at the close of the evening.

Broke Wrist Bones.

Mrs. F. J. Burgess had the misfortune to fall in her yard on Monday and break both bones of her right wrist. It was a clean break but very painful.

A.Y.P.A. Lecture.

Rev. W. Cox gave an illustrated lecture to the A.Y.P.A. on Monday night on Church History for the A.Y.P.A. which was open to members of the church or anyone interested.

Personals.

Mrs. Laurence Grahame returned to the village on Monday after several months visit to friends in Plainfield, N.J., New York, Washington and Rochester.

Captain J. M. MacDonald, representing the Navy League of Canada, spent a few days in the village this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Strickland were called to Buffalo this week by the illness of Miss Dorothy Stickland.

REPORT TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

J. Wells Fraser, President of the Chamber of Commerce in 1924, presented the following report on the year's activities:

In submitting this thirty-sixth report since incorporation, or the sixth annual report of the reorganized Chamber, I intend to only briefly cover the major activities during the past year.

You will realize that, as the Chamber's quarters and secretarial staff are used continuously by four other organizations, the activities of your Chamber are, to a limited extent, interlocked with those of the other organizations, namely, the Ontario Motor League, Peterborough Branch; the Horticultural Society, the Trent Waterway Development Association, and the Manufacturers' Association. I, therefore, do not intend to mention any activity which those associations are alone responsible for. I do wish to emphasize, however, that at any time these organizations have required co-operation from your Chamber on subjects of a general nature, affecting the city as a whole, it has been unhesitatingly given. The successful operation of your Chamber for the good of the community is dependent to a large extent on the success of those organizations.

It is my hope that, as I proceed to enumerate the various subjects to which your Chamber's attention has been given, you will realize that expressions of opinion and recommendations made have been arrived at after thorough study and investigation, and, in this way, our recommendations have been more favorably received than if your Chamber had made them on the spur of the moment. This has placed your Chamber in a fortunate position in respect to the various governments.

Tariff Board.

Your Chamber recommended some months ago that, as a probable solution to the tariff situation, an Expert Tariff Board should be established by the Dominion Government to advise on fiscal matters and to assess the value of representations made on tariff questions. On January 27, we were informed that the Acting Prime Minister, the Hon. G. P. Graham, had stated that efforts would be made for the establishment of such a Board.

The subject of tariff is always a vexed question, particularly to our industries, and it is our sincere hope that this expert board, which has in it the element of stabilizing manufacturing conditions, will be established in the near future.

Tourist Traffic.

Post-war conditions have resulted in a depression of trade in all countries, and our Dominion has been no exception, which has been reflected through all business. It was natural, therefore, that your Chamber should, to improve conditions, devote its attention to avenues through which improved business conditions could be secured. This prompted the formation of the Trent Waterway Development Association, comprising all municipalities on the Trent Waterway, four years ago, for the express purpose of the development of tourist traffic.

From the results obtained, although only particularly noticeable to those directly affected, it has to a large degree increased business, and your Chamber has been, and is now, responsible for the initial action to form a province-wide tourist association, similar to those already formed in British Columbia, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. It is estimated that tourist traffic resulted in a revenue of $136,000,000 to the Dominion last year, and it is believed that it is up to Ontario to advertise its attractive scenery, particularly to the three million automobile owners in the five adjacent States of the Union to the south.

Your Chamber has continued with every effort to secure the establishment of the convenient automobile ferry service between Rochester and Cobourg, which, when established, will make a short run to our lake district. A deputation of over sixty representatives from Central Ontario and Rochester waited upon the officials of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railway and the Rochester City Council, and were assured that everything possible would be done to establish this service.

An exhibit of the Trent Waterway was again placed at the New York Motor-boat Show, through the cordial co-operation of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, and the results will be realized during the coming summer.

Power Situation.

Understanding from the report of the power situation made by a joint committee of the Manufacturers' Association and your Chamber in 1923, that by 1927, at the normal increase of consumption, all available power development will be utilized, continual representations have been made to the Hydro Electric Power Commission and the Dominion Government, for the early development of the power resources of the St. Lawrence River, which, when developed, will relieve consumptio by municipalities situated at a considerable distance from developments on this system, thereby giving to municipalities located more advantageously further supply than is at present available.

Recently Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Hydro Electric Commission, stated to a deputation from your Chamber, that a proposal would be submitted in the near future to the eighteen municipalities under standard contract using power from the Central Ontario System, whereby the assets would be transferred from the Ontario Government to the municipalities. A committee of the Chamber has already been appointed to consider this proposal when made.

Legislation.

Through representations made by your Chamber, supporte by other Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Ontario, investors will now be afforded greater protection from stock propositions of doubtful character by amendments passed by the provincial legislature to the Ontario Companies' Act, in Bill No. 216, "a act respecting the registration of brokers," and Bill No. 218, "The Sale of Securities Act."

Representations by your Chamber were made to the Statutes' Revision Commission to more adequately protect the permanent merchants from the illegitimate transient trader and peddlar. The results of the representations will not be known until the report of the commission is submitted to the provincial legislature.

A resolution adopted by the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, recommending that all motor vehicle drivers be required to secure a driver's license after examination, was opposed, and in lieu thereof recommended that drivers' permits be issued without examination, the object sought for, that of decreasing the reckless and careless driving, being possible to achieve with less expejse to the automobile drivers of the province. The alternative recommendation made by your Chamber has been received favorably by the provincial government, and during the present session an amendment to the Highway Traffic Act will be made accordingly.

A proposal to secure legislation compelling all automobile owners to carry public liability and property damage insurance, was opposed. Although being considered a necessity for all automobile owners, it was not considered to be a matter of legislation by the Government.

Strong support was given to representations made to the provincial government that all vehicles travelling on the highways at night should carry lights. An amendment to the Highway Traffic Act in respect of this subject is expected during the present session.

A proposal to issue all motor vehicle licenses from Toronto was strenuously opposed, and we may now still expect to see over four thousand motor vehicle owners secure their licenses here, which, it is believed, is not only a reasonable service to those outside of the city, but is also a business producer for the rural and urban centres.

Industrial Development.

Owing to the general trade depression there have been very few opportunities opened to secure an increase of industries in the city. In all instances, they have been referred to the Industrial Commissioner, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, and the Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council, with whom your Chamber enjoys cordial co-operation.

As in the past few years, opportunities have occurred to secure new industries provided that a certain amount of local capital could be secured. In some instances these industries have been established in other centres and have proved to be unsound and have since gone out of business.

Your Chamber took an active part in assisting to secure the passing of the Canadian General Electric Co. by-law, granting a fixed assessment in consideration of a large building programme, which has since been completed. It is our hope that these extensions to our largest industry can be taken as assurance that future activities of the General Electric Company of Schenectady in Canada, in the construction of electrical machinery, will be centralized in Peterborough.

Generally speaking, industrial activity in the city has not resulted in great improvement since the beginning of the past year. This has been particularly noticeable in the steel and iron trades. It is noted, however, that a very marked improvement is noticeable in textiles and the paper industries.

Greater advances have been made during the past year towards stabilizing general trade conditions in the world since the close of the Great War, and it might be opportune for us now to consider a programme of action which will secure for this city its fair share of industrial development, which is certain to come in the very near future.

Civic Improvements.

In co-operation with the Patriotic League of Ashburnham, your Chamber assisted in arranging for the planting of six thousand Scotch and jack pine on Armour's Hill, being supervised by Mr. H. J. Moore, of the Dept. of Agriculture, who was the planner of Victoria Park, Niagara Falls. Mr. Moore believes that it is possible to make this outstanding landmark a most attractive park.

The Patriotic League of Ashburnham are to be congratulated on the foresight and energy required to secure this property for park purposes, and it is my hope that the Chamber will take a continued interest and assist in concluding the plans already made for its development.

Representations.

Your Chamber has been represented at the following conferences during the year, and has taken an active part in all the deliberations:

- National Economy Conference, Ottawa, March 27-28.
- Executive Council of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.
- Agricultural Committee of the Provincial Government.
- Statutes Revision Committee of the Provincial Government.
- National Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries in Washington, D.C.
- Annual Meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce of Ontario, Toronto.
- Associated Boards of Trade of the Counties of Victoria and Haliburton.

To Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, vice-president of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, your Chamber is particularly indebted for representing us at the most of the conferences above referred to at his own expense.

We are pleased to learn that final arrangements are now being completed to amalgamate into the one organization all Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in Ontario. Heretofore, the Western Ontario and Northern Ontario Associated Boards have been operating independently. This should result in a more concentrated development of the views of the business interests of the entire province.

Centennial Celebrations.

In collaboration with last year's City Council, it was decided that consideration should be given to the staging of a combined attraction for ex-residents of the city in the form of an Old Home Week and commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of the founding of Peterborough in 1926.

In the event of this being carried out, your Chamber will no doubt be called upon to co-operate to a large extent in making it an outstanding success.

Civic Government.

The first action of a concrete nature for the education of our citizens to a form of civic government, which is meeting with considerable success in approximately three hundred cities, was taken by the Chamber securing the attendance of Dr. H. L. Brittain, Director of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, present his address on "City Manager Form of Government."

It is believed that a form of civic government that will ensure a definite chain of responsibility, and a definite programme of economical development in the conduct of civic administration, is most desirable.

The recent action of the City Council, in appointing a superintendent of all municipal offices, is, no doubt, an advance in this direction.

General.

For your information, I should give you a little idea of the activities of your office, and the extent to which the quarters maintained by you are used.

During the past summer nearly three hundred American parties, representing twelve hundred tourists, used your offices for securing general information. Irrespective of these, and four thousand persons securing automobile licenses during the year, an average of four persons per day, from the city and outside districts, called at the Chamber for information. During the past six years, information on practically all subjects has been accumulated by the Chamber, and we are pleased to note that this is being used to good advantage by enquirers.

Publicity of all kinds relative to the city is being made through numerous publications.

An average of over thirty-three communications per day have been sent out during the past year. Of these a considerable number represent enquiries of a specific nature.

Your Chamber's quarters are still as popular as ever as a community centre, over three hundred meetings being held in your council room. Of these, it is interesting to note that seventeen of the fifty-three organizations availing themselves of the use of the council room are sporting organizations, which, in itself, indicates the support rendered by your Chamber to the fostering of healthy sports in the city.

Appreciation.

Before closing, I desire to express the appreciation of the Chamber to the daily press for the generous co-operation they have afforded through their columns, for which we are deeply grateful.

My sincere appreciation is extended to the members of the executive council for their loyal support, and to the entire membership for the honour conferred upon me in electing me president for the past year.

There is no doubt that a number of problems will be presented to the Chamber during the coming year, which will require all the business judgment possible in securing a profitable conclusion, and it is my sincere hope that, in Peterborough, we will maintain our Chamber of Commerce to a high standard of efficiency and service to the community as a whole, as it has done during the past six years.

Weak, Lost in Weight

WM. E. BRUSH

Windsor, Ont.—"For over six months I was in ill health—was not able to do a day's work. I got very weak and lost in weight, could not eat, suffered from poor circulation, chilly all the time and had a slight cough. I doctored but still kept going down and everyone thought I was going into a decline. I finally began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and thru the use of this medicine I was completely restored to good health. I gained in weight, my circulation improved and I could eat. Then I went back to my work and never felt better. I have been a strong and healthy man ever since, which I owe to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."—William E. Brush, 450 Dougall Ave.

Fired because he was always tired

"Drowsy Bill," they called him—a lifeless, eternally tired, old-young man. He tried hard enough, but his energies always sagged before the job was done. One day Bill was missing . . . fired.

In every walk of life you'll find men and women who are fighting constipation—the dread disease which robs the body of its energy and strength. But thank goodness, there is pleasant, safe, permanent relief from constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body, its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it can sweep the intestine clean. ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, thus stimulating regular, healthy action. ALL-BRAN urges nature to act normally—something that habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals or cooked with hot cereals. Delicious with fruit. Also use the many recipes given on every package. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be careful! Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. A part-bran product is only partially effective—maybe not at all. Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Buy a package today.

MAKING PAPER BIG INDUSTRY

5,000 TONS DAILY.

A. D. Ross, S.M., pulp and paper engineer, of the Canadian General Electric Co., was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Peterboro branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. Mr. Ross is a graduate of Dalhousie University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In commencing, Mr. Ross said that the paper industry was of great interest to engineers as it led all industries in Canada in the consumption of power. The industry needs cheap power, convenient raw material and good transportation facilities. The older mills were located at the waterfalls and used the hydraulic power direct. This method was inconvenient as the falls were often far away from railways and the buildings could not be arranged in the most efficient manner.

History of Paper.

Mr. Ross gave a short history of paper. The word paper is derived from papyrus, a writing material made from the inner bark of a certain reed. The first real paper was made about 2000 years ago by the Chinese from bamboo fibres by a crude method of beating and cooking. It is said that paper-making was introduced to the Western world about 700 A.D., when an Arab army repelled a Chinese invasion and captured some skilled paper-makers, who taught them how to make paper.

Methods of Manufacture.

Paper can be made from any material containing cellulose fibre, cellulose meaning having cells. Paper has a cellulose fibre basis with a sizing or filling. The first use of wood for paper-making was in 1840. Wood was first ground, but as it contained about 47 per cent. non-cellulose material, the paper produced in this way is not of very good quality.

The present methods, said Mr. Ross, include cooking to get rid of the non-cellulose portion. This provides a stronger paper than ground wood pulp. Newsprint is made from 80 per cent. ground wood and 20 per cent. sulphite pulp. Sulphite pulp is cooked with bisulphide of lime and gives longer fibres for strength.

For wrapping paper needing great strength, the sulphate process is used while for high finish paper without great strength the soda process is used.

The Industry in Canada.

The paper industry, said Mr. Ross is one of the largest in Canada. There are 104 mills with a total investment of $400,000,000 employing 26,000 men. These mills produce 5000 tons of newsprint daily. It has been estimated that it requires 2400 horses power hours, 15 hours manual labor and one ton of coal to produce a ton of paper.

Of special interest to electrical engineers is the huge plant of the St. Maurice Lumber Company at Three Rivers. This is the largest paper mill in the world, said Mr. Ross, and is completely electrified. The connected load is 34000 horse power. The paper mill service is one of the most severe for electric aparatus as there is so much wate, acid and steam in the different processes. Mr Ross showed slides of this paper mill with all its huge machines, including a pumping station and filter plant large enough to supply a city like Montreal with water. At many stages of its manufacture there is 199 parts water to one of pulp and in the film the mixture looked like very thin soup.

Mr. Ross had a film taken by the General Electric company showing the development of writing and printing from the earliest days. Pictures were shown of the ancient Egyptians scratching their heoroglyphics on rocks and then making and using papyrus for their records. The ancient cuneiform writing of Assyria and the early knot writing of China were shown. The film showed two Chinamen making paper, beating bamboo to a pulp with a club and soaking it in tubs. They then spread it out and pressed it with heavy stones. This was a very great contrast to the huge battery of seven pairs of pulp grinders at Three Rivers, each of which would turn out pulp as fast as 25,000 Chinamen could do it. The varied processes and gradual development of paper-making in Europe and America was shown and the development of printing from Gutenburg's press to the huge presses of the present time. A picture of the first newspaper published in Boston on April 24, 1702, with its single 9 x 12 sheet shows the great strides made from that day till now when one big daily paper uses 800 tons of newsprint in its Sunday edition.

The second portion of the film showed the modern methods from the cutting of the trees in the forest to the production of huge rolls of newsprint from each of four machines at the rate of one every five minutes. The process in the mills is a continuous process from start to finish and the machines are not stopped from Monday morning till Saturday night. When the pulp enters the machine it is 99 1-2 per cent water and even the finished paper as delivered to the press is 10 per cent water.

After the address, Mr. Ross answered the different questions asked by those present. A hearty vote of thanks was proposed by R.B. Rogers B. Ottewell of the local branch was chairman for the evening.

STOP SMUGGLING ON U. S. BORDER

Hon. J. A. Robb Promises Assistance—Would Like Tax Reduction.

OR ITS ABOLITION.

OTTAWA, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—The Dominion Government will endeavor to assist the Customs Department in every possible way in the suppression of smuggling along the Canadian-United States boundary, Hon. J. A. Robb, acting Minister of Finance, told a deputation from the Canadian Association of the Canadian Garment Manufacturers which waited on him yesterday.

The deputation presented a resolution making requests respecting smuggling and the reduction of the sales tax from five to two and one-half per cent. Mr. Robb, in replying to the requests, pointed out that the sales tax had been generally cut last year. He was, he said, as anxious as themselves to bring about a reduction in the tax and hoped that eventually the sales tax might be entirely abolished.

TALK ON HEALTH BY AN AUTHORITY

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health in Ontario, Coming Here.

The attention given to health matters and the prevention of disease is increasing, and the benefits of this work are apparent. Information on this subject is of immediate interest to everyone, and the local Board of Health has taken advantage of a visit which Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health of Ontario, will make to Peterborough on Monday next to have him address two public meetings in the Great War Veterans' Association Hall. Dr. McCullough will address the Rotary Club at noon, and the public meetings will be held at 3.30 in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening.

While the members of the Health Association, Local Council of Women, Well Babies' Clinic, Catholic Women's League, Red Cross Society, Daughters of the Empire, Ashburnham Women's Patriotic Association and such Societies have been especially urged to attend the afternoon meeting, everyone will be welcome.

The public are also invited to the evening meeting, to which invitations have been sent to the Board of Education, Separate School Board, the City Council and the Councils of the Townships of North Monaghan, Smith, Otonabee and Douro.

Dr. McCullough will speak on health matters pertaining to the city, and capacity audiences are desired.

AMEND DISPUTES ACT.

Bill at Ottawa Results From Privy Council Decision.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 13 (Canadian Press).—Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, introduced in the House of Commons Thursday a bill to amend the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act as a result of the recent judgment of the Privy Council finding the Act ultra vires.

The purpose of Mr. Murdock's bill is to limit the application of the Act to matters not within the Legislative jurisdiction of any province. There is a furher provision to enable any province that wishes to do so to take advantage of the Dominion Act.

Wholesale Prices Fell 76 Points In February

OTTAWA, March 13. —(Canadian Press).—The index number of wholesale prices compiled by Dominion Bureau of Statistics and weighted according to the commercial importance of 236 commodities, included, fell .76 points in February, being 164.5 as compared with 165.2 in January. Forty price quotations were higher, 43 were lower and 153 were unchanged.

Prince Erik Is Happy With His Canadian Wife As He Works Hard On His Arcadia Poultry Farm

PASADENA, Cal., March 13. —(Canadian Press). —Prince Erik, brother of the King of Denmark, is contented and happy as a poultry farmer.

After a year on a small chicken ranch at Arcadia, a name suggestive of Idyllic bliss, the Prince has decided that Royal pomp is less to be desired than a bucolic life.

"Work which interests one is the only real happiness," he said yesterday. He was burning brush as he spoke, and he paused to dust off a pair of creaseless grey trousers that had once been a part of an English cut-away outfit. "I desire nothing but the simplicity of our life here," he continued in cultured English, waving a hand toward the red house that fronts the equipment for his 3,000 Leghorn hens. The gesture was to include his wife, formerly Miss Lois M. Booth, the Canadian girl he married last year before undertaking life in his rural retreat.

"I play a little golf at times, and there are my books and music for recreation. But after all there isn't much time for that—the care of the farm consumes most of the day."

Like other residents of Arcadia, many of whom went there with visions of "independence on an acre," as the real estate men put it, the Prince rises early.

"The days seem all too short as it is," he smiled pleasantly. "It's a very simple life, but trying to run a business crowds the hours full." The crackling needed attention, and he moved quickly with his rake. One could see the play of muscles beneath his soft white shirt. His black Oxfords were spattered with green paint.

These other residents of Arcadia at first were shy of the Prince, but now they stop to chat with him about butter and eggs, about markets and crops and of the hundred things that go to make up life in rural Arcadia; Indeed Prince Erik, young, sandy haired, and blue-eyed, looks as natural as any of them. He has successfully submerged his Royalty.

MOVIE TO BE MADE IN CITY

"Buy at Home" Campaign, With Real Local Picture, to be Put On—"Who's Who" of Local Business, Industrial and Professional Men Will Be Made.

"Putting a town on the map" was an expression widely used at one time, but the more modern and practical way of saying it now is "putting the town in the movies," and this will happen to Peterboro shortly.

For the last ten days plans have been under way for the launching of a gigantic boosting campaign for Peterboro. The many details incident to the preparation of a campaign of such wide scope have kept the organizers busy, and now successful arrangements have been concluded with local parties who are co-operating in the staging of this event, and the organization is now in full swing.

The chief object of this idea is to promote the spirit of "Buying at Home" and promote it in a way proven successful in many other cities in Canada.

The campaign, which will be called "Who's Who in Peterboro," will be more fully described in subsequent issues of this newspaper.

A very novel competition will be linked up with this campaign to arouse public interest, and no effort will be spared to give this contest the widest possible publicity, newspaper and theatre screens effectively co-operating.

The technical end of the motion picture work is being done by the Cinema Science Bureau, who have transported to town such apparatus as cameras, tripods, lamps, etc., necessary for the filming of high-class professional motion pictures. Mr. B. Thomas, campaign organizer, is supervising the working out of the campaign. Mr. A. Crowe, of the Capitol Theatre, and Mr. W. P. McGeachie, of the Royal Theatre, will show the local picture on the screens at dates to be announced later.

R. F. CHOATE BACK IN ADVERTISING

Started Newspaper Career With Peterboro Examiner—Editor of the Sunday World.

TORONTO, March 13.—Richard F. Choate, recently editor of the Toronto Sunday World, has re-entered the advertising field, and is again an executive member of the staff of the J. J. Gibbons, Limited, Advertising Agency. Mr. Choate began his newspaper career 20 years ago with The Peterboro Examiner, and has served in an editorial capacity in leading newspapers in Toronto, Montreal and Calgary. This has given him an intimate acquaintance with problems of business development in both Eastern and Western Canada. For a considerable time he was engaged, as well, in editorial work with metropolitan dailies in the United States, and as a member of the Congressional Press Gallery in Washington.

ROBBERS HOLD UP EMPLOYES OF BANK

They Escape in an Automobile With a Large Sum of Money.

TUCKAHOE, N.J., March 13. —(Canadian Press).—Three robbers to-day held up the employees of the local bank and escaped in an automobile with a large sum of money, the amount of which has not been determined.

Police and state troopers, in pursuit of the robbers, are reported to have surrounded them in Marshallville Woods. Citizens opened fire on the robbers as they fled from the bank, and one robber dropped a portion of loot.

SAVED SAFETY PIN.

Little Girl Swallowed Open Pin—Operation Was Successful.

SAULT'S FALLS, March 13. — Alice Hoboy ,the little five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hoboy of this town, met with a peculiar accident on Monday when she swallowed an open safety pin the point of which penetrated the lung. She was taken to Montreal, where a successful operation removed the safety pin without any further injury. The little girl is recovering nicely from the effects of the operation, which was a risky one.

WIFE TORTURED HIM.

Invalid Granted Separation—Said Wife Maltreated Him —Showed Hatred.

MONTREAL, March 13.—Aime G. Coursol, an invalid, who has been confined to bed for a long time and is incapable of moving because of rheumatism and paralysis, was assaulted and maltreated by his wife, Mary Jane Agnes Dwyer, who gagged him to the point of suffocation in April, 1924, and later beat him and twisted his neck, according to a judgment handed down by Mr. Justice De Lorimier in the Superior Court, granting the husband's suit for a judicial separation.

The plaintiff declared that he was instituting the action for separation from bed and board on grounds of unspeakable cruelty and abuse.

He was a sick man, declared Coursol, and had been confined to his bed for a long time, suffering from arthritis, but, in spite of his helpless condition, he stated, his wife had manifested hatred and cruelty toward him.

CANADA'S NOTE IS BIG FEATURE

Decision to Throw Protocol Into Next Session is Overshadowed.

BRITAIN FIRM.

GENEVA, March 13 (Canadian Press).—The expected decision of the League of Nations' Council to throw the whole problem of arbitration, security and disarmament into the next assembly, registered today by resolution, was quite overshadowed in League opinion by Canada's note to the League, in which she announced her willingness, with some reservations, to consider the acceptance of compulsory jurisdiction of a permanent court of international justice.

A communication from Ottawa, receipt of which was announced here this morning, showed Canada had rejected the protocol partly because non-participation by the United States made the operations of sanctions or penalties, practically impossible.

The Canadian document caused a noticeable new emphasis to be laid upon arbitration in the League consultations, and the opinion was expressed in some circles that Canada's stand had caused Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, in his remarks today to refer pointedly to arbitration. He said he wished to repeat that Great Britain remained firmly attached to the principles of arbitration and disarmament.

The likelihood of arbitration being the pivot of the September assembly debates also was shown by the significant statement by Mr. Benes, Czecho-Slovak Foreign Minister and official reporter on the protocol, that the discussion would turn on that point. Latin-American countries especially are pushing the idea of arbitration, and hope is expressed among them of bringing a world wide extension of the principle contained in the agreement for a pacific settlement of their disputes signed by thirteen states, including the United States.

CHICAGO REPORTS NO FLU EPIDEMIC

But Authorities Warn That Carelessness Would Cause Spread of the Disease.

CHICAGO, March 13 (Canadian Press). — Although twenty-eight deaths occurred in the thirteen hours ended at 9.30 o'clock last night, and 76 new cases were reported, Dr. Hermann Bundezen, city health commissioner ,declared there is no real epildemic of influenza and respiratory diseases here.

The normal number of deaths would be thirteen, and the new cases would be 40 a day for this time of the year, health authorities said. They warn that public carelessness would cause a spread of the diseases.

FRENCH ENDEAVOUR INCREASE BIRTHS

State Supported Maternity Houses Proposed in New Bill.

The French government, with the object of helping to increase the birth rate in France, is introducing into parliament a bill providing for the construtcion of state-supported maternity homes in every department of the country. According to the terms of this bill as received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York from its French Information Service, any French woman or woman belonging to a nation with which France has signed a treaty of reciprocal charitabe help will be admitted on request to these maternity homes. Applicants will not be required to give their name and address unless they wish to do so and strict secrecy is guaranteed. No charge will be made for medical attention or food and lodging. It is officially estimated that this scheme, if it is approved of by parliament and put into effect, will save the lives of about 100,000 babies every year.

MAY APPOINT AN INQUIRY BOARD RE COAL STRIKE

Credence Placed in Report That This Action Will be Taken Soon.

MINERS OPTIMISTIC.

Situation in the Nova Scotia Strike Areas Thought to Show Improvement.

GLACE BAY, N. S., March 13.—(Canadian Press).—A report that has gained considerable credence here is that Premier Armstrong, within the next 24 hours, will appoint a commission to conduct an enquiry into the coal mining situation and conditions now existing in the coal area. Three names of prominent Canadians, not associated in any way with coal mining, are said to have been suggested for an enquiry board and an independent staff of auditors and expert accountants will be brought to the Province to aid the commission.

Situation Improving.

Local feeling supports the view that the strike situation is improving. This optimism is based partly on the statement made by the Miners' Executive in a message to Premier Armstrong last night, that the miners were prepared to consider any proposal coming from the Government for the re-opening of the mines.

BOYS FIND BODY LYING IN SNOW

Peculiar Circumstances Surround Gruesome Find Near Highland Creek.

IDENTITY UNKNOWN.

HIGHLAND CREEK, March 13. —Embedded in the snow and ice in the heart of a thick cedar bush, the body of a well-dressed 70-year-old man, whose identity remains unknown ,was discovered on the Helliwell Estate, near here yesterday afternoon.

The gruesome find was made by three boys, Robert Cruickshanks, Frank Mulroy ,and Harvey Helliwell, the latter a nephew of the owner of the estate, who were playing in the bush. County Constable Scott of Agincourt was notified at once, and, after looking at the body had it removed to Cobbleduck's undertaking parlours, on Danforth Ave. Toronto, where it is being held for autopsy.

Found in Dense Bush.

The part of the bush where the body was found is on the side of a hill and the growth there is very thick — so thick that according to Constable Scott, anyone might have passed within six feet of the body without noticing it. The bush is very rarely frequented, and due to this, the body had lain there for some weeks. A peculiar phase of the discovery is that the man was wearing a grey cap pulled down over his ears, while at his side lay a brown fedora.

No Evidence of Foul Play.

No evidence of foul play was found on the body, however, but the man's pockets were all empty and no identifying marks could be found on his clothes, most of which were new. He was about 5 feet 7 inches in height, and wore a nice blue suit. His underclothing, shirt, and boots were all new and he had a good overcoat.

An inquest will be held by Coroner Dr. A. F. Demary who is at present in charge of the case.

QUEBEC AWAITING ONTARIO'S EXAMPLE

Must Have Majority Opinion From Sister Province on Church Union.

QUEBEC, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—That the Province of Quebec would be ready to ratify the union of the Methodist Church, Congregationalist Church and the Presbyterian Church when Ontario had given an example in that sense was the unanimous stand adopted by the Legislative Assembly last evening when the Church Union Bill came before that body for its third reading.

It was explained by Premier Taschereau and Arthur Sauve, leader of the Oppositon, that the bill was one which was outside the political atmosphere of the House, and the Province was anxious not to intervene until the Protestant majority of the sister Province, which was better placed to deal with the question, had stated its opinion one way or the other.

CURZON PROGRESSING.

Bulletin Says Strength is Being Maintained—Still Causes Anxiety.

LONDON, Mar. 13. — (Canadian Press).—A medical bulletin issued this morning says Lord Curzon, who recently underwent an operation, passed a fair night, and that although his condition continues to cause anxiety, his general strength is being maintained.

SIMPSONS FINANCING.

New Issue of 20 Year 6 1-2 Per Cent. Bonds of Simpsons Limited.

Announcement has just been made of the offerings by Wood, Gundy & Company and Dominion Securities Corporation, Limited, of a new issue of $5,600,000 20-year 6½ per cent. bonds of Simpsons, Limited. This company has been newly incorporated under Dominion charter to acquire all the outstanding shares of the Robert Simpson Company, Limited, which company, with its subsidiaries, now owns and operates the Simpson store in Toronto, the John Murphy Company, Limited, in Montreal, as well as the Robert Simpson Eastern Company Limited Halifax; Robert Simpson Western Company, Limited, Regina, etc. Through complete stock ownership, therefore, the new company will control all of thecompanies constituting the Simpson group.

The business will continue to be operated under the present executive direction. It has been pointed out that on of the primary purposes of the present issue will be to afford officers and department managers an opportunity to acquire a more important shareholding interest in the business.

This constitutes the first new financing in connection with the Simpson organization for a period of nearly 13 years. In connection with the bond issue the company has issued a financial statement of Simpsons, Limited, and constituent companies, as of Feb. 4, 1925. This statement shows an exceedingly strong financial position. Total net assets of the company exceed $20,000,000, and after deducting all obligations ranking prior to the new bond issue, there remains $14,197,852 of assets against which the company carries a reserve of $3,223,116 for depreciation of fixed assets. It is noticeable that the company carries no values for leases and goodwill in its assets. The working capital position appears to be exceedingly strong, net current assets, after deducting all current liabilities, amounting to $6,153,738. The earnings position shows that during the last three years there has averaged $1,167,088 available for interest on the new bond issue. This represents more than three times requirements.

The new bonds will be payable in principal cities in Eastern and Western Canada, as well as in London, England, and in New York. The bonds may be registered as to principal only or may be fully registered in denominations of $1,000. The issue price is 99 and interest, yielding nearly 6.60 per cent.

It was stated late yesterday afternoon by the syndicate handling the bonds that the initial demand had been unusually keen, orders having been received from many quarters.

ROB LABORERS.

Bandits Hold Up Work Train and Take Hard Earned Money.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 13. —Three armed men held up a Santa Fe work train at Wiseburn siding, between here and Redondo Beach, lined up 100 of the company's labourers after routing them out of their bunks and robbed them of money estimated at between $1,000 and $5,000 and made their escape.

The labourers offered no resistance and the robbers escaped in an automobile.

ONTARIO TO LEAD CANADIAN BEAUTY

Home Surroundings Beautified Through Efforts of Horticultural Society.

ASSOCIATION GROWS.

TORONTO, March 13.—Before many years Ontario will lead the continent in efforts to beautify home surroundings, Prof. W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist, predicted last night in an addresse to to the Toronto Horticultural Society. There were now 210 horticultural societies in the Province, he stated, and rapid advancement was being made both in home and civic beautification.

Helpful suggestions on the preparation and making of a garden were given by the speaker, and methods of maintaining continuous bloom were discussed. Prof. Macoun stated that the use of window boxes, advocated stongly and practiced to a great extent in Ottawa, had beautified that city.

Lioinel Godson preside, and brief addresses were given by George Baldwin and Reeve Lawrence Baldwin of Forest Hill. A. Grimbley announced that a Moore Park Horticultural Society would be organized at a meeting in Deer Park School next Thursday. Over 200 persons attended the gathering last night.

The funeral will take place on Sunday.

AN INCREASE IN NAVY ESTIMATES

Show a Jump of 4,700,000 Over Those of the Current Year.

BUILD VITAL LINK.

LONDON, March 13 (Canadian Press).—The British navy estimates for 1925-26 amount to 60,500,000 pounds, an increase over the current year of 4,700,000 pounds.

Included in this total are two sums of 1,320,000 pounds and 50,000 pounds representing charges appearing for the first time in the navy votes on account of the cost of the fleet's air arm and work done for the navy at the army experimental establishment at Shoeburyness.

The estimates do not include provisions for commencet of any new construction. The admiralty's proposals for construction, says Mr. Bridgeman, First Lord, in an explanatory statement, form part of a programme considered necessary during a period of several years in order to maintain the accepted standard of naval strength, the chief feature of the programme being the replacement of cruisers which have become or are becoming obsolete.

Provision is made in the estimates for resumption of work on the development of a naval base at Singapore, this base being deemed a vital link in the chain of communication with British Dominions in the Pacific.

The Admiralty is greatly interested in the development of airships, with a view to their possible value in naval reconnaissance at sea.

The personnel of the fleet for 1925 to 1926 is fixed at 102,675, an increase of 2,175.

TIGERS DEMAND PLAY-OFF BONUS

Will Be Suspended by the N. H.L. if They Hold Out on Series.

OTTAWA, March 13 (Canadian Press). — Unless the players of the Hamilton pro-hockey team agree to carry on and drop their demand for a $200 cash bonus for playing in the National Hockey League play-offs, they will all be suspended and the Ottawa team, which came fourth in the standings, will automatically take Hamilton's place andwill play off with the winners of St. Patricks-Canadiens game to be played in Toronto to-night.

This is the gist of an official communication from Frank Calder, the president of the League, to Frank Ahearn, president of the local team, received last night.

President Frank Ahearn, of the Ottawa Hockey Club, received word from Frank Calder, president of the League, that the players of the Hamilton pro-hockey team were demanding $200 each for participating in the N. H. L. play-offs.

Manager Thompson ,of the Hamilton team ,refused the players' demands, and referred the matter to President Calder.

The latter in his communication states that unless the Hamilton players agree to carry on they will all be suspended, and he notified President Ahearn to hold his men in readiness to take Hamilton's place in the play-offs. In view of this notification, all members of the Ottawa team were called out to a full practice last night.

Providing that the Hamilton players fail to withdraw their demands, the Ottawa team will get the bye, and will play off on Monday and Wednesday with the winners of the St. Patrick's semi-finals.

The first game is scheduled to be held on Monday in Montreal, and the second game was to have been played in Hamilton on Wednesday night. If the Ottawas get in the play-offs, it is understood that the Wednesday night game will be held in Ottawa.

COMPEAU WITH PROS.

Kingston Shortstop Signs Contract With Port Huron.

KINGSTON, March 13(Canadian Press). — "Mickey" Compeau, star shortstop of the local C.O.B.L. team last year ,has signed a contract to play this year with "Knotty" Lee's Port Huron team in the Michigan-Ontario League ,and thus Kingston loses her best ball player. Compeau will report to Lee on 15th April.

Compeau was last year the sensation of the C.O.B.L., and all over the circuit he fielded in spectacular style and hammered the ball hard.

When "Knotty" Lee came here to coach the team late in the season, he was at once impressed by Compeau's playing ,and predicted a great future for him. "Mickey" is not yet

BIG FOOTBALL CROWDS

Hawaiians Attend Games in Large Numbers—Rivals Baseball.

HONOLULU, March 13.—(Associated Press).—Football has become a close rival to baseball for popularity in Hawaii, according to paid attendance figures for both sports made public by J. Ashman Beaven, owner of Moiliili Park, Honolulu's shrine of athletics.

For the short football season 73,000 persons paid admission to the park. These included the attendance a tthe one game played by Occidental College of California against the University of Hawaii and the games of Colorado University against the Pearl Harbor Navy team and the University of Hawaii.

The total turnout for last year's senior league baseball season, with attendance compiled for four times as many games as were counted in arriving at the football attendance, was 78,000, Beaven announced.

COLTS TIED IN SECOND ROUND

Lakefield Firemen Win Close Game From District Leaders.

LAKEFIELD, March 13.—By losing to the Firemen 3 to 2 last night, Kennedy's Colts, who won the first half of the District Hockey League schedule, are now tied with the Grove school for the second half. A win would have left them safely in front without a play-off. The teams were:

Colts—Goal, Graham; defence, J. Sabatino and D. Hill; centre, M. Wannamaker; right wing, E. Northey; left wing, S. Trude. Subs, W. Trude and E. Wannamaker.

Firemen— Goal, T. Webster; defence, Simpson and L. Sabatino; centre, Ridpath; right wing, Sherin; eft wing, W. Webster. Subs, Scriver and Hamblin.

Referee—R. Murduff.

Webster scored all three for the Firemen and Northey got the Colts' pair.

Both goalers were in great form and had a busy night.

Colts evidently missed Bradin Blewett.

PROMOTERS ANGLE FOR DEMPSEY BOUT

Half Million Bid Monday For Wills Engagement.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Three New York boxing promoters entered the Arena Thursday in a contest for what is expected to prove the greatest bout from a financial standpoint, in the history of pubilism.

Jimmy Deforest, recently appointed matchmaker at the Polo Grounds, made the largest offer in a telegram to Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, Jack Dempsey. Deforest said that he had proposed larger remuneration than Dempsey ever had received for a bout.

But credit for the first shot in this battle goes to Charles S. Henderson of Brooklyn, sponsor of a new stadium to seat 110,000 in Long Island City. Henderson proposes to place in the hands of Kearns on Monday, a certified cheque for $250,000, guaranteeing that the proposed bout between Dempsey and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight, under his direction in September, will not be subjected to political interference.

Tex Rickard, ruler of the Yankee stadium and Boyle's Thirty Acres in New Jersey was on trial in Trenton Court yesterday, but found time to remark that he would have a proposition for Kearns when the champion's manager arrives in the East on Sunday.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING IN COBOURG COURT VENTILATION

After Arguing Back and Forth For Years, it is Discovered That System is Already Installed — Cost $100 to Put in Order.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, March 12.— Judges and lawyers who come to Cobourg on legal business have for years complained of the ventilation in the court room. Crown Attorney Kerr has frequently called the attention of the Counties Council to these conditions and the question has been brought up in session after session of the "Little Parliament." The County Property committee has made report after report, and grand juries in their returns have made recommendations that some action be taken. Still conditions remain the same as they have been for years. But now it seems that at last something is to be done.

At the June session of the Counties Council last year Crown Attorney Kerr sent in a communication on the time worn subject. In his charge to the Grand Jury, Judge Ward also referred to it. The council again placed the matter in the hands of the Property committee and after adjournment tenders were asked for for putting in an up-to-date ventilating system.

Three offers were received, figures ranging from $1,200 to $1,400. The committee did not care to assume the responsibility for this outlay and reported to the council. At the January session the question was again referred to the committee.

Make a Discovery.

A meeting of the property committee was held here yesterday, those present being Reeve W. F. Elliott of Murray, chairman; Warden McCamus of Cavan, Reeve W. J. Corbett of Cobourg, and Reeve J. H. Staples of Manvers. The committee made a thorough investigation of the building and found that a satisfactory ventilation system had been installed some years ago, but that it had been rendered practically useless when the present hot water heating apparatus had been put in.

The members of the committee present yesterday, Chairman Elliott informs The Examiner that satisfactory arrangements can now be made at a cost not to exceed $100.

Reason for Delay.

The delay in this matter has not been due to the question of expenditure. It has been a case of "passing the buck." The town of Cobourg owns the court house building and the counties rent the necessary office room for $2,000 a year; the present lease having seven years to run. The counties representatives have always held that the owner and not the tenants were responsible for the ventilation.

In addition to the $2,000 a year for rent the counties are required by the terms of their lease to pay half the cost of the heating. At yesterday's session, the committee awarded the contract for the coal required for the county buildings this year; R. Hicks of Peterboro and Cobourg being the successful bidder.

NIAGARA FALLS ENTERS FINALS

Beat Montreal Vics 8-3 and Play Varsity in Eastern Finals.

WINNERS GO WEST.

TORONTO, March 13.—(Canadian Press).—Niagara Falls qualified for the Allan Cup Eastern finals by defeating Victorias of Montreal 8 to 3 at the Arena last night, and the five-goal margin gave the Senior O.H.A. champions the round 8 to 5, the Vics having won the first game in Montreal 2 to 0. The Falls were the best even though they did not play the hockey they are capable of, and the Victorias gave the Senior O.H.A. champions an argument worth while but lacked the scoring ability of their opponents. Niagara Falls plays Varsity in the finals here to-morrow night, with Mike Rodden as referee, while the return game takes place in the Big Roar town on Tuesday, with Dr. W. J. Laflame in charge. It promises to be a big series, and the winner goes to Winnineg to play the Western survivor in the finals for the Allan Cup, leaving Toronto on Thursday of next week.

HAMILTON PROS OUT ON STRIKE

Hockey Team Demands $200 a Head or Will Not Play in Finals.

STANDING PAT.

HAMILTON, March 13. —(Canadian Press).—Members of Hamiltons professional hockey team have demanded a $200 bonus before entering the championship dri e and the players are standing 'Pat." The local club still refuses to pay extra and the players declare that they will not don uniform unless their demands are met. The men declare that their contracts for the season expired with the playing of the last scheduled game, and they ask for $100 each for the play-off series. As a result the strike, Hamilton may be counted out on the play-off. This action has been threatened by President Calder who stated that if the locals did not obey his ruling that Ottawa would be allowed to play off with the winners of the St. Pats-Canadien series.

HOCKEY SCORES

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, March 12. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:
Sterling demand $4.78 1-2.
Sterling cables $4.78 7-8.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, March 12 — Prices are about steady at the recent decline but indications are as the season advances they will reach a lower level. It is reported that importations of United States eggs are finished for this season. Local stocks coming in very freely, some firms receiving more than is necessary for their domestic requirements.

Toronto unchanged.

Montreal jobbing extras 40, firsts 37, seconds 30. Latest arrivals of United States eggs costing 32 1-2 delivered.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 12. —Reaction from the fluctuating activity of trade on the market here during the past week, developed in to-day's session, trade volume being extremely light, and prices, while weak, worked wit.in a narrow range of about 3 1-2 cents. The May future lost further ground, closing at $1.88, a decline of 1 1-2c. Both deferred futures dropped two cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 12. — Widely scattered showers in Texas together with predicitons of rain or snow for Kansas gave a lively downward swing to the wheat market to-day. Closing prices for wheat were unsettled 3-8 to 3 5-8 cents net low, May 181 1-4 to 181 1-2, and July 156 7-8 to 157, with corn 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 cents down, oats varying from half cent decline to 1-8 cent gain, and provisions at 5 to 12 cents advance.

Most of the set back in wheat values took place during the late trading and much greater effect on new crop months than on the May delivery. In the south-west especially the new winter crop has been shon of moisture, and the outlook has been watched with considerable anxiety owing to signs that the carry-over of old wheat at the end of the season, July 1, would be small. Relief from dryness in Texas, therefore and prospects of ample moisture in Kansas were quickly reflected by the wheat market.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 12. — The export business in Canadian grain here to-day was again very quiet, owing to there being very few firm bids in the market for any kind of grain, but there was some demand from Canadian and American exporters for ocean grain room and further engagements of Hamburg and Rotterdam from Canadian winter ports were made at 10 cents per 10 pounds for March-April loading, and some further business was done to the latter port at 14 cents per 100 pounds for May shipment.

A few loads were also booked to United Kingdom ports for March-April The trade in cash oats was reported dull but prices were steady small. The demand for winter wheat 60 cents and No. 44 at 58 cents per bushel ex-store.

The feature of the flour trade here to-day was the announcement made that Russia was again in the market for all the Spring flour millers.

Could deliver during the month of April. There was no change in the condition of the market ,prices were firm and the volume of business small. The demand for winte rwheat flour continues of a very limited character.

The egg market was without any new feature to note. A fair business was transacted with United States sources here to-day in Canadian creamery butter. Extreme dullness marked the trade in cheese with fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods quoted at 20 1-4 to 20 1-2 cents per pound and No. 2 grade at 19 1-4 to 19 1-2 cents per pound.

Beans were firm at $2.70 per bushel.

HAMILTON TEAM IS DEADLOCKED

Players Refuse to Play and Owners Refuse to Pay.

START NEW TEAM.

HAMILTON, March 13.—(Canadian Press). — Contrary to expectations, President Frank Calder did not arrive in Hamilton to-day to straighten out the trouble caused by the refusal of the Hamilton players to take part in the play-off for the N.H.L. title, and an official report from club headquarters this morning was to the effect that Calder would not be here.

The affair is closed as far as the club owners are concerned. Manager Thompson announced this morning that the would not give in to the players and pay them the amount demanded, and Captain "Shorty" Green, who is doing the talking for the players, stated that they would not play unless paid.

That is the way the situation stands to-day. The owners of the club say that if the players are suspended they will start out next year with new material and attempt to build up a team like they did in the past.

ODD GOLF SHOT MADE OFF SEAT

Peculiar Plays in Championship Games—Ball in Bird's Nest.

UNIQUE SHOTS

Golf, like practically all other sports, has its odd happenings and occurrences—little incidents which crop out during play—some humorous, some otherwise. On the final day in the open tournament at Skokie, three years ago, Eddie Loos, a former Van Cortlandt Park, New York, caddie, had quite a peculiar experience while playing the second hole.

Loos' tee shot had gone wide but instead of landing in the rough or in a bunker, as is usually the case, it bounded onto a bench and stayed there. Eddie decided to play the ball from where it lay, however, and actually made the hole in four.

One of the oddest shots ever played at Palm Beach was that made by Edward Kennedy, Boston golfer, a few years back.

Kennedy's ball, when driven from the eighth tee, had struck the roof of one of the nearby Breakers cottages, had bounded off into a drain pipe on the roof, rolled through the pipe half way around the house, and had finally rolled down and out of the pipe to a good spot on the fairway.

The ball was well teed up for the player when he arrived to make his second s[illegible]

At a [illegible] tournament in Indiana a wi[illegible] rather odd play came up.

It was in [illegible] Mrs. Cal Blackford, a prominent Hoosier player, lodged her [illegible] in a tree. Not to be outdone, after a stroke she climbed the tree, finding the ball in a bird's nest. She then shot the pellet right from the nest. It landed on the green, thus enabling her to halve the hole with her opponent.

Perhaps one of the oddest bits of the unusual on the links happened to Aubrey Boomer, former French open champion.

Boomer, during an important match, shot his ball into a sand trap. As he pitched out the ball hit the side of a bunker close by and then apparently disappeared. Search was immediately instituted for the elusive pellet but it couldn't be found. Finally Boomer put his hand in the pocket of his coat and—there was the ball.

It had rebounded after striking the side of the bunker and had dropped in without being noticed.

Bowling

Ladies League—Y. M. C. A.

The regular schedule of the ladies' league at the Y. M. C. A. finished last week and now post season series is well under way. The first league which was composed of two schedules of nine weeks with ten teams in each half. The first schedule finished at Christmas with the Buttercups, captained by Miss Clara Adams at the t[illegible]. The second half whi[illegible] has just closed found the Dandelions led by Miss Doris Burgess at the head with the Buttercups two games behind.

Some of the tail-ende[illegible] of the first schedule came up remarkably in the second schedule, notably the Marigold team, captained by Miss Stella Bennett. As this is the first season for bowling for some of the ladies on these teams, some good bowling will be the order next year.

The play offs for first and second places were scheduled to be bowled off on Thursday night and Saturday morning and so the first games were rolled off last night between the Dandelions and Buttercups. The two teams were below their usual form and showed the strain of the stake as practically all their scores were below par, though they showed a slight improvement as the games went on. A large gallery of interested players from the other teams in the league were on hand to watch the first of the play offs. As the Butter[illegible]ps managed to nose out the Dandelions in two of the games by close margins, one of eight pins and one of five pins, the other play off on Saturday morning should be very keen.

Miss Ross had a nice high single of 228, while Miss Doris Burgess had one of 183 and Miss Nichols one of 180. Undoubtedly all the scores will be higher on Saturday, when the contests will be more keen.

The scores for last nights game are as follows, while beow them will be found the lead standing at the end of the second half for the second part of the schedule.

THEATRES

THE WINTER GARDEN VARIETIES.

The new programme of the Winter Garden Vanities at the Grand last night was even more successful than the offerings of the first three days of the week. The bill was replete with comedy features and song numbers and the funmakers headed by Moe Parker and Jimmy Taylor, scored their usual big hit. Miss Ivy Rochester, a very graceful dancer and a pleasing singer, received well-merited applause for her dancing and singing numbers, and the other members of the cast added to the laurels they have already won. The Winter Garden Vanities are a sure cure for the blues, and the audience this week have not been a bit backward in indicating their approval of the various numbers. The revues given by the Vanities move at top speed, with plenty of variety, and the result is an evening of fun and music with no tiresome waits or dull moments.

It will be hockey night at the Grand to-night, with the presence of the Peterborough Hockey Cub Seniors recognised by some appropriate changes in the programme.

AT THE ROYAL.

INTERESTING SPIRIT IN HOOT'S NEWEST UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION.

Period of Generation Past in This Big Western.

Visualizing the spirit of the old West, the West of the gun-man and the free-living cowboy, Hoot Gibson shot and courted his breezy way into the appreciation of those assembled, astride his beautiful horse, Pal, in the Royal Theatre last night, to witness the opening screening of "The Ridin' Kid From Powder River," his latest Universal production.

Advance notices of the picture said that it was based on incidents that marked the history of the vigorous but comparatively closely confined warfare between the cattleman and the nester. After having seen the picture one can well realize the truth of the statement.

None of the school histories deal with this dramatic period of the country's expansion. Those who have read semi-historical works and have had the privilege of word of mouth conversation with those who lived in the South-West in the early '70's have vivid recollections of just such conditions as were depicted on the screen around a story written by Henry Herbert Knibbs.

In this day, however, to find a similar condition one would have to go to the big cities. But the picturesqueness would be missing, the automatic would displace the six-gun, the gun toter would be some "cake-eating" individual, and the broncho of the plains would be supplanted by an automobile.

Prologue and Epilogue.

There is a sort of prologue showing the advent into the country of the man who crossed the plains in the prairie schooner to become the agriculturist; and there is an epilogue that revives recollections of Spanish-American War days.

But the principal thing is that the picture is a typically Western story that convinces one that it might well have been true. Hoot does some daring riding, and so do others of the company, to say nothing of the bunch of Universal Ranch Riders whose names do not appear in the cast of characters. Besides, there is plenty of shooting and tempestuous love making, at which Hoot is really proficient.

Early in the picture Hoot is shown as a boy in the toils of an itinerant horse trader, from whose cruelty he is rescued by a nester. The latter is killed by cattlemen in one of the little wars that were common in those days, and the lad vows vengeance.

There is a time lapse and the story really begins with Hoot, a young man intent on his mission of vengeance. From then on the story moves swiftly through a series of soul-stirring experiences.

There is some fine scenic photography. The picture was made under direction of Edward Sedgwick who has directed all of Hoot's recent pictures.

The cast includes: Bud Watkins (The Rambler), Hoot Gibson; "Miss," Gladys Hulette; "Kansas" Lou, Gertrude Astor; The Spider, Tully Marshall; Steve Lanning, Walter Long; "Buzzard" Davis, Sydney Jordan; "Lightning'" Bill Smith, William A. Steele; "Pop" Watkins, Howard Truesdell; The Scorpion, Fred Hume; But (at 10), Newton House.

BUDDY MESSENGER AT ROYAL

Buddy and his gang are back at the Royal. These kid comedies make a big hit on Saturday afternoon. This week "Here He Comes" is the name of a clever comedy that will have the kiddies in shrieks of laughter.

AT THE CAPITOL

AMAZING SPECTACLE IN "BAGDAD" FILM.

Douglas Fairbanks, in the most amazing and spectacular screen production yet known to the world, 'The Thief of Bagdad," which is at the Capitol to-day. So much has been written of the astonishing and astounding occurrences depicted in this picture, that perhaps not enough has been written about the charmingly romantic love story of the Thief and the Princess. It is said that the famous Doug has never made love more ardently than in the scenes with the Princess. Having first climbed up the Magic Rope to reach the Harem and, chastened by love, he reveals to her the fact that he is in reality an imposter. Julanne Johnston, who impersonates the Princess, is one of the most beautiful leading women Mr. Fairbanks has played opposite to in his long career as a screen star. She brings to the role added grace and charm, gained through her experience as one of the famous Morgan Dancers. Some of the outstanding features are the Magic Carpet, on which the Thief and the Princess soar over the housetops, and into the sky; The Winged Horse mount on which the Thief dashes into and through the clouds; The Miraculous Seed which, when thrown on the ground, creates a huge army from nothingness; The Forest of Enchanted Trees; the Cloak of Invisibility, which the Thief uses to cover himself and the Princess so that they may escape the soldiers of the Mongol Prince; and yet aside from all these wonders, which no one would heretofore have thought possible on the screen, there will be found the living dragon in the Marvelous Valley of Monsters, The Crystal Realm beneath the sea, the Flight of the Thousand Stirs, and the Astonishing Cavern of Fire.

"THE ARIZONA ROMEO" IS A GREAT PICTURE, STARRING BUCK JONES— FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Do not allow yourself to be deceived into thinking that "The Arizona Romeo" is just "another Western photoplay." In reality, it is a comedy, a drama, a thriller, a touch of society life, romance and big business all thrown together into the melting pot of filmdom and emerging as a corking good evening's entertainment.

The story opens in New York with Richard Wayne trying to bring to a conclusion a matrimonial alliance between his daughter Sylvia and the son of his business pardner.

Realising that his daughter is not particularly impressed with his choice and seeing only one way of overcoming her prejudice he resorts to strategy.

He accuses the young mano wh, incidentally is his secretary, of embezzlement and threatens to send him to prison if his daughter still persists in marrying him. The ruse succeeds, for Sylvia inheriting part of her father's obstinacy, champions the young man's cause and agrees to marry him.

The following scenes are laid in a small Western town in Arizona, where Sylvia and her maid open up a beauty parlour under fictitious names awaiting the arrival of her fiancee. Industry is demoralised at the nearby ranch of Tom Long. The major portion of his cowboys have fallen badly for the new beauty emporium and are indulging in manicure ,facial massages, and all the vanities of the effete East.

In an effort to bring them to their senses Tom Long takes a hand and after a stinging denunciation of women in general and manicurists in particular rides into town to round up his missing men.

He calls at the parlours and although apparently indifferent is intrigued by Sylvia's beauty. Later in the day he overhears a plot to annoy the young woman and returns to the shop and orders a manicure.

With the arrival of the plotters a thrilling fight ensues in which the men are routed and Sylvia is profuse in her appreciation of his efforts. She tells him her story and despite his increasing love determines to assist her, believing that she is in love with Richard Barr.

From this point the action comes thick and fast. The Sheriff is outwitted by dynamiting a bridge, there is an "almost" lynching bee, a daring ride and a flying leap from a horse to a speeding train and many other exciting incidents until—well—it's a happ yending.

Buck Jones as Tom Long, Lucy Fox as Sylvia Wayne are excellent and surrounded by a capable cast of favourites.

Facts About OPTOMETRY

Why Are Errors of Vision so Generally Neglected?

Often it is because the person does not know he has an error of vision. Not knowing that it exists, it is naturally not given attention. The wisest plan for everyone to pursue would be to have the Eyes examined, whether or not they seem to need it. Then every error of vision would receive proper attention. If you have been wondering about your Eyes, let us give you the facts.

INTERESTING DEBATE

The meeting of the U.F.Y.P.O. was held on Thursday evening, March 12, with a fairly good attendance. The main feature of the evening was a debate staged by four of the club members, on "Resolved, that the Yellow Races should not be permitted to enter Canada." The affirmative, was upheld by Mr. Jack Wilson and Miss Eulah Hancock; while Miss Lily Mills and Mr. Clifford Profit upheld the negative. The judges, Miss Hazel Ackison, Messrs. Harry Grant and Melville Harrison, gave their decision in favor of the affirmative. The balance of the evening was spent in games and music.

EMERY—WALDRON

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral on February 24, Rev. Father Costelo officiating, when Terephine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Waldron, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Joseph P. eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Emery. The bride was becomingly attired in a sandalwood dress, with hat, shoes and stockings to match. The groom's sister, Cecelia, acted as bridesmaid, while Mr. W. D. Hyslop supported the groom. The happy young couple will reside in the city.

OBITUARY.

JOSEPH WATSON

LAKEFIELD, March 13.—The death occurred on Friday morning of Joseph Watson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Watson. The deceased was about 60 years of age, and a life long resident of the village. For several years he held the offices of chief of police, assessor, street commissioner, resigning four years ago owing to ill health. He suffered a severe breakdown during the summer of 1921, and for the past month has been critically ill and patiently enduring terrible suffering.

He is survived by his widow formerly Selena Mason; two daughters, Mrs. Ira Lennox and Mrs. Braden Blewett, both of Lakefield; one son, Allen of Detroit, Mich., who has been in the village with his parents for the last month; one sister, Mrs. Mary Jackman at Lakefield; and four brothers, William of Peterboro, Thomas, James and Robert of Lakefield.

The deceased was a Conservative in politics, a member of the Church of England.

The funeral announcements will be made later.

CITY OF MONTREAL IS PROFITEERING IN VICE TO EXTENT OF $60,000 A YEAR, REPORTS JUDGE IN EXPOSING GLARING POLICE FORCE FAULTS

Commercialized Vice Flourishes Under Ridiculous Inadequacy of the Staff—Recommends That Chief of Police be Pensioned—Condemns Aldermanic Meddling.

INQUIRY COST MONTREAL $75,000.

Captain Sauve Betrayed His Oath; Lieutenant McGee Accepted Ignoble Tip of a Bottle of Whiskey; Samples of Mr. Justice Coderre's Startling Indictments.

MONTREAL, March 14 (Canadian Press). — Exposure of many glaring faults in the system of police administration in Montreal, of irregular influences exercised on the police, of the ridiculous inadequacy of the force and of a flourishing commercialised vice and drug traffic here, are contained in the report of Mr. Justice Coderre with which he has concluded the probe he conducted into conditions here. Summarised, the Judge finds incompetency in high places in the police, and recommends Chief Pierre Belanger be pensioned. Strange actions by the police in regard to theatre and coal cases; aldermanic meddling in police affairs; strength of the police force should be 50 to 100 per cent. greater; recorders' convictions not in accordance with the law; City of Montreal profiteers in vice to extent of $60,000 a year, of which Province takes part for venereal clinics; system of warning disorderly houses when raids were coming off; in part voluntary and in part deliberate inertia on the part of police in fighting commercialised vice; laxity with betting and gaming houses; the existence of a second-hand store and ransom system encouraging robberies; detectives hunting the stolen goods, but not the robbers; and the error of the executive committee of the City Council in not naming a director of public safety and in assuming his duties itself.

Immorality Rampant.

The report says the Police Department was in the grip of a routine which killed initiative. He shows the atrophy of the police in failing to take advantage of hold-up tips received in the Banque of Hochelaga $140,000 collection car robbery and how a respectable man named John Speak disappeared and though this was reported the man died in jail as a vagrant and his body was given up for dissecting purposes.

His Lordship finds that certain cabarets have been allowed to illegally remain open all night, and that illicit drinking took place, and that "immorality flaunted itself with insolence in them." The Judge drew a horrifying picture of the system of commercialised vice existent.

The Judge deals at some length especially with the question of information leaking to disorderly houses of coming raids. He exonerates all connected with the Recorders' Court of charges that they may have issued tips. He says only one man was in a position to do it, and that was the police officer in charge of the district where the raid took place. The report says Captain Roch Sauve was in charge of the section where most of the resorts abounded, and was head of the morality squad. The report accuses Sauve of unconceivable benevolence towards commercialised prostitution and veritable complicity. The captain could not explain the enormous disproportion between the number of prostitutes arested and those in the houses he raided. Neither, says the report, could the captain explain the origin of the little fortune he succeeded in gathering during four years, and which was out of proportion to his salary. He had tried to explain, but it was a case of him who proves too much proves nothing.

Chief Incompetent.

Judge Coderre deals with what he calls individual responsiblities in one part of his report. Referring to Police Chief Pierre Belanger, he says: "His responsibility is heavy, undoubtedly, but it is not for him to participate in it alone, because, in sum he has only been the instrument of the administration. In my opinion he is not qualified for the functions he is called upon to discharge, but for that incompetence he should not be called on to answer, for he did not name himself and nothing shows that he sought the position. I am led to believe that he acted only against his own inclination and because he must have been made to understand that his responsibility could be covered by that of the administrative authority. The administrative commission named him and the executive committee has maintained him in his functions. It was for them to know him and judge

FINDS SISTER LOST 16 YEARS

Girl Abandoned By Guardian Taking Her on a Holiday to Winnipeg.

MANY HARDSHIPS.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 14.—(Canadian Press).—After a search extending over a period of 16 years, William McGillivray, of Montreal, yesterday located his sister, Sarah, in a Salvation Army Home here.

In the fall of 1908 Miss McGillivray was sent from her home at Morden, Man., to spend a holiday in Winnipeg. A guardian who brought the child to the city left her at a rooming house and never turned up again. The girl eventually was placed in a children's home, where the authorities failed to establish her identity.

Investigations pursued by her family, proved abortive. Sarah's mother and father died, and the family broke up, but her brother William never gave up hope. He pursued every clue and finally was rewarded when social welfare files revealed that his sister had been placed in a home under the name of the guardian who abandoned the girl in Winnipeg so many years ago.

When brother and sister were united, she told of many hardships in homes where she had been adopted and of her efforts to establish her parentage.

SAYS W. J. BLACK.

VANCOUVER, March 14 (Canadian Press).—"We expect a greater number of settlers to come in from the United States this year than in ony previous year," declared Dr. W. J. Black, Director of Colonization and Development for the Canadian National Railways, here, yesterday.

"There is a real revival of interest in Canada throughout the Central States," Dr. Black added.

HONOR FOREIGN DEAD.

France Will Pay Homage to Volunteers Who Helped in War.

PARIS, March 13.— The Senate yesterday unanimously adopted a motion inviting the Government to pay public homage to the memory of volunteers of foreign countries who died for France during the war. Andre Honnorat, former Ministre of Public Instruction, presented the motion.

GERMAN RIFLE CAUSES DEATH

War Trophy Accidentally Discharged, Coroner Finds in Tragedy.

YOUTH IS VICTIM.

OTTAWA, March 14 (Canadian Press).—A bullet accidentally fired from a loaded German rifle, a war trophy, ended the life of Georges Letourneux, 16-year-old orphan, last Wednesday, according to Coroner Wright who returned yesterday from the remote Kasabanza district in the Gatineau Valley, where the tragedy occurred. Ernest Wright, 16, an orphan and adopted brother of the dead youth ,pressed the trigger.

The tragedy occurred at Chausse's farm, near the home of the two boys. In the absence of Chausse they had gone to feed his stock and finding the door of the farm dwelling unlocked had entered. Two rusty rifles hanging on the wall attracted their attention. They were taken down and Wright in toying with the German rifle pressed the trigger. The bullet struck Letourneaux in the mouth, killing him instantly. The coroner rendered a verdict of accidental death.

RUSSIAN TENOR AT ROYAL, MONDAY.

In addition to Florence Vidor in "The Mirage," a picturization of the New York Stage success by Edgar Selwyn, the Royal management will offer one of the few recognized grand operatic acts. Emily Westgate and M. Dubin will present "The Life of an Operatic Singer." M. Dubin has appeared on all the important concert platforms in Great Britain.

Press Opinions:

Edinburgh Evening News: Usher Hall, Edinburgh — "Mr. Dubin proved a wonderful revelation. He carried off the honours of the day. He has a glorious voice and is the finest tenor heard in Edinburgh in many a day.

Manchester Guardian.— "A concert was given in the Free Trade Hall at which the Russian Tenor, Dubin, appeared. His vocalism was of the genuine Italian type and style. His voice has both power and natural beauty. His treatment has also vigor and freedom.

M. Dubin will be at the ROYAL, Monday. Abvt.

THE TREMBLING GROOM.

LONDON, March 14.—It's the bridegroom and not the bride who trembles at the marriage ceremony, says Dr. Joseph Wallett, prominent churchman. "Girls write in a firm, free hand when signing the marriage register, while the men usually make a mess of it," he says.

Canadian Freight Rates Do Not Satisfy Anyone

OTTAW, March 14 (Canadian Press).—The Government proposes to bring down legislation dealing with railway freight rates as expeditiously as possible, Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals informed the House of Commons yesterday. The recent ruling of the Supreme Court, said Mr. Graham, made it impossible for any body other than Parliament to deal with railway freight rates in Canada. Freight rates in the Dominion were not satisfactory to anybody, Mr. Graham added.

SHIP SUBSIDIES FORM TOPIC OF VARIED DEBATE

LAUDS COURAGE.

Hon. George P. Graham Says Government is Not Afraid to Proceed.

Hon. George P. Graham wielded the Government's oratorical broadsword yesterday evening, in defence of the proposed shipping contract between the Government and Sir William Peterson. Mr. King's Government, he pointed out, is not willing to lie down and admit nothing can be done. It is the only government that has had the courage to tackle the problem.

Robert Forke, voicing Progressive sentiments, did not agree with the subsidy proposal, while admitting frankly his admiration for the Government that at least made an effort to better conditions.

Viewed With Suspicion.

OTTAWA, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Robert Forke, Progressive leader, continued the debate on the shipping contract between the Government and Sir William Petersen, after preliminaries were disposed of in the House of Commons yesterday. Mr. Forke quoted resolutions to show that the matter of ocean rates was attracting a widespread attention, and was of national importance.

There was a tendency, said Mr. Forke to regard with suspicion, any large combination which exercised control in the way that the North Atlantic Conference was said to do so. The question immediately arose as to why the conference or combine existed. Was it for the benefit of the public, or was it for the selfish interests of those engaged in the business? He thought that it had been fully acknowledged that rates were higher than they really ought to be, since this conference came into existence. He did not propose to lay too much stress on the Preston report. If the facts as set out in that report were not true, they would fall to the ground. Even without this report, there was ample evidence of a monopoly.

Mr. Forke read copies of certain correspondence which suggested the inability of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships to carry cattle at a profit. He thought it would be a wise thing to find out what these vessels were suitable for, so that they might be placed in a position to pay for the cost of their operation.

Mr. Forke did not think the Progressives were much enamored of subsidies, but if it could be shown that this one could be of real benefit to the country, he would not worry about academic considerations about the principle of subsidies. He felt that Western Canada would disapprove if it was said that their representatives in Parliament were against an attempt to meet the ocean rates problem, but were just to "lie down and say that nothing could be done a all." It had been said that the proposed ten-ship line was incapable of making a dent in the barriers of high ocean rates, and certainly a bigger contribution to Atlantic shipping might have been desirable. But Mr. Forke was willing to give the Government credit for at last making some effort to better conditions. The proposed investigation by a special committee of the House would elicit much valuable information. Evidence could be gathered under oath, actual facts and figures regarding ocean rates would be made available and members could vote more intelligently on the subsidy question afterwards. The Government was attacking a

MINERS' STRIKE IN SECOND WEEK

Honors Are Even and No Sign of Weakening on Either Side.

QUIETNESS REIGNS.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 14.—(Canadian Press).—The strike of 12,000 members of the United Mine Workers of District 26, employed in the collieries of the British Empire Steel Corporation entered its second week with honors even and no evidences that an early settlement is due. Enforced idleness of the miners and consequent financial embarrassment has been accompanied by no disorders that have marked previous strikes, and this morning the police again reported that quietness prevailed in all areas.

So far the maintenance men recruited from the offices and clerical staff have been able to cope with the situation, altrough the company heads stated when the walkout occurred that clerical men unused to the arduous toil of fanning the boilers and manning the pumps, would be unable to carry on longer than a week. There have been no official reports of any of the mines suffering material damage from lack of proper maintenance.

VENIZELOS BREAKS SILENCE IN VAIN

League Will Address Sharp Note to Greece Asking Information.

PROTECT SLAVS.

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent).

GENEVA, March. —In his first political appearance since the Lausanne Conference, Eleutherios Venizelos, former Prime Minister of Greece, to-day addressed the Council of League of Nations in defence of the Greek Chamber's rejection of the minority protocol with Bulgaria for the protection of Slavic minorities in Greece. Despite Venizelos explanation of the situation, the Council decided to address a sharp note to Greece demanding to know what steps she intends to take for protecting the Slav minorities.

DRAGONS ON STOCKINGS.

Battleship Gray is New Color and Chinese Emblems Are Ornaments.

LONDON, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Dragons in gold relief have appeared here on fancy evening dress hosiery the styles running generally to bright colors and other spectacular designs. Most of the stockings on which the Chinese emblems have been seen were of a pale shade, with the dragon standing out prominently from its background.

Battleship gray is a new stocking color, the shade having a tendency say the modistests, to make the ankles appear more slender and shapely.

PRESIDENT HAS CLOSED CHURCH

Knights of Guadalupe Entered Conflict—Catholic Clergy Denied State's Right.

NEW SECT.

dian Press).—Soledad Church has been closed to worship by orders of President Calles in settlement of a conflict created by the Knights of Cuadalupe, followers of the so-called "Mexican Catholic Apostolic Church," who recently took over the building by force and ejected the Roman Catholic priest, Father Silva.

After carefully investigating the case, President Galles found no evidence that Father Silva had willingly handed the building over to the Knights or was in any way connected with them, as had been charged.

Consequently, he declared, Patriarch Perez, of the new sect, and his followers had broken the constitution by taking national property under keeping of the Roman Catholic Church without fulfilling the requirements of law.

On the other hand, the President found the Roman Catholic Church clergy had declared themselves in open rebellion against the constitution by refusing to recognize state ownership of church buildings and the Government's right to exercise control over church worship and practices. The President, therefore, ordered Soledad Church withdrawn from religious practices.

A BUSY MORNING IN POLICE COURT

Selling Liquor, Intoxication, and False Pretenses Engaged Attention of Court.

Desmond Gehan was in court this morning, charged with obtaining $10.20 from F. R. J. MacPherson by means of a worthless cheque. He is said to have cashed a number of bad cheques and to nave advertised himself as the local representative of the John R. Cressy Company. He was remanded until Monday morning to give the police time to look into other complaints about his activities.

The police raided the home of Fanny Sims and arrested her and three customers who were purchasing liquor. In court this morning they all pleaded guilty, and Mrs. Sims was fined $200 and costs, which was quickly paid. L. Holland was fined $10 and costs and J. and T. Hanrahan paid $20 and costs.

An elderly woman was charged with vagrancy by Provincial Constable N. F. Maker. She was remanded for medical examination.

"CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST KNEW AS MUCH ABOUT DIPHTHERIA AS A PIG ABOUT ASTRONOMY"

Indictment of William Elder by Prosecuting Attorney—Charge of Manslaughter.

CASE ADJOURNED.

Prisoner Pilloried For Attempt to Blame God for the Death.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 14. — (Canadian Press).—The illness of a juror in the trial of William Elder, Christian Science practitioner, who is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death here last fall of Doreen Watson, twelve-year-old daughter of Robert Watson, yesterday caused adjournment of the case until to-day, when A. J. Andrews, K.C., defence counsel, is to conclude his address to the jury.

John Allen, deputy Attorney-General, who conducted the prosecution, addressed the jury yesterday, and after asserting that Elder's incompetency in refusing to allow anti-toxin to be administered to the girl, who was suffering from diphtheria, was responsible for the girl's death, declared that the jury's verdict would show "whether quacks and humbugs" were to be allowed to flourish in Manitoba or whether, "Doreen Watsons will be assured of protection in future."

A. J. Andrews, K.C., defending, said that if Elder were found guilty, the most trivial sign of illness would oblige parents to call in a doctor, or lay themselves open to a manslaughter charge if the child died without medical attendance.

Slur on Province.

The court-room was filled to capacity, hundreds standing. Mr. Allen spoke for more than two hours, and he was followed by A. J. Andrews, K.C., chief defence counsel.

"It would be a slur on the name of the Province," Mr. Allen stated, "if an unprotected child could go to her death without proper treatment, and linger for seventeen long days, sick and suffering, and then there was no investigation to find out who was responsible.

"Here in the midst of a big city of Christian men and women, filled with churches and schools and hospitals, with every aid for preservation of life, with a sure cure for the disease of diphtheria, Doreen Watson was allowed to linger and suffer for seventeen days, and finally died because of neglect. Elder was absolutely incompetent and knew as much about diphtheria as a pig does of astronomy."

"Now that Elder is faced with punishment an attempt is made to show that Christian Science is nothing but prayer," continued Mr. Allen, "and that God will heal. This attempt to blame God for Elder's incompetency is only an afterthought. Elder said first he was called to take charge of the case. He said he had done so and that he refused to allow anti-toxin to be administered. He was in charge of the child, and if he had given her proper treatment she would have been alive to-day.

"I suggest to you, gentlemen, that Elder was seeking to make a little easy money and Doreen was an unwilling victim. Why did he not give anti-toxin?"

No Sympathy.

"Medicine is not a perfect science," said the counsel for the defence. "There are many men walking around to-day on two legs who, if the doctorsr had their way, would be minus one of them. Similarly, a doctor sometimes will diagnose appendicitis when all that is the matter is a pain in the stomach, according to the opinion of another equally qualified practitioner.

"That Doreen Watson is dead," he said, "has nothing to do with this case, only insofar as the Crown has established the responsibility of Elder in bringing it about. Men, women and children die every day, and we are all sympathetic to the sorrowing relatives. But this case must not be tried on sympathy. It is solely a question of whether Elder is or is not responsible for shortening the life of Doreen Watson."

TO ASSAIL PEAK OF MOUNT LOGAN

Lecture in Public Library Makes Clear the Magnitude of Attempt.

TEN TO TRY.

H. F. Lambert, deputy leader of the expedition to ascend Mount Logan this coming summer, addressed a well attended meeting in the Public Library Hall last night. The meeting was under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club and Mrs. F. D. Kerr, president of the club, occupied the chair.

The proposed ascent of Mount Logan, which is 19,850 feet above sea level and has never been climbed, is undertaken by the Alpine Club of Canada. A party of ten climbers has been gathered together of several different nationalities. Mr. McCarthy, the leader of the party, is in Alaska during the winter overseeing the transport of supplies to the base of operations near the foot of the mountain. The party is taking in about nine tons of supplies.

An idea of the immense mass of Mount Logan is given by the fact that if it were cut off at the ten thousand foot level, the area of the resulting plateau would be about 100 square miles. The glaciers extend around the mountain for about sixty miles on all sides.

Mount Logan was first known in 1880 and the first photo was taken in 1897 from the summit of Mount St. Elias. Several methods of approach were considered, but it was finally decided to come in by way of Alaska.

Mr. Lambert showed a large number of slides showing the nature of the country through which he passed with the Alaskan Boundary Survey. He also showed some slides of Mount Robson in the Canadian Rockies to show the contrast between the dismal country around Mount Logan as compared with the beautiful scenery in the Rockies.

Mr. Lambert was the Canadian engineer on the Alaskan Boundary Survey and was in charge of the survey of the British Columbia-Alberta boundary.

NO ILLEGAL PRICES.

Combine Between Dealers and Operators Denied in Coal Enquiry.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 14. — (Canadian Press). — The result of the Campbell Commission's investigation into the retail coal situation in Winnipeg and Western Canada, will show that there was no illegal price-fixing combine between the dealers and operators, according to private advices received here.

The report of the Commission has been forwarded to the Government, and is expected to be tabled in the House of Commons at an early date.

MAGISTRATE IS 75.

Sir Hugh John MacDonald, of Winnipeg, Honored by Bar.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 14. — (Canadian Press).—The Bar Association of Manitoba and the citizens of Winnipeg generally, joined in honoring Sir Hugh John MacDonald, City Police Magistrate, who celebrated his 75th birthday yesterday. He received messages of congratulations from all parts of the Dominion.

SAYS TYPIST WAS SUICIDE

Sussex Farmer Charged With Murder, Makes This Defence.

LONDON, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Norman Thorne, the young farmer of Crowborough, Sussex, now on trial for the murder of his sweetheart, Elsie Cameron a London typist, whose dismembered body was found buried near Thorne's house, entered the witness box yesterday in his own defence, and told the story that Miss Cameron had committed suicide and that he cut up and buried the body to cover up the tragedy.

Thorne said Miss Cameron came to his house unexpectedly on the night of 5th December last, and announced that she would remain there until he married her.

Continuing, he said he went out to keep an appointment with another girl with whom he had discussed marriage, and on returning about midnight found Miss Cameron's body hanging from a beam in the house. Removing her clothing he cut the body to pieces.

The defence is relying chiefly on microscopic slides showing sections of the girl's neck and indicating the abrasions which a rope might have caused.

FIRST BLOODSHED MARKS RIOT IN CAMPAIGN TO ELECT LEADER TO REPLACE EBERT OF GERMANY

Reports Say Six Communists Killed in Clash With Police.

SCORE INJURED.

Eight Thousand People in Large Hall When Outbreak Occurred.

(Bulletin by Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, March 14. — First bloodshed in the campaign to select a successor to the late President Ebert has occurred. Reports today from Halle said six were killed and twenty-five severely wounded in riots when police attempted to break up a meeting of Communists.

Extraodinary precautions to prevent violence in the political campaign here were taken throughout the Reisch.

A police telephone message to the United Press at noon said the tumult started when the police forbade translation of a speech of an English Communist. Crowds in the gallery shouted insults at the police and shots were fired. The police answered the fire ,the message said, adding: "Our reports indicated that five Communists are dead, including one woman, six severely wounded and eighteen suffering from minor injuries."

The controversy started with an argument over whether all candidates should be granted use of the Government radio monopoly for campaign speeches.

About 8,000 people were in the hall when the meeting started and the police were on the alert for an outbreak, remembering that Halle was a centre for Red propaganda during the uprising of 1921.

According to The Rote Fahne, a Communist paper, Ernest Thaelmann, Communist candidate for the presidency, was expected to speak at a Big Folks Park Hall, which besame so overfilled that parallel meetings had to be held.

English and French Communists had addressed the gathering and a German interpreter was about to translate their remarks, when a police lieutenant jumped on the platform and said something which the crowd failed to understand.

The chairman asked the officer to repeat his remarks so he could inform the audience. Then, The Rote Fahne claims, the lieutenant, without warning, ordered the police to fire on the assembly.

LAKEFIELD LADIES WIN.

Beat Warkworth Girls in the First Game Against Girls This Season.

LAKEFIELD, March 14.—Lakefield ladies' hockey team played the Warkworth girls at the Lakefield Arena last night, the home team winning 7-1. The Mackenzie sisters were the stars of the Lakefield team, scoring all the goals. Skookie Elmsley, the smallest player on the ice, played a wonderful game on the defence. The ice was very soft. The Warkworth girls had the better combination, but the individual rushes of the Lakefield girls brought in the goals. Mabel Campbell scored the only goal for Warkworth. It was the first loss of the season for the Warkworth girls.

OLD DOCUMENTS WERE PRODUCED IN COURT CASE

Cobourg Sitting of Supreme Court Raised Interesting Questions.

MUSTY WITH AGE.

Crown Grant and Long Lease Figure in Civil Suit.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, March 14. — Documents and parchments musty with age, dating as they did from the second decade of the last century, records kept by generations of school trustees and other public officials and on which the ink had so faded that it was impossible to read their contents without the aid of a strong magnifying glass, were offered in evidence at the morning session of the Supreme Court Friday.

It was a case that was filled with historical interest, although it had little in the way of attraction for the ordinary frequenter of the courtroom.

In Pioneer Days.

Away back in 1816, when the pioneers of the district which now comprises the Townships of Murray and Ameliasburg, when the sturdy pioneers were laboring day and night to eke a living out of the forest, they house. To encourage them in their children by erecting a log schoolhouse. To encourage them in this work, the Government of what at that time was known as Upper Canada, made the pioneers a grant of 118 acres of wild land, 100 acres of which still remains in the undisputed possession of Union School Sections 1 and 5 in the two townships referred to. The title to the remaining 18 acres was the issue in the court case which was heard here Friday before Mr. Justice Rose.

The property has been leased to various tenants for long terms at nominal rentals and has been improved by cultivation and the erection of buildings. Richard H. McCrudden received a grant from the Crown in 1900 for the 18 acres and this grant the trustees now ask the court to set aside and to restrain the defendant from using or occupying any portion of the school land

McCrudden claims the right of undisputed possesion. He has paid the school trustees a rental of 50 cents a year, but holds that this applied only to half an acre on which there are buildings, and that no charge was ever made for the remainder of the tract. On the other hand the trustees maintain that the rent covered the entire 18 acres and that McCrudden at no time held undisputed possession.

H. J. Smith, of Trenton, appeared for the trustees and Gordon Waldron, K.C., of Toronto, for the defendant. When the case opened Mr. Justice Rose said he was not sure as to his right to set aside an order of the Crown making a grant of land but it was finally decided to take the evidence.

Many trustees have come and gone since 1816, but the early records of the struggling section were carefully and neatly kept. The present trustees are Orrie Moynes ,A. B. Young, and A. D. Sime. John Buchanan is secretary-treasurer of the Board.

Among the witnesses heard were Mr. Curtis, of the Provincial Land Office ,and Arthur Willoughby, registrar for East Northumberland.

The case was still in progress when the Court adjourned.

LITERARY SOCIETY STAGED A DEBATE

Abolition of Capital Punishment Discussed—Affirmative Won.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 14. — The High School Literary Society held a meeting on Friday afternoon in the Assembly Room. The president, Miss Dorothy Ackerman, was in the chair.

Ward Baker was chosen as secretary, as the regular secretary, Helen MacDonald was absent. After the reading of the minutes Margaret Irwin was appointed critic.

The programme announced by the president was prepared by the pupils of the Second Form and was as follows:

Piano solo, Roxie Wilson; current events Mildred Kennedy. These were well given. Vocal solo, Cherrie Turner; dance, Mildred Cowell.

Debate: "Resolved, That capital punishment should be abolished." Affirmative taken by Rosena Clarke and Basil Reynolds. Negative by Mary McGregor and Carl Irwin.

The judges were Evelyn Bonnycastle, Clyta Sarginson, and Lyall Davey.

During the time the judges retired for decision, a reading was given by Margery Ackerman. Lyall Davey then gave the judges 'report, which was in favour o fthe affirmative, the points being 14 to 10. The only criticism given was that there was too much reading, especially by the negative side.

Then followed a piano solo by Cherrie Turner.

Critic's report: She thought the programme was all very good, but that the grammar in the debate could be improved on.

O'Brien, of Peterboro, was subreason. Rev. J. McAuley, of Ennismore, was master of ceremonies. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, of Peterboro, was present, assisted by Rev. Mgr. McColl, V.G., and Rev. P. J. McGuire.

The following clergy were in the sanctuary: Rev. C. J. Phelan, the pastor; Rev .T. F. Scanlon, Grafton; Rev. P. J. Galvin, Downeyville; Rev. V. G. McFadden, Parry Sound; Rev. J. McCarthy, Norwood; Rev. J. Ferguson, Warkworth; Rev. J. Guiry, Port Hope; Rev. Father Garvey, Lakefield; and Rev. Father Corkery, of Cobourg.

The absolution was given by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, who at the close spoke most feelingly and eloquently of the beauty of the sunset of a well spent Christian life, and of the sanctifying influence of a good mother in the home.

The following members of the family were present: Mother Antoinette of St. Joseph's Hospital, Parry Sound; Mrs. E. R. Pegnam, of Rochester, N.Y., and George O'Sullivan, of Campbellford. One son, John, of Edmonton, was unavoidably absent.

Her husband, Cornelius O'Sullivan, passed away twenty-one years ago. Mrs. O'Sullivan's only surviving brother and sister, Capt. O'Brien, of Picton, and Mrs. Margaret Smith, of New York, were here for the last obsequies.

Other relatives and friends from outside points and a large congregation of the parishioners of St. Mary's assembled to pay a last tribute of respect to one, who for over half a century was so closely associated with the parish and the life of the community.

SHIP IN DISTRESS.

S.O.S. Call From Vessel at Gibraltar Picked Up in U. S.

NEW YORK, Mar. 14.—(Canadian Press).—An S.O.S. call from a ship near the Strait of Gibraltar was picked up at 6.15 o'clock last night by the Independent Wireless Telegraph Company at Easthampton, L.I.

All broadcasting stations along the coast were silenced for a half hour, but resumed broadcasting when the Leviathan, on its way to this port, radioed that it had picked up a message from Gibraltar saying the ship in distress was near that station.

NO DISSATISFACTION.

English Directors Not Seeking Change in Management of B.E. Steel.

MONTREAL, March 14. —(CanadianPress). —"There is absolutely no foundation for the statement," was the repy of Roy Wolvin, president of the British Empire Steel Corporation, to a report from Toronto that 'English directors were dissatisfied with the present corporation management, and would seek to change it at the annual meeting in the near future." The report said the directors wished to bring back D. H. McDougall, former vice-president.

The report was read to Mr. Wolvin and he asked that it be given absolute denial.

YOUNG MOTHER REGAINS HEALTH

And Now Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all Similar Sufferers.

Mrs. Wm. Maddix Suffered From a Weak Back.

St. Gilbert, P.E.I., March 13. — (Special.)— "I am the mother of three children and after the birth of the eldest my back was very weak" states Mrs. Maddix, a well known resident of this place. "Later it became very painful, until last winter it got so bad that I could hardly stand. I then took four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills which completely relieved me. I have great confidence in them and recommend them to all my friends."

Mrs. Maddix's trouble came from the kidneys as is evidenced by the relief she got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. When the Kidneys become clogged or out of order, the circulation becomes sluggish, the impurities are not strained out of the blood and the result is weariness and lack of energy all over the body. This condition is not only disagreeable but dangerous as well. The impurities in the blood are the seeds of disease.

PICKING UP SPEED.

The statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics as to the finances of the Canadian National Railways for 1924 gives no cause for pessimism.

The C. N. R. did well during the past year.

True, the revenue of the whole system, including the United States lines, showed a decrease of more than $19,000,000, the figures being $235,588,182, as compared with $254,926,456 in 1923.

On the other hand, the operating expenses were cut down to $218,343,931, a reduction of $14,000,000.

Thus the surplus for last year, $17,244,251, compared most favourably with that of the preceeding twelve months when, in spite of a record crop, the total was $20,236,563.

The loss in revenue is easily explained by the decrease in grain traffic, from which conditions the C. P. R. suffered correspondingly.

The smaller harvest last year is reflected in the falling off in railway receipts, noted during the last six months of the year.

The Canadian National Railways, by careful management and wise economy, was able to so reduce the cost of operating its lines as to almost make up for the falling off of revenue and thus keep the operating surplus almost as high as in 1923.

The C. N. R. is picking up speed, and there is every reason to hope that the time will not be long in coming when the earnings will be sufficient to take care of the obligations due the public.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS.

In the proof they are giving of their desire to expedite the transaction of public business and to prevent the needless prolonging of the session, both the Federal and Ontario Governments are deserving of thanks.

In the Federal arena it is announced that the Budget will be brought down next week, many weeks earlier than last year, and that it is hoped to have the Budget debate over before Easter.

In the Provincial Legislature the debate on the Budget will be wound up on Tuesday, after continuing less than a week, which establishes a new record for Ontario.

The expedition shown by both Houses will be appreciated by the public.

While no one desires that important business should be rushed through without proper consideration, many people have been unable to see the necessity of prolonging the Budget debate week after week simply to allow members to deliver speeches containing little worth hearing, and which indeed were seldom heard by anybody who could escape them.

Ottawa and Queen's Park are getting down to business, and the change of pace over other sessions is a welcome novelty.

THE SPEED LIMIT.

After an interesting discussion on the question of motor speeds, the Manitoba Legislature has decided to leave the matter to the individual municipalities.

It is hard to see how anything will be gained by entrusting the setting of the speed limit to the judgment of the authorities of the municipalities.

The only result is likely to be the establishment of a limit varying widely according to the opinion of the different centres.

Much better than to have such a confusing condition of affairs would be to do away with a speed limit altogether and put the onus on the motorist.

That policy is followed with considerable success in several European countries.

The driver realizes that if he is involved in an accident he will have to show that he did not contribute to the mishap by reckless handling of his car.

After all that is the real issue.

It is possible to be well within the legal speed limit in Ontario and yet be guilty of careless driving—just as it is possible to exceed the limit under other conditions with no particular risk to anybody.

In any event it is a makeshift policy to allow municipalities to follow their own judgment in regard to the speed limit—the regulations should at least be Province-wide in their scope, and preferably should be the same throughout the country.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

The citizens of Peterboro should take advantage of the opportunity offered them by the local Board of Health on Monday to hear Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health of Ontario, who is to give two addresses on health matters and the prevention of disease.

Both meetings are to be held in the G. W. V. A. Hall, the afternoon meeting at 3.30 o'clock and the evening meeting at 8 o'clock.

Dr. McCullough, of course, is a leading authority upon health problems, and his addresses here should be full of interest to every one who realizes the necessity of protecting the public from conditions that menace the lives and health of the community.

His remarks will likely have considerable local colour, and his audience will receive some unusual information as to the prevention of disease.

It seems difficult to sufficiently interest people in this question of health—yet it is of the most vital importance.

The opportunity to hear the man who leads Ontario's fight against disease should not be missed by Peterboro's citizens, who will have much to interest and educate them in the addresses that will be given by Dr. McCullough.

TRAINING THE CHILD.

There may be some justification for the statement of Mr. Gregory Stretch, prominent New Zealander, that American parents are largely to blame for the juvenile delinquency of today, says the Border Cities Star. The whole responsibility cannot be laid on the mothers and fathers, but all would do well to ponder this visitor's views.

The complaint Mr. Stretch heard made by an American of whom he tells, is more or less typical today. This man blamed the teachers in the schools and colleges for not giving the proper training. Some, no doubt, are lax in their duty, but it is quite reasonable to believe that the large majority are conscientious and painstaking. If proper home conditions prevail, there is little likelihood of the child or the youth forming bad habits in his school. Parents cannot leave all the responsibility on the teacher. For one thing, his influence cannot possibly be as great as that of the father and mother, and secondly, he has not the time to devote to individual instruction and guidance, with a class of a score or more to look after. Only the parent can do this.

There may also be something in Mr. Stretch's suggestion that modern parents are striving too hard to escape the appellation "old-fashioned" from their modern children. The present-day trend is for the father and mother to be more in the nature of "pals" than guardians for their offspring, but this should not be construed as an excuse for neglect. Let them keep up to the times as they will, let them enter into their children's recreations and daily life, but let them not forget that they have a solemn duty of guidance to perform which cannot be shirked without harm to the younger generation.

No parent likes to be called "old-fashioned," but in most cases it is the "old-fashioned" parent on whose memory the children look back with grateful reverence.

EVENTUALLY—BUT NOT NOW.

Instead of the halting, fine-combing, restricted policy now in force at Ottawa, this Dominion needs a broad, progressive, open-arms immigration campaign. Instead of placing obstacles in the path of would-be citizens, we should be bending our efforts to get the newcomers here. Instead of so much red tape, so much questioning, so much fuss and restriction, we should hang out the "welcome" sign at every seaport and invite the world to come in.—Border Cities Star.

It is all very well to invite the world to come in, as the Star suggests, but just now what would Canada do with a large influx of new citizens?

Suppose 20,000 industrial workers arrived in this country during the next few months.

Is there anyone sufficiently optimistic about the prospects of an immediate industrial revival to venture the opinion that even half that number could be absorbed.

The time will come when Canada will be able to "invite the world to come in," but isn't it prudence under present conditions to go slow with our invitations?

There are thousands of families who have been hard pressed to keep the wolf from the door all winter because the breadwinners were out of work, or were employed but irregularly.

Until the conditions improve sufficiently to place these families on their feet again Canada is well advised to put some check upon immigration.

The Examiner sincerely hopes that the curb will not be needed long.

It is, however, necessary now, and the Federal Government shows a proper appreciation of the situation in refusing to drop the bars together.

FIGHTING DISEASE.

The constant battle of humanity against disease in all its forms is proceeding favorably for the human race. It is a battle which must be carried on with unremitting energy if the ground already gained is to be consolidated and fresh territory subdued. But it is encouraging to know that a real advance has been made and that the enemy has been driven from some of his strongest positions. Perhaps there is no better indication of the progress achieved than the information furnished by life insurance companies. These institutions are doing a useful public service in collating and publishing the data compiled from their mortality tables. A most interesting statement regarding the incidence of fatal diseases in the United States is contained in the address given by Dr. Oscar H. Rogers, Chief Medical Director of the New York Life Insurance Company, at the last annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, which has been distributed in pamphlet form, under the title, Progress of the Warfare Against Disease. The tables presented are a credit to the health authorities, the doctors, the sanitary engineers and hygiene workers, the municipalities and individual citizens generally, for they reveal in unmistakable fashion that the laws of health are not only being more clearly understood by experts, but are being carefully studied and observed by the laity. To take the case of smallpox. Attribute the improvement to what one will—vaccination, improved sanitary standards, personal hygiene, or any other contributory causes—the fact is that in the "good old days" one person in every ten, according to a contemporary French physician, died of smallpox, whereas today the ratio is well under one in every 100,000. That alone is sufficient evidence of progress.

In the common diseases, the record is in practically all cases of a most encouraging nature. In 23 years the mortality from consumption has been about halved. Typhoid fever—though the showing for the United States still compares most unfavorably with the record for Great Britain—is nothing like so deadly as it was a decade or so ago. Similarly, diphtheria, pneumonia, malarial fever, dysentery, rheumatism all exhibit a marked decline in the percentage of deaths as recorded by the insurance companies. There is one fact, however, which stands out from these statistics which is not of so gratifying a character, and that is the increase within the last ten years in the deaths of people over 64 years of age from kidney affections, heart and brain diseases, etc. The phenomenon is attributed mainly to "overfeeding," the "overcrowding of the chemistry of the body." On this point the experience of a leading life insurance company of Germany during the Great War is given, to the effect that mortality, including war losses, was 12 per cent. better during the war years than during the normal years of peace. This, in the opinion of experts, "was the result of a restriction in diet, limitation in the consumption of alcoholic beverages and the larger amount of exercise which the Germans of the insurance class had to take." There is a lesson in this for us all, especially for those who have entered on the later stages of life's journey. A most interesting table, though it does not have to do with disease, is that relating to the number of fatalities resulting from automobile accidents. These have increased from 1,700 in 1910, for the United States, to no less than 17,750 deaths last year. In the same period, the number of automobiles has multiplied probably thirty times over. The percentage of fatalities, therefore, is not keeping pace with the number of cars in use, but there will be general agreement with the contention that the loss of life noted "seems an unnecessarily high price to pay for this addition to our equipment."—Hamilton Spectator.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 13.—The moderate runs of cattle well distributed over the past two weeks, is reflected in the generally higher average of prices in the closing markets of this week. Factors in the maintenance of good prices have been the avoidance of crowding too many cattle into one day's market, receipts being well distributed through the week; steady export demand taking care of the various classes of cattle suitable for the export trade, including fat steers, bulls, cows, heifers and store cattle. Along with the export trade there has been a good steady demand for butcher cattle for domestic trade, and an active enquiry for good feeders and stocker cattle. These conditions have contributed to make a strong and active market for practically all classes of cattle.

So far as the export trade is concerned, there is likely to be a slowing up in the demand for next week, owing to the fact, so far as present known, that there will be no boats available at ocean ports. A few loads of cattle may be picked up by the export buyers, but as these will have to be carried over for a week or more, prices will be to that extent affected.

With the export buyers practically out of the market, competition will be less keen, and it is possible there may be some readjusting of prices, particularly if there should be too heavy a run of cattle offering in next Monday's market. Shippers will, therefore, be well advised to keep their shipments as small as practicable, if they desire to see prices maintained at something like their present levels.

Calves have with difficulty held their own this week, compared with the general strength of the market in all other sections.

Hogs have been very strong, reflecting conditions over the border, where record prices have been prevailing.

Prices in the various sections are as follows:

Export cattle, choice and heavy steers, $7.75 to $8.50; bulls, $4.50 to $5.25; heifers, $6.50 to $7.25; stores, $6.60 to $7.

Choice butchers, $7.25 to $7.65; medium, $6.50 to $6.90; common, $5.25 to $5.50; baby beeves, $8.50 to $9.

Choice fat cows, $4.75 to $5.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 14.—(Canadian Press).— Immense selling regardless of value swamped the wheat market yesterday. In the end wheat prices were down as much as 15 3-4 cents a bushel, chiefly as a result of widespread rains which destroyed all immediate likelihood of a crop scare. The wheat market closed excited, 6 -4 to 1 51-4 cents net lower, May 166 1-4 to 167 and July 149 1-4 to 149 1-2, with corn off 6 5-8 to 7 3-8 cents, oats showing 4 to 5 1-4 cents decline and provisions varying from 35 cents setback to five cents advance. Rushes to sell wheat began as soon as the market opened. The fact that this is the traditional time of the year when crop complaints are numerous had been largely relied upon of late to stimulate buying, and this had been especially the case since big supplies of wheat afloat and radical.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 14. — (Canadian Press).—Undergoing the severest break in the history of the Winnipeg exchange, wheat prices during a session of chaotic trading yesterday slumped 15 1-2 to 16 cents before the panicky movement was halted.

The disorganization was common to all the markets, rye receding 16 cents. Flax 11 3-4c. Barley 6 3-4 and oats, 5 1-4.

The market was one of the most erratic and nerve racking affairs experienced here in many months.

WHEAT TUMBLES IN A NOSE DIVE

Out of Control on Wild Market—Friday the Thirteenth Too Much.

DROP OF 47 CENTS.

WINNIPEG, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Suffering the largest break ever recorded in wheat in one day on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, May futures hit a Friday the 13th, toboggan slide yesterday, and fell 15 1-2 cents to $1.72 1-2 at the low point and closed 14 cents lower at $1.74. This represeneted a total break of 47 1-8 cents from the extreme high of the season's movement of $2.20 7-8. The July futures closed with a loss of 14 cents at $1.70, after having touched the low mark of $1.68.

It was the wildest market of the year, and the bear traders had absolute control of the situation. The heavy selling was brought about by weakness in foreign markets, and favorable weather conditions in the United States winter wheat areas.

Coarse grains followed wheat in the record-breaking slide, with rye leading the way at a loss of 16 cents.

CHICAGO WHEAT IS DEMORALIZED

Absence of Export Business Calls Climax of Disastrous Day.

DROP OF 15 CENTS.

CHICAGO, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Breaking of the drought in the west and southwest yesterday broke the back of the wheat market. Rye and the whole list of cereals were likewise smashed down in value, the extreme range of prices for all grain being probably never equalled before in any one day. The biggest losses were in wheat and rye—wheat 15 1-4 cents a bushel and rye at one time as much as 17 2-2 cents.

From start to finish, quotations for the breadstuffs, wheat and rye, were constantly toppling, and talk of world shortage ,lately so rife, was no longer to be heard. Instead the reports current aside from the news about the ending of the drought, were confined nearly altogether to advices indicating that for at least the present the world was in an overbought condition.

Under such circumstances, news at hand that drought in the domestic winter wheat territory was at an end, and that the crop scare proverbial for March was apparently banished left the wheat market helpless, in the face of wild selling that set in from every side. When at last the day was over, traders stared blankly at the chalk marks on the blackboards, telling in grim figures that the best prices met were at the very opening of the market, and the worst just at the close.

They pointed to the closing price of May wheat $1.66 1-4 to $1.67, as against the recent top record of $2.05 7-8.

COOLIDGE WANTS ARMS CONFERENCE

Believes That Developments Abroad Have Opened Way For Opening Discussion.

WASHINGTON, March 14 (Canadian Press).—President Coolidge believes recent developments abroad indicate an important change in the disarmament situation, tending to open the way for the calling of an arms conference by the United States.

The President will take up the question of a naval limitation conference in a serious way with Secretary Kellogg as soon as it is definitely ascertained that the League of Nations project has been abandoned. So far, however, no steps in that direction have been taken and there is no change in the actual situation here.

The attitude of this Government will not be one of coercion and if it is found that other nations are not ready to subscribe to the movement the question then will be considered whether this government should take any step.

President Coolidge favors Washington as the place for holding an arms conference. The meeting place necessarily must be determined, however, after the attitude of the various governments is learned.

TRIED TO OBTAIN PILE HUSH MONEY

Demanded $10,000 to Withold Information From Board of Health.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 14. —(Canadian Press).—Charged by the police with demanding $10,000 as his price for withholding certain information from the Board of Health officials, which he said would put the Purity Ice Cream Company, Limited, out of business, Harry Lebaron Anthony, until about four months ago a clerk in the employ of the company, was arrested on a warrant yesterday.

According to the detectives, Anthony is alleged to have gone to A. D Stern, manager of the company, and to have informed Mr. Stern that the Board of Heath had told him that if a single quart of milk of the company's were turned back and put in the cold room for sale later on, the Board of Health would close up the business inside 24 hours. As his price for withholding evidence to substantiate such a charge, Anthony is said to have demanded $10,000. Mr. Stern said he ordered Anthony out of the office, but later on, believing the man might work harm to the company by his talk, he asked him to come to the office yesterday. He took the precaution, he said, of having a stenographic report of the conversation taken down,, unknown to Anthony, and had invited a detective to be present at the meeting.

There were undeniable little devils in her eyes, McTaggart thought—little devils laughing full at him as she spoke, setting his brain afire and the blood to running wildly. Those eyes—full of dancing witches! How he would tame them and play with them—very soon now. He followed Pierrot outside. In his exultation he no longer felt the smart of Baree's teeth.

Half an hour later Nepeese came out of the cabin. She could see that Pierrot and the Factor had been talking about something that had not been pleasant to her father. His face was strained. She caught in his eyes the smoulder of fire which he was trying to smother, as one might smother flames under a blanket. McTaggart's jaws were set, but his eyes flared up with pleasure when he saw her. She knew what it was about. The Factor from Lac Bain had been demanding his answer of Pierrot, and Pierrot had been telling him what she had insisted upon—that he must come to her. And he was coming! She turned with a quick beating of the heart and hurried down a little path. She heard McTaggart's footsteps behind her, and threw the flash of a smile over her shoulder. But her teeth were set tight. The nails of her fingers were cutting into the palms of her hands.

Pierrot stood without moving. He watched them as they disappeared into the forest, Nepeese still a few steps ahead of McTaggart. Out of his breast rose a sharp breath.

"Par les mille cornes du diable!" he swore softly. "Is it possible—that she smiles from her heart at that beast? Non! It is impossible. And yet—if it is so——"

One of his brown hands tightened convulsively about the handle of the knife in his belt, and slowly he began to follow them.

McTaggart did not hurry to overtake Nepeese. She was following the narrow path deeper into the forest, and he was glad of that. They would be alone—away from Pierrot. He was ten steps behind her, and again the Willow smiled at him over her shoulder. Her body moved sinuously and swiftly. She was keeping accurate measurement of the distance between them—but McTaggart did not guess that this was why she looked back every now and then. He was satisfied to let her go on. When she turned from the narrow trail into a side path that scarcely bore the mark of travel, his heart gave an exultant jump. If she kept on, he would very soon have her alone—a good distance from the cabin. The blood ran hot in his face. He did not speak to her, through fear that she would stop. Ahead of them he heard the rumble of water. It was the creek running through the chasm.

Nepeese was making straight for that sound. With a little laugh she started to run, and when she stood at the edge of the chasm, McTaggart was fully fifty yards behind her. Twenty feet sheer down there was a deep pool so deep that it was like blue ink. She turned to face the Factor from Lac Bain. He had never looked more like a red beast to her. Until this moment she had been unafraid. But now—in an instant—he terrified her. Before she could speak what she had planned to say, he was at her side, and had taken her face between his two great hands, his coarse fingers twinging in the silken strands of her thick braids where they fell over her shoulders at the neck.

"Ka sakahet!" he cried, passionately. "Pierrot said you would have an answer for me. But I need no answer now. You are mine! Mine!"

She gave a cry. It was a gasping, broken cry. His arms were about her like bands of iron, crushing her slender body, shutting off her breath, turning the world almost black for her. She could neither struggle nor cry out. She felt the hot passion of his lips on her face, heard his voice—and then came a moment's freedom, and air into her strangled lungs. Pierrot was calling! He had gone to the fork in the trail, and he was calling the Willow's name!

McTaggart's hot hand came over her mouth.

"Don't answer," she heard him say.

Strength—anger—hatred flared up in her, and fiercely she struck the hand down. Something in her wonderful eyes held McTaggart. They blazed into his very soul.

"Bete noir!" she panted at him, freeing herself from the last touch of his hands. "Beast—black beast!" Her voice trembled, and her face flamed. "See—I came to show you my pool—and tell you what you wanted to hear—and you—you—have crushed me like a beast—like a great rock—See! down there—it is my pool!"

She had not planned it like this. She had intended to be smiling, even laughing, at this moment. But McTaggart had spoiled them—her carefully made plans! And yet, as she pointed, the Factor from Lac Bain had looked for an instant over the edge of the chasm. And then she laughed—laughed as she gave him a sudden shove from behind.

"And that is my answer, M'sieur le Facteur from Lac Bain!" she cried tauntingly, as he plunged headlong into the deep pool between the rock walls.

CHAPTER XIV.

From the edge of the open Pierrot saw what had happened, and he gave a great gasp. He drew back among the balsams. This was not a moment come, and she darted swiftly into the balsams back of the cabin, with Baree hung in the crook of her arm, like a sack filled at both ends and tied in the middle. He felt like that, too. But he still had no inclination to wriggle himself free. Nepeese ran with him until her arm ached. Then she stopped an put him down on his feet, holding to the end of the caribou-skin thong that was tied about his neck. She was prepared for any lunge he might make to escape. She expected that he would make an attempt, and for a few moments she watched him closely, while Baree, with his feet on earth once more, looked about him. And then the Willow spoke to him gently.

"You are not going to run away, Baree. Non, you are going to stay with me, and we will kill that man-beast if he dares do to me again what he did back there." She flung back the loose hair from about her flushed face, and for a moment she forgot Baree as she thought of that half-minute at the edge of the chasm. He was looking straight up at her when her glance fell on him again. "Non, you are not going to run away—you are going to follow me," she whispered. "Come."

They came at last into an open. It was a tiny meadow in the heart of the forest, not more than three or four times as big as the cabin; underfoot the grass was soft and green, and thick with flowers. Straight through the heart of this little oasis trickled a streamlet across which the Willow jumped with Baree under her arm, and on the edge of the rill was a small wigwam, made of freshly-cut spruce and balsam-boughs. Into her diminutive mekewap the Willow thrust her head to see that things were as she had left them yesterday. Then, with a long breath of relief, she put down her four-legged burden and fastened the end of the babiche to one of the cut spruce limbs.

Baree burrowed himself back into the wall of the wigwam, and with head alert—and eyes wide open—watched attentively what happened after this. Not a movement of the Willow escaped him. She was radiant—and happy. Her laugh, sweet and wild as a bird's trill, set Baree's heart throbbing with a desire to jump about with her among the flowers.

For a time Nepeese seemed to forget Baree. Her wild blood raced with the joy of her triumph over the Factor from Lac Bain. She saw him again, floundering about in the pool—pictured him at the cabin now, soaked and angry, demanding of mon pere where she had gone. And mon pere, with a shrug of his shoulders, was telling him that he didn't know—that probably she had run off into the forest. It did not enter her head that in tricking Bush McTagxart in that way she had played with dynamite. She did not foresee the peril that in an instant would have stamped the wild flush from her face and curdled the blood in her viens—did not guess that McTaggart had become for her a deadlier menace than

There came an interruption. It was the snapping of a dry stick. Through the forest Pierrot had come with the stealth of a cat, and when they looked up, he stood at the edge of the open.

VETERAN OF THREE WARS.

One of Oldest Volunteers in C.E.F. Dead.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13.—George Francis Fortney, one of the oldest volunteers to go overseas with the Canadian forces in the World War, died here Thursday. He was 79 years old.

Mr. Fortney was a veteran of three wars, a pioneer of the Yukon gold rush, and captain of the first cargo steamboat to reach Winnipeg by the historic Red River route. He took part in the Riel Rebellion, being one of the first prisoners captured by rebel forces. In the last war, Mr. Fortney enlisted with the 100th Battalion, which left Winnipeg in 1915. He returned to Canada in the following year ,but paid his own passage back to England, where he re-enlisted in the Imperial Army, after being given his honorable discharge in Canada.

He is survived by seven daughters and one son, twenty-two grandchildren, and twelve great grandchildren.

CENTRAL ASSOCIATION.

Home and School Meeting Received Two New Members.

The regular monthly meeting of the Central Home and School Association was held on Thursday evening in the kindergarten room of the school, the president, Mrs. E. H. Howson, in the chair.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were given and representatives to the Local Council of Women appointed, in Mrs. K. Wightman and Mrs. C. Westbrook. Two new members were added to the roll of the society.

The association decided to purchase a duplicator for the use of the teachers in the school. This machine strikes off duplicates of question papers, songs, etc., and will be of great value to the teachers in supplementing blackboard work. Blackboards and lighting system alike are poor in Central School.

It was announced that the flag for the month was won by Miss Buck's room.

An enjoyable musical programme included a pianoforte selection by Miss Wood, vocal solos by Miss Black, readings by Mr. Jack Primeau, and an address on co-operation in home and school work by J. Abraham, attendance officer.

A Bigger program of Farm development

THIS is the time of year when many farmers contemplate greater farm development—purchasing more stock, more seed, increasing acreage, buying additional machinery.

To go through with such a progressive program, borrowing money to cover initial costs is usually necessary.

Securing a loan of this kind is a simple matter for farmers of sound character. All that is required is an interview with the local branch manager of the Bank of Toronto. He will be glad to listen to your problems, give advice, and lend every reasonable financial assistance in his power.

Consult the branch manager of the Bank of Toronto to-day.

CITY OF MONTREAL IS PROFITEERING

him and appreciate his competence. In addition his inertia appears to be as much the result of his subordinate position as his lack of personal initiative.

His errors are the errors of judgment and the lack of information

He is an old policeman of more than thirty years service, whose principal wrong has been in being called on to undertake operations beyond his capacity. If, then, the public interest demands that he leave, equity also demands that he be not pitched into the street and the only way of treating him which would be compatible with one or the other would be to pension him.

About the deceased inspector, Edward Egan, the report says, "it is owing to his memory that no act of corruption was proven against him. (Evidence was submitted at the enquiry to show he had lent Chief Belanger money).

Questions Fortune.

Inspector Evariste Robert is referred to in the report in these words:

"He must be held to account for the inexplicable indulgence enjoyed by the gaming houses kept by Charles Gauthier and Lalonde. His explanation of the origin of his personal fortune must be rejected and it must be concluded that he acquired it only at the price of grave delinquencies in his duty."

Betrayed His Oath.

The report says of Captain Roch Sauve: "I have no other alternative than to hold him responsible so far as action depended upon im for the failure of the battle against commercialized vice. He has transgressed in his duty. He has betrayed his oath and his remaining in office would be a defiance of public morals."

The proof against Lieutenant McGee, the judge says, proof which the officer has not dared to contradict, "establishes that far from making himself a guardian of the law he transgressed it himself and for tolerating the existence of such a den as the Excelsior, he accepted the ignoble tip of a bottle of whiskey. His conduct on that occasion shows that he was an habitue of the house. His place might be in the Excelsior but not in the police."

Sergeant Frank Bond is said to have "soiled his uniform to stay there, but his companions should not have to blush for him any more."

In order that suspicon against integrity should not be created in the future, Judge Coderre suggests Sergeant Laport should do like all other customers requiring the services of a barber—pay him.

Unqualified Brutality.

"Nothing said in the defense of Canstables Alfred Dupuis and Edward Gagon," says the report, "justifies the unqualified brutality of which they were guilty toward Honore Demers, a small sized man, who, far from resisting them, ran from them at their approach under the impression they were bandits. They acted not like guardians of the peace but like apaches, particularly as their superior announced that had he been in possession of all the facts he wouuld not have permitted them to lay a charge against Demers."

Severe condemnation is handed out to Constable Arthur Emmanuel Belanger "for protecting the young girl Lily Radley. (He is a married man) against her father, even to the point of violently assaulting the parent. "The judge remarks that Belanger does not appear to be a desirable individual to remain on the police force, especially in the morality squad.

The part of the report touching on complaints against Sergeant Lafleur, the attendant of Mayor Martin while he was in office, is as follows: "Believing that everything was permissable for him because he happened to be attached to the person of the Mayor of Montreal he did not fear to sit around a gaming table in Charles Gauthier's place. At least, he should let the experience turn to his profit since it did not rebound to his honor."

Constable Eugene Pilon, the report says, should have broken the links which had connected him to Rose David when he became a member of the police force."

Exonerates Alderman.

Judge Coderre exonerates Ald. Mongeon of all suspicion that may have hovered over him regarding the result, supposedly profitable to him, of his relations with Louis Morel, the executed bank bandit. The judge says Morel's evidence left no doubt as to that and he (The Judge) thinks unweighed words of the Alderman must have been mis-interpreted by his accusers.

His Lordship, concluding this part of his report, remarks that nothing in the proof submitted against other officers, detectives or constables permitted him to uenscre them.

Makes Recommendations.

In the section of the report which touches on recommendations, the Judge says a remedy for conditions such as the probe found can be found in the appointment of a duly qualified and energetic police chief whose hands should be left free by the administration, who should be a specialist at his profession, and who should not be called on illogically to submit his decisions to those who are not. This Chief should be given the task of training police and detectives. The Judge thinks the Chief should have some legal training and favors such a type of man rather than an officer who would have to secure outside advice on legal matters coming up in his department. The Chief should have a competent assistant so as not to be tied down by detail work. The Chief should only be appointed on recommendation of the Executive Committee by the City Council after all the mandatories of the people have been consulted. He should be named and given the assurance that he will not be displaced at the will and caprice of the civic authority and of the influence that may overhang it. He should not be dismissed except by actual majority of the City Council, and should have the right of appeal to the courts; and the burden of proof should rest upon the civic authority, who would have to justify their decision in the same manner as when it is a question of a petition to quash a capias or an attachment before judgment. Reasons for dismissal should be clearly fixed by law. The Judge says none of the superior officers of the present Montreal Police Force appear to him to be qualified to act as Chief, and a director of public safety should be sought outside in a man free from all undue influence.

Regulate Hotels.

The Judge also recommends the establishment of a registration system for all boarding houses, rooming houses and other places over which special supervision may be fitting so that a district officer could exercise close and constant supervision over his section. Hotels should, by law, be compelled to transmit to the authorities daily the names of all arriving and staying at them, while immigrants should be identified, because the convicts who filled the prisons were in a considerable proportion foreigners. Each citizen should consider it his solemn duty to co-operate with the authorities and support the police.

Curb Prostitution.

Under the sub-heading of commercialized vice, Judge Coderre remarks that after hearing everything said on both sides, i.e., repression on the one hand and regulation on the other, he concludes that prostitution cannot be tolerated under any name or in any form. The law called for repression and he recommended that the civic and police authorities of the city bend once and for all resolutely to the task of enforcing the law, so as to close the avenues to prostitution. He demanded continued strict supervision over the various places of amusement, dance halls, etc. Severe penalties should be devised by legislators for those who solicited in favor of prostitutes.

The Judge expresses the opinion that a secret fund should be at the disposal of the Chief of Police to aid in rounding up those who committed crimes against life and property, as expenses in this regard were sometimes fairly considerable.

His Lordship pronounced himself categorically against the existence of such an organization as the Police Union, saying it was a leaven for indiscipline, a real school for insubordination, and should not be tolerated.

The probe, according to the award of costs which Judge Coderre appends to his judgment, will cost the City of Montreal in the neighborhood of $75,000.

MRS FALLIS CONTRASTS POLICIES OF CANADA'S FEDERAL LEADERS

Conservative Club of Lindsay Holds Big Rally With Galaxy of Speakers.

THINK OF CANADA.

LINDSAY, March 14 (Special to The Examiner).—The Liberal Conservative meeting held in the Academy Theatre last night under the auspices of the Conservative Club, attracted a goodly number from what is known as the East Centre District. T. H. Stinson, K.C., of Lindsay, president of East Centre Liberal Conservative association presided, and addresses were delivered by Messrs. W. A. Boy, M.P., Barrie, Federal Conservative whip; W. C. Ryckman, M.P., East Toronto; Dr. McGibbon, Bracebridge; Reeve Curry, Haliburton; S. D. Logan, Bobcaygeon; Geo. Weeks Lorneville, and Mrs. Howard Fallis, Peterboro.

The non-appearance of Hon. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., was a great disappointment.

Led Addresses.

Mrs. Fallis, who was presented with a bouquet of flower, delivered what was conceded to be the address of the evening. The women, she claimed, controlled 51 per cent. of the total votes, and they owed it to the Conservative party that they enjoyed the franchise. She emphasized the importance of keeping intact Canada's unity with the Empire, and scored Premier King for his provincialism in having a different policy for each province. In Quebec, he had aroused antagonism to Hon. Arthur Meighen for fathering conscription, and had opened the door to power with a bloody key.

If the country was ever to be happy and united, said Mrs. Fallis, the past must be buried. She next attacked the Liberal tariff policy and referred to the stagnation and depression which had followed in its wake. She referred to a Peterboro politician who at the time of the last Fedeal election had declared that he stood for free food stuff, untaxed dinner pail and the working man. Many of his auditors were today walking the streets of that city out of work. Mrs. Fallis claimed that those countries which today enjoyed protection were the most prosperous. Low prices and cheap living was not the goal to aim at, she declared. The essential thing was industrial prosperity. Mrs. Fallis made a comparison of the policies recently enunciated by Premier King and Hon. Mr. Meighen. The former's answer to the unemployed was "Senate Reform," and "The Petersen Subsidy." Mr. Meighen offered the people an immediate upward revision of the tariff and a solution of unemployment, taxation and other problems. The tariff was not a vital question for the West, said Mrs. Fallis, but cheaper freight rates. There must be a concession in the minds of the people of the East and the West on certain problems, said Mrs. Fallis, and people must cease to think in terms of East and West, and think of Canada.

Mr. Ryckman, M.P., in his address, criticized the Government for its tinkering with the tariff and the departure of Premier King from his 1919 platform.

He also blamed the Government for the exodus of Canadians across the line and for the depression and stagnation he said are prevailing today. He believed an election would take place in a few months.

Mr. Boys, M.P., told of the falling off in the Liberal vote as was revealed in eight Federal bye-elections since 1921. Liberal membership in the Provincial Legislatures had also declined. He claimed that a lowering of the tariff was the price Premier King paid the Western Progressives to remain in office. It was vital to the industries of Canada, he said, that they should be protected. The objective of the Conservative party in the coming Federal election was seventy out of eighty-two seats.

ARE YOU TORTURED WITH ECZEMA?

Eczema, or Salt Rheum, as it is commonly called, is one of the most agonizing of all skin diseases.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the parts are exposed to heat, are almost unbearable and relief is greatly welcomed.

The most reliable and effective remedy for this trouble is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Mrs. J. R. Johnson, R.R. No. 1, Oshawa, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with eczema, and had that terrible itching and burning sensation, and could find no relief for it. Finally, I was advised to use B.B.B., and after my second bottle I began to see a great difference, and I can, now, advise anyone troubled as I was to use this wonderful remedy."

HARVARD AWARDS FOR ADVERTISING

General Motors "Ads" Get Prize as Most Conspicuous.

OTTAWA, March 14.—At a dinner in Cambridge on Monday night, January 26th the Harvard School of Business Administration announced the Harvard Advertising Awards for 1924. These awards, established by Edward W. Bok, are designed to recognize distinguished effort in the production of national and local advertisements and advertising campaigns.

The award for the most conspicuous National Advertising campaign of an Institutional Type for the year 1924 was given to Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., for the General Motors Institutional Advertising campaign.

More than 5,000 complete advertising campaigns were submitted for consideration. There were nine awards in all, of which three were given to the work produced by Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc.

DUNSFORD NEWS.

Societies Prepare For St. Patrick's Teas—Mrs. Thurston Entertained.

DUNSFORD, March 14. — On Thursday the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church was busy preparing for the Irish Shamrock social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Morrow's on Tuesday, March 17th.

At the monthly meeting of the W.M.S., special arrangements were made for the enjoyment of the people on the 17th.

The W.M.S. met on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Silas Thurston, with a large attendance.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. T. J. Thurston, Mrs. (Rev.) Carmichael took charge and conducted the devotional exercises. Miss Ethel Brein rendered a splendid and most fitting solo, much enjoyed by all. Miss Margaret Thurston gave a splendid synopsis of one chapter in the W.M.S. study book.

The next meeting will be in April for the election of officers, to be held in the home of Mrs. Vernold Thurston.

The hostess served a very dainty luncheon, and a pleasant hour was spent in Mrs. Thurston's home after the luncheon.

DOWNEYVILLE NEWS

James C. Lucas is Propressing Favorably After Sudden Illness.

DOWNEYVILLE, March 14.—The many friends of Mr. Jas. C. Lucas will be glad to learn he is progressing favorably after his recent serious operation. The young man was taken suddenly ill and could not be removed from his home and the operation was performed in his own house for appendicitis, by Dr. Carmichael of Omemee and Dr. Gleason of Lindsay.

Mr. Wilfred Gooselin is busy sawing in the village and west, and all who got their wood out are getting it sawed now.

Mr. Geo. O'Donnell had a bee last week drawing up his wood from King's Wharf.

Messrs. Jas. and Leslie Lucas are at present pressing hay and straw in Ennismore.

Messrs. John and Patrick Hickey spent the week-end the guests of their sister, Mrs. Patrick McAuliffe and other friends in Ennismore.

Miss Phyllis Meehan is seriously ill.

SHIP SUBSIDIES

tremendously big problem and would have trouble in combatting the trouble but, added Mr. Forke, "Let us make the attempt."

A Good Mouser.

"Why subsidise another line to enter into competition and destroy the Canadian Government Merchant Marine?" asked Mr. Sutherland.

"I think the people of this country are justified in being suspicious of the Government's action from the beginning," he added. He criticized the appointment of a commission to make this report, "whose reputation was not such as would justify the Government in entrusting such work to him." He would like to know why the Government had appointed Mr. Preston.

"Because he was a good mouser," replied Hon. W. R. Motherwell.

"I don't understand," retorted Mr. Sutherland.

"Do not the Hon. Gentlemen understand what a mouser is?" asked Mr. Motherwell, addressing the House.

Graham in Action.

Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, said he would leave Mr. Preston to take care of himself, and he thought that Mr. Preston would be able to do so before the committee which would consider the Petersen contract.

Mr. Graham compared the manner in which the various products of Canada were nibbled at by producer and consumer, to the old-fashioned load of loose hay, which was nibbled at by all passing horses as it went along the road, and some people even drove a team along behind in order to let them feed off the load. Mr. Graham renumerated the many percentages taken of Canadian wheat as it passed through the various stages from producer to consumer. He had come to the conclusion that the great trouble with Canada's trade, was that "we have not yet solved the problem of getting our products to consumer without too much expense." The wheat pool only solved the difficulty at one end of the route. The market abroad should more nearly approximate the price the farmer got for his wheat.

Government Has Courage.

"Ocean rates have been wrestled with and discussed for the last 15 years, but this is the only Government that has had the courage to tackle the situation," asserted Mr. Graham. He read a lengthy memorandum prepared by the late Justice Mabee, former chief of the Railway Commission, showing the necessity for legislative control, over ocean rates. The memorandum asked what was the use of spending millions on various means for cheapening transportation costs within Canada, when all control over freight rates ceased as soon as commodities left the land.

Every reduction made on the charge for the land haul, gave the steamship company an opportunity to increase its rates on the ocean.

The former Chief Railway Commissioner emphasized the importance of negotiation with the British Government to the end that legislative control over ocean rates should be established.

"If this plan fails," said Mr. Graham, speaking of the Petersen contract, "this Government is going to endeavor to get some other that will not fail."

The great mass of British people were interested in the success of shipping, and were not interested in the reduction of ocean freight rates. When the British Government had declined to take part in the establishment of a joint tribunal, Mr. Graham made no reply to their refusal. "I know when I am turned down," he said. He considered the Government's suggestion at that time of further investigation "another method of side-stepping."

"Why didn't you reach for the big stick?" asked W. F. Maclean (Conservative, South York).

"We think we have one now," replied the Minister of Railways.

Seven Scottish girls recently arrived at New York on one steamer. They were all met by fiances and married the day of their arrival.

"We Got Exercise at the Woodpile"

Mr. J. W. Russ, Soda Lake, Alta., writes:—"I suffered from indigestion and very bad kidneys. Everything I ate hurt me so that at last I was forced to live on bread and milk. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills made me a strong and able man once more, eating anything I want and enjoying it."

INDIGESTION is the great bug-bear of the modern business and professional man.

If we had the old woodpile to tussle with we might keep the liver active without using medicine.

But we neglect to take exercise and the best substitute is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They arouse the action of liver, kidneys and bowels and entirely overcome indigestion, constipation, biliousness, backache and similar derangements.

You can prove this to your own satisfaction with a single box of this popular medicine.

Thanks Gin Pills for excellent health

An ex-alderman of the city of Hamilton tells an interesting story.

"I have been unable to rest at night with pains around my kidneys and through the small of my back, at times so bad that I was unable to rise from bed without assistance. The trouble so affected my kidneys that urination was at times difficult, and at other times so frequent as to cause me great inconvenience. I started on a course of Gin Pills and before I had taken half a box I felt relief. Before I had completed the second box the pains had left my back and I felt quite restored and well again. I attribute my present excellent health entirely to Gin Pills."—J. S. Lillis, Hamilton, Ont.

This letter surely offers conclusive proof of the efficacy of Gin Pills.

Gin Pills never fail to bring relief to sufferers from weakened, disordered kidneys. If you have any symptom of kidney trouble—if you are bothered by headaches, pain in the back, bladder weakness, or rheumatism, do not delay. Order Gin Pills to-day and say good-bye to suffering.

Come Tonight and Review the New Spring Modes

'TIS SPRING, AND TIME TO SELECT A NEW WARDROBE

Oh, the eulogizing that spring receives! Artists paint it in rose and green and pale soft gold; novelists use it as a glowing background for their chapters; poets intoxicate themselves with its fragrance. But to us it means more than buttercups in green fields. It means choosing new frocks and coats and smart little hats and gay scarfs as bright as the artist's picture, and a hundred other delicious things that make life in the springtime so well worth living. An hour or so spent here tonight will be to leave assured of what is Fashion's latest whims and fancies.

SECOND FLOOR.

The New Millinery

Just to step into our Millinery Dept. is to know that spring is on the way. Such bright colors greet you; such gay flowers nodding atop satin crowns or on Milan brims, merrily topping pinched-in crowns of felt; such newness, freshness, smartness. It's plain to be seen a blithe new season is near. Be ready for it when it comes.

Ladies' Niagara Maid $1.25 Silk Gloves 98c

Take advantage tonight of this introductory offer. They are the quality that last year sold a $1.50. Colors are buff, platinum, silver, mode and black. You may prefer plain or embroidered backs—both are here. A surprising low price offering for a few hours tonight.

VERY TIMELY AND FORCEFUL SERMON

Rev. D. R. Clare, Marmora, Stresses Church Mission to Better the World.

MARMORA, March 1..—A timely and forcible sermon by the pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare, featured in an altogether inspiring service at the Methodist church on Sunday evening. Choosing as his text, "They were all with one accord in one place," Acts 21, the preacher declared that it was a wonderful picture which the text brought before us. It was an historic day for Christianity. We say to-day that the former days of Christianity were better than those we live in. Certainly we never see three thousand fully agreed on a religious subject in one place, let alone witness three thousand being converted at the same time. How wonderful it would be even if every member of any community to-day put in an appearance at the house of prayer at the same time. Yet in one day of the history of the Christian world was the whole church gathered together for one purpose. There is a wonderful inspiration in a group of people gathered together in one mind awaiting the same thing.

Continuing the speaker said, we can point back to one day in the history of the Christian world when all its mind was directed on the one thing. In our modern days various things, which the preacher briefly enumerated, may engage the minds of a congregation at worship. But it is hardly to be supposed that any congregation is of one mind in one place now. Was it a miracle that three thousand people changed their lives because of the oneness of the early Christians? What they waited for was brought about by the conversion of the three thousand. Jesus had told them, "Ye shall be endued with power from on high." They knew that they would not be able to speak like Him, for never had man spoken like Him. They had stood in amazement at the gracious words which had proceeded out of His mouth. Therefore they waited for the outpouring of the power to witness. They had stood in amazement at His works. As they saw their own weakness, they were humiliated. They realized they were not fit so they awaited His promise. They noticed how wonderfully He controlled His temper and ignored the discouragements which He met with. They realized the difference between Him and themselves, and felt their smallness and insufficiency.

Personal Experience.

Rev. Dr. Clare here illustrated from a personal experience how growth in character causes the tasks before one to appear less formidable. The disciples waited upon God so that they might be enlarged and made equal to the tasks Jesus had assigned them. A great many difficulties that come to us are of our own creation. One of the great tragedies in connection with our difficulties is that we are no bigger than them. If we were bigger then we would overcome them smilingly. We shudder at tasks which would not be hard at all if we only had grown up as we should. There is nothing in the world to make people grow up spiritually but a second Pentecost. We, too, should wait to be imbued with power from on high. Religion is the most expansive thing that can come into human nature. The basis of church membership is changing. The old basis was conversion. It is now swinging to service.

Make World Better.

The church has been given the mission of making the world better. It matters not where that mission is carried, when it surrenders one iota, it losses its powers. So it is calling for men and women to discharge that duty. The Gospel should be made the great theme of conversation. We have passed the days when dogma and ritual most matters. Continuing, Rev. Clare remarked that slipshod work is of little avaikin service. A little done by character is worth a whole amount done otherwise. We must identitfy ourselves with something that will live on. We must consecrate ourselves to that task God has sent us and ask Him to fit and equip us for it. The upper room experience is necessary for us all. Men will see thereby that our task is counted dearer than life itself and God will add His blessing to our endeavour.

SMOKE RUNS AGAIN.

Albert, Out of Limelight for a Time, Races to Save Daughter.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13. — Albert Smoke, once famous Indian runner, has not been in the limelight for some time, but he established a new track record on Wednesday afternoon, running from Bradley Bay to Campbellford, a distance of six miles, in a little less than half an hour, and over a slushy road at that.

Smoke is now a trapper, and with his family is camped at the Bay for the season. On Wednesday afternoon one of his little girls took seriously ill, and the old runner took no chances, but hit the trail for town and returned with the doctor—and to-night the little patient is out of danger.

Smoke knew all about telephones, but was not so sure that the doctor might find his camp, and thought nothing of his six-mile jaunt.

METHODIST BOARD PASSES UNION VOTE

Desire Church Union Bill Passed Without Any Amendment.

JANETVILLE, March 14.—On Sunday morning last the following resultion was passed by the Official Board of the Janetville Methodist church.

To the Private Bills Committee of the Legislative Assembly, Toronto, Ont.

Gentlemen:

At a special meeting of the Official Board of the Janetville Methodist church, it was unanimously resolved to memoralize the Private Bills Committee of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario as follows:

Moved, seconded, and resolved, that, in the opinion of this Board, unanimously expressed the Church Union Bill should be passed without amendment. And we most earnestly hope, and trust, and urge that the Bill receive the approval of both the Committee and the Legislature.

It is further resolved that a copy of this resolution be immediately forwarded to the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature, and also to our representative, A. J. Fallis.

Unique Meeting in Y.P.S.

On Friday evening last the Religious Department of the Y.P.S. was to the front, and the pastor had charge of the program for the meeting, as he has had for the past two years. The program was unique in itself. Mrs. Rev. Ross presided at the piano, and read the Scripture lesson. Miss Gray of Millbrook, Miss Richardson of Tweed, Messrs. Thornton and Stinson, furnished a ukulele quartette, which met with a storm of applause. The pastor told the Bible story of Samson and Delilah, without mentioning the name. The rules were as follows: If any member of the "Busy Bee" group guessed the name of either one of the Bible characters and wrote it on the blackboard first, that person won five points for his side. When the pastor had reached that point in the story where Samson came from the carcass of the lion bearing honey in his hands for his parents, there was a combined rush toward the board. Some wrote "David," others "Daniel," but Mr. Cawood, the teacher from the 4th Line won by writing "Samson." He also won five points more for his side by being the first and only member to write "Delilah." He thus won ten points for his side.

The Y.P.S. is divided into two sides namely "Live Wires" and "Busy Bees." At the end of the season the winning side will be entertained by the losing group. The youngsters were delighted with the character of the program, and expressed their pleasure freely.

Janetville Official Board.

The Official Board met on Monday evening, February 2, and had a most pleasant and profitable session. Full and final arrangements were made, for a happy closing of the year, that the church might enter the Union in the most prosperous condition.

Splendid congregations greeted the pastor last Sunday and the choir and male quartette rendered excellent service.

Mr. Ross' subject for the morning was "The final fall of Manna" and in the evening "Daydawn by the Sea." Many kind words were said about the sermons by an appreciative people.

ORLAND REEVE ILL.

Sam McColl Taken to Toronto for Special Treatment.

ORLAND, March 14.—Sam. McColl, who was Reeve of this township for the last three years, and has been in poor health ever since the holidays, took a decided turn for the worse and was taken to Toronto to a specialist, and will, if necessary, have an X-day to locate the trouble.

Mr. McColl, it will be remembered, was a candidate for the Wardenship of the United Counties, but was defeated by Mr. Fowlds of Hastings last year.

WOMEN CONDUCT MISSION DRIVE

Church Service Will Be Taken Mostly by W. M. S. on April 5.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, March 14.—On Thursday afternoon the W.M.S. held their regular meeting. Plans were made for the missionary service, which will be conducted mostly by the women of the Society Sunday evening, April 5. The Easter missionary thank-offering goes towards the work of the Women's Missionary Society, and is really dependent on the Women's Missionary Society. The thank-offering in the Fall goes directly to the Church Missionary budget.

SAFE AND EFFICIENT HOME TREATMENT

Thousands of Ailing People Have Been Made Well and Strong by

Dr. William's Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality---and more.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do one thing—and do it well. They build up the blood, increasing the number of red corpuscles. As this is done the blood becomes a richer red and is able to carry more oxygen, the great supporter of human life. As the blood improves in quality the tissues of the body are better nourished and the functions of the body are better performed. This is the reason Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been so successful in the treatment of all diseases due to poor, thin blood, why the pills are so successful in building up strength after fevers and acute diseases, and in all cases of anaemia and general weakness.

Mrs. S. J. Pitre, Queen St., St. John, N.B., says:—"Some years ago, following an attack of typhoid fever, I was left almost a physical wreck. I could not sleep, had no appetite and my nerves were so bad that my limbs shook as though I had palsy. As I was not improving under the use of the doctor's medicine I decided upon the advice of a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Almost from the first box I could feel an improvement. I continued taking the pills until I had used twelve boxes, when I was again enjoying perfect health. As a precaution I always take one or two boxes every spring to tone up the system, and you can truly say they are a wonderful tonic."

You can get the Pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co.

Disease Germs Doomed

Many have lost terrors for the Scientist

The progress of recent years in medical research is little short of marvellous. Daily, science kills germs by the million. Daily, new ones are being discovered, isolated and exterminated by the march of medicine.

Science is winning. What were once regarded as serious diseases are now laughed out of countenance by the doctors. Fearlessly they plunge naked hands into swarms of them, their only precaution being to rinse their hands afterwards with a reliable germicidal preparation. We are witnessing the birth of an era when the world will have little to fear from microbes.

Absorbine Jr., besides being the all-purpose liniment that removes pain and soreness, and hastens healing, is a powerful antiseptic that is death to the microbe world.

Absorbine Jr., is just what is needed in the house in case of accidents and to correct the many little household hurts that constantly occur. $1.25, at your druggist.

SOCIAL EVENTS AT ORANGE CORNERS

St. John's W. A. and L.O.L. 41 Held Meetings—Personal News.

ORANGE CORNERS, March 14.—The regular monthly meeting of St. John's W. A. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Melville Elliott. The president being absent, the vice-president took the meeting, which was opened by the singing of a hymn and prayer. One quilt was quilted, after which the hostess served refreshments and a social hour was spent.

The second social evening under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 41 was held on Wednesday. A very pleasant and social time was spent in games, music, cards and dancing, after which refreshments were served.

Mrs. Frank Fowler spent the week-end at Bridgenorth with Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Udy.

Miss Marion Carey and Miss Olga Fowler are in Toronto, attending the concerts in Massey Hall of the Mendelssohn Choir and Philadelphia Orchestra. They will return on Monday evening.

Mrs. T. Jones is spending a week in Toronto, visiting friends.

MILD WINTER IN ITALY

However, Tourists Find It Difficult to Keep Themselves Warm.

ROME, March 14—While some parts of the United States have been experiencing a severe winter, Holy Year pilgrims from America have been enoying one of the mildest and sunniest winters Rome has had in recent years. Nevertheless, some Americans here have observed that they found it easier to keep warm amid American snow than in Italian sunlight.

"The farther south I go, the harder I find the job of keeping warm," one tourist observed recently. "At home in Chicago the winters aren't exactly warm, but we dress for them and heat our houses well. In fact, in travelling through Europe, I found similar conditions in all of the northern countries and my family and myself had nothing to complain of. But as soon as we arrived in southern Europe, we discovered that we could not get any heated quarters outside of hotels.

"In principle southern Europe is warm, and so it is in the sunlight. But in the houses we have to shiver along as best we can."

DOUKHOBORS TO HAVE A SPLIT

Nephew of Late Peter Verejin Leads New Sect—Religious Trouble.

500 JOIN UP.

NELSON, B.C., March 14 (Canadian Press).—Peter Lordly's Christion community of universal brotherhood is the name proposed for 500 Doukhobors, who under Lariod W. Veregin, nephew of the late Peter Veregin announce their intention to break off from the main body.

The split is on religious grounds, the seceders alleging that young Peter Veregin is not a true follower of his father, having allegedly deserted him and also being addicted to the use of meat, tobacco and liquor.

GERMAN MONEY FOR DOMINION

LONDON, March 14.—(Canadian Press). — P. C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, has received from the British Treasury, on behalf of the Canadian Government, 135,475 pounds, representing Canada's share of the sum already received by the Imperial Government under the Dawes annuity plan from Germany. Another payment is expected in a few months.

CHEESE IN CANADA.

OTTAWA, March 14.—(United Press).—Canada has exported 6,567,491,219 pounds of cheese valued at $831,172,957 in the last fifty years, according to J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner. If this cheese were divided equally among the world's population, says Ruddick's report, there would be enough to give four pounds apiece to every man, woman and child living on the globe today.

World's Most Willing Payer of Taxes Found

DENVER, Colo., March 14 (United Press).—F. W. Howbert, Internal Revenue Collector in Denver, announces that he has found the world's most willing income tax payer.

An unmarried ranch hand with an income of $1,635 mailed Howbert a cheque for $635 as his income tax, protesting, however, that it was pretty hard when a man had to give the government "every penny he earned over $1,000." Nine dollars was the man's correct tax, Howbert explained.

ROTARY ANNES ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. G. A. Wood Will Be President For Next Year.

The annual meeting of the Rotary Annes was held in the Chamber of Commerce on Friday afternoon, March 13, the president, Mrs. R. H. Turner, presiding. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read, showing a most successful year, both in a financial way and in the hearty co-operation of all the members. After the general business was finished the election of officers took place, with the following result: President, Mrs. G. A. Wood; Vice-President, Mrs. C. H. Rogers; Secretary, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner; Treasurer, Mrs. Lee Barns; Convenor of the Work Committee, Mrs. J. H. Seels; Convenor of Entertainment Committee, Mrs. C. G. Graham; Convenor of Refreshment Committee, Mrs. B. H. Meyers; Convenor of Telephone Committee, Mrs. D. J. Lawrie; Convenor of Visiting Committee, Mrs. R. H. Turner.

This is Your Birthday

SATURDAY, March 14—People born this day spend much of their time in thought. They have an inventive mind, they plan and dream, and then leave their plans for someone else to carry out. They pay little attention to those of the opposite sex. The occult and physic will fascinate them.

SUNDAY, MARCH 15— You have a forceful personality that will bring you success. You are not worried about trifles, and you take responsibility lightly. This happy-go-lucky disposition will help make you successful in politics, for which you will show a distinct liking. You will be calm and shrewd. You will have a sincere and true love nature and should marry young.

FRENCH WOMEN MAY GET VOTE

PARIS, March 14. — (Canadian Press). —French women at last have a good prospect of getting the vote although it is only for city elections. A bill which would give them this at the next municipal election is being fathered by Deputy Louis Marin of inter-allied debt speech fame and has been indorsed by universal suffrage committee of the Chamber of Deputies, which has decided to present it for a vote at next Tuesday's sitting.

The Chamber, however, is not expected to hurry the consideration of the measure, and political observers say these concillors or aldermen who count on feminine vote at the May elections are likely to be disappointed.

CIVIL SERVICE CLOSED SHOP

Question Has Been Before Commission Some Time, Says Citizen.

TERM EXPLAINED.

OTTAWA, March. 14.—(Canadian Press).—The Ottawa Citizen this morning says: "The question of making the Civil Service a 'closed shop' has been before the Civil Service Commission for some time and was before a meeting of Deputy Ministers Thursday. The idea is approved generally and it seems that a report to that effect has been sent to the Government. By 'closed shop' is meant a plan whereby in the event of vacancies occurring, they should be filled by appointment, either of those whose services have been dispensed with or are on the waiting list, or else by transfers from the departments where there is help to spare."

PRESENTATION TO MR. W. H. DUNSFORD

Manager of Bank of Commerce Here Leaves to Accept New Position.

MARK APPRECIATION.

After banking hours on Thursday the staff of The Canadian Bank of Commerce met in the rotunda of the office and presented W. H. Dunsford, who is leaving Peterboro to assume the management of the securities department of the Toronto Branch, with a handsome travelling bag as a tangible expression of their appreciation of him. The presentation, made by Miss Drope, was preceded by the following address by Mr. Sterhan, the accountant:

"The time is near at hand when we shall have to bid you good-bye and on behalf of the staff I take this opportunity of congratulating you upon your recent appointment as manager of the securities department of Toronto branch. Your departure from Peterboro will, however, be very much regretted by the staff as, during our several years of business association we have grown to admire your many sterling qualities and banking ability and as a slight token of our esteem we ask you to accept this travelling bag which we hope will prove useful and also serve as a remembrance.

We hope that you and your family will enjoy residing in Toronto and also take this opportunity of extending to you and Mrs. Dunsford our very best wishes for many years of good health and happiness."

Mr. Dunsford, in thanking the staff, made a very fitting reply.

SMALL MARKET TO-DAY.

Neither Buyers or Sellers Braved the Bad Weather This Morning.

There was a very small market this morning. Inside, eggs were 33 to 35 cents, butter 38 to 40 cents, chickens and turkeys 30 cents a pound One man had duck eggs at 60 cents a dozen. Honey in the comb sold at 25 cents a section. On the outside market cabbage were 5 to 15 cents each, carrots, turnips and potatoes all sold at 20 cents a peck, beets were 25 cents a peck and parsnips 30 cents. Apples were 35 and 50 cents a peck. Pork sold at 18 cents a pound for front quarters and 20 cents for hind quarters.

MONTH'S OUTPUT.

Production of 226,000 cars and trucks is shown for January, an increas eof 8 per cent. over that of December. This, however, was a decrease of 29 per cent. from the production in January, 1924.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE SCHEDULE COMPLETED.

Examiners Champions.

Last night at the Water Street Alleys the two series winners Examiners and Bell Telephone, played off for the league championship, and Examiners won the G. N. Gordon Trophy, emblematic of the Mercantile championship. Examiners took two out of three from the Bell Telephone in hard-fought games, and won by 106 pins on the three games. They started by losing the first game by 101 pins, but fought gamely to overcome the handicap. Entering the third game still 39 pins down, they put in a nice game of 925 to win the championship by 106 pins. Elliott had high three with 658, and Cairns was a close second with 653. High singles, Cairns 275 and 214, Elliott 293, Gray 224, and Taylor 209.

SKIN BROUGHT $104.

Eighty-five Per Cent. of Offerings at Fur Auction Absorbed.

WINNIPEG, ,Man., March 14. — (Canadian Press). — At yesterday's session of the fur auction sale, red fox brought $20 to $22. Light furred and rubbed skins were neglected. For high color skins from $17 to $22 was paid for the best; medium $12 to $16; low grades $1.50 to $6.

Eighty-five per cent. of the entire offering was absorbed. Fisher did not bring out any great competition, only extra fine small dark skins being well competed for. Large and coarse pelts were not in demand. One fine small skin brought $104, the next best sorts bringing $60 to $85. Brown skins brought $30 to $65, while pale and coarse skins brought $16 to $40.

RACE FOR LIFE IS UNAVAILING

Northern Postmaster Dies During Trip By Dog Sled to Doctor.

HAD TO EAT DOGS.

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C. March 14.— (Canadian Press). — Found critically ill by E. C. McCorkell, fur buyer upon his arrival at Manson Creek, "Archie" King, Post Master at an outlying northern British Columbia settlement died a short time afterward while being taken by dog sleigh across the snow wastes in a howling storm toward medical aid at Babins according to word reaching here yesterday.

McCorkell, states a somewhat meagre message which arrived here, found King critically ill, with his partner who had been acting as doctor and nurse so exhausted as to be unabe to go for supplies, which had run low. An Inidan with a dog team was engaged by McCorkell to take King to Babins, en route severe storm attacked struggling little expedition of four, while Kings condition grew steadily worse.

Finally, just before he died, the Post Master swore in his partner to succeed him. When he had died, the new Post Master turned back to Manson Creek leaving McCorkell and the Indian to push on toward Babins with King's body.

Four fourteen days, they floundered across unbroken tracts through a whole series of blizzards. With provisions low they were forced to kill three dogs to supplement their small supply of flour, and bacon. The remaining dogs became so famished that they attacked the corpse of the former post master and it was only with difficutly that the two men were able to prevent the starving brutes from devouring the body At night when they camped they had to lash it to trees.

More dead than alive, the party finally reached Babins where they recuperated somewhat before pushing on to Topley and Vanderhoof.

OXFORD, Eng., March 14.—The number of American students at Oxford has decreased greatly since the post war years. In 1922 the number was 226, in 1923 it decreased to 181, and in 1924 the total was only 170. More than half of these were Rhodes scholars.

MARCH WEATHER DANGEROUS TO BABY

Our Canadian March weather — one day bright, but sloppy, the next blustery and cold—is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep the little ones indoors. They are often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against these colds and to keep the baby well till the better, brighter days come along, a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which never fail to regulate the stomach and bowels and thus they relieve colds and simple fevers and keep the baby fit. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

GEORGE STREET CHURCH CHOIR CONCERT

By J. C.

Despite the stormy evening, George Street Church was comfortably filled by a representative audience last night on the occasion of the annual concert given by the choir.

The programme featured a very creditable offering of the cantata, "Ruth," composed by the eminent English composer, A. R. Gaul, who has several such efforts to his credit, his "Holy City," probably the best known of his works, is beyond question his best and while the cantata "Ruth" may readily come under the criticism which has been levied at most of Gaul's works—as being "superficially fluent"—yet there is a wealth of enjoyment throughout, and under the artistic treatment of the essential recitatives and arias, supported by an adequate chorus, the cantata afforded an evening of real delight.

Mr. Renwick conducted with his customary authority, and had his forces under good control. At no time did the score appear to give the choir a chance to "open out," but in the more dainty passages a really good effect was produced, good quality and well balanced, and all round, the choir gave a good account of itself. Without going into the story, depicted in music ,the cantata may be said to fall into two divisions, as stated by the notation on the programme:

Part 1—Sorrow.

A certain man of Bethlehem, Judah, named Elimelech with his wife, Naomi and two sons, left their own country (because of a famine) and took up their abode in the land of Moab.

Elimelech dies, and the two sons take wives of the women of Moab. The name of one was Orpah, and of the other Ruth. After a few years the two sons die, and Naomi hearing that the Lord had blessed her own country, decides to leave the land of Moab and return to her own people. She bids them farewell, but Ruth refuses to leave her and accompanies her to Bethlehem, where they arrive at the beginning of the harvest.

Part 2—Joy.

There was a kinsman of Naomi's husband who was a mighty man of wealth, and Ruth said unto Naomi, "Let me go into the field and glean ears of corn after him, in whose sight I shall find grace." Ruth follows the reapers and is noticed by Boaz who inquires ,"Whose damsel is this?" On being told, he tells her to follow after the reapers, and glean what she may, also telling the reapers to drop grain on purpose that she may find plenty. In the evening she returns to the city, and tells Naomi of the kindness of Boaz, in whose sight she has found favour. She gleaned in the harvest fields each day until the end of the harvest. She finds more and more favour in the sight of Boaz, who takes her as his wife. They have a son, whose name was Obed.

And Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David.

Mr. Renwick was particularly fortunate in his selection of artistes responsible for the text. Mrs. Laura Marshall, who on this occasion, I believe, makes her initial bow to a Peterborough audience, in the role of Ruth, was really delightful in her rendition of the various parts assigned to her. Her voice is of remarkably pure timbre and under excellent control. Mrs. Florence Fenton Box has been heard in Peterborough before, and will always be welcome. Her rich contralto voice, equal to considerable range when necessary, is a distinct addition to any programme. In all her assigned work as Naomi, she was, to use a hackneyed phrase, "par excellent."

From the ranks of the choir Mr. Renwick supplied Miss Elma Coon in trio with the two visiting artistes and Mr. Charles Thorpe in the role of Boaz. In both these instances the local talent did full justice to their work ,and can be complimented on the ability they displayed in fitting in with real merit.

Prior to the singing of the "Ruth" cantata, the visiting artistes each gave a group of songs ,and a duet. Mrs. Marshall sang White's "The Robin's Song," Willeby's "Coming Home and "Little Brown Brother," by Lehmann. In response to an insistent demand she gave "Springtime." Every song was charmingly given, and served to prepare the audienc for what was to follow. Mrs. Fenton Box sang "Pale Moon" by Logan, a lovely negro spirittual, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I Have Seen" by Burleigh and "Inter Nos' by MacFadyen. As an encore she gave a delightful "Lullaby."

Mrs. E. . Racher acted as accompanist for the opening programme, while Miss Bessie Elcome, piano, and Mr. George H. King, organ, performed the arduous duties of the cantata. Needless to say these all contributed much, by their sympathetic co-operation, to the rounding out of a thoroughly interesting and instructive event.

Mr. Renwick is to be congratulated on adding one more notch to his already commendable array of concert successes.

TRIBES BURY HATCHET

Borneo Natives Have Interesting Peace Ceremony—Torture Pig to Death.

THE HAGUE, March 13.—Dispatches from Borneo, Dutch East Indies, give interesting details of a peace ceremony between the different Dyak tribes of that island. These clans have been constantly fighting each other for years, and have the reputation of being ferocious and bloodthirsty head-hunters.

Some 4,600 Dyaks came to the gathering. There were present also a few Dutch and British officers, who witnessed curious war dances, songs and prayers by medicine men. Finally the head priest killed a pig by a slow method and sprinkled its blood over the multitude, pronouncing a terrible curse upon anyone who should presume to revive the inter-tribal quarrels.

MACDONALD LAUDS THE PRESS GALLERY

Members Are Not Recording Angels—Take Evidence For Prosecution.

LONDON, March 14. —(Canadian Press). —"Who are those? they look like recording angels."

"No, they are not recording angels they are talking evidence not for defence but for the prosecution."

Laughter greeted Ramsay MacDonald's story as above; of how he explained, the press gallery to a visitor to the House of Commons. The former Premier was chief guest at the Parliamentary press gallery's annual dinner, last evening.

MacDonald confessed he had never had the ambition of becoming Prime Minister, but he had of being a member of the Gallery. He declared that the press gallery's occupants were people who made the House of Commons or reduced it to insignificance in the minds of the people. There was no journalism like British journalism, and the reputation of the House of Commons rested with them, he said.

WRONG INTENTION IN CAR ADVERTISEMENT

B. W. Manning and Manning Garage Not Going Out of Business.

An advertisement appearing in yesday's Examiner, headed 'Going Out of the Car Business,' and signed "Manning Garage," corner of Brock and Aylmer Streets, does not refer to t' Manning Garage.

The advertisment was inserted by Mr. W. J. Hamilton, who has been in the car business, and was cleaning out his stock of cars, which are at the Manning Garage.

Mr. B. W. Manning, who has taken over the propecty at the corner of Brock and Aylmer Streets, intends to stay in business and give old and new customers the very best of service possible.

SHOW CARD SCHOOL DID BIG BUSINESS

Received 6,000 Letters a Day —Butler Took Course to Improve Himself.

DETROIT, March 13.—Arthur H. Young, an English butler in the employ of a wealthy family in Winnetka, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, was star witness yesetrday for the Government in the trial of four officers and employees of the Detroit Show Card School, including Peter F. Griffin, preident of the concern, and Miss Maude Masters, of Windsor, in the Federal Court.

Young, who said he had had a university training in London, England, but had served for years as a butler, said he took a show-card-writing course to enable him to become independenet of his menial occupation.

In regard to receiving work from Detroit Show Card School, Young said he had been given three orders to execute by the school.

In each instance these consisted of strip signs for soda fountains. For each order he received $1.25, he testified. The cheque for the last order was returned to him unhonored, he said.

George Plancon,a railroad man of Montpelier, Ohio, was first pupil of the school to admit his work was not "much good."

He told counsel for defence that after he had seen show cards in stores in Montpelier and other places he did not believe his were good enough to sell.

Alex. C. McGibbon, weight clerk in the post office, testified to the extent of business done by the school, where as many as 6,000 letters a day were received.

W.M.S. MEETING.

Mrs. A. J. Langford, of Peterborough, Gave Address at Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, March 13. — The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Church held its March meeting on Wednesday afternoon, the special feature being a most inspiring address by Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Langford, of Peterboro.

Miss A. Hampton's group was responsible for the programme, Mrs. (Dr.) Rea taking the chair as her sister's health is not yet sufficiently restored to admit her assuming any public duties. The devotional leaflet, "Prayer with which to meet crises," based upon the 107th Psalm, was read by Mrs. Rea as a Scripture lesson, and the President, Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, led in the special prayer prepared for this meeting.

"The Struggle for Faith" was the subject of Mrs. Langford's remarks, China being the scene of the battle between heathenism and Christianity particularly referred to.

A solo, "My Saviour's Face," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles, with cornet obligato by Ernest Burnham, and piano accompaniment by Miss S. Hetherington, was much enjoyed at the conclusion of Mrs. Langford's address. In the latter's haste to catch the train for home, there was unfortunately no opportunity for a formal vote of thanks, but it is hoped to have Mrs. Langford speak to the Auxiliary again within the next few weeks. The large gathering present on Wednesday was delighted with the promise that this will be possible when the motoring season arrives.

The Auxiliary will hold a sale of home-made baking, candy, etc., with afternoon tea served, on the last Saturday in March, beginning at 2

SALT BURGLAR ALARM.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 14. —Salt is considered very sacred in certain parts of Arabia, where it is also a symbol of hospitality. A thief broke into a house one night, and after packing up a bag full of valuables, came upon a gold box. He tasted a white powder in it and found it was salt. He immediately restored all the valuables because he could not steal in a house where he had eaten salt.

A Builder of Good Health

BOYS, "LISTEN IN"

Boys who want to become strong and athletic will be interested in knowing that the crack baseball and football players, sprinters and swimmers consider milk their most valuable training food. A quart of milk contains as much protein as seven ounces of sirloin steak—almost half a pound of meat—and as much protein as more than half a pound of chicken meat. As for the amount of energy the quart of milk yields, you would have to eat nine eggs to get as much energy as you would from the milk.

GIRLS, A "BEAUTY SECRET"

Here are a few simple rules for building up your health and your attractiveness:

1. Walk at least 30 minutes each day in the fresh air.
2. Eat plenty of fruits and green vegetables.
3. Drink milk with every meal, and cut down on the sweets and starchy foods, and you will maintain health, and also retain your youthful face and animation.

Drink freely our Pasteurized Milk and Use Table and Whipping Cream and our Creamery Butter and Ice Cream.

SCOTS' LEAGUE SOCCER SEASON NEARS AN END

Only Three Clubs in the Running and One is Far Ahead.

HOW THEY STAND.

Dundee Favored in Second Division—To-day's Games Count.

GLASGOW, March 14 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Scottish football season is approaching its close, and with it the usual crop of predictions as to League winners are becoming more and more manifest.

In the First Division, there are only three clubs in the running, and the third of those is so far ahead of the rest of the League that the others don't count.

It was a set-back for Rangers on Thursday when they were defeated by Hibernians. It counted the Glasgow team's third trimming of the season and it also allowed the Easter Road club to leapfrog them into second place.

The Airdrieonians are leading the League with 52 aggregate points and a goal average that was vastly improved by their 7 to 1 win over the Third Lanark in midweek.

To present appearances, Airdrie have the League well cinched, but it must never be forgotten that the Rangers have still three games in hand over both them and the Hibernians. Rangers may still win. So much depends on form and so much on what value they place on the League as apart from the cup.

The Hibernians are not expected to better their position, although they are making manful efforts to do so.

As to relegation, it would seem that this is the fate left for Ayr United. Three clubs are faced with the menace, and any two of them might go, but the chances are that the couple who will go down to the Second Division are Ayr United and Queen's Park.

The Amateurs started out well, but have fallen badly by the wayside.

Falkirk are by no means out of the wood, and Motherwell will have to do much better to reassure their fans.

With regard to the Second Division, Dundee United are favoured for promotion, and along with them are expected Clyde, who were relegated last year. All through the season, both Clyde and Clydebank, who were also demoted, have made strenuous efforts to get back to the senior string. Of these, the former seem to have been more fortunate, for they rest a couple of points behind Dundee United, whereas Clydebank are "down five."

Forfar Athletic will probably go down to the Third Division, with Vale of Leven coming up to the Second. The "choice" for relegation lies with Forfar, Johnstone, and East Stirlingshire in the order named.

FIRE HALL FALCONS DEFEAT THE EXAMINER

Game Was Well Contested Considering Soft Ice—Final Score Was 5-2.

Last night at the Brock Street Arena, the Fire Hall Falcons defeated the Examiner in a game that was well played under the conditions. The ice was soft and the players were handicapped by a rolling puck. Some flashes of good hockey was pulled off, but very little.

The Falcons opened at a fast clip but the Examiner aggregation held them off for about fifteen minutes. Then they opened up and rung in three goals in less than 10 minutes. At the breathing spell they were leading 3 to 0, the Examiner team failing to register.

The Falcons scored two more goals within five minutes after the opening of the second period. The Examiner started to go good near the last of the game and scored 2 goals with four minutes to go. They waited to long to start their rally for they could not haul down the big lead of the Falcons.

The Fire Hall team all turned in a good game but the oustanding star was Johnnie Warde, in the nets. He got everything that come his way, blocking cleverly and showing good judgment in hadling the puck. The Examiners two goals were scored when he was playing on the defence, Smith being in goal. Cheu and White were the pick of the forward line. Lundy, who was on the sub list acted as pinch hitter for his team, scoring three of their five goals.

For the Examiner Collins and Baker were the best.

The teams lined up as follows:

Fire Hall Falcons—Goal, Warde and Smith; defence, White, Smith, Warde; right wing, Cheu; left wing, McNeeley; centre, Dundas; subs. Naish and Lundy.

Referee—Joe Huertz.

Hughey Duffey of Old and Rogers Hornsby of To-day Hold Highest Batting Marks in History of Baseball—Hornsby Just 14 Points Shy of 30 Year Old Record.

HUGHEY DUFFY

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—Over 30 years ago Hughey Duffy, now a scout for the Boston Red Sox, batted .438 in the National League. That is the best average ever made in the majors.

Last season it was seriously threatened by Rogers Hornsby, famous slugger of the St. Louis Cardinals. He finished the season just 14 points shy of Duffy's total.

Proud of Average.

Hughey Duffy is rather proud of that average and well he should be. It has stood the test of time. Such great batsmen as Delahanty, Lajoie, Wagner Speaker, Roush, Cobb, Sisler Heilmann and scores of others have been shooting at it for years but it still stands supreme.

For years left-handers have held the edge among the batting champions. It is a rather singular fact that Duffy is a right-hander and the player who most seriously threatened his mark, Rogers Hornsby, hits the same way.

As I watched Duffy bat grounders to the Red Sox infield, it was easily apparent to me why he was easily a great batter in his day. Despite the fact that he is well past the 50 mark, he looks 10 years younger, there still remain the rhythm and power to his swing.

Opposite in Physique

Duffy is just the opposite of Hornsby in physique. He is short and fairly stocky, while Hornsby is tall and rangy. Yet I could see much similarity between the style of the two players as I watched Duffy do his stuff in batting practice.

"That fellow Hornsby nearly caught you last year, Hughey," was my greeting to Duffy. He smiled.

Picks Cy Young.

"I should say he did, certainly had me worried for a time. There's a great batter. He does everything right at the plate and is fast. Nothing that he accomplishes in the way of batting will surprise me. He's liable to bat .450.

"However, it would be no disgrace to be topped by a batter like Hornsby. And you know I have held that record some time. I don't believe any other record has stood as long."

"Who was the greatest pitcher of your day, Hughey?"

"Shucks, they were all great to me. However, I don't believe there was ever a greater pitcher than Cy Young, all things considered, ability, consistency and durability."

ALERTS ALONE UPHOLD HONOR

Ottawa Senior and Junior Boys Are Out of Title Running.

UP TO GIRLS.

OTTAWA, March 14 (Canadian Press). — With their senior and junior boys' amateur hockey teams out of the running, Ottawa fandom is pinning its hopes for an amateur title to the Alerts, present ladies' Provincial titleholders and winners of the Robertson Trophy.

Their laurels will be challenged here this evening when Toronto Varsity ladies' team invades the capital in the first of a two-game final.

The local girls are confident that they can retain their present honours, although they are not discounting Varsity's Inter-Collegiate title and triumph over Grimsby in the semi-finals.

Alerts will present the same team with one exception, that has carried them to two consecutive Ontario championships.

HOCKEY SCORES

Hockey games played last night resulted as follows:

N. H. L. Play-Off.

Canadiens 2, St. Patrick's 0. (Canadiens win round 5 to 2).

Allan Cup Semi-Finals.

Port Arthur 1, Regina Vics 1.

Outstanding Feats—Hit .338 in 1923, making 208 safe swats. Fielded .968 last season.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

The modern record in the majors for consecutive victories by pitchers is held by Rube Marquard of the National League. Marquard, while a member of the Giants back in 1912, won 19 games in a row.

Joe Wood, Boston, and Walter Johnson, Washington, are tied for the honors in the American. Each turned in 16 straight triumphs ranking next to Marquard in this respect. Johnson, on another occasion, grabbed 14 wins without a reverse.

Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn ace, copped 15 in succession last season but there he stopped. Jack Chesbro hurling for the Yankees in 1904, came through with 14 straight as did Ed Reulbach for the Cubs in 1909.

Michigan appears to have uncovered a good athlete in Prout, a sophomore. He is a pole vaulter and broad jumper and has already displayed exceptional ability in each event. He should prove a big help to the Maize and Blue this season.

DUNSFORD HAS ICE CARNIVAL

Best Event of Winter Came Near Close of Season—Big Gathering.

COSTUME PRIZES.

DUNSFORD, March 14. — On Thursday, the most splendid event of the season was held on Dunsford ice. In all the number of carnivals that Dunsford has had in the rink since it was built, this was the best.

On account of it being so late in the season, and the uncertainty of good ice, it was not expected to see many in costume, but to the great surprise of the organisers a great number appeared.

Cyril Elliott wished to express himself as a "rag man," and surely did. Joe Smith apepared as a coon and his representation was splendid. Also numbers of others, one girl representing a ghost ,another a fairy, and others nurses and gipsies.

The prizes were for the best dressed lady Miss Mabel Thurston, dressed as a fairy; for the best dressed gentleman, Jack Elliott received first prize; for the most comic dressed lady, Miss Jean Elliott, representing a witch; and for the most comic dressed gentleman, Boyd Johnston, as an overgrown clown.

Cash prizes were given this year, as it was decided the most satisfac-plan. The judges were Mrs. Silas Thurston, Miss G. Richardson, and Mrs. Mel. Morrow. There were also several good games played: A barrel race which was won by Cleve Endicott; gentlemen's fast skating race won by Delma Thurston; ladies' fast skating race ,won by Miss Mabel Thurston; gentlemen's fast race, won by Alvin Arnott; gentlemen's fast race by winners of first, second, and third out of the sevond and fourth men's races, won by Delmar Thurston.

After all the soft weather the ice was in good condition, and everyone turned out well, though it was not expected it being so late in the season.

THE 13TH HOLE CHEATED DIEGEL OUT OF HONORS

With Five Holes to Go the Chances Seemed Good, But Jinx Got Him.

GALLERY TOO MUCH.

Concentration Broken---Player Lost By Only Two or Three Strokes.

It was at the Inverness Club at Toledo that Leo Diegel found himself on the threshold of international fame, a mere mashie shot, so to speak, from the open championship.

At the thirteenth hole, where so many golf ambitions have trembled and toppled to ruin, Diegel was apparently all set to sail into the harbor of riches and contentment. But something happened.

Diegel changed horses, or rather caddies, in mid-stream and the misfortune that followed whipped him. Diegel had played the first nine holes of his last round and was going well when a famous amateur, who had finished his march, prevailed about the young professional to let him carry his sticks—and advise him.

The amateur was well meaning enough and Diegel was probably delighted at the attention. So away they went. Diegel clicked off par at 10, 11 and 12. Immense galleries were cluttering the course. Word had swept to the clubhouse that a young American was still in the fight. (This tournament, you may recall, was featured by the presence of Vardon and Ray).

With five holes to go Diegel really seemed to have a splendid chance. Ordinary scoring would bring him through. There was a stampede to his sector. At the thirteenth the fans were herded together so closely they were using one another's handkerchiefs unknowingly.

As Diegel reached the top of his swing a gallery official bellowed "Down in front!" Diegel topped his drive. A few moments later a hound for statistics galloped to the scene, and, as Diegel was debating whether to use a light iron or a heavy one on his second shot, this fiend hissed in his ear, "Ray's home with 296."

With his concentration again broken, Diegel hooked wildly to a trap and finally finished the thirteenth hole with a seven, where par was only four. And even then he was only a stroke back of the winner at the finish.

A gallery can make a mighty differ ence. Playing without a gallery on those last five holes Diegel might have won the title by two or three strokes.

"Why didn't they wait until I had finished the thirteenth hole anyway," sorrows Diegel.

CANADIENS WIN ROUND 5 TO 2

St. Pats Were Unable to Break Down Defence—Victory May Carry Title.

WON GAME 2 TO 0.

TORONTO, Mar. 14.—(Canadian Press).—Waves beating against a breakwater will gradually break down the wall, but it takes time, and sixty minutes was not a long enough period for the green-colored waves from St. Patrick's to break down the breakwater that was strung across in front of George Vezina in the Canadiens' net last night in the second game of the play-off between the team that finished second and third in the late National Hockey League regular schedule, and as a result of the 2 to 0 win of the world's champions over the Irish here at the Arena, the Canadiens won the series by five goals to two, and qualified for the final play-off, which, however, may not take place owing to the attitude of the Hamilton players. It is likely that last night's victory will carry the N. H. L. title with it.

The Canadiens entered last night's game with a one-goal lead from the first encounter of Wednesday night, and right from the start they showed that they were out to defend their lead, trusting to one man and two-man rushes to increase it, when opportunities presented.

SENATORS WILL PLAY.

Not on Sympathetic Strike With Hamilton Tigers, Says President.

OTTAWA, March 14 (Canadian Press).—If President Frank. Calder, of the National Hockey League orders the Ottawa Senators to play the winners of the Canadiens-St. Pats series, they are willing to do so, said President Frank Ahearn, commenting on the "strike" of the Hamilton Tigers.

Mr. Ahearn said he regretted such a situation has arisen, and hoped the matter would be straightened out satisfactorily.

HAMILTON N.H.L. PLAYERS REJECT ANY COMPROMISE

Tigers Last Night Were Holding Out for Their Full Demand.

WANT $200 EACH.

Directors Offered $100, But Men Assert Their Claim is Just.

HAMILTON, March 14 (Canadian Press).—The Spectator last night printed the following story on the local hockey situation:

"In spite of powerful influences brought to bear upon them, the players of the Hamilton N.H.L. club remain obdurate in their demands as set forth in their ultimatum to the club management yesterday, and unless the directors decide to accede to their demands, Hamilton will not be represented in the N.H.L. play-offs.

"The directors held a meeting at noon today, and Captain "Shorty" Green was called into consultation. After the situation had been covered from all angles ,the directors offered to capitulate by paying the players half of what they asked, namely $100 each, but the answer was 'No.'

"'If you can see fit to pay us half our demand,' said Captain Green, 'you surely must realize the justice of our case, and can go the rest of the way. You have or argument and demands. We (the players) will not deviate from our original purpose.'

President Calder, of the N.H.L., reiterated his statements of yesterday over the long distance 'phone. 'If the team does not come to terms they will be suspended,' was the gist of his conversation. The players, however, are not worrying over anything the league or club might do. They are satisfied that they have justice on their side, and this was proved when Captain Green pointed out that he would be the greatest sufferer if things were not carried to a satisfactory conclusion.

"Shorty modestly referred to the fact that his success this season would, in an ordinary state of affairs, be reflected in an increased salary for next year, or words to this effect, and that if he were suspended he would lose everything. He was determined in his stand, however, and said he would remain out of hockey altogether rather than back down now.

FRANK CONVERY IS "WATCHED" BY HIS CLUB MATES

Popular Secretary of the Petes is Leaving Soon for Seattle.

WILL BE MISSED.

Players and Officers Feel They Are Losing Warm Personal Friend.

Players and Officers of the Peterboro Hockey Club gathered at Hooper's Palm Parlours, last evening, to say farewell to the popular secretary of the club, Mr. Frank E. Convery, who is leaving Peterboro at the end of this month to reside in Seattle. Mr. Convery has been connected with the Hockey Club for the past four seasons and has always been prominently associated with sporting activities in the city, his loss leaving a gap that will be hard to fill.

At last evening's Banquet, the regard in which he is held by the officers and players of the Hockey club was attested to by the eulogies paid him by the speakers and by the presentation to him of a beautiful gold watch, suitably engraved. It was a night of presentations, inasmuch, as President and Manager Eddie Wright was presented with a garnet masonic ring from the players and a medal from Mr. G. N. Gordon, there was a bouquet of flowers for Mrs. Convery and flowers, also for Mrs. Jos. Dwyer and Irene Wright who took part in the programme and the players received a photograph of this year's team.

A splendid repast excellently served was provided by mine host Hooper and while this was being done ample justice to the orchestra of the Royal Theatre, under the direction of Mr. Bert Hartshorn played a most enjoyable programme.

Mr. R. M. Glover was chairman and after the toast to the King had been honoured, referred to the object for which the banquet was being held. He paid a warm tribute to Mr. Convery's capabilities as a secretary and to his personal qualities and declared that in his leaving, Peterboro was losing not only a good man also a good citizen. The chairman also remarked that theloss of Mrs. Convery and family would be felt by a wide circle of neighbours and friends.

Bert McLeod read the following address to Mr. Convery, while the presentation of the watch was made by Joe Dwyer.

Mr. Frank Convery,
Secretary, Peterborough Hockey Club, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Frank,

In gathering here to-night to say farewell to you and wish you every success in "the little grey home in the west" to which you are going, the pleasure at having the old bunch together again is overshadowed by the realisation that we are soon to part with one who has been in very close association with all of us.

If we were to say all the good things about you that could be said, your blushes would illuminate the room like the noonday sun, but in this address we do intend to say enough to show you that your personality and the great service you have rendered are appreciated to an even greater extent than you, perhaps, realise.

As secretary of the Peterborough Hockey Club during the past four years, much of the spade work necessary to a successful organisation has been done most faithfully by you. The problems of finaning, transportation ,practice hours, hotel accommodation, and all the thousand and one details that must be looked after to ensure the smooth functioning of a hockey club have been carried on your shoulders, and how well you succeeded can only be realised by us who have had the benefit of your foresight, energy and ability . The completeness of your arrangements for the many trips the Peterborough Club has taken during the season just ended has ensured the maximum of comfort and pleasure for every member of the party, and looking back over one of the most enjoyable hockey seasons any of us has experienced we can readily see how much we owe to the thoughtful planning and untiring zeal of yourself.

Not only that, but your personal qualities have endeared you to every one of us, and we feel that we are losing a warm friend who invariably thought of our interests before his own. We are sorry, indeed, that this is the last time the party will be complete, and can only hope that when you travel west your memories of your association with us in putting Peterborough on the hockey map will be as pleasant as ours will always be of you.

We realise that you are a modest individual and must spare you further tributes by asking you to accept this token of our regard for you, and by wishing you the best of luck and all happiness.

The recipient declared that it was impossible for him to say anything more at that time but "Thank You."

Dr. E. H. Wood, the club's physcian, expressed the deep regret of every man connected with the Peterboro Hockey Club at the loss of Mr. Convery. It was possible to say of him, as of few men, the speaker declared that in all his dealings he had never let any of them down. Dr. Wood felt that they were losing a dear friend in the departure of the guest of the evening.

Mr. L. H. Bond, a warm friend of the Petes during the season, added his tribute to the worth of Secretary Convery and took advantage of the opportunity to congratulate the players on their great record during the season. They had not only proved to be a fine team but had shown themselves thebest losers he had ever met.

Another Presentation.

President & Manager Eddie Wright was completely taken by surprise by the next event when Harold Parker read the following address and Ray Rose presented him with a ring

Mr. Eddie Wright,
President, Peterboro Hockey Club.

Dear Eddie.—We the members of the Peterboro Hockey Club felt that we could not allow this occasion to pass without indicating to you our appreciation of your services during the past season. You have had charge of the players during the long campaign and all of us appreciate the fairness, impartiality and courtesy displayed by you, at all times. We realize the sacrifice you have made in giving so much of your time to furthering our interest and we have to thank you for that and for the unfailing good nature with which you tackled every situation.

Our only regret is this address is not being presented at a function to celebrate the winning of the O.H.A. Championship — but perhaps that pleasure will come another year.

Just as a token of our regard for you, we ask you to accept this ring; hoping the sight of it on your finger will recall some of the many enjoyable features of the season of 1924-1925.

Chairman Glover then presented Mr. Wright with a medal from Mr. G. N. Gordon, K.C., similar to those presented by the Deputy Speaker to the players in recogniton of their capture of the S. P.A. cup.

In acknowledging the presentation, Mr. Wright expressed the hope that the team would stick together and win the championship next year.

During the programme, Mrs Dwyer sang two most enjoyable solos in excellent voice and to the great enjoyment of the gathering. Miss Irene Wright gave two fine readings, one of which, "The Parson at the Hocey Match" contained some appreciated allusions to the Petes and Mr. Frank Clark played the banjo with his usual artistry and fine effect. Mrs. Dwyer and Miss Wright were presented with bouquets. Frank collins' doing the honours on behalf of the Petes.

The gathering then adjournde to the Grand Opera House where they were the guests of the management at the Grand and of the Winter Garden Vanities Company.

CANADIENS ARE NOW CHAMPIONS

President Calder Assured That Hamilton Players Stand Pat.

NO SETTLEMENT.

HAMILTON, March 14.—(Canadian Press). — The Canadiens are champions of the National Hockey League. This title was bestowed on them this morning by President Frank Calder, after he had been assured by local owners that the players are standing firm in their demand for a $200 bonus each.

Yesterday it looked as if a settlement would be effected, and that Hamilton would meet the Canadiens for the title on Monday and Wednesday of next week. Certain directors of the club were willing to meet the demand, but the majority refused, and when word was received from President Calder that the franchise would be declared null and void if they paid the players, the local owners had a change of heart.

According to President Calder, the Canadiens will leave for the West at once, as the Western hockey moguls have decided to move the play-off dates forward.

The Hamilton team of the N.H.L. was at the top of the league schedule after the season's playing and the players demanded $200 each to play in the play-off games for the right to meet the champions of Western Canada for the Stanley Cup.

This has been refused and the action of President Calder of the N.H.L. this morning disqualifies the Hamilton team and puts the runners-up, the Canadiens of Montreal," in first place.

DEMPSEY WON'T FIGHT.

Take Until Fall to Get Into Shape For Champ Ring.

LOS ANGELES, March 14 (Canadian Press).—The Los Angeles Times today quotes Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, as saying that he positively will not defend his heavyweight title before next fall. "There is not a chance in the world of my fighting Renault or anyone else here in June," Dempsey said, according to The Times. "I won't be ready to defend my title then, and I don't intend to try. I will have to take off a lot of weight before I can begin to build up. I want to condition myself by tackling a couple of second raters before I step into a championship bout."

VISIT TO U. S. OFF.

Oxford University Boxing Club Postpones Scheduled Visit.

LONDON, March 14 (Canadian Press)—The Oxford University Boxing Club has postponed its scheduled visit to the United States until next year because of illness of prominent members of the team.

The American League high mark is held jointly by Jack Coombs and Joe Harris. Coombs, pitching for the Athletics against Harris and the Boston Red Sox, went 24 innings on Sept. 1, 1916, the former winning, 4 to 1.

In a game played between Brooklyn and Boston on May 1, 1920, Cadore and Oeschger battled 26 frames, the tilt ending in a 1-1 tie. Incidentally, it ranks as the longest game on record in the majors.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

MARVELOUS INCIDENTS IN "BAGDAD" FILM.

No picture produced since th b ginning of the moving picture industry has at all approached the sensation achieved by Douglas Fairbanks in the glorious Arabian Nights fantasy, "The Thief of Bagdad." Some of the outstanding features of this extraordinary production are: The Magic Carpet that sails across the house-tops, The Undersea City of Crystal where sirens dwell, The Forest of Enchanted Trees, The Cloak of Invisibility, The Winged Horse that flies up to and through the clouds, The Living Dragon in the Valley of Monsters. This marvelous production is hailed, not merely as a greater picture, but as a production that stops so far out of the beaten path that critics speak of it as "the creation of a new are."

The Thief of Bagdad closes its run at the Capitol to-night.

GLORIA SCORES ANOTHER GREAT TRIUMPH IN A COMEDY-DRAMATIC ROLE.

You must go down to see Gloria Swanson at the Capitol on Monday.

You must!

It'll simply tickle you pink. What will? Why "Wages of Virtue," of cours . It's Gloria's very latest for Paramount, directed by Allan Dwan, who made "Robin Hood," "Manhandled," "Her Love Story," and other such hits.

High-powered romance, we'd call it—and against a background of Northern Africa and the French Foreign Legion at tha.. Can you imagine it? Of course, you can' . You have to see it. And there's not a Swanson fan from Nome to Pohokus who is going to pass this one up. It's just not being done.

Novelty? You said it! Remember, "Manhandled"? Well, this picture makes it look like a heavy drama—so much for that. Appeal? If saying it has "Her Love Story" trimmed seven different ways helps any, then that's just what it has.

Novelty, appeal—and Gloria Swanson. They don't make 'em any better than that!

Great cast? Of course! Ben Lyon, Norman Trevor, Ivan Linow, Joe Moore and others have fine roles.

AT THE GRAND

THE VANITIES.

It was Hockey Night at the Grand last night, when the players and officers of the Peterboro Hockey Club were the guests of the Grand and of the Winter Garden Vanities Company. The boxes were occupied by the party and were decorated with blue and white, while the club's colors were also on display in the lobby, where a banner extended "Welcome" to the Petes. Special numbers were introduced by the Vanities in one of which the chorus wore the Pete's blue and white sweaters and carried hockey sticks, while the S.P.A. Cup was introduced into the number. The comedians, Moe Parker and Jimmy Taylor, worked in some funny hockey comedy, and then the quartette sang, "How Do You Do?" with an appropriate verse for every member of the Petes' party. The hockey interlude was appreciated by the audience.

In fact the whole show last night went through with a bang. The trouble of Cohen and Casey as portrayed by Messrs Parker and Taylor caused a lot of fun, and the musical numbers were all enjoyed.

Tonight the Vanities finish their week's engagement here ,and a capacity audience should be on hand to say farewell.

AT THE ROYAL.

MISS VIDOR PROVES HER VERSATILITY.

Star of "The Mirage" Has Role Different From Anything She Has Ever Done.

RUNS GAMUT OF EMOTIONS.

Lovely Player Has Part That Florence Reed Scored In On the Stage.

Florence Vidor's role in "The Mirage," the screen version of Edgar Selwyn's great drama which comes to the Royal Theatre on Monday, is a striking contrast to her role in "Barbara Frietchie." From the character of the beautiful, conventional southern heroine of Clyde Fitch's play to that of the "gold digger" character of Edgar Selwyn's play is a far cry, but Miss Vidor has made the transition without sacrificing any of the sweet, womanly appeal that is always associated with her characters.

In "The Mirage," Miss Vidor is called upon to portray the part of a young girl who thinks she sees happiness in the existence of "gold diggers" who are members of the show in which she obtains a part upon her arrival from a small town. These "gold diggers" with their pretty clothes, cozy aparaments and absence of financial worries are her envy. So, when a man-of-the-world offers to pay her to entertain his out-of-town guests after the show, she accepts his offer and is able to have pretty clothes and a cozy apartment herself.

She does not stop to do any analyzing. It seems quite all right to her and for a time she is happy—then the folks from home appear on the scene and everything looks different. They can't understand this arrangement that the girl has with the man-of-the-world. They think she isn't as nice as she was when she left home. Then the little country town girl who has become a "gold digger" realizes that the happiness she saw in such a life as this was not there at all — it was just a mirage.

Miss Vidor runs the gamut of emotions in this role. There are the happy innocent scenes of girlhood when she dreams of the great success she will make in the city, there are city scenes where in beautiful costumes, she goes to the wild parties and plays the game; there are scenes of pain and anger and disillusionment and some very appealing love scenes, too.

This is the first time Miss Vidor has ever portrayed a show girl, but she has entered into the spirit of the play and made of Irene Martin a truly human character.

Playing with Miss Vidor are, Clive Brook, who is seen as the man-of-the-world, Alan Roscoe, as the sweet heart from home, Myrtle Vane as the mother, Charlotte Stevens as the little sister, and Vola Vane as the vampire de luxe.

George Archainbaud directed.

WE HAVE WITH US MONDAY—

The Royal, through a streak of good luck and the influence of a friend in Detroit, have secured for three days, commencing Monday next, M. Dubin, a great Russian tenor, assisted by Emily Westgate, in an operetta entitled "The Life of an Opera Singer." In Great Britain M. Dubin has appeared at the Royal Albert and Queen's Hall, London; St. Andrew's and City Hall, Glasgow; the Usher Hall, Edinburgh; the Palace (with the Russian dancer Pavlova), the Coliseum, Alhambra, Palladium and Hippodrome, London, and every provincial hall of note in the country. Peterboro music-lovers have a treat in store for them Monday at the Royal.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.
When the writer was many years younger than now, we tried to reconcile the generally accepted idea, of the statement concerning 'death,' the penalty for sin. Moral death, spiritual death or death of the body only, did not seem to satisfy, and we laid the question on the shelf unsolved. When a mere child, the statements in the 'Old Testament," Scriptures, in regard to God speaking to individuals was another item unsolved. The above, including other questions, we have had to face in later years, have been solved satisfactory to the writer. Adam was created either a mortal or immortal being. The meaning of mortal is a state or condition in which death is possible The word immortal means a state or condition which death is impossible. If Adam was "immortal" how could he die, if death proof. We must conclude he was "mortal," and that his everlasting life depended upon his obedience. The idea that "mortal" must of necessity die some time, is untrue. How could God sentence man to death, if he already was a dying creature, and never had been anything else," More Anon.

ITALIANS PLEASED WITH CABLE LINE

New Direct Communication With America's Hailed With Enthusiasm.

ROME, March 13 (Associated Press).—The conclusion this month of the work of laying a submarine cable from Anzio, Italy to Malaga, Spain, whereby Italy is for the first time joined by direct cable to the North American continent, is being hailed with enthusiasm by that large section of the Italian population which turns avidly towards the United States for inspiration for Italy's fast growing commercial and industrial life.

But the completion of the cable also is having the effect of emphasizing the extent to which Italy has up until the present occupied a peculiarly insular role in regard to daily news communication with the Americas, and even with northern and western Europe.

The Roman newspapers, and there are but few large Italian newspapers outside of Rome, are fashioned in conformity with the Latin journalistic idea that opinion is more important than news, and that news should have the color brought to it by the personal viewpoint of the reporter or the political creed of the journal.

Each newspaper publishes but a scant few columns of news from abroad, and most of that comes from nearby countries, France most often. These columns treat almost exclusively of political happenings, and only occasionally of news events.

Fresh news is scarce and for freak and human interest stories, which the Italians love as much as do the Americans, the Rome dailies rely on venerable foreign newspapers, rewriting them without bothering about the time of its origin.

Practically all news from the United States comes by way of London and Paris, and much of it suffers strange distortion which indicates the relay race it has run.

BUY AIR LIMOUSINE

Company Formed to Operate Aerial Service in Alaska.

JUNEAU, Alaska, March 14.—(Associated Press).—Incorporation papers for Alaska's first aerial company, filed at the territorial capital here in February, revealed that the Fairbanks Airplane Corporation of Fairbanks intends to purchase a $30,000 air limousine to carry eight passengers comfortably to points in the interior.

The company was capitalized for $50,000. The incorporators were R. C. Wood, president of the First National Bank; J. Fred Struthers and James A. Rodebaugh, pioneer airplane owner of the north, all of Fairbanks. The company successfully operated three planes to mining camps last summer from Fairbanks. One of the planes was offered to Roy S. Darling, former navy aviator, and Ralph P. Mackie, of Alaska, an employee of the Alaska Railroad, to make a proposed flight to Nome, 920 miles from Fairbanks, with a consignment of diphtheria antitoxin, but was not used because dogs were well on the way to Nome before the weather permitted aviation.

ELEPHANTS STOP TRAINS

Huge Animals Interfere With Railway Traffic in Sumatra.

THE HAGE, Holland, March 13 (Associated Press) — Further reports received here concerning the mysterious deserted city in the Upper Langkat region of Sumatra, state huge quantities of elephants' bones have been round there. This gives rise to the belief that here may be one of the hidden places to which elephants retire when they feel death approaching. African and Indian hunters agree that sick elephants withdraw from their herds to some remote spot only known to themselves to die alone.

Elephants seem to be on the increase in Acheen, the Sumatra Post observes in this connection. A light railway which runs along the edge of the jungle was held up the other day by a herd of 40 big tuskers which leisurely amused themselves by puling up all the fencing and boundary posts in sight before they deigned to move on.

STORMS SEEM TO KEEP SHIP AFLOAT

Cannot Be Taken to Genoa to be Broken Up.

LIVERPOOL, March 14.—(Associated Press).—It has often been said that ships sometimes appear almost human, and this has been illustrated off the British coast during the last six months. Repeated efforts have been made to clear the iron bark Hippen from her native land for a foreign port where she was to be broken up as junk, but all in vain, for she still rides English waters.

The Hippen, formerly the Angerona, of Liverpool, left Fowey for Genoa last summer, but a few days out encountered a storm and put into Falmouth with much damage done to her sails and rigging. The repairs required some time and early this year she started out again, supposedly on her last voyage, but was driven back by stiff winds two days later. A third attempt to steer the bark to Genoa was made in February, but this proved no more successful, heavy seas being met which pounded the sides of the vessel to such an extent that the captain returned to Falmouth where she is still at anchor awaiting favorable weather. For the last 20 years the Hippen has been under the Norwegian flag. She was built at Whitehaven 51 years ago.

CLUBS SUPPLY BEDS

Crowding of Hotels Causes Added Accomodation for Members.

LONDON, March 14.—(Associated Press).—Most of the London clubs have decided to add bedrooms to their quarters for the convenience of their guests. This innovation has come about gradually during the last year or so, chiefly on account of the fact that the London hotels have been so crowded.

The United Universities, the United Services, Carlton, Reform and Devonshire clubs, among others, have found it necessary to add sleeping quarters to their premises, and the Union club in Carlton House terrace will have its own bedrooms when it reopens next summer. The old-fashioned Athenaeum also is on the list.

Old-Time Kitchens Had Their Own Charm

BERLIN, March 14.—(Associated Press).—Kitchens of 1925 were a feature which attracted much attention in Berlin's recent show window competition, designed to show the progress which the last 100 years have brought in house furnishings.

Inconvenient and back-breaking as the cooking equipment of 100 years ago must have been, there was a beauty about the ancient kitchens which provoked much comment from women who know only the electrically equipped kitchen with all its modern equipment.

Many of the old kitchens reproduced in Berlin's show windows contained displays of antique pewter and brass, old tiles and porcelain which today would find a place in the drawing room.

PRINCESS RELATED TO ROYAL FAMILIES

Princess Blucher Has Wonderful Old Family Tree.

LONDON, March 14.—(Associated Press).—London society circles were much enlivened recently by the arrival of Princess Blucher from her castle in Silesia, and who, in one way or another, claims to be related to all the royal families of Europe.

Prior to her marriage to Prince Blucher, the present representative of the family of famous Field Marshal-General "Vorwarts" Blucher, who fought with the Duke of Wellington at Waterloo, the Princess was Miss Stapleton Bretherton, of Rainhill, Lancashire, her parents representing two ancient Roman Catholic families. Her mother was the daughter of the twelfth Baron Petre.

After the war the Princess published a book, "An English Wife in Germany," which attracted a great deal of attention. It showed all branches of the wonderful old family tree still in her possession and just how she traces her relationship to all the crowned families of Europe.

Queen Mary Home and School Association Held Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held last evening, in charge of the president, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge. Reports of the secretary, Mrs. H. S. Huffman, and the treasurer, Mrs. D. Cameron, were given, the latter's report showing a good balance on hand of $145.98.

A brief programme which followed the business session included a pianoforte selection by Miss Gwen Donley, a reading by Catherine Millard, vocal solos by Miss Doris Donley and Mr. H. Nevin, and a very interesting and instructive address given by Mr. A. B. Gates of the engineering staff of the Canadian General Electric Company, who spoke on "The Kingdom of the Dust." Mr. Gates explained the way in which light is refracted through the dust particles with which the air is charged, and referred to the beautiful colors in sky and sunset which follow for many years after a mine or volcanic explosion, when enormous quantities of dust are released into the surrounding ether.

The banner this month was won by Mr. E. G. Wagar's room.

Officers of the Queen Mary Home and School Association for the ensuing year are as follows: President, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge; first vice president, Mr. E. G. Wagar; second vice president, Mrs. C. B. Adair; third vice president, Mrs. Percy Blade; fourth vice president, Miss Thomas; secretary, Mrs. H. S. Huffman; treasurer, Mrs. D. Cameron.

Convenors of committee: Programme, Mrs. H. E. Connolly; Refreshments, Mrs. Worsencroft; Flowers, Mrs. P. Blade; Visiting and Relief, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge

Mrs. Florence Fenton-Box was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Craig, while in the city.

A pretty St. Patrick's tea was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, 551 Aylmer street, under the auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham. The guests were received by Mrs. Munro and Mrs. T. Glover, assisted in the drawing room by Mrs. G. McCartney, Mrs. J. Gemmell and Mrs. H. Morgan. Mrs. James McDonald ushered the ladies into the tea room, and Miss D. Morgan acted as treasurer. Tea was poured by Mrs. D. Lawrence and Mrs. H. Adams, assisted by Mrs. S. H. Holden, Mrs. G. Logan, Mrs. A. S. Couper, Mrs. C. Perry, Mrs. F. Sedgwick and Mrs. H. Dodds. The tables were effectively arranged with a central green harp, covered with springeri fern, daffodils in silver vases and yellow candles in silver holders. A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. J. Butcher, Mrs. J. Kerr and Mrs. J. A. Bryce.

LEAGUE OFFERS GERMANY EQUAL POSITION WITH OTHER NATIONS

Conciliatory Reply Pays Great Honor in First Invitation Extended to Any Country to Take Place at International Council Table.

WILL BE WELCOMED AS A PEER

GENEVA, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Closing the most important meeting in its history with what is generally admitted to be a constructive move of great significance for future harmony in Europe, the League of Nations adjourned Saturday night after expressing a sincere wish to see Germany associated with its labors by joining the league and thus play in the organization of peace a part corresponding to Germany's position in the world.

If the Council was unable to approve Germany's request for an exceptional place in connection with the obligations imposed by the convenant, it did, by voicing the above sentiment, pay her a great and unprecedented honor, for no country has even been bid to take a seat in the league and a place around the council table. Everybody agrees that Germany must have a permanent seat in the council.

Saturday's action is deemed significant because it represents the first word addressed to Germany by the allies on a basis of perfect equality. Germans here following the council proceedings are openly pleased at the phraseology of the letter which the council has sent to the Berlin government.

No Sacrifice of Pride.

Though the document fails to share Berlins views that because of her enfeebled military conditions she is exempt from the sanctions duty fixed by the covenant, the hope was expressed that the conciliatory tone of the note will enable German to find a road leading to the league, which does not involve sacrifice either of national pride or what she conceives to be her national interests.

The next act in the international play, whose desired climax is the discovery of a solution to the great problem of security, will be presented at Paris, for thither many statesmen were bound Sunday to confer with Premier Herriot on the problem of a pact of guarantees. M. Briand left at noon yesterday to report his impression of the Geneva conference to the French premier. Austen Chamberlain, British secretary for foreign affairs, left last night and is today conferring with M. Herriot.

Security Big Problem.

Despite the heavy blow delivered to the cause of disarmament by last week's action in the matter of the protocol, the statesmen apparently departed from Geneva with fresh courage to attack the huge problem of security. Several members of the council said that the real reason why the protocol is lost so far as its present form is concerned, is because, apart from defects due to hasty preparation, it embodies ideals too advanced for the present era. One member said:

"Christianity did not become a practised religion until three centuries after Christ. The protocol presents what we should do in the world—settle all conflicts by arbitration. But the world is not ready to agree to that yet. The protocol went too far on arbitration and was weak in its system of sanctions. But the supreme goal is before us and some day we will achieve it. Let us be patient and give the world what it is ready for now. That is our immediate task."

ONE OF THE THINGS OF WHICH FOCH COMPLAINED

General Foch in his report to the allies claims that the Germans are training men for military purposes, outside the army, by means of volunteer organizations of a semi-military character. Here is shown a parade of the Reichsbanner, a group sworn to defend the German public, as they parade through the streets of Berlin.

Recital of Classics Heard by Immense British Audience.

LONDON, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—A piano recital by Ignace Jan Paderewski without applause, was the unique experience of millions of music-lovers in the British Isles Sunday night when the former President of Poland played a programme of Beethoven, Schubert, Chopin and Liszt and a short nocturne composed by himself in the broadcasting station in London, and which was relayed throughout the entire United Kingdom.

Never before in the famous pianist's wide experience has he ever had such a huge audience.

POLICE BULLETS REPLY FATALLY TO GERMAN COMMUNIST PROTEST

One Man Killed and Three Wounded in Sunday Demonstration Against Clash in Halle Friday Night When Seven Were Slain.

ELECTION CAMPAIGN BITTER

BERLIN, March 16 (Canadian Press). — One man was shot dead and three men were wounded yesterday by policemen during a Communisst demonstration held in protest against the clash on Friday night in Halle between Communists and the police.

In the Halle clash seven persons, including two women, were killed.

The fatal encounter took place on Friday night at 10 o'clock at the Volkspark Hall where a huge crowd had collected to hear speeches by the Communist Presidential candidate, Thaelmann and others, including two Englishmen and a Frenchman. The police forbade foreigners to speak but one Englishman defied the prohibition, whereupon a German Communist started translating the speech. But the police officer supervising the meeting leaped on the table, brandishing a revolver, and forbade the speaker to proceed.

Stairway Collaps

This started a tumult followed by a sudden volley of shots and a wild panic. The stairway from the gallery collapsed under the weight of the frightened crowd, seriously injuring many. In fact it is a miracle that hundreds were not killed in the mad scramble to leave the darkened hall, where the dead and injured lay in pools of blood while the police roughly pushed the bewildered thousands toward the exits amid the crack of shots and the shrieks of the panic-stricken multitude.

A preliminary investigation at Halle on Saturday ten[illegible] to show that the police did not fire until fired upon. The Communists however insist that the police fire was unprovoked. Especially bitter is the criticism of the police officer who sought to stop the meeting. He is said to have fired point blank into the crowd, thus starting the panic.

The Communist meeting at Halle was one of several staged by the Communists on the occasion of the fifth aniversary of the Kapp 'putsch,' when Kapp and associates sought to overthrow the German Republic.

The Communists are using the Halle affray as campaign material, depicting it as unjustified brutality of the 'bourgeois" authorities. But it is not only among the Communists that criticism is heard. Besides the widespread impression that the police acted hastily and roughly, much wonder is being expressed that the Halle authorities should consider translations into German of remarks by foreign Communists more dangerous than German speeches by German Communists to a German audience.

Halle had another bloody riot last May, wherein several were killed.

MUNICH, Germany, March 14th.—Dr. Heinrich Held, the Bavarion Premier, may be a candidate in the race for the Presidency of Germany, the Bavarian People's Party having voted to nominate its own candidate, as it is unable to approve the selections of the other Bourgeois parties.

Herr Held's appearance as a contender for the nomination, in the opinion of political leaders, considerably weakens the prospects of Dr. Karl Jerres, the Burgomaster of Duisburg, as joint candidate of the Right parties. These leaders also believe that there is a possibility of Dr. Jarres being eliminated from the final balloting despite his announcement that he is prepared to go before the electorate a second time if he fails in the preliminary voting.

WOLVES PURSUE DANCERS' PARTY

Followed Cutter Three Miles —Treed Lumberman in Northwest Alberta.

SETTLERS IN FEAR

EDMONTON, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Thrilling fights with large packs of timber wolves, and a community so menaced by the prowling, ferocious animals that settlers fear leaving their farms, with the result that dances have been postponed and social engagements involving visits between sunset and sunrise cancelled, is the story from a new settlement northwest of Vilna, Alta.

During the past week a party of homesteaders returning from a dance at Hamlin were pursued by a pack, which kept within a few feet of the cutter for more than three miles of a lonely trail through a wood. One of the party carried a rifle, but feared that by opening fire he would cause the wolves to attack. Twice the leading wolf attempted to jump into the sleigh, but was driven off by the stock-end of the rifle, and eventually the animals abandoned the chase.

A lumberman returning to camp was attacked by a pack, numbering from nine to twelve, and was forced to leave his horse and take refuge in a tree. The horse made camp, and the man's companions rescued him, after shooting three wolves and wounding several others.

STATE SEEKING INDICTMENT OF WM. D. SHEPHERD

Four Witnesses Before Chicago Grand Jury in Typhoid Germs Case.

STORY OF ACTION

Accused Alleged to Have Caused Death of W. N. McClintock.

CHICAGO, March 16 (Canadian Press). — Four witnesses will appear before the Grand Jury here in an effort to-day to bring about the indictment of William D. Shepherd, foster father and heir of William N. McClintock, "millionaire orphan," who died from typhoid last December.

This action developed late yesterday following a conference of attorneys and witnesses in the office of Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney.

Shepherd chose on Saturday to remain in custody of the State's Attorney rather than face an immediate charge of murder in connection with the death from typhoid fever of his young ward, William N. McClintock, who willed to him an estate of approximately $1,000,000.

Shepherd's counsel agreed with Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, on postponement of a writ of Habeas corpus hearing until Wednesday. Shepherd meanwhile is to be detained in a downtown hotel and permitted to see his wife and counsel at reasonable intervals.

From his seizure on a forthwith subpoena early on Saturday morning until his appearance before Judge J. H. Hopkins in the afternoon. Shepherd had been held incommunicado and persistently questioned by Mr. Crowe and his assistants.

Shepherd said he had made no admissions and that being detained a while longer could not make any difference, as he had nothing to do with the death of McClintock.

He denied the statements of Dr. C. C. Faiman, proprietor of a school of bacteriology that he had studied at that school, had taken back for $30.00 a letter he had written regarding a course or that he had taken three test tubes filled with typhoid bacilli.

In opposing Shepherd's release on a writ of habeas corpus Mr. Crowe admitted that Shepherd was being held "without process of law as a result of the investigation into the death of young Billy McClintock."

"However," he continued, "we have evidence which, in my judgment, makes it necessary to hold Mr. Shepherd.

"I am prepared to file a formal complaint against him if it becomes necessary to keep him in custody."

William S. Stewart, noted trial attorney, speaking in behalf of Mr. Shepherd, said his client "technically is entitled to discharge at this time" but rather than "precipitate a charge of murder we want to give Mr. Crowe time to look into the case."

Mr. Stewart said that Shepherd voluntarily returned from New Mexico for the Coroner's inquest into McClintock's death, had appeared voluntarily for questioning at any time, and had never claimed his constitutional rights to resist examination.

He termed the accusations against Shepherd a "conspiracy to deprive him of his rights under a will."

Mr. Stewart also stated to Judge Hopkins that the Illinois law forbade a Judge practising law and said that Harry Olson, Municipal Chief Justice, had been in error in directing the two months' investigation into McClintock's death.

LABOR'S CREATION OF PROTOCOL WAS ONLY DEFECT, SAYS RAMSAY MACDONALD

Former Minister of Foreign Affairs Declares Austen Chamberlain Didn't Realize the importance of the Convention He Rejected.

LONDON, March 16.—(Canadian Press). — Ramsay MacDonald, addressing a Labor meeting in London last night, strongly criticized Austen Chamberlain's Geneva policy. He declared that the Tory party had rejected the protocol simply because the Labor party created it.

Mr. MacDonald averred that he had never read a more pettifogging speech than that of the British Foreign Secretary at Geneva. Mr. Chamberlain had never visualized the bigness of the things he was dealing with.

Denying that the protocol assumed the sanction of force, Mr. MacDonald asserted that when Mr. Chamberlain rejected it he fell back on pacts, which meant nothing but military alliances. Security could never come by mere military pacts. The protocol would only have become operative when the nations had agreed upon disarmament, and it was rubbish to say that the protocol made the provisions of the Versailles treaty permanent.

These proposals of military security in the form of pacts, Mr. MacDonald declared, were just the old world raising its evil hand again. He predicted that not a single self-governing dominion would put its name to any pact Mr. Chamberlain must prepare as a substitute for the rejected protocol.

CHURCH UNION BATTLE OPENS

Legislature Starts To-morrow on Busy Few Days—Many Features.

BEER ON THURSDAY.

TORONTO, March 16.— (Canadian Press.)—This week promises to be the busiest of the legislature session. To-morrow morning the church union battle starts before the Private Bills committee. It will run for two days at least, and probably longer. On Tuesday the debate on the budget will be completed, with the three leaders speaking. On Thursday it is expected that the beer bill and other O.T.A. amendments proposed by the Government will be brought down. Redistribution is not expected until later. Whether the house adjourns before Easter will depend upon the debate on the beer bill and the terms of the redistribution bill.

WIFE ADMITTED HER MISCONDUCT

Says Col. Dennistoun in His Own Defence To-day—Confessed.

MAID TELLS TALES.

LONDON, March 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The crowd of fashionable folk and people in ordinary who daily crowd the court room to watch the progress of the Dennistoun trial had another big moment to-day when Lt.-Col. Ian Onslow Dennistoun took the stand in his own defense against the allegations of his former wife that he had encouraged her intimacy with Sir John Cowans, late quarter-master general of the British army, to further his own military ambitions.

Before the defendant was called, Hannah Parker, his former wife's maid, testified that Mrs. Dennistoun told her the night before the marriage of her ex-husband to Dowager Countess of Carnavon: "I'm glad they are going to be married tomorrow, now I can put the screw on."

"She said it was a dreadful thing to use letters against anyone who had loved you," the maid said.

"She also told me that although she had married Col. Dennistoun, she had never loved him."

The witness said her mistress had told her that Col. Dennistoun owed her lots of money and that she was forced to use letters to get it back.

Says Wife Confessed.

Col. Dennistoun, when he took the stand, declared that his former wife had confessed to him within a few months after their marriage in 1910 that she had been unfaithful to him. The man in the case, witness said, was Oscar Senhouse, who was frequently mentioned in the earlier days of the trial, and with whom Mrs. Dennistoun, on cross-examination, had denied there was any undue intimacy. He said he first became susnicious in 1911, and that his wife finally confessed her misconduct.

Blamed Her Husband.

Col. Dennistoun said he had married against his father's wishes, and although he had grounds for divorce early in 1911 he had no intention of letting his father know that anything had gone wrong. After this, the witness declared, he had not had any control over his wife, so far as her morals were concerned.

He admitted that he had obtained a position in Jamaica through Sir John Cowans.

Witness flatly denied that he had left his wife at the Ritz Hotel in Paris knowing that she was going to stay there with General Cowans. He said she wrote him afterwards, admitting her misconduct and that her letter blamed him, declaring it was his fault.

START TO BUILD THE BEST PARK

Winnipeg Plans Facilities For Every Branch of Athletics and Sport.

WINNIPEG, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Construction operations on what engineers claim will be the finest recreation park in the whole of Canada will start here early next month, promoters of the project have announced. The contract has been awarded to A. J. Creelman of Vancouver. The park, which will cost approximately $150,000, will provide facilities for every branch of athletics and sport.

STRIKE CONTINUES DEADLOCKED TODAY

No Sign of Capitulation on Either Side—Tour of Mines.

SYDNEY, March 16, — Canadian Press. — A complete deadlock, without indication of any move toward a settlement on either side obtained in the Cape Breton coal fields on this the tenth day of the strike.

It seems to be taken for granted on both sides that the next move, if any, will come from without.

Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Provincial Minister of Highways, spent the week end at North Sydney and Sydney Mines looking into conditions there after making a similar tour of the southern areas on Saturday.

The Sydney Steel Plant continues operations on about the same basis as last week, with a daily production of about 1300 tons of steel and an operating staff of over 2000.

On the Inguassu River, in South America, about 600 miles from Buenos Aires, there is a waterfall which is one third higher than Niagara Falls.

KURD REVOLT IS SPREADING

Turks Say Three Months Are Necessary to Put Down Rebellion.

MORE MONEY VOTED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 16. —(Canadian Press).—The Commissar for the Turkish press, in an interview yesterday, admitted that the revolt in Kurdistan was on a large scale. He said the revolt was growing and that repressive measures on the part of the Turkish authorities likely would take nearly three months to quell it.

The latest news received, the Commissar said, was that the rebels were retiring from the iDabekir region and now apparently were awaiting the Turkish attack in their southern fastnesses, where the advantages of terrain were in their favor. The Angora Assembly has voted another large credit for repressive measures against the revolutionists.

CAR LOADINGS DECLINE

First Week of March Fell Off —Higher for Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 16.—Revenue car loadings on Canadian railways continue to show a decease. In the week ended March 7 loadings totalled 51,700 compared with 57,529 in the corresponding week last year and 52,417 in the week ended Feb. 28, 1925. The cumulative totals up to that date this year, however are higher, being 512,331 as compared with 501,413 in the corresponding period in 1924.

Grain loadings continued light and fell 574 cars below the previous week this year. Coal and pulpwood also decreased.

WILL FINANCE RESEARCH WORK

Toronto University to Establish Foundation to Support Scientific Efforts.

AID PROMISED.

TORONTO, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—The establishment of a foundation for the financing of further research similar to that which led to the discovery of insulin will shortly be undertaken by the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto. Intimation to this effect was given by Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the University, following a full discussion of the matter by a large group of prominent citizens at a dinner at the York Club on Saturday night.

Unqualified approval of such action was expressed by all present, who united in pledging their support to the work. Assurance that Provincial aid would be forthcoming was given by Premier Ferguson, who added that the Government would be inclined to be even more generous should the governors see fit to enlarge the foundation to include industrial research. Mayor Foster expressed himself as confident that the city would be prepared to do its part. Sir William Mulock stated that the opinions expressed would be reported to the Board of Governors.

DRYS IN JAPAN.

TOKIO, March 16.—(United Press).—Temperance workers in Japan are "battling bravely" in an attempt to educate the rising generation against liquor and cigarettes. A campaign was started recently in which thousands of posters and pamphlets describing the evils of alcohol and nicotine were distributed to the children in public schools. At present, the Japanese drink sake, a light wine made from rice, almost to the exclusion of any other intoxicant.

Legislation Now Before Government Explained to the Upper Chamber Members.

MET PROGRESSIVES.

OTTAWA, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Representatives of veterans and dependents from all provinces of the Dominion met a caucus of Senate members Saturday and placed before them all particulars concerning their requests for pensions, reestablishment and soldier settlement legislation now in the hands of the Government. The delegation was lead by Ian MacKenzie, M.L.A., Vancouver, Dominion vice president of the G.W.V.A., and Thomas M. Downing, Winnipeg, Dominion president of the Tuerculous Veterans' Association. Particular emphasis was placed by the veterans on the necessity of permanent incorporation of the pension bonus with pensions and the enactment of the other pension legislation deferred from last session by the Senate after having been passed by the House of Commons. Concurrence in the terms of and confreres assured the veterans of canteen funds, and the need for some effective measures to extricate deserving soldier settlers from their difficulties were also stressed.

The veterans were accorded a very attentive hearing. Member of the Senate stressed the necessity of having the proposed legislation placed in their hands by the House of Commons at an early date.

The delegation also waited on Robert Forke, leader, and members of the executive of the Progressive group, and gave an explanation of the various proposals. Mr. Forke and cnfrres assured the veterans of their full sympathy and support of all measures designed to carry out the wishes of the Canadian people in these matters.

The Veterans' Legislative programme was placed before members of the cabinet and the leader of the Opposition on Friday.

VETERANS TO WELCOME HAIG

Coming to British Empire Service League Conference in Ottawa Next July.

G.W.V.A. CONVENTION

OTTAWA, March 16 (Canadian Press).—When Field Marshal Earl Haig and the delegates of the British Empire Service League from all British Dominions reach Ottawa on July 19th next, they will be greeted by between four and five hundred representative veterans from all parts of the Dominion. The national conference of G.W.V.A. officials which met in Ottawa all week, on Saturday agreed that a Dominion convention of the Association should be called for this purpose.

Under present arrangements the Empire conference will open on July 20th, with Earl Haig presiding as grand president of the league. The Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada will be scheduled to meet during the previous week, with the Field Marshal in attendance at the closing sessions.

Branches of the G. W. V. A. throughout the country will be encouraged to discuss the subjects of world peace, Canada's national status, immigration and other matters of Dominion and Empire scope, so that the Canadian delegates to the League meeting will be in a position to give fresh and positive opinions of veterans on these topics.

The conference also decided to request the Minister of National Defence to release the official Canadian films of the Great War for use by branches of the G.W.V.A. It was urged that copies of official war photographs should be furnished to veterans at cost.

Arrangements are to be made immediately for visits to local branches by prominent veterans to explain the purposes of the British Empire Service League conference and the Dominion convention of the G.W.V.A., and to urge a strong attendance of delegates.

BOYS HEAR ADDRESS.

Mr. Porter Spoke at St. John's on Californian Trip.

At the weekly meeting of St. John's boys, held last Friday evening, the regular business was first gone through, after which the gathering heard an interesting talk given by Mr. Porter.

His subject was 'A Trip to California." Mr. Porter is a man who has had a lot of interesting experiences and possesses the art of relating them in an interesting manner.

It is to be regretted that there was not a larger attendance to greet him, due no doubt to the inclement weather.

STEEL WORKERS IN ITALY ON STRIKE

100,000 Men Walk Out as Act of Solidarity Promoted by Fascisti.

ROME, March 16. — (Canadian Press).—The strike which started a few days ago at Brescia, when a few thousand workers employed in the steel works there walked out as a result of the industrialists' refusal to increase wages, has now extended to the whole of Lombardy and Piedmont.

The Neapolitan steel workers are on the point of joining them as an act of solidarity.

More than 100,000 men are idle and Italy's most flourishing factories are closed. The strike has been promoted by the Fascist syndicalist corporations, the leader of which, Rossonil, declared the support given the industrialists by Fascismo during the Communist menace does not mean that the workers are now at the mercy of the employers, and the just demands of the workers will be obtained.

CAR LOADINGS DECLINE

First Week of March Fell Off —Higher for Year.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 16.—Revenue car loadings on Canadian railways continue to show a decease. In the week ended March 7 loadings totalled 51,700 compared with 57,529 in the corresponding week last year and 52,417 in the week ended Feb. 28, 1925. The cumulative totals up to that date this year, however are higher, being 512,331 as compared with 501,413 in the corresponding period in 1924.

Grain loadings continued light and fell 574 cars below the previous week this year. Coal and pulpwood also decreased.

MODERN POETS LACK IDEALISM

Professor Malcolm Wallace Discussed Poetry at Teachers' Banquet.

MANY GUESTS.

Professor Malcolm Wallace, of the Deparmtent of English at the University of Toronto, was the speaker at the annual banquet of the Peterborough Teachers' Institute at the Empress Hotel on Saturday. His subject was "Poetry and Modern Life." In introducing the subject, he said that there didn't seem to be much connection between poetry and modern life, and that it was often asked why the present age did not produce great poets as had former ages. As a reason for this Professor Wallace quoted Matthew Arnold's theory that civilisation has long pendulum swings which might be designated as creative periods and critical periods. Creative periods were such as the sixteenth and nineteenth centuries when most men wrote poetry and many men wrote good poetry. Critical periods were those such as the seventeenth century and the present time. Most of the literature of such periods is prose. The poetry that is written is mostly satirical. To speak of a thing as Victorian now, said the speaker, is to mean sloppy sentimentality and insincerity.

Nowadays said Professor Wallace, authors write to expose deception and insincerity. They look on life with much pity and no awe. He quoted a great many poems by present day writers which he pointed out were most beautiful lines, but which lacked the idealistic viewpoint.

Mr. J. E. R. Munro, president of the Institute, was the chairman of the evening, and in his opening remarks said that it was a sure sign of spring to see the teachers assembled in festive conclave.

Miss Jean Buck, in proposing the toast to "Our Profession," said it is a noble calling which would always remain the greatest of all professions. The profession gives them an opportunity not only to teach worldly learning, but to implant the seeds of right living in the young entrusted to their charge.

Not only do they teach the three R's, but now they educate the children morally and physically.

F. J. A. Morris, of the Collegiate Institute, proposed the toast to the guests who included representatives from the Normal School, the City Council the Board of Education and the other learned professions.

The toast was replied to by J. A. McKone, Mayor Turner, Dr. Moir, Rev. Harold Young, and E. R. Shirley, M.E.I.C.

Mr. Mowat introduced the speaker of the evening and Messrs. Bolton and Ingall proposed a vote of thanks to the speaker. Miss Eagleson contributed a very enjoyable solo.

AN ADDRESS ON BAD OLD TIMES

Y.M.C.A. Weekly Supper—Speaker Was Rev. J. W. Gordon.

NOT SO GOOD.

Rev. J. W. Gordon was the speaker at the weekly Young Men's supper at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday and his topic was the "Bad Old Times."

"What's good about the good old times" asked Mr. Gordon, and then he went on to prove by numerous illustrations just how bad the good old times were. He pointed out the ignorance, the superstitution and uncleanliness that existed in the good old times. How a man was regarded with distrust, as a thief or murderer if he moved twelve miles from the village in which he was born in these good old days as told in Silas Warner. How a week's mail from Edinburgh could be carried by one man and how because to travel from London to Edinburgh took seven weeks one city was absolutely foreign to the other. How men were burned for their religious beliefs and how a man of fifty years of age of those days was so corpulent and besotted that he could walk with difficulty because he had consumed so much ale and beer, as compared with a man at the hilltop of form at the same age to-day. How all inventions were looked upon as the work of the devil; for example the first steamboat which earned the ire of church and state because it meant the mixing of fire and water and it was called the devil boat.

Mr. Gordon explained that the present times were good, but that there could be greater strides made if (1) People abided by a majority (2) If they desired a change. (3) If they chose the best brains for leaders and then treated them with respect due them and leave off petty and ignorant criticisms. In explaining the last point the speaker said that under the present conditions the ablest man will not touch politics or government because it is open to too much unjustified criticism.

BURLEIGH WILL CAUSES BATTLE

Phrase Written by Melissa Stone is Subject Legal Argument.

RESERVE JUDGMENT.

TORONTO, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—A phrase in the will of Melissa Stone, of the Township of Burleigh, Peterboro County, directed a certain disposition "of all my monies." W. F. Kerr, for Jas. C. Stone, the administrator, presented a lengthy argument to Mr. Justice Rose in Supreme Court, to the effect that a mortgage for $1,400 should be included in the term "monies." L. Ramsay, for the official guardian, argued that mortgages and chattels could not be embraced in the word "monies." Judgment was reserved.

LIFE AFFECTS ALL COMMUNITY

Dr. S. D. Gordon, of New York, Speaks in George Street Church.

QUIET TALKS.

Dr. S. D. Gordon of New York, who is giving a series of 'quiet talks' in the George street Methodist church this week, spoke last night on the subject, 'How a staid old community was gently but radically changed," basing his address on the story of the Samaritan woman. He said that Jesus touched men in their hands and hearts and lives, cleaning and changing and putting them to work for Him and giving them the power to touch others. He gave as an instance the story of the teacher who said a few words to Dwight L. Moody, which made a great change in his life and resulted in a long chain of influences touching the lives of many.

In the story in the Gospel the woman at the well spoke to Jesus, and was changed. She saw herself as she realy was and she brought about a change in the city of Sychar. So every change in the world has first come to one man in the world, such as the Reformation to Luther, and the Methodist movement to Wesley.

There is in each one, said the speaker, four persons. The first is the man the crowd knows, the second is the one intimates know, the third is the man as he sees himself, and the last is the real man as God sees him. He advised the congregation if they had the honesty and the courage to slip away for a quiet talk with Jesus, which he said would result in a photograph, not as a photographer would touch it up, but like the first proof, with the moles on the spiritual face and the deep wrinkles in the moral face.

He compared the life of most people to a field which lay near his boyhood home. In this field there lay a plank with a fine smooth upper surface but the boys used to turn it over and expose the nasty slimy worms on the other side. In His talk with the woman of Sychar, Jesus had lifted the plank in her life. She had talked with her neighbors and had sent them to see Him. Others did not go but believed because of what she said. Her belief was a change in herself. She had opened the door of her life and the Lord had entered in.

Sin always brings suffering and the Master had come down and lived and suffered with men.

EXPERT EXPLAINED MOTHERS ALOWANCE

Chairman of Ontario Commission Addresses County of Durham Board.

MILLBROOK, March 16. — A meeting of the Mothers' Allowances' Board for the County of Durham was held in the town hall, Bowmanville, on Thursday, Rev. Peter Bryce, chairman of the commission for Ontario being present to confer with, and address the members.

Mr. Bryce is for the second time, making his round of calls on the local boards of the province. Miss J. M. Burry, investigator for the Counties of Durham, Northumberland, Peterboro and Prince Edward Island, was among those present on Thursday.

In his remarks Mr. Bryce explained that ninety-six per cent. of the mothers receiving help under the Allowances' Act prove worthy, and give good care to their homes and children. Immorality is the chief cause of trouble with the remaining four per cent. and the Commission endeavors to be as sympathetic as possible, giving kindly but firm warning, offering a second chance to make good, reporting to the Children's Aid when every means tried has failed to bring the hoped-for reform. The allowance is cancelled if only one male boarder is kept, though time is allowed to secure a second inmate of the home on the same footing. This rule applies in all cases, and does not mean that there is any reflection on the character either of the widow receiving help, or the boarder, but the Commission, after careful consideration, feels it the only wise course to take.

An amendment to the Act permits an allowance to the mother with one child, when the husband is at home totally and permanently incapacitated. Many requests are received, Mr. Bryce stated, for help for the widow with only one child under fourteen years. To grant this would mean the immediate need of at least three-quarters of a million dollars extra, and of the total million within a year. Probably two thousand additional beneficiaries would be added to the present list in a brief time.

In his work as chairman of the Provincial Commission, Mr. Bryce has found the public opinion favorable to the Act, and the investigators and local boards have the same experience. Last year the sum of $806,000 was paid by the municipalities, the latter being responsible for fifty per cent. of the cost of the allowances. A monthly statement is forwarded to each municipality giving the names of the beneficiaries within its borders, and the amount paid in each case. Durham County has twenty-four receiving help under the Act, eight hundred dollars being the year's cost. Peterboro has forty-one, and the amount paid was $1,632.00.

In cases where there is inability to give proof of marriage, but where the children had the one father, and the mother is reputable and received in the community as such, some action is now being taken to grant the allowance, though it is only within the past six or seven months that such have come under consideration. Twelve widows in various parts of the province, in these circumstances, are now beneficiaries under the Act.

Where the husband has been stricken with blindness, the allowance is not granted unless he is otherwise physically incapacitated as well. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind will give vocational training to the man and a living allowance during the period he is learning an occupation, and the grant will be given his wife, providing there are children under fourteen years of age, while her husband is taking his training.

The amount necessary to meet the claims since the Allowances' Act came into force has increased each year. In 1921 it was $775,000; in 1922, $1,400,000; in 1923, $1,607,000; last year, $1,708,000; and for 1925, $1,800,000 is the appropriation asked for.

The cost of administration has been reduced until it is now only about 4 per cent., in fact it was actually but 3.95 for November, December and January. Last year $90,000 was allowed for administrative expense, and the Commission was able to return $19,000 of this as not required.

Rotary, Kiwanis and Canadian Clubs has willingly co-operated with the Commission in giving financial aid in cases of special need, and Women's Institutes, Daughters of the Empire and other organizations have also given much appreciated assistance.

The matter of remuneration to the secretaries of the local boards came up for consideration while Mr. Bryce was present, and the latter stated that the commission has no amount allowed for this worthy purpose. Even in the case of large cities, it is done gratis, but as a great deal of time and labor is involved for the ones holding this office, there are a number of instances where the Counties' Councils are paying an honorarium for each service.

There are fifty -two families with one child under sixteen, and an incapacitated husband, in the province, where the allowance is being paid. Ontario is usually considered not to have any large families, but the Commission reports one widow with twelve children under sixteen years among its beneficiaries. Altogether 4,129 families, with a total of 12,582 children, are now in receipt of aid. The average amount of allowances last year was $35.80.

"The social values of the Act are seen in the remarkable improvement reported in the homes of the beneficiaries; in the new courage and hope inspired in the mothers; and in happier and healthier childhood.

In justice to all concerned, in connection with the percentage mentioned for administrative purposes, it should be stated that this includes the entire cost involved in the services of the investigators, the local boards, and all expenses of the head office under this heading.

The members of the board for Durham County include E. W. Galgraith, of Port Hope, chairman; Mrs. A. L. Nichols, Bowmanville, secretary; Mr. A. Van Camp, Burketon, vice chairman; Messrs. T. B. Chalk, Port Hope; A. J. Thornton, Orono; H. Bland, Mount Pleasant; Miss Pearl Burnham, Millbrook.

CAVAN CHURCH SOCIAL

Pleasant Social Evening Arranged for Young People By Rev. Mr. Richards.

CAVAN, March 14.—One of the pleasantest social evenings of the winter was spent in the basement of the Methodist church at Cavan on Friday, March 13.

Rev. R. L. and Mrs. Richards arranged the programme which was the source of much merriment and interest.

Groups were arranged by piecing together pictures which had been cut into eight pieces. Each group sang a piece that had been written out for them. A prize was given to the group getting the most applause.

Groups were then formed according to the month of their birthdays. Each group then contributed to the make-up of a magazine. The first group naming the magazine and forming a design and advertisement for the cover, the other groups writing the editorials, personals and local news, jokes and market reports. The whole was put together and read by the chairman. The prize, a box of candy, which was to be given the group writing the best department, was sent to Mac Newton who is confined to the house with scarlet fever.

Lunch was then served by the ladies of the aid.

The attendance was good considering the stormy evening.

Mrs. W. McClung, Garden Hill, is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. Carr.

Quite an amount of snow fell on Friday afternoon and night. On Saturday morning farmers were able to draw loads of wood and etc., on sleighs and found the going good.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Lakefield, March 12, 1925.

To the Editor, Examiner.

Sir: I have been much interested in your editorial calling for economy in the Costs of Government, Federal and Provincial, and am pleased to note that your City Council have filed a protest against the proposed $600 increase in the Provincial sessional indemnity, they are certainly in line with public opinion. May their example be followed by every Council and Board of Trade in the Province.

I am sending you herein, which kindly copy, a letter that I wrote The Globe last month. In it I make quotations from the pen of Mr. Grattan O'Leary, staff correspondent of The Globe, who no doubt has first-hand information:

"The writer has several times through the press urged the necessity of a reduction in the cost of government. We support in this country about 900 members at Parliament—too many by one-half. What business firm would expect to economize on that principle? We send four members to Parliament from each county when we could be as well and efficiently governed by half that number. Mr. Grattan O'Leary declares that more than half a million people out of a population less than nine million are living on tax money, and he suggests that the Senate be reduced to 72 members, cutting their indemnities $1,000 a year, and that the Cabinet be reduced to 12 members, dispensing with the portfolios of Secretary of State and the Solicitor-General and combining the Departments of Public Works, Railways and Canals and Fisheries. He would group the Maritime Provinces in one legislature; the same with B.C. and the Yukon. Canada, he says, is paying its politicians $2,922,000 a year, as compared with $1,230,000 paid by the people of Great Britain (with a population of about 50,000,000) for similar services. We are told also that one hundred million will be added to our national debt this year.

"I believe that it is absolutely necessary that the people of this country demand from the Government such a measure as was inaugurated in England by Lloyd George when he appointed Sir Eric Geddes to make a saving in national expenditure. We should find some one bold enough and honest enough to tackle this question with an axe and not let it be longer said, ten years after the war, that we are behind Great Britain, Australia and the United States in that we fail to do what they are doing—meeting their obligations and paying off their national debt."

BAD FOOD HABITS UNDERMINE RACE

British People Steadily Growing Less Beautiful and Healthy.

LONDON, March 16 (Associated Press).—The food habits of the people of Great Britain have been growing steadily worse for the last 150 years and consequently undermining the beauty and physical fitness of the race, according to Lieutenant-Colonel Robert McCarrison of the Indian Medical Service. His contention is that people here do not get the necessary amount of vitamines in their food and without vitamines the normal chemical action of the body cannot properly proceed. He advocates the eating of wholemeal, green vegetables and fruit and the drinking of milk.

Colonel McCarrison said not long ago he travelled all through Great Britain, but while he saw the beauty of the English countryside he did not see much beauty in the English race. That was partly explained by the fact that he did not see a piece of wholemeal bread and the fruit he saw was mostly tinned.

PROFESSORS VISIT WESTERN EUROPE

Many American Teachers Are Spending Year in England.

LONDON, March 16 (Associated Press).—A considerable number of American professors are spending their sabbatical year in England. The sabbatical year is the one in seven which the professors are allowed to take in order to see and learn more than the flitting tourist.

The English-Speaking Union is encouraging and helping the visiting pedagogues to see something of the social, political and educational life of this country. They are being given access to documents and material kept from the eyes of ordinary visitors.

Recently a reception was held for them. Among the guests were C. Ray Aurner, professor of English, University of Iowa, and Mrs. Aurner; F. F. Blachly, professor of government, University of Oklahoma, and Mrs. Blachly; A. W. Newcombe, assistant professor of history, Knox College, and Mrs. Newcombe; B. B. Kessler, professor of Christian Doctrine, Iliff School of Theology, Denver, Colo.; Dean Charles Mills Gayley, director of the American University Union, Mrs. Gayley and Miss Gayley, and Miss Elizabeth Jackson, assistant professor of English, University of Minnesota.

POWER WEEK LATEST

April 20-25 Selected for Holding Meetings Throughout Country.

NEW YORK, March 16 (United Press).—To arouse national interest in oil and gas conservation, chemists and engineers in co-operation with Federal departments and other groups will hold meetings throughout the country April 20 to 25, this period having been designated as Oil and Gas Power Week.

Formation of a National Committee with headquarters in New York City is announced by the American Chemical Society, one of the principal co-operating units, the purpose, it was said, "to focus the attention throughout the country, by means of simultaneous technical meetings, and discussions, publicity, etc., on recent progress and on immediate possibilities in this basic technical field."

SLOGAN FROM PLAY

Shakespeare Quoted for Fire Prevention Signs in London.

LONDON, March 16 (Associated Press).—Shakespearean quotations are used by the London Metropolitan Fire Brigade in an effort to caution the public against carelessness where fires are concerned.

One quotation in particular, "A little fire is quickly trodden out, which being suffered rivers cannot quench," has been hung in the fire brigade headquarters in London and distributed to various fire prevention bureaus.

GEOGRAPHY MADE EASIER

Giving Brief Native Names to Many Towns in Bulgaria.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 16 (Associated Press).—Under instructions from the ministry of the interior, the local authorities throughout Bulgaria are renaming many towns, rejecting the foreign nomenclature that has existed in some instances for centuries.

The results, so far as reported, indicate that the villagers are selecting names conspicuous for euphony and brevity. The movement has the approval of the Bulgarian Institute of Map-Making.

MOTORCYCLES INCREASE

Motorcycles, the Department of in United States reports, increased in greater porportion than heretofore, but the increase was mostly in foreign countries. The number of these vehicles was 1,075,000 at the beginning of 1924. By the end of the year it was 1,255,000.

POPULATION INCREASES.

SOFIA, March 16 (Associated Press). —The population of Bulgaria now numbers 5,115,906, according to figures published by the official newspaper, La Bulgarie. These are based on the census of 1924. The record shows that the increase of population has been steady since 1920.

WIRELESS STATIONS TO BE ERECTED

MELBOURNE,, Australia, March 14. — The Melbourne Herald states that four-beam type wireless stations, two for receiving and two for transmitting, are to be erected immediately at a cost of 120,000 pounds, with the object of working traffic direct with Great Britain and Canada.

Mother! Be sure you get Pepsodent for your child's teeth

DO you want your child to have prettier teeth now, and better protection from tooth troubles in later life?

Mail the coupon then for a 10-day tube of Pepsodent, free. See what the world's leading dentists urge mothers to use as modern science's latest attainment in tooth care.

You will notice a film on your child's teeth. That's a frequent danger sign—an invitation for tooth troubles. The same stubborn film that you can feel by running your tongue across your own teeth. You must combat it. Ordinary dentrifices don't fight it successfully. Harsh, gritty substances are injurious to enamel.

Film is the greatest enemy of tooth health. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices, and stays. Germs breed in it. The acid that leads to early decay forms. Old type methods failed to combat it. Men of science engaged themselves in discovering an effective combatant.

Now in Pepsodent, two new combatants are embodied — combatants approved by highest dental authority. It curdles the film, then gently removes it. It keeps the teeth whiter, cleaner, more sparkling. It is the modern scientific method for better tooth protection. Insist upon it. Get a tube today. Mail the coupon.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

The theory of the "closed shop" plan which is being urged as desirable in connection with the Federal Civil Service is plausible enough, whether it would work out in practice and whether it would be desirable to make it most difficult for outsiders to secure positions in the service are quite different matters.

The advocates of the plan would have the Civil Service so operated that in the event of vacancies occurring they would be filled by appointment, either of those whose services have been dispensed with or are on the waiting list, or else by transfers from the departments where there is help to spare.

The last clause is interesting, inasmuch as the intimation that there are departments "where there is help to spare," rather tends to confirm the public impression that it would be possible to thin down the Civil Service without detracting from the efficiency of the system.

But passing that by and recognizing, too, that there is much in the plan that commends support, there will be on the part of many people a disinclination to make the Government service a monopoly, to some extent at least, for those already in the inner circle.

SECTIONALISM.

Mr. Belding, the envoy from the Maritime Provinces, who addressed the Kiwanis Club on Friday and who is returning east after a long tour of the Dominion, in which he explained to many audiences some of the problems of the Provinces down by the seat, is doubtless going back with a new conception of Canada.

He has found that other sections of the Dominion have their troubles, and his mission, successful as it has been in acquainting the middle and western Provinces with the grievances of the Maritimers, has had another important result, inasmuch as it puts Mr. Belding in a position to tell his fellow-Easterners facts about the problems of the rest of the country that they could scarcely be expected to know.

If a few representative men from each Province could make a similar tour of the Dominion the result would be of wonderful educational value to Canada generally, and help materially to dissipate the narrow sectionalism that is the root of most of our troubles.

It is difficult for Canadians to think in terms of the Dominion; their vision is confined to their own district and its problems, and it is this condition that more than anything else helps to hold Canada back from that development that should be hers.

STARTING WRONG.

Deputations continue to wait upon the various Governments urging that the taxation be reduced.

The latest to make such a suggestion is the Canadian Association of Garment Manufacturers, who suggest to the Federal Government the advisability of cutting down the Sales Tax.

Individuals and organizations who come along with requests of that nature are starting all wrong.

There is no use beginning by urging that taxation be cut down.

The first step must be to reduce the expenditure.

Just as long as Governments continue to spend money more or less lavishly, just so long will the people have to be taxed to find the revenue to meet the outlay.

That is as simple as counting ten, and yet it is surprisingly difficult to make people see that instead of getting up deputations to protest against taxation they would really be using their best efforts to induce Governments to go easy in the matter of expenditure.

That is the crux of the problem, and once a sufficiently large number of people succeed in convincing the various administrations that there is a genuine desire for retrenchment abroad, it will be time to look for reduced taxation—but not before.

HE WAS HONEST, ANYWAY.

The story from Denver on Saturday of the ranch hand with an income of $1,635 who mailed the revenue collector a cheque for $635 as his income tax, believing that he had to give the Government everything in excess of $1,000, instead of merely paying a $9 tax on the $635, has caused many a smile among newspaper readers, no doubt.

Many superior people will chuckle at what they call the stupidity of the centre figure in the incident.

Stupid he perhaps was, but the thing that stands out in the story was the honesty of the man.

He protested that it was "pretty hard" that a man had to give the Government "every penny he earned over $1,000—but he paid the tax.

Many folks on both sides of the line, much better acquainted with the income tax regulations than the Denver ranch hand and therefore quite well aware of the amount they should pay, have failed to meet their obligations, light though they are in proportion to the heavy levy the Colorado man made upon himself.

Any loophole through which they can squirm, any technicality they can twist to their own advantage, such people are using to evade payment of what the country says is their duty to pay.

They should be the last to deride the Westerner for his ignorance.

He at least did his duty as he saw it.

IMPORTED LITERATURE.

Bishop Richardson of Fredericton, N. B., who addressed the local Canadian Club yesterday on Imperialism, touched, in the course of his remarks, on the influence of foreign literature on the Canadian mentality, says the Hamilton Spectator. He pointed out that 85 per cent. of the reading of the people of this country consists of books and periodicals emanating from the United States. In commenting on that fact His Lordship declared that he had no desire to belittle the American people or their literature, but he considered it impossible to build up a national character on foreign sentiment. To that view no reasonable exception can be taken. There is not the slightest doubt that this constant flood of American literature does exert a very great influence on the mind and character of Canadian readers, and that much of that influence is entirely bad.

The reputable magazines, with their authoritative articles on current affairs and their useful educational features, are to be welcomed; but even the best of them are more or less tinged with a national bias which is alien to British ideas, while the majority carry advertising of a character deliberately calculated to seduce Canadian patronage from the home markets. When we come to consider the other type of periodicals—the salacious magazines, the so-called "human" stories, which set out in nauseating detail the intimate relationships of private and domestic life—the tendency is altogether deplorable. These are the publications which are seized upon by unthinking youth, and, it is to be feared, unthinking maturity in many cases, with the utmost avidity. The result is that our home life, the pride and glory of Canada, is being to some extent broken down, and the worst features of American society—which are those specially played up in these trashy publications—are insidiously worming their way across the border. It is a migration which should be effectually stopped. These pernicious magazines are more harmful than many of the human undesirables so rigidly excluded from the land. They are more harmful because their influence is wider. The publication with the big circulation leaves its impress upon thousands of readers week by week; this steady diet of alien thought and manners cannot fail to have its effect.

ATTRACTIVE INVESTMENTS.

There are indications that surplus capital is not finding as much difficulty to secure employment as surplus labor. Capital issues offering reasonable security have been met in all the large centres, and especially in London, with a ready response. Even some issues that are not so sound have been over-subscribed. The loan to Greece regarding which announcement is made that it has been twenty times over-subscribed is a case in point. No one could describe such a loan as a gilt-edged investment, and while the terms were necessarily attractive the issue was speculative. Much money has left Montreal in recent weeks, according to well-founded report, for German loans, which must also be classed in the risky category.

Some newspapers seem to regret that so much British capital is finding its way to Greece, Germany and elsewhere, but it is clear that the more money that is invested abroad the easier will it be for Britain or any other country to balance her trade. It does seem a pity, however, that a bigger effort cannot be made to bring idle capital and idle labor into closer contact.

In the pre-war days there were periods when labor had to stand still and capital go into deposit. These were inevitable when production reached the limit of absorption. Today, however, there is no question of over-production. There is an abundance of work yet to be done to restore the ravages caused by the four years of war. The work is there, the labor is there, and the capital is there, and yet there is a lack of co-ordination in setting them all to work simultaneously, and because we cannot reconcile the three there is general suffering. It is useless to speculate on the causes of this lack of co-ordination. Canada has an example today that Capital and Labor are the victims of a vicious circle, and until this is broken down there can be little hope of the two working together for mutual benefit. Labor has set an exceedingly high price on its work, and justifies that level by the present-day standard and cost of living. It is possible also that the price of Capital as well as the price of Labor is so high that it raises the cost of production. If money for expansion and development can only be borrowed at abnormally high rates, the cost of production will be increased just as certainly as by the high rates of wages.

The attraction in both the Greek and the German loans is not the security, but the high rate of interest. These high rates make for higher interest charges in industry. It is not the fault of the investor. They would be less than human if they did not take advantage of the best offer. Yet a high level of interest must react on industrial development. It is a complex problem, but a solution is vital for our prosperity.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Budget figures being of little interest compared to the glamour of 4.4, the Budget debate in the Legislature terminates tomorrow.

Horticultural societies, it is said, will soon make Ontario cities the most beautiful on the Continent. By the way, have you joined the local society yet?

The Big Roar, apparently dwindled down to a whisper in Toronto on Saturday night.

It cost Montreal $75,000 to find out that its Police Department is not up to the mark—something that was pretty generally suspected before the inquiry began.

Sport in Peterboro loses one of its hardest workers in the departure from the city of Mr. F. E. Convery.

They have discovered a buried city in the United States older than King Tut. No signs of a crossword puzzle were found in the ruins.

The Budget debate in the Legislature winds up on Tuesday to make way for the 4.4 beer bill. Then the members will have plenty to talk about.

Toronto professor says the Maritime Provinces need more optimism. But why single out the Maritimes when making such an indictment?

They're going to show moving pictures of farm life to lure the unemployed out in the country. It is a safe bet the films will not show any of the early morning activities.

SENATOR BENNETT DEAD

Prominent Promoter of the Trent Waterways Association.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Senator W. H. Bennett, of East Simcoe, Ontario, died early Sunday, a telegram from Guelph announces. He had been ill for some time but it was not expected that his illness would prove fatal.

There are now seven vacancies in the Senate, one in Ontario, one in Alberta, one in New Bunswick, two in Quebec and two in Prince Edward Island.

Senator Bennett was a Conservative. He was born in Barrie in 1859. He also represented East Simcoe in the Federal House of Commons from 1896 until 1917, except for a three year period between 1908 and 1911. He was called to the Senate in 1917. His home was in Midland, Ont.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 14. — Wheat made a sudden rally of 9 1-4c a bush to-day after a set back of five cents to $1.62, May delivery, the lowest level reached since January 28th.

Unlooked for revival of export business to-day together with word of insufficient moisture in Texas and Oklahama had much to do with the remarkable upward swing of values.

Closing prices on wheat were firm, 1 1-2 to 3c net higher. May 169 1-2 to 169 3-4 and July 151 to 151 1-4; corn finished 1 1-4 to 3c up; oats at 1 5-8 to 2c advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 15.— While there were no firm bids in the local grain market from foreign buyers on Saturday, which was attributed to the demoralized condition of the Winnipeg market, a number of cables were received asking exporters to make offers of oats and barley in all positions. The demand from exporters and local buyers for cash grain on spot was practically nil but the tone of the market for oats was stronger and prices recovered 2 cts. per bushel of the decline noted on Friday.

The local flour situation was unchanged. The enquiry from United Kingdom buyers for spring wheat grades at the decline recorded on Friday was much better than it has been for some time past, but little business was recorded owing to the prices bid in most cases being 2s to 2s 6d below millers' views.

The trade in other wheat grades was slow and prices steady.

The demand for millfeed showed no improvement at the late reduction in prices and the market in consequence was inactive. The market for rolled oats was steady.

An active wholesale jobbing trade was done in eggs and the undertone was firm.

The butter market was quiet and steady.

The feature of the cheese trade was the stronger feeling that prevailed and the prices firmed up a little.

This is attributed to the continued limited supplies of Canadian cheese coming forward from the interior.

Fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods sold at 21 to 21½c per pound, and No. 2 grades at 20c to 20 1-2c per pound with Quebec cheese selling readily at 23 to 24c per pound.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

STOCK WORTHLESS

Large Block in Carruthers' Estate of No Value.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 16.—According to the will of the late James Carruthers, millionaire Montreal grain dealer which was entered for probate here Saturday, stock of the par value of $1,785,000 in the defunct Pacific Coast Collieries of Vancouver Island was listed by the Montreal Trust Company, executors, as valueless. Another worthless block of 999 shares in the defunct coast Marble and Granite Company was listed. These shares had a par value of $100.

A THOUGHT.

CLEARING THE WAY FOR OTHERS.

A girl was passing along a quiet road when she came upon a tangle of wire fallen across the thoroughfare. She skillfully picked her way over the coils. But in a moment she paused thoughtfully, then turned back and lifted the obstruction from the path. Her companion laughed at her.

"Wait until you are safely over, and then go back and clear the path."

"Somebody else might not come through so safely, especially when it grows dark," she answered. "A child's bare feet might be hurt, or older feet might stumble."

Clearing the way for others should in truth be a part of all individual progress. We have not only our own course to make through life, but also, if we are doing our part in the world, because we have gone before them, living should be made a little safer and easier for those who follow us. The old pioneers were bridge builders and road makers, and every obstacle we meet in life is not only a challenge to overcome, but also a command to clear the way.

IS THIS Your BIRTHDAY

Monday, March 16. — Good taste in everything is a characteristic of people born this day. They want and usually get the best in clothes, music, literature and the other arts. They have an aristocratic strain that causes many people to look upon them as snobs, but in reality they are not. They simply abhor the cheap, gaudy and tinsel things of life for other things that are really worth while.

FARMER DROWNED IN SHALLOW CREEK

Tragedy Near Woodstock—Had Been Ill.

WOODSTOCK, March 16.—The lifeless body of Ephriam Barker was found in a creek on the farm of James McKenzie, East Zorra, about ten o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. Barker had been staying at the McKenzie home and about five o'clock yesterday morning was heard to get up and leave the house. When some members of the family arose some time afterwards surprise was expressed that Mr. Barker had not returned to the house.

Search was instituted and the body was discovered in the creek, where the water was not more than sixteen inches deep.

Barker for some years worked a farm about a mile north of Woodstock but had lived in the west for some years back. He had returned east for the winter and had been living with the McKenzie family. He had not been in good health for some time.

Coroner Dr. McKay was called but he deemed an inquest unnecessary.

GOOD MANNERS

Under formal circumstances a lady is supposed to bow first, but people who know each other well bow spontaneously without observing this equitette.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

Baree knew that it was not Bush McTaggart. But it was a man-beast! Instantly his body stiffened under the Willow's hand. He drew back slowly and cautiously from her lap, and as Pierrot advanced, Baree snarled. The next instant Nepeese had risen and had run to Pierrot. The look in her father's face alarmed her.

"What has happened, mon pere?" she cried.

Pierrot shrugged his shoulders.

"Nothing, ma Nepeese—except that you have roused a thousand devils in the heart of the Factor from Lac Bain, and that——"

He stopped as he saw Baree, and pointed at him.

"Last night when M'sieu the Factor caught him in a snare, he bit M'sieu's hand. M'sieu's hand is swollen twice its size, and I can see his blood turning black. It is pechipoo."

"Pechipoo!" gasped Nepeese.

She looked into Pierrot's eyes. They were dark, and filled with a sinister gleam—a flash of exultation, she thought.

"Yes, it is the blood-poison," said Pierrot. A gleam of cunning shot into his eyes as he looked over his shoulder, and nodded.

"I have hidden the medicine—and told him there is no time to lose in getting back to Lac Bain. And he is afraid—that devil! He is waiting. With that blackening hand, he is afraid to start back alone—and so I go with him. And—listen, ma Nepeese. We will be away by sundown, and there is something you must know before I go."

Baree saw them there, close together, in the shadows thrown by the tall spruce trees. He heard the low murmur of their voices—chiefly of Pierrot's, and at last he saw Nepeese put her two arms up around the man-beast's neck, and then Pierrot went away again into the forest.

CHAPTER XV.

For a long time after Pierrot left them the Willow did not move from where she had seated herself beside Baree. It was at last the deepening shadows, and a near rumble in the sky that aroused her from the fear of the things Pierrot had told her. When she looked up, black clouds were massing slowly over the open space above the spruce-tops. Darkness was falling. In the whisper of the wind and the dead stillness of the thickening gloom there was the sullen brewing of storm.

Nepeese shivered and rose to her feet. For the first time Baree got up and he stood close at her side. Above them a lightning-flash cut the cloud like a knife of fire, followed in an instant by a terrific crash of thunder. Baree sprank back as if struck a blow. He would have slunk into the shelter of the bush wall of the wigwam, but there was something about the Willow as he looked at her which gave him confidence. The thunder crashed again. But he retreated no farther. His eyes were fixed on Nepeese.

On that night, it may be, the Spit of Storm was born in Nepeese. He loved to face it, as she was facing it now. It made her forget all things but the splendid might of nature, her half-wild soul thrilled to the ash and fire of it; often she had reared up her bare arms and laughed with joy as the deluge burst about her. Even now she might have stood there in the little open until the rain fell, if a whine from Baree had not roused her. As the first big drops struck with the dull thud of leaden pellets about them, she went with him into the balsam shelter.

Once before Baree had passed through a night of terrible storm—the night he had hidden himself under a log and the tree riven by lightning; now he had company, and the warm and soft pressure of the Willow's head on his head and neck filled him with a strange courage. He growled softly at the crashing thunder. He cried to snap at the lightning-flashes. Under her hand Nepeese felt the tensing of his body, and in a moment uncanny stillness she heard the sharp uneasy click of his teeth. Then the rain fell.

It was not like other rainstorms she had known. It was an inundation sweeping down out of the blackness of the skies. Within five minutes the interior of the balsam shelter was a shower-bath—half an hour of that torrential downpour, and Nepeese was soaked to the skin. The water ran in little rivulets down her back and breast; it trickled in tiny streams from her drenched braids and dropped from her long lashes, and the blanket under her was wet as a mop. To Baree it was almost as bad as his near-drowning in the stream after his fight with Papayuchisew, and he snuggled closer and closer under the sheltering arm of the Willow. It seemed an interminable time before the thunder rolled far to the east, and the lightning died away into distant and intermittent flashings. Even after that the rain fell for another hour. Then it stopped as suddenly as it had begun.

With a laughing gasp Nepeese rose to her feet. The water gurgled in her moccassins as she walked out into the open. She did no attention to Baree—and he followed her. Across the open in the tree-tops the last of the storm-clouds were drifting away.

Nepeese looked down and saw Baree. He was standing clear and unleashed, with freedom on all sides of him. Yet he did not run. He was waiting, we

"There was no smoke coming from the chimney. The door was closed. Pierrot and Bush McTaggart were gone."

as a water-rat, with his eyes on her expectantly. Nepeese made a movement toward him, and hesitated.

"No, you will not run away, Baree. I will leave you free. And now we must have a fire!"

A fire! Any one but Pierrot might have said that she was crazy. Not a stem or twig in the forest that was not dripping! They could hear the trickle of running water all about them.

With her wet clothes clinging to her tightly, she was like a slim shadow as she crossed the soggy open and buried herself among the forest trees. Baree still followed. She went straight to a birch-tree that she had located that day and began tearing off the loose bark. An armful of this bark she carried close to the wigwam, and on it she heaped load after load of wet wood until she had a great pile. From a bottle in the wigwam she secured a dry match, and at the first touch of its tiny flame the birch-bark flared up like paper soaked in oil. Half an hour later the Willow's fire—if there had been no forest walls to hide it—could have been seen at the cabin a mile away. Not until it was blazing a dozen feet into the air did she cease putting wood on it. Then she drove sticks into the soft ground and over these sticks stretched the blanket out to dry. After that she began to undress.

She drew a deep breath, and her eyes shone with a sudden inspiration. Slowly her mouth formed into a round red O, and leaning still nearer to Baree, she whispered:

"It will be deep and sweet to-night, Ninga—yes, we will go!"

She called to him softly as she slipped on her wet moccassins and followed the creek into the forest. A hundred yards from the open she came to the edge of a pool. It was deep and full to-night, three times as big as it had been before the storm. She could hear the gurgle and inrush of water. On its ruffled surface the stars shone. For a moment or two she stood poised on a rock with the cool depths half a dozen feet below her. Then she flung back her hair and shot like a slim white arrow through the star-light.

Baree saw her go. He heard the plunge of her body. For half an hour he lay flat and still, close to the edge of the pool, and watched her. Sometimes she was just under him, floating silently, her hair forming a cloud darker than the water about her; again she was cutting over the surface almost as swiftly as the otters he had seen—and then, with a sudden plunge, she would disappear, and Baree's heart would quicken its pulse as he waited for her. Once she was gone a long time. He whined. He knew she was not like the beaver and the otter, and he was filled with an immense relief when she came up.

So their first night passed—storm, the cool, deep pool, the big fire; and later, when the Willow's clothes and the blanket had dried, a few hours' sleep. At dawn they returned to the cabin. It was a cautious approach. There was no smoke coming from the chimney. The door was closed. Pierrot and Bush McTaggart were gone.

CHAPTER XVI.

It was the beginning of August—the Flying-up Moon—when Pierrot returned from Lac Bain, and in three days more it would be the Willow's seventeenth birthday. He brought back with him many things for Nepeese—ribbons for her hair, real shoes, which she wore at times like the two Englishwomen at Nelson House, and, chief glory of all, some wonderful red cloth for a dress. In the three winters she had spent at the Mission these women had made much of Nepeese. They had taught her to sew as well as to spell and read and pray, and at times there came to the Willow a compelling desire to do as they did.

So for three days Nepeese worked hard on her new dress and on her birthday she stood before Pierrot in a fashion that took his breath away. She had piled her hair in great glowing masses and coils on the crown of her head, as Yvonne, the younger of the Englishwomen, had taught her, and in the rich jet of it had half buried a vivid sprig of the crimson fire-flower. Under this, and the glow in her eyes, and the red flush of her lips and cheeks, came the wonderful red dress, fitted to the slim and sinuous beauty of her form—as the style had been two winters ago at Nelson House. And under the dress, which reached just below the knees—Nepeese had quite forgotten the proper length, or else her material had run out—came the coup de maitre of her toilet, real stockings and the wonderful shoes with high heels! She was a vision before which the gods of the forests might have felt their hearts stop beating. Pierrot turned her round and round without a word, but smiling; but when she left him, followed by Baree, and limping a little in the tightness of her shoes, the smile faded from his face, leaving it cold and staring.

There was a change in Pierrot. During the three days of her dress-making Nepeese had been quite too excited to notice this change, and Pierrot had tried to keep it from her. He had been away ten days on the trip to Lac Bain, and he brought back to Nepeese the joyous news that M'sieu McTaggart was very sick with pechipoo—the blood-poison—news that made the Willow clap her hands and laugh happily. But he knew that the Factor would get well, and that he would come again to their cabin on the Gray Loon. And when next time he came

It was when he was thinking of this that his face grew cold and hard, and his eyes burned. And he was thinking of it on this her birthday, and even as her laughter floated to him like a song. Dieu, in spite of her seventeen years, she was nothing but a child—a baby! She could not guess his horrible visions. And the dread of awakening her for all time from that beautiful childhood kept him from telling her the whole truth so that she might have understood fully and completely. Non, it should not be that. His soul beat with a great and gentle love. He, Pierrot Du Quesne, would do the watching. And she should laugh and sing and play—and have no share in the black forebodings that had come to spoil his life.

On this day there came up from the south, McDonald, the government mapmaker. He was gray and grizzled, with a great, free laugh and a clean heart. Two days he remained with Pierrot. He told Nepeese of his daughters at home, of their mother, whom he worshipped more than anything else on earth—and before he went on in quest of the last timber-line of Banksian pine, he took pictures of Willow as he had first seen her on her birthday: her hair piled in glossy coils and masses, her red dress, the high-heeled shoes. He carried the negatives on with him, promising Pierrot that he would get a picture back in some way. Thus fate works in its strange and apparently innocent way as it spins its web of tragedy.

MISSION CIRCLE HELD A MEETING

Millbrook Had Thunderstorm That Interfered With Attendance—Personals.

MILLBROOK, March 14.—The Golden Links Mission Circle held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. G. E. Burnham on Tuesday evening, the attendance being encouraging considering the heavy thunderstorm about the hour the gathering was to begin.

The Vice-President, Miss Pearl Burnham, occupied the chair, the Secretary, Wilma Fallis, reading the Scripture lesson from the 98th Psalm. Heralds reported a number of interesting items from the mission fields, Elsie Spence giving the news from China, Wilma Fallis for Japan, Marjorie Skitch for the Indian work and L. Crocker the temperance situation.

A reading, "Tonight I'm Going to Study," was given by Elsie Spence and Miss M. E. Hetherington gave a most interesting resume of the chapter from the study book on "China's New Woman." It is rather startling to learn that a certain "advanced" type of woman in China has her hair bobbed, eyebrows plucked, cheeks rouged, smokes cigarettes and "plays the races," imitating her American sisters in details which reflect credit on neither Occident nor Orient. A Chinese woman reporter covered the Versailles Peace Conference for a leading Cantonese newspaper, and about forty of the biggest factories in China are owned and operated by women.

The Circle members were delighted to have their Superintendent, Mrs. V. C. Lambert, with them once more, and she gave a brief talk before the meeting was dismissed.

The usual social hour was enjoyed at the close.

Personals.

Miss E. Trembeth of Port Britain is visiting Dr. E. J. Gillott.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lord and baby girl of Peterboro are guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lord, this week.

Mr. F. W. Burnham and daughter Dorothy of Peterboro were guests of his mother, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, for a brief visit this week.

Dr. A. Jemison and J. Hunter were in Peterboro on Tuesday attending a meeting of the District Presbytery, Rev. G. S. Garvan's resignation coming up for consideration at this session. Messrs. J. R. Eakins, J. Steele, W. Belch and W. T. A. Deyell were also in attendance.

Mr. T. J. Lang has purchased the red brick residence on King street now occupied by M. Gilmour, from the owner, Mr. Arthur Winslow. A quick re-sale of the property was made, Mr. Gilmour buying the house the day after Mr. Lang became its possessor. The late Major Winslow owned the residence and occupied it until the time of his death.

Miss May Needham is visiting Mrs. McIntyre of Peterboro this week.

Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Langford of Peterboro, who addressed the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Church on Wednesday afternoon, was the guest of Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard at the parsonage during her brief stay in town.

Rev. F. H. Howard was a business visitor to Toronto this week.

Lang and Madill shipped a carload of hogs to Toronto this week.

TWO STRICKEN ON 13TH

East Zorra Girls Operated On For Appendicitis.

WOODSTOCK, March 16.—The 13th day of the month falling on Friday proved rather an unlucky one for two East Zorra girls. Miss Laura Rowe of the 13th Line and Miss Margaret Wilkinson of the 14th Line, both pupils at the 13th Line Baptist Sunday school were both stricken with appendicitis on that date and rushed to the Woodstock Hospital where they were operated on for appendicitis.

STATE AID FOR FAMINE VICTIMS

Irish Government is Providing Work for Men and Cheap Fuel.

FEED CHILDREN

DUBLIN, March 16—(Associated Press).—All sections of the Irish press agree in depreciating the exaggerated reports published in England and abroad of the distress along the western seaboard. There is nothing to justify accounts of famine. Famines such as occurred in the past are now declared to be impossible.

Present means of communication have made it easy to transport relief immediately to any district. For months past Government inspectors have been at work in the threatened areas, and their reports have enabled the Government to meet the situation promptly. These districts have always lived on the border line of want. The standard of living is very low, and, as the Irish Times points out, it would in any year be easy to describe places where conditions of squalor could be found as surely as they are found in the London districts of Limehouse or Poplar.

The disturbances of the past five years have caused a setback, and the sequence of two bad winters has led to the present distress. There is, even in the localities affected, objection to any attempt to relieve the situation merely by a policy of charitable doles. What is wanted is employment, and this the Government measures are providing. The work is mainly on road making and the repair of piers, and the wages paid are from 21 to 24 shillings weekly. Coal is supplied at sixpence a bag of 140 pounds.

Nearly 20,000 children are getting a free meal daily, yet the decision to make these meals free instead of giving them at the lowest price was not unanimous, so great is the dread locally of a return to the old practice of relieving distress by methods of pauperism. There is general agreement that the Government departments are handling the position effectively, and they have the active co-operation of the local clergy and the principal inhabitants.

SEA TRAVEL CHEAPER

New Ships Will Cater More to Third-Class Passengers.

LIVERPOOL, March 16—(Associated Press). — The policy of the United States in restricting the inflow of emigrants under a quota system, coupled with high building costs, is likely to cause the development of a new branch of travel and the building of a new type of liner, according to Harold A. Sanderson, chairman of the White Star Line, writing in that company's magazine.

Mr. Sanderson says an extensive third-class business has been a potent factor in the development of fleets of the principal companies, culminating in super-liners of to-day with a standard of comfort for all classes unequalled in any other trade in the world.

"But," he continues, "the restriction on the emigration movement has so reduced the volume of travel that, coupled with high building and operating costs, the construction of further steamships of monster type in the near future is rendered problematic. Steamship companies may be expected to restrict their building programme to vessels of moderate size and speed, with a less ornate decoration of public rooms, and, while maintaining the present standard of comfort for first-class passengers, to institute improvements in the amenities for second and third-class."

Special attention will be given to steamers of cabin and third-class type, and the needs of third-class passengers will be studiously and increasingly considered in order to develop a new branch of travel which will offset, to some extent, the restriction of emigrant traffic.

REHEARSAL

Even a dog movie star must rehearse his part, as this photo of Peter the Great, the wonder police dog of the screen, shows. His trainer and owner, Edward Faust, is rehearsing him for a new part.

JAZZ IN ROYAL OPERA

Convent Garden Theatre to Be Used as Dance Hall.

LONDON, March 13—(Associated Press).—London's famous Covent Garden Theatre, officially known as the Royal Opera House, has come at last under the spell of jazz. The theatre, built in 1858, is to be taken over by a syndicate which gives dances every night in the week at popular prices. This will be the first time that the theatre has been used as a dance hall, although many public dances have been held there in former times. The dancing season will end late in the spring, it is announced, in time for what is to be known as an international season of opera.

The Royal Opera House, which became popularly known as Covent Garden Theatre because of its location near the famous market place, has had varied experiences, having been used for opera, drama, circus, ballet, pantomime, revue and films. During the war it served as a storehouse for furniture from other buildings taken over by the Government for office purposes.

DEAF MUTE SPEAKS WHILE UNDER ETHER

Lapses Again Into Inarticulate Sounds When Effect of the Anesthetic Wears Off.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Lincoln Schindler, 60 years old, an engineer, of 224 East Seventy-fifth Street, a deaf mute since he was 3 years old, could speak for a little while Saturday as plainly as any one, and then his speech lapsed into almost unintelligible phrases.

Shindler had just come from under the influence of ether following an operation for a tumor at Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Leon Bromberg, Dr. W. D. Sutcliffe and Dr. John E. Sutton were at the operating table when Shindler opened his eyes and said clearly:

"I want to see Dr. Bromberg. I want to tell him something."

"Here I am," said Dr. Bromberg, surprised.

"I can't hear," said Schindler, "but I can tell what you say by your lips. You did a fine job."

After that Schindler's speech deteriorated into mumblings and the physicians feared he would not speak again.

They explained his ability to talk after the operation by saying that while under the influence of ether the nerve centres of hearing and speech had become dissociated, and since he had once been able to hear and speak he spoke when regaining consciousness without thinking of it. Later, they said, his consciousness of being deaf again confined the nerve centres, and he was unable to sound words well because he could not hear them.

SLEW HIS CHILDREN.

Despondent Garage Man Then Attempted Suicide.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 16.—Maurice L. Gibson, of Prather Hill, Mo., killed his four children with an axe early Saturday while his wife was in another part of the house and then hacked himself with the axe and later slashed his wrist. He is expected to live. No reason has been assigned for the killing.

The children were Maurice, Jr., and Marjorie, twins, 7 years old; Hazel, 5, and Helen, 1½ years old.

After the slaying Gibson ran to the home of his sister-in-law, a hundred yards away, where he hacked himself with the axe. When search was being made for him he went to another part of the house and slashed his wrist.

Gibson was brought to a hospital here in an unconscious condition but soon recovered. He appeared to be irrational and was removed to the city jail.

Gibson, a garage man, lived with his family at Prather Hill, a small summer camp. Mrs. Gibson said that while preparing breakfast, she heard the screams of the baby, Helen. She hurried to the stairway and met her husband, axe in hand. He seized her wrist, she said, and made a motion as if to strike her, but pushed her aside and ran out of the house.

Neighbors said Gibson had been unable to meet his expenses this winter and was despondent at times.

HEAVY STORM HITS HALIFAX

One of the Worst Winter Blizzards Lashes Shipping Off the Coast

HALIFAX, March 16.—Ending a long period of Springlike weather, a blinding snowstorm set in Saturday and by night it had developed into one of the worst blizzards of the Winter. The wind was blowing a gale from the East.

Six big trans-Atlantic liners were due here within the next twelve hours and several were expected off the coast, but are not expected to make the harbor unless the storm abates.

They included the Stavangerfjord from Bergen, the Lancastria from Liverpool, the Columbia from Glasgow, the Stockholm from Gothenburg, the Labourdonnais from Bordeaux and the Canuada from Liverpool.

KING GEORGE TAKES A WALK

Has His First Day Outside Since Recovering from the Influenza.

LONDON, March 16. — King George, recovered from his recent attack of influenza, had his first walk in the grounds of Buckingham Palace on Saturday, the weather having turned mild.

It was officially explained that the delay in permitting the King to leave his apartment was due not so much to slow recovery as to the recent dangerous winds.

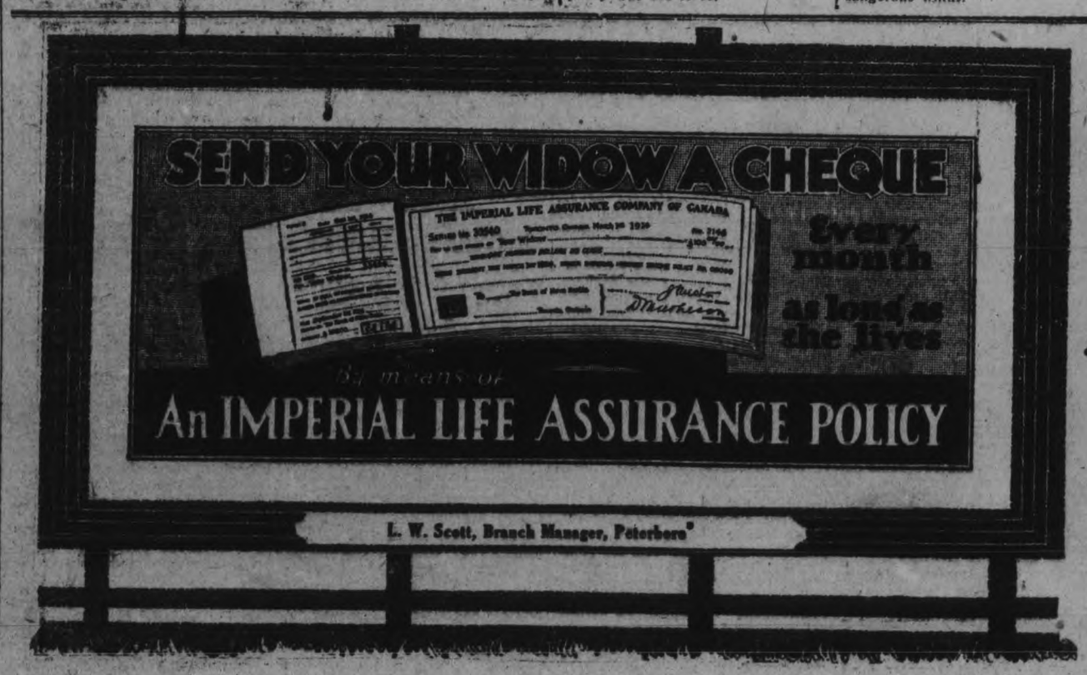
NO WINTER IN DENMARK

Mildest Weather for Three Centuries With Thaw Every Day.

COPENHAGEN, March 16 — (Associated Press).—This is the mildest winter Denmark has known in three centuries. Not once has the temperature fallen below the freezing point in the daytime, and the nights when this has been the case have been exceedingly rare. Generally the month of February is the coldest in Denmark; this year it has had the character of early spring. The mild winter has been blessed by everybody, except the furriers and the coal-merchants. Particularly the latter are complaining bitterly. They are losing a great deal of money they say.

Cities like Helsingfors, Reval and Riga, which are usually buried in snow at this time of the year, have up to the present experienced nothing more wintry than a few nights of frost.

Two one-time National League pitchers hold the record of having hurled the most innings in a single game—26. They are Leon Cadore and Joe Oeschger.



LIBERALS IN NORTHUMBERLAND PREPARE FOR EARLY ELECTION

List off Eligibles Grows With Every Closing of Counties' Little Parliament.

MEETING TUESDAY.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — The Liberals of Northumberland County, which constitutes one riding for Federal purposes, evidently look for an early election, and are getting themselves into the order of battle. On Tuesday of next week the annual meeting of the party will be held at Warkworth, the convention village of the riding, the chair to be taken at 1.30 p.m. by John D. Hayden, of Cobourg the president. G. M. Ferris of the same town is secretary. This gathering will mean more than the regular annual session of a political party, marking as it will the revival of the Liberals of Northumberland after a long period of masterly inactivity. Once those Liberals are really aroused they have always shown themselves a force with which to be reckoned. One factor that denotes a hope that better political fortunes are waiting around the corner is the number of candidates for the nomination already in the field. Time was when this now coveted honour was lightly tossed around from one martyr to another.

Riding Is Cnservative.

The records show that the county as a rule has a safe Conservative margin with the eastern section altogether hopeless from a Liberal standpoint. For the Legislature there are two ridings East and West, in the county. It is true the latter riding is represented at Toronto by a Liberal, but that representative happens to be Sam Clarke, from whom great political achievements are always expected, and who for the past twenty-five years or more has never failed to hold the seat in his possession.

Went by Default.

In the Dominion election of 1921 there were three parties in the local field, and from the first, with their ranks broken, the Liberals had little hope of victory. Sam Clarke was urged to give up his place in the Provincial House and enter the Federal field, but after due consideration decided to remain where he was.

The U.F.O., encouraged by the success of 1919, nominated Fred Slade of Haldimand Township, and farmers of the same faith, forsook the Liberals to support him. Milton E. Maybee, the Conservative who now represent the riding at Ottawa, and who is a prominent farmer at Trenton, had practically a walkover. The Liberal nominee that year was Charles W. Kerr, a Toronto lawyer who was raised in Cobourg and who belongs to an illustrious Liberal family.

Training for the Place.

In Northumberland—and in Durham, too, for that matter, that no man can properly qualify as Federal or Provincial member, until he has first been elected Warden of the United Counties. The wardenship is of itself an honor, but the county councillor who attains it finds the way to still wider affairs open to him.

Mr. Maybee some years ago wore the gown for one term in "The Little Parliament." Fred Slade is one of the very few Liberals who has ever reached the Wardenship, because it is a recognized fact that the yearly election of the warden is not entirely free from partisanship and that desirable and well qualified men have failed to attain the office for no other reason than their politics. The trouble is that the supply of eligible ex-wardens exceeds the demand, for while Legislative and Federal elections are held every four or five years, a new ex-warden is added to the list every twelve months. There are always a number on the waiting list. The most recent additions to the roll are W. Smith of Port Hope, Harry B. Phillips of Brighton, Walter M. Fowlds of Hastings, with another bright young citizen, J. L. McCamus of Cavan, the present warden, finding himself every month a step nearer to a place with the others. It must be admitted that the man who has served on the Counties' Council, conducted as that body always has been on a high plane, has acquired a knowledge of parliamentary procedure that fits him for duty in wider circles.

Liberals Are Hopeful.

In no part of the county are there to be found more aggressive Liberals than those in Campbellford, and the pressure recently exerted to bring about a re-organization has been strongest here. The result was that a meeting was called in Colborne recently and the gathering called for next week at Warkworth was the outcome. The by-election in Hastings last fall has aroused a new spirit in the party. There is, furthermore, a suspicion that all is not harmony in the Conservative ranks, but that so many aspirants are in the field that it is even possible that two candidates be named. A local Conservative who carried the trophies as well as the scars of many a conflict of the past, said the other day that Mr. Maybee has always been a winner and that the party never goes back on a man so long as he can stick in that class.

Liberals United.

The Liberals are not dismayed by the prospect of another disruption in their ranks. They put no candidate in the provincial contest, either in 1919 or 1923 in East Northumberland and claim that they have the assurance of the Progressive leaders that if this were done the latter would leave them a clear field when the next Dominion contest is held.

It is expected that when re distribution is agreed upon in the Legislature, East and West Northumberland will be united just as it is for Federal purposes, and such a union, the Liberals believe, will increase their chances as they are stronger in the western section of the county.

It may be that no candidate will be chosen at the Warkworth gathering, at least nothing is said on that point in the announcement, and that the business will be confined to the election of officers and deciding upon campaign plans. One thing upon which the Liberals here appear to be agreed is that it would be unwise to give the nomination to an outsider while there is so much excellent material at home.

To Win First Voters.

Since the last Liberal was in the field in East Northumberland, scores of young men have reached the voting age. Many of these, Liberals by heredity, have never had a chance to vote as their fathers did before them. A special effort will be made to enlist these young fellows, and an organization, with this as its object, will be formed in Campbellford.

Duncan Marshall, Dominion organizer for the Liberals, will be at the Warkworth meeting. He spent several days in Cobourg last week and expressed himself to party leaders as well pleased with the outlook in the riding. Mrs. H. Carpenter will deliver a special message to Liberal women.

Local Organization.

The Liberals of East Northumberland have an organization separate from the county association, and of this J. Nelson Stone, of Campbellford, is president and F. M. Brintnell of Colborne secretary-treasurer. D. J. Lynch is vice-president for Campbellford. This organization held a meeting in Warkworth a few weeks prior to the legislative election in 1923, when it was decided to let the contest be fought out between the U. F. O. and the Conservative candidates. At that meeting there was naturally some talk of putting up a standard-bearer, and the man most prominently mentioned for the position was Dr. W. Robertson, of Colborne.

Conservatives Are Awake.

From the hum heard from the Conservative hive in Cobourg last week, it is evident that the leaders of that party are awakening to the fact that it is high time to be up and doing.

POLL OFFICER MARKED BALLOT

Gave Names of Voters Who Were Absent to Clerk.

CONFESSED IN COURT.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 16. — The first confession of deliberate wrong doing in the municipal election of December last, which is being probed here before Judge J. S. Campbell, was made on Saturday, when the enquiry was resumed, by Clarence Shaw, the deputy returning officer of Sub-Division No. 8, St. George's ward.

Shaw told the court that he had marked 23 or 24 ballots for voters who did not appear and whose names he gave to the poll clerk.

He assumed the entire responsibility himself and exonerated the clerk, who, he stated, had been in no way a party to the wrong doing.

Something of a dramatic effect was produced in the crowded court room by Shaw's recital.

Judge Campbell made a significant comment: "This is a very painful discovery to me," said the judge, 'as I have known you for a long time. However, I think you should be commended for not adding to this unfortunate happening by perjury. You are to be commended for your action as far as you have gone."

Old Landmark Being Removed.

An old frame building on the west of Division Street is being taken down and removed. It was purchased some time ago by the Salvation Army, who are stated to have sold it recently to Mr. H. Skitch. It is one of the first houses erected in the town.

Engagement.

The engagement is announced here, the marriage to take place shortly of Evelyn Georgina, daughter of Mrs. George Brown, to Mr. Saxon P. Chapman of Brantford.

Confirmation at Grafton.

The Right Rev. J. F. Sweeny, D.D., Bishop of Toronto, will hold a confirmation service at St. George's Church, Grafton, on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Bruce is rector of the charge.

Robt. Hicks Co. Awarded Tender.

At a meeting of the property committee of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, the tender of the Robert Hicks Coal Co. was accepted for the coal supply for the county buildings here for 1925. The company, it is understood will supply hard coal at $14.65 a ton and Virginia soft coal at $7.65.

Fire at Salem.

Mr. John Heslip's house at Salem, East Northumberland, was destroyed by fire on Saturday morning. There was only time to remove a small amount of the household effects and the loss is a very heavy one.

Presentation to Bride.

On Tuesday evening about one hundred and twenty-friends and neighbors, including the Sunday School, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mason, Hamilton Township, and presented their daughter, Mrs. Harold Staples, formerly Miss Merie Merson, with many beautiful gifts and an address, the latter testifying to her capable and valued service as organist of the Sunday School and expressing regret because of her removal and best wishes for a happy married life.

New Pavement to Be Laid.

It is now stated that it is the intention of the Porvincial Highways Department to pave between Bowmanville and Newcastle, and between Belleville and Tdenton this coming summer. Of course, it is expected that the uncompleted section between Cobourg and Port Hope will be finished as early this Spring as possible.

Hollanders Find Work.

A party of young men from Holland, who landed in this country a fortnight ago, have been placed with farmers in this district and are stated to be making good.

Moved to Castleton.

Mr. Johnston McKenzie has rented his farm near Centreton in Haldimand Township, to a Cobourg man, and has moved to Castleton to reside with his father-in-law, Mr. James Honeywell, who was recently bereaved by the death of his wife.

CHURCH SEEKS PASTOR.

St. Andrew's, Campbellford, Notified of Retirement of Rev. C. F. McIntosh.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — Rev. J. M. Jaffray, a retired minister of Toronto, supplied the pulpit at St. Andrew's Church yesterday. At both morning and evening services an official communication was read from Rev. D. A. Thomson, of Hastings, clerk of the Peterboro Presbytery notifying the congregation that the resignation of Rev. C. F. McIntosh, as pastor of the church, had been accepted by the Presbytery. It was requested that steps be taken at once toward securing a regular occupant for the pulpit.

The hearing of candidates for the vacancy will begin next Sunday.

The Girl Guides and the Brownies will attend the Methodist Church in a body next Sunday morning for their annual religious service.

FROZEN IN HER HOME

Woman of 90 Apparently Had Passed Beyond Suffering.

CHATHAM, Ont., March 16. — Suffering from a malignant growth as well as from the infirmities of her advanced age and with both feet frozen badly, Mrs. Mary Rock, whose age is said to be 90 years was found under pitable circumstances in her humble shack on West street. The unfortunate woman is now in St. Joseph's Hospital in a critical condition. When Dr. Northwood, city physician, accompanied by the police officers entered her shack, the woman was leaning against a coal stove, the smoke from which had blackened her face. She gave no indication of suffering. The officials had difficulty in persuading her to leave her dwelling to enter the hospital.

KIDNAP SPEAKER PREVENT SPEECH

Fascisti Blamed For Abduction of Harry Pollitt on Saturday.

FIRST EVIDENCE.

LONDON, March 16. — (United Press).—The kidnapping of Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the "National Minority Movement," from a train that was taking him to Liverpool, where he was to address a mass meeting, is described by the Daily Herald to-day as the first instance of a physical outrage on the part of the British Fascisti.

Eight men, presumably Fascisti, abducted Pollitt on Saturday night, bundled him into a taxi cab at the Edgehill Station, drove for hours, and finally put him to bed in a hotel with his captors guarding the door to the room. They released him on Sunday night after giving him a ticket to London.

STATE SEEKING

Young McClintock died on 4th December, of typhoid fever, while his fiancee, Isabelle Pope, waited with a marriage license to be married to him had he recovered consciousness.

It was some weeks later when Judge Olson, acting, he said, after receipt of an anonymous letter, demanded that the death be investigated.

The youth's body was exhumed, but examinations revealed typhoid fever as the cause of death.

The State Attorney's office was interested in the investigation, but dropped the matter after the postmorem report was made public, only to evidence renewed interest a few days ago, resulting in the first official accusations on Saturday.

Confronted by Dr. Faiman.

Routed from bed and taken to the prosecutor's office, Shepherd was confronted with Dr. Faiman and flatly denied that he had asked about introducing typhoid germs into the human body.

Mrs. Shepherd, a co-guardian of young McClintock, was later taken to the prosecutor's office. She was permitted to return home after an hour's questioning.

Dr. Faiman, who was subjected to nearly thirty-six hours of steady examination, previously had said Shepherd had posed as a lawyer, seeking information on germs in defence of a client accused of administering them. Later Shepherd had given him $50.00 for a letter he had written to the school inquiring about bacteriology courses, Faiman said.

When Shepherd was brought before him, Dr. Faiman identified him as the man who had made the inquiries regarding the germs and ac three tubes of bacilli. Faiman asthree tubes of bacilli. Faiman asserted positively in Shepherd's presence that he was the same man who had paid $50.00 for the letter of inquiry to the school.

"You know you did," Faiman said to Shepherd.

"I never saw the gentleman before two weeks ago,' said Shepherd appealing to the Assistant State Attorneys present.

"He was the fellow all right," Faiman reiterated.

"You're a liar," Shepherd retorted.

Mrs. Shepherd became systerical when detectives came for her husband, and declared "this prosecution is worse than crucifixion."

She was calm several hours later when brought to the State Attorney's office and told Assistant State Attorneys that "if they realised how much I loved Billy McClintock the case would be dropped."

In excusing himself for withholding his information during his inquest testimony and lengthy questioning, Dr. Faiman told the prosecutors that he "did not wish to be mixed up in the case," and that he "was ashamed of the fact that he only got $50.00 for the letter." The letter, he said, was taken from his files by Shepherd shortly after McClintock's death. Investigators have since been able to find it.

"If Shepherd had merely asked for the letter I would never have thought much about it," Faiman said. "I don't pay much attention personally to the correspondence, and I did not get suspicious until he handed me $50.00. I knew then something was wrong."

Faiman said that Shepherd had taken a course at his school, and that shortly afterward three tubes of bacilli, one of them containing typhoid germs, had disappeared.

When Shepherd came for the letter, Faiman said, "I at once accused him of taking away my test tubes of typhoid germs. He just laughed and said, 'I'll take care of you well later on.' I never thought any more about the incident until the newspapers told of the inquiry into McClintock's death.

"Shepherd wanted to know whether the germs could be introduced into a person's system by hypodermic inoculation," Faiman said. "I told him germs mixed with a person's food were more likely to prove effective, especially as in articles of food conditions would probably be favourable to their culture."

Robert Stoll, an attorney and partner of Shepherd, was at the Shepherd home when the State's Attorney's detectives arrived. He said they had been expecting "something of the kind," and would "not be surprised if a murder charge would be placed against Shepherd."

Fearing that the sun shining on the lenses of their glasses might cause temporary blindness, London is refusing licenses to drive busses to men wearing spectacles.

FACTORY PATRONS' VOLUNTEER WORK

Filled Ice House at East Emily Cheese Factory.

EAST EMILY, March 16.—During the past week the patrons of East Emily Dairy Co. rallied to the call of the president, Mr. Eugene Switzer, for volunteer work in providing ice for the coming season. Twelve men with their teams turned out to haul ice from Mud Lake.

They have packed away 736 blocks which should assure a successful year's business in butter-making.

Mr. George Lowes has the contract of supplying the wood.

Mr. Wm. Casey was a business visitor to Lindsay last week.

Mr. T. H. Graham, of Smith Township, made a business trip through this district last week.

Mrs. Richard James spent the past week the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. Stokes, of Mariposa.

Sunday School.

School Section No. 9 has thrown open the doors of their school-house for the establishing of a Sunday School. A Sunday school has been a long-felt want in the community, and the teacher, together with a number of willing workers, have taken hold of the work and are successfully carrying on the school. Miss Wright, the school teacher, is superintendent. Mrs. Wilbert Fee, Miss Essie Wood, Mrs. Samuel Fee and others are undertaking to teach the classes.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mann, of Bridgenorth, were visitors at the home of Mr. Evans Storey on Sunday.

Mr. Robt. Lewers was a visitor at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Devell, during the past week.

Miss Essie Woods has returned home after visiting with friends in Peterboro.

Mrs. Stewart Fallis, of Millbrook, spent the past week visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Wm. Howden.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lowes spent a couple of days this week with relatives in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Jackson were visitors to Peterboro on Saturday.

Quite a number from this district attended the funeral of the late Mr. George Franks in Peterboro on Friday.

The purser and 15 passengers were rescued on Friday. It is believed the remainder of those on the steamer perished.

A Nagasaki despatch on Saturday said that 100 persons were missing fro m the Uwajima Maru No. 6 which was believed to have foundered in a storm on Wednesday.

PRINCE PACKS FOR LONG TRIP

Journey to South Africa and Argentina Starting March 29 His Sixth.

AROUND GLOBE.

LONDON, March 16 (Associated Press). — The globe-trotting Prince of Wales is packing his trunks preparatory to starting on another jaunt to strengthen his claim to the title of the most extensively travelled young man in the world.

Having made prolonged visits to three continents and the island continent of Australia, his forthcoming tour to South Africa and Argentina will complete his rounds of the major divisions into which the land surface of the earth is divided. He plans to leave England on 29th of March.

This will be the sixth extensive trip the Prince has taken since he started out in 1919 to see the world, and by it he will continue his record of having spent a long period away from home each year since that time. The future King has had a standing invitation for several years to visit South Africa, and at times it was made a pressing one, but it was somewhat of a surprise at home as well as in Argentina when it was announced that he would visit the latter country after his stay in Africa.

First Long Trip in 1919.

The first extensive trip taken by the Prince of Wales was in 1919, when he travelled on the battleship Renown for a visit to Canada and the United States. Upon his departure the press of England generally commented upon the trip as an event of great importance. The Evening News said:

"The future peace of the world depends upon the solidarity of the British Empire and the firm friendship between it and the United States. It is in the cause of the peace of the world that the Prince of Wales sets out upon this journey."

After spending more than two months in the Dominion visiting cities from coast to coast the Prince entered the United States at Rouses Point, N.Y., where he was received by a party of American officials and statesmen headed by Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, who officially welcomed the royal visitor on behalf of the Government. He was in the United States about ten days, dividing the time principally between Washington and New York. While in the Capitol he visited President Wilson at the White House.

The Prince had been home less than four months when he started out again on the Renown to visit Australia. The trip was made by way of the Panama Canal, and on the way stops were made at San Diego, Cal., where two days were spent, and at Honolulu and the British West Indies.

The Prince was back home in October, after an absence of seven months.

Heartily Welcomed in India.

A trip to India had been planned for the Prince in 1921, but it was postponed from time to time because of the feeling, accompanied by riots in various cities, aroused by opponents of British rule. Finally, in October, despite the pleadings of the King and Queen, the Prince again made the Renown his sea home and sailed for India.

Notwithstanding that hartals, or boycotts, against the royal visit were observed in several cities, the Prince received enthusiastic welcomes in every city he visited. After his tour of India he proceeded to Japan, where he was lavishly entertained with dinner parties, balls, and other ceremonies in the various cities for several weeks.

The Renown then carried the Prince to Manila, where he was the guest of Governor General Wood. This trip kept the Prince away from the British Capital until May, 1922. Throughout England there has been a feeling of apprehension, especially while he was in India, and his safe arrival home was greeted by a crowd estimated at more than 50,000. He was affectionately welcomed by the King and Queen and his sister Princess Mary, who had been married during his absence.

The Prince's next trip was during the latter part of 1923, when he went to his ranch near Calgary, Alberta, travelling as an ordinary voyager on the steamship Empress of France. He went directly to the ranch, and after several weeks sailed for home on the same ship, maintaining his incognito as Lord Renfrew until he arrived in London.

What was perhaps the most pleasant trip yet made by the Prince of Wales was that last year to the United States, taken primarily to witness the international polo matches between the teams representing the United States and England.

HEALEY FALLS LOST CITIZEN

Christopher Keller, Popular as Host at Summer Resort is Buried.

DIED ON FRIDAY.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — The late Christopher Columbus Keller, who died last Friday, was laid at rest on Saturday afternoon in the little private cemetery at Healey Falls, in which four generations of the Keller family have been buried. This funeral plot, the grave in which —are marked by grave stones, is on a gravelly hill on the east side of the Trent River, and immediately opposite and close to the Hydro dam. The head of the family, who came to the Healey Falls section many years ago, from Europe, is buried there, and descendants ever since have found a last resting place in the same enclosure.

Moved to Missouri.

Christopher, whose funeral was held on Saturday, was born in Healey Falls, but when a child was taken to Missouri by his parents a short time before the breaking out of the American war. The boy's father, whose ancestors had seen strenuous military service in Europe, enlisted in the northern army and served nearly three years at the front being discharged on account of an attack of rehumatism some time before peace was declared. He returned to Canada and to Healey Falls with his family and for several years after his arrival was almost totally disabled, as a result of his military service. He never received a pension from the American government although an application, together with the necessary documentary evidence, was filed with the Department at Washington.

Christopher was a small boy when he returned to Healey Falls with his parents, and had resided there ever since. For years he had conducted a summer resort which was known from one end of the continent to the other, and was visited year after year by tourists from all parts of the United States, many of whom remained throughout the entire hot weather months. Host and location were alike popular with the guests, and the late Mr. Keller enjoyed prosperity as well as popularity.

He was a man of large stature, weighing over 300 pounds, and looked the picture of health up to a short time before his death.

Surviving the deceased is one son Stanley, who will carry on the business started by his father, and a daughter, Mrs. Marshall McComb, who resides with her husband in Belmont Township. Another son died some years ago. The sorrowing brothers are James of Havelock and Charles, a farmer at Healey Falls. Another brother, Joseph, died some years ago.

Mrs. Owen Hubbell, of Havelock, is a twin sister of the deceased. The other surviving sisters are Mrs. Joseph Keller of Rush Lake, Sask., Mrs. C. Steenburgh of Cordova, Mrs. James Hubbell, of Havelock, and Mrs. H. Chase of Belmont Lake. Fred Keller, also proprietor of a summer resort at Healey Falls, is a nephew.

Rev. C. D. Daniels, pastor of the Seymour Circuit, conducted religious services at the home of the deceased and at the graveside, a large number of friends and relatives following the remains to the cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Daniel Brown, Art. McDonald, Harry Rowe, David Aikens, Ernest Brunton, and Daniel Petherick.

Though You Eat Heartily You Still May Be Undernourished

"Since it is necessary for normal metabolism that the greater number of calories of body heat be produced by carbohydrate foods, it is essential that some kind of cereal food form a part of the daily food allowance."
—Food and Its Preparation.

Grape-Nuts is made of whole wheat and malted barley. More than three-fourths of the content of Grape-Nuts are the precious carbohydrates.

"Only that portion of the food that is digested and absorbed can serve the purposes of growth and maintenance of the vital functions."
—Principles of Human Nutrition.

In Grape-Nuts the carbohydrates have been dextrinized, that is, scientifically broken down into the form your body most readily and smoothly digests and transforms into strength and vitality.

"Proper mastication is always a signal to the secretions of the stomach and intestines to be ready for their share in the work."
—Food Facts for the Home-Maker.

Grape-Nuts is in the form of crisp, golden kernels you must chew. This makes your mouth do its work, which otherwise your stomach must do in addition to its own.

MALNUTRITION—the failure of the body to secure sufficient nourishment from its daily foods—is the real source of most of our present-day ills. Not only the poor suffer from it. It takes its toll from those whose tables are loaded with food as well as from starving people.

Food in plenty, yet undernourished—what, then, is wrong? It is the inability of the body to extract from the food the nourishment it needs.

Carbohydrates are the nourishing food-elements your body must have. They are your greatest source of strength and vitality. Most foods contain carbohydrates to a greater or less degree. But very few contain them in a form in which your body can readily use them.

Grape-Nuts does. In Grape-Nuts carbohydrates are available for your body in a form which it can easily assimilate. The vast store of them contained in the whole wheat and malted barley from which Grape-Nuts is made, comes to you in the form of dextrine—the most acceptable of all to your body.

Try this delicious food for breakfast or lunch tomorrow. Serve Grape-Nuts just as it comes from the package, with milk or cream. It is delightfully appetizing and very inexpensive—four teaspoonfuls, which is sufficient for each serving, costs less than one cent. All grocers have it in the wax-wrapped package.

FLORIDA'S REAL ESTATE BOOM IS LIKE GOLD RUSH

Fabulous Profits Recorded as Wealth of Continent Pours to Winter Resort.

FRENZIED DEALS

Land Bought 25 Miles From Miami—No Roads Yet Built To It.

MIAMI, Fla., Mar. 16.—The largest "bull market" in the world today is Florida.

The boom in real estate here rivals and even surpasses the dizzy swirl upward of the New York Stock Exchange after election.

Into Florida, as into the market, the wealth of a nation is being poured and fabulous profits recorded.

Like two rival circuses, each has its "barker," who shouts "You'll have to hurry, hurry, hurry" to get in on the ground floor.

The rush to Florida has blocked the mails, clogged train service and filled the roads.

Wealthy and poor alike either have arrived or are making the mad dash southward in the most spectacular boom since the '49ers risked their lives for California gold.

Grab Land.

Only here the struggle is for land. Gold is the password, not the object. Syndicates from all over the United States are buying up vast acreages. They have purchased Everglade property, lying 20 and 25 miles south of Miami, without even seeing it.

They couldn't if they wished. There are no roads.

Apparently there are two outstanding reasons for the boom.

The primary one is the rapid strides being made to make the entire state a year-round playground.

Anti-tax laws passed by the legislature last November have increased the state's permanent population possibly 20 per cent.

Those who make their homes here defend the law and cite examples in one southern state where the inheritance tax is 107 per cent. of the estate itself.

Like Curb.

And so the boom continues. The end is nowhere in sight.

Only recently the Miami Realty Board prevented solicitation in front of offices or on the sidewalks.

Previously a street scene nearly any day was a replica of the old time New York Curb, where hand signals to "buy" and "sell" flashed from the opening of the market until dusk.

Real estate here does an "open all night" business. From 8:30 a.m. until midnight, men and women of all ages and all degrees of prosperity are packed into the ground-floor offices.

Questions concerning the future must be worded with care. Business men take offense at any suggestion that this thing cannot last, and prices must come down, or that reaction will set in.

City of Million.

They predict a million population for Miami in ten years and a solid city on the east coast, reaching beyond Miami on the south to beyond Palm Beach on the north.

In this 72-mile stretch town after town has been built almost overnight.

Delray, a town of 2500, has been built by persons from 40 different states, according to a statement which goes unchallenged.

Rich men who have established residence here have plenty of surplus money for investment, but the only thing they will buy is real estate.

They want from 33 to 1000 per cent return, and if stores are true, they are getting it.

Drawbacks to living just at present, of course, are tremendous to any but the wealthy.

Need Railroads.

Hotels are packed. Rates are sky high. Miami has become a New York City in miniature, but the population including suburbs now is 85,000. The transient population is shown at about 90,000.

Railroads must complete many projected extensions before the progress can be continued, they admit. And they are building.

They originally were built to care for a small exclusive tourist trade.

Some idea of the boom can be gained from the fact that in 1918 only 8114 legal instruments were filed in this county. In 1924 there were 61,374.

ORGANIZED LABOR AND THE CHURCH

Closer Understanding and More Friendly Feeling Sought By President.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Mar. 16.—Complete sympathy with the movement for closer understanding and friendlier feeling between churches and labor unions was expressed by James M. Lynch, president of the International Typocraphical Union, in a statement issued here.

"The modern industrial struggle is well deserving of serious consideration by every institution interested in ethics and human happiness said Mr. Lynch. "It has ever been a source of disappointment to American labor leaders that so many clergymen have chosen to ignore the case of the workingman or, worse still, to applaud the social programme of the exploiter. Fortunately powerful men in the churches are coming to give their attention to the labor movement, and consequently to sympathise with the aspirations of Organized Labor.

"Labor is quick to reciprocate this interest. In New York we find Bishop William T. Manning expressing from his pulpit appreciation of aid offered by organized labor in raising funds for completion of the great cathedral. In Toledo, O., the Council of Churches has invited labor leaders to address meetings of the Ministers' Union. Out in Bakersfield, Calif., Bishop L. Sanford, preaching at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, deprecates the 'disgraceful' manner in which the 'Better America Federation' attacks the trade union movement.

"Fear is blamed by Bishop Sanford for the unrest and unhappiness in our economic and social life. Each week, the Bishop told his hearers, weekly letter reaches his desk from the 'labor-hating' organization, inveighing against combination of workers in their own defence. 'Such bitter words, so full of hatred,' said the Bishop, 'could only create the trouble against which they protest.'

"With exceptional shrewdness the Bishop has laid his finger upon the seat of the social malady. Men live and work together in happiness only when there is a mutual sense of security, and when good will rules. There is a fighting spirit in men that precludes peace while men suffer injustice at the hand of their fellows. The capitalist who hopes to crush labor into humble acceptance of want and defeated aspirations is only heaping fuel on the fires of combativeness. This type of capitalist is usually kept by his personal concerns from gaining an understanding of philosophy, psychology or any other branch of knowledge bearing upon the task he undertakes. It is proper that preachers and all others, whose training and understanding fit them for the job, should show the way.

'And it is gratifying to forward looking labor leaders, who would like to believe in the erudition and sincerity of clergymen in general, to learn that many preachers are attempting to bring reason to bear on the capital-labor controversy.

"The Rev. Oren H. Baker, pastor of a Baptist church in Morgantown, W. Va., has arisen as a champion of labor's right to organize. In his state some organizations have demanded that labor organizers be driven from the state. 'The church is bound to condemn these proposals of certain business interests,' this minister declares. 'Let it be remembered that individuals cannot maintain harmony with God until they have succeeded in effecting proper adjustments to one another.'

"Some historians credit Moses with being the first labor leader because Moses arose in behalf of his enslaved people when he saw an Egyptian boss beat a Jewish workman. Moses slew the boss and stood forth from that time as the champion of a down-trodden and suffering race. The Old Testament is concerned almost wholly with the endeavors of common people to maintain their freedom against the tyranny of the labor exploiter. As for the New Testament, certainly the exponent of wealth-through-exploitation can find little comfort in the words of Christ, who came on earth to relieve the suffering of the many, not to assist a favored or fortunate few in monopolizing life's blessings."

BIG MONEY CARAVAN.

Two Score Policemen Guard 250,000,000 Through the Streets.

NEW YORK, March 16.—(United Press).—Guarded by more than two score policemen, who marched by the sides of four armoured trucks, more than $250,000,000 in securities was carried through the streets of New York yesterday.

The movement of the valuables completed the consolidation of two large banks. It took three hours to move the treasure.

UNITED CHURCH KEEPS IN LEAD

Survey Given by Union Committee Shows Big Majority Over Antis.

UNION UNAFFECTED.

TORONTO, March 16.—From a survey of the Presbytery districts in Ontario, which is being conducted by the Church Union Bureau, it would appear that the withdrawal of 367 Presbyterian congregations in the Province will not seriously affect the Union, but will still leave the United Church overwhelmingly predominant in numerical strength, as compared with any church formed of the non-concurring units, says the Church Union Committee. Even in districts where the Anti-Unionists are strong the non-concurrents are comparatively small in number. In Hamilton district, for instance, where the Anti-Unionists are strongest, the United Church will have 150 congregations to 42 of the non-concurring body. In the district of Toronto there will be 237 congregations in the United Church, as compared with the 53 Presbyterian congregations which have voted to remain out.

In other Presbytery districts the Anti-Unionists are a very minor quantity. In the Presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew the Anti-Unionists have only succeeded in pulling out 9 Presbyterian congregations, leaving a balance of 144 to enter the United Church in that area.

The numerical strength of the United Church in four representative Presbytery districts in Ontario is shown by the following tabulations:

Whooping Cough Is a Very Serious Trouble Her 5 Children Had It

Mrs. S. H. Craig, R.R. No. 1, Palmerston, Ont., writes:—"Two years ago, last winter, our five children had very severe attacks of whooping cough. We were recommended, by our druggist, to use which we did with the greatest of success. It cleared out the throat and bronchial tube, and loosened the phelgm so that they were able to cough it up, and in no time I had quenched the 'whooping'."

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

BRITAIN SYMPATHETIC.

Coolidge's Readiness to Call New Disarmament Conference Meets Favor.

LONDON, March 16. — Reports from Washington of President Coolidge's readiness to call a new disarmament conference, are given sympathetic prominence by many of the London papers, which were already on record as being in hearty concurrence with the idea.

It is well known that the British government would welcome such a discussion.

In 1890, the total annual income tax of al misionary societies was $4,000,000; in 1900, it had increased to $20,000,000; in 1923 the total was $70,000,000.

DAD AND HIS LAD BANQUET SUCCESS

Fourth Anniversary and Annual Banquet Had Large Attendance.

On Friday, 13th March, the Pathfinders' Tuxis Square of the Park Street Baptist Church celebrated their Fourth Anniversary with their annual "Dad and Lad" banquet.

There were nearly 100 present, and everyone had a real jolly time, with lots of good things to eat.

W. Saunders acted as chairman and carried out his duties in a very able manner.

The members of the Square are to be heartily congratulated on their efforts which made the banquet so much of a success everyone declaring that it was the best yet, in the history of the square.

The following toasts and program were presented and responded to:

The King, W. Saunders, followed by the National Anthem. Our Church, proposed by E. Elliott, and responded to by Rev. N. R. McLeod, pastor. Instrumental selection, Parkin's Trio. Our City, proposed by A. Thompson, responded to by His Worship Mayor Turner. Our Dads, proposed by A. Moore, responded to by M. Dunkley. Violin Solo, C. Rusau. Our Lads, proposed by Dr. G. R. Scott, responded to by P. Luther. The Ladies, proposed by A. Taylor, responded to by Mrs. White.

The Square's thanks to all speakers and to everyone who had helped make the banquet a success was tendered by N. Porter.

Instrumental Trio, Parkin's Trio. Address, Rev. Gordon. Violin Solo, C. Rusau.

The singing of O Canada brought to a close a very enjoyable evening.

RIVERA PROPOSES PEACE WITH MOORS

Spanish Dictator Offers Safe Conduct for Meeting With Abael Kum on Frontier.

MADRID, Mar. 16.—Primo de Rivera, Dictator of Spain, is ready for peace in Morocco, and he will meet Adbel Krim, leader of the rebels, or his brother, whenever they like and at any neutral point they like, to discuss terms on which the war may be ended.

The Spanish leader made this proposal at an interview on Monday afternoon in his office at the Ministry of War at Madrid, in the presence of the American Charge, Mr. Marsden.

"I engage my personal honor in this proposal," Primo de Rivera declared. "If Mahmed Ben or Adbel Krim will come with 2,000 armed men as a bodyguard to any point he chooses on the frontier of the Tangier international zone, or anywhere else in Morocco, I guarantee that the security of his men will be rigorously respected. Absolutely nothing will happen to him or his bodyguard whether we reach an accord or not.

"I guarantee to go to the place of the meeting with exactly the same number of men. If you will transmit this offer to Adbel Krim it may render a great service to the cause of peace."

Primo de Rivera is deluged with work in Madrid, but he hopes to get through the mass of detail now facing him in time to cross the Straits to Tetuan by next Wednesday.

'My desire for peace is sincere and I am willing to go far to procure it,' the General asserted after hearing the terms on which Adbel Krim was willing to treat. "The first condition of peace, for the Spanish, is disarmament. Once Abdel Krim's army has been disarmed there is no reason why his State and our Government cannot work in harmony.

"We are willing to go very far. We are willing to give Abdel Krim the government of his own State, in his own way, providing it constitutes a peaceful State and not a warrior kingdom.

"Neither Spain nor France can view with benevolence any attempt to establish a warlike Islamic State in Morocco. But if Abdel Krim is willing to accept our help—which will go very far in the way of material assistance for the exploitation of natural wealth in the Riff and he construction of port —I can guarantee to leave him a free hand within his boundaries.

PRISONERS OF WAR TO LIVE IN ASYLUM

Twelve Italian Soldiers Driven Insane by Life in Siberia.

UDINE, Italy, March 16.—(United News.)—Twelve Italian soldiers drafted against their will into the Austrian army in 1914 have returned to their own country after ten years of horror in Siberia. They will spend the remainder of their lives in asylums for the insane.

The men were captured soon after the beginning of hostilities by Russian troops. They were packed off to Siberia and forgotten.

The hardships of Siberian prisons broke the minds and spirits of the dozen unfortunates, so that when they finally came home it was merely to another place of confinement.

TRY OARLESS LIFEBOAT

Use Levers to Drive Propellers Instead of Rowing.

LONDON, March 16—(Associated Press).—A lifeboat without oars, which it is claimed may be propelled even in rough weather by persons without previous training, was tried out here recently in the presence of shipping experts and representatives of the Government. Because of the absence of oars the inventor, J. R. Fleming, contends that one of the chief difficulties of launching a lifeboat from a vessel in distress has been overcome.

The new type of lifeboat is propelled by the occupants, who have levers which they pull forward and backward, this action through a very simple gear causing a propeller to drive the lifeboat through the water. The boat used in the experiment had 42 occupants. With one man at each of the eight levers it was possible to maintain a speed of three miles an hour, and with two men working on each of the levers a speed of six miles an hour was brought about, according to official announcement of Lloyd's agents who were present.

Representatives of the London Board of Trade, the British Corporation and 40 of the leading British steamship companies also witnessed the tryout, which was reported a success.

WELL COOKED RATIONS

British Army Knows Value of Proper Food—Demonstrate Methods.

LONDON, March 16.—The British army has never been better fed than it is today, says a war office official. Cooks are specially trained and their work will easily challenge comparison with that of West End chefs.

So sure are the authorities of this fact that Britain's new way of feeding its fighters will be demonstrated at a cookery and food exhibition in London next month. Cooks from the three service branches, army, navy and air force, will be there.

The excellence of the army cooks' culinary efforts is largely due to a new book issued by the army council, which gives full instructions as to baking, steaming, braizing and frying, as well as recipes and hints on carving.

CITY HAS NEED OF FULL TIME HEALTH OFFICER

Dr. McCullough Strongly Urges This Policy in Address to Rotary.

THE NEW OFFICERS.

President-Elect John Seels Occupies Chair for the First Time.

The establishment of an adequate full-time health department in Peterboro was strongly urged by Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, chief medical officer of health for Ontario, in his address before the Peterboro Rotary Club to-day. Dr. McCullough, on behalf of his recommendation, said that such a policy would pay handsomely, not only from a humanitarian but from a financial standpoint, and supported his argument with convincing statistics based on his knowledge of conditions in the province.

The new officers were introduced by Past President McDermid as follows:

President—John H. Seels.
Vice-President—Robert Kingan.
Directors—Andrew Brown, Geo. A. Gillespie, Thos. Barrie.
Treasurer—Douglas Lawrie.
Secretary—Ross L. Dobbin.

The gavel was then turned over to President Seels, who, after expressing his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him, warned the members that there would be plenty of work for them.

The committees were announced as follows, with the first-named as chairman:

Business Methods—Geo. A. Gillespie, Geo. C. MacDonald, Peter Westbye.

Educational Committee—H. R. H. Kenner, A. Mowat, W. R. Morris.

Boys' Work—Geo. C. MacDonald, Dr. Bruce Marshall, Gordon Matthews.

Programme and Entertainment—John Crane, James Hamilton.

Fellowship—Dr. McNair, R. H. Turner, C. G. Graham.

Crippled Children—Dr. A. W. McPherson, Dr. N. Buchanan, Dr. M. A. Morrison.

Inter-city Relations—W. R. Widdess, G. Wood, J. M. McHardy.

Editor Weekly Bulletin — Lee Barnes.

Membership—J. M. McHardy, C. H. Rogers, Fred. Hungerford.

Past-Presidents' Advisory Committee—F. L. Roy, John Crane, V. J. McElderry.

The speaker of the day was introduced by Rotarian S. R. Armstrong, who declared that Dr. McCullough occupied one of the most important public positions in the province, was one of the best men to hold office, and, incidentally, one of the most genial persons we would want to meet.

Dr. McCullough, after pointing out that self-preservation had been an attribute of the human race from the beginning passed on to discuss first, the work of the Provincial Health Department in looking after the —health of the people of the province. He briefly referred to the Provincial Laboratories and the free distribution of anti-toxin, anti-tetanus serum, insulin, etc., to the educational work of the department, the sanitary engineering section, the school medical and dental work, and other features of the province's campaign against disease. As a proof of the efficiency of the sanitary engineering work, the death rate from typhoid in the province had been decreased, he said, in 15 years from 50.3 per 100,000 to a little over 2 per 100,000.

But the real fight against disease must be fought by the municipal departments, the speaker declared, and here was the weak spot ,inasmuch as only eight out of the 900-odd municipalities in the province had the services of a full time medical officer of health. It was impossible for a practising physician to give the time to public health work that was desirable, and to have efficient protection it was necessary to have someone on the job day in and day out. Dr. McCullough most strongly urged Peterborough to combine the school medical work with the general health campaign, and to establish a full time health department, giving the experience of other cities to show the desirability of the policy. Kingston, for instance, had to pay $18,000 last year to take care of an epidemic that might have been promptly stamped out if the necessary machinery had been available to deal with the situation.

Dr. McCullough appealed to the Rotarians as business men, to view the suggestion as a straight business proposition.

His address made a fine impression upon his hearers.

The Rotarians to-day enjoyed a supply of buttermilk, supplied by Rotarian G. A. Gillespie, his generosity being apreciated.

LOSES APPEAL.

Robinson's Appeal Involving $625,000 in Rajah Case is Dismissed.

LONDON, March 16 Canadian Press).—Charles E. Robinson, former bookmaker, who sued the Midland Bank for 125,000 pounds on account of an alleged settlement with Rajah Sir Hari Singh, has lost the appeal he took from the judgment of the court finding in favor of the bank. Robinson's effort to upset the judgment was today dismissed in the court of appeal.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER.

PARSON'S SON TO PADLOCK BROADWAY

Emory Buckner Undertakes Strenuous Campaign to Make Prohibition Law Effective.

EMORY R. BUCKNER.

By Alexander Herman.

NEW YORK, March 16.—A midwest parson's son has just given New York its hardest jolt since prohibition became the law.

In the first week of his office as United States attorney for this district, Emory R. Buckner, formerly of Hebron, Neb., and Guthrie, Okla.,—

Began action to padlock Broadway's liveliest night clubs;

Threw the fear of the law into the large camp of bootleggers, protectionists, "higher-ups" and private drinkers;

And promises to have the whole city on a pure "water diet" within 60 days!

If successful Buckner's method will be taken up by United States attorneys in the other districts of the country, and the greatest drive to enforce real prohibition will soon be under way all over the country.

Yet the new prosecutor is no crusader, he wants the world to know. He is just a lawyer.

"But I realize," he says, "that prohibition is practically putting the government out of business, as far as law enforcement is concerned. As a result we have a farcical situation where the perfectly futile enforcement of one law has reduced other laws to a state of paralysis.

"A rigorous padlock policy is the only method by which this widespread contempt for the law may be successfully curbed."

Under this policy Buckner hopes to hit at the men "higher up" and hit them where they feel it most—in the pocketbooks.

Heretofore the men and women arrested for liquor violations have been for the most part waiters, bartenders, bell-hops and other "small fry."

"Those petty offenders who plead guilty," explains Buckner, "are fined anywhere from $50 to $250, which in most cases, I believe the employer pays. And the selling of liquor goes merrily on.

"In all cases where the place continues to operate such a fine is but a license, a trifling addition to the overhead expense. And the Federal bench has suffered the indignity of being turned into an excise commission for what amounts to the issuance of licenses, without regulation or inspection.

"To call such proceedings 'law enforcement' is a farce. To call such fines 'conviction' is grotesque."

So Buckner is going to put teeth into his enforcement. For he comes from a country where law is real, and effectual.

Born on an Iowa farm, he was reared in a Methodist parsonage in Hebron, Neb. While teaching school there and in Guthrie, Okla., he became an expert stenographer, so that he could earn his way through college.

"My father, who at 69 is still preaching at Chamberlain, S. D.," he says reminiscingly, "gave me $30 to pay for a course in a business school. I repay him that amount every time we meet."

In 1897 Buckner became a court stenographer in Oklahoma. The old part of the territory was only seven years old, and the new parts had been open only two.

"Twice a year the judge, clerk, marshal, attendants and I swung around the circuit, using the old stage coach on half our journeys," says Buckner.

"One of the places was No Man's Land, 250 miles from home. There in a town of 300 inhabitants, were 13 saloons. There was no industry but cattle-raising! no avocation, but cowboying. And most of the cases before the court were homicide."

Three years of this life in frontier courts trained Buckner in a law enforcement that was neither farcical nor grotesque. And it is with such background that he now is tackling the situation that, he says, "has practically black-jacked enforcement."

Under persuasion of his father, Buckner gave up his court job, and went to the University of Nebraska. There he married a Newark, N. Y., girl who had been teaching school with him in Oklahoma. After his graduation, he took his wife, went east and worked his way through the Harvard Law School, "trusting to the typewriter and congenital optimism."

He has never mixed in politics, and has held only two public offices —one an assistant U.S. attorneyship five months after he became a lawyer, and the other an assistant district attorneyship in New York. But his success as trial lawyer and executive won him the offer to be chief counsel of the aldermanic committee that investigated the police department after the Lieutenant Beckner-Rosenthal murder scandal in 1910-12 and now has led to his present post.

COUNCIL OF WOMEN MEETS

International Organization Will Gather in Washington in May.

FROM 28 COUNTRIES.

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Women in Canada are looking forward with special pleasure to the visit of the overseas delegates coming to this continent to attend the quinquennial meeting of the International Council of Women, which will meet in Washington, D.C., on May 4th. Forty-eight delegates, representing nearly all countries of Europe will before proceeding to the Mecca of their journey, be guests for a short time of Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and Naigara Falls. Most welcome will be the presence of the Marchioness of Aberdeen and Tamair, International president, who will preside at the Washington session. As the one time national president of the Canadian council, Lady Aberdeen, then wife of the popular Governor-General of Canada, raised the council in Canada to a high place on the roster of councils. The Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair will accompany his wife.

The council idea had its origin in Chicago, at the time of the World's Fair. During the period of the Exhibition a number of gatherings of women from many nations had been held during which the intercourse proved so pleasant that it was decided the association so formed should not be allowed to drop, but should be continued in a large and organized way. As a result the council plan which up to that time had been local, was arranged for development as an international movement. Most sanguine visualized at the time of the international founding.

When the gathering meets in Washington it will represent thirty-eight national councils. Of these the first to federate with the United States was Canada. By degrees nearly all the countries of Europe in addition to the Argentine, South Africa, Mexico and countries in South America federated, the last to come in was Palestine with headquarters at Government House, Jerusalem. Over this comprehensive organizations the Marchioness of Aberdeen has presided from its foundation until the present with the exception of seven years during which presidents from other countries were in the chair.

Delegates from Canada in Washington will represent sixty-three local councils which in turn will represent twelve hundred local or nationally organized societies in federation. The council in the United States differs somewhat in formation and policy from that of Canada, inasmuch as it is made up of large organizations, of which the last to join was the Federation of Business and Profession Women's with a membership of 500,000. A difference in policy is that while the National Council of Canada deals with all federal matters in which any of the councils are interested, that of the United States acts as a clearing house only initiating such national plans as are not dealt with by any constituent organization.

Friendship between the council of the United States and Canada was strengthened in a most delightful way by the presence of Mrs. Philip North Moore, national president of the United States, at the convention of the National Council of Canada, which met a few months ago in Toronto.

Among the most important things upon which the international council is concentrating in the various countries is the carrying out of what is known as the Children Charter. The doing of this endorses the Declaration of Geneva, which was placed in the archives of the Government of Geneva in 1924, among other things which prescribes that the child must be given the means requisite for its normal development. The child must be fed, helped when sick, reclaimed when delinquent, the orphan or waif must be sheltered and succored and the child must be the first to receive relief in times of distress. That a woman may preserve her nationality irrespective of that of the man she marries, is another line upon which the council is now at work. British legislation already permits this. Action to this end is yet lacking in Canada.

At the quinquenial convention in Washington, Canada will be represented by its national president, Miss C. E. Carmichael, who is also an officer of the international, and nine delegates, one being allowed for each province. Among those who will go from the Dominion as delegates or as otherwise interested are Mrs. C. H. Thornburn, Ottawa; Dr. Stowe Gullen, Toronto; Mrs. Horace Parsons, Toronto; Judge McGill, Vancouver; Mrs. Atherton Smith, New Brunswick; Prof. C. M. Derrick, M.A., Montreal; Mrs. W. Dennis, M.A., Halifax, N.S.; Mrs. O. C. Edwards, Macleod, Alberta; Dr. Ritchie England, Montreal; Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, Toronto; Mrs. Harry Carpenter, Hamilton; Mrs. F. Torrington, Toronto; Mrs. Digman, Toronto; Mrs. S. C. Tweed, Waterloo; Mrs. S. T. Frost, Smith's Falls, Ont.; Mrs. J. W. Bundy, Toronto.

RINGS STRETCH WOMEN'S EARS

London Ladies Wear Weighty Ornaments of Great Value.

There is an ear-piercing campaign going on in London just now. Fashionable women are wearing ear-rings of such a weight that the ordinary screws are not reliable enough, and piercing is necessary.

Some women, noticeably the Countess of Ancaster, Lady Louis Mountbatten and the young Countess of Plymouth favor a single ear-ring, generally worn in the left ear and hanging onto the shoulder. The newest ear-rings are either enormous stones of immense value, or tiny baskets of fruit or animals fashioned in metals and precious stones. Some are so heavy that they are palpably elongating the ears.

STEADY TO GOOD TRADE REPORTS

Credit Men's Association Ltd. Tabulates Beating of Business Pulse.

PROSPECTS BETTER.

WINNIPEG, Man., Mar. 16 (Canadian Press).—The week trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association, Limited, reads:

Halifax.—Wholesale trade reported to be continuing steady. Retail business, while not active, is consid red satisfactory. S. John.—Wholesale trade improving and retail trade fair. Collections normal. Montreal.—Both retail and wholesale trade conditions generally are holding up fairly well with improvement looked for within the next few weeks. Collections generally fair.

Toronto.—Wholesale and retail trade reported standing up fairly well for this time of the year with better prospects for the future. Collections fair to good.

Winnipeg.—Retail business in the city about normal with greater activity noticed in boots and shoes. Heavy snowfall has slowed up country business. Wholesale trade opening up gradually with improved conditions expected. Collections rather more active.

Regina.—Conditions wholesale trade reported steady. Retail trade normal for this time of year. Collections about the same.

Saskatoon.—Trade reported quiet in wholesale lines. Retail trade reported dull. Collections fair.

Calgary.—Business in both wholesale and retail lines during the past week has been inclined to be a little quieter than the preceding weeks. This is only regarded as temporary, however, and with the opening of spring improved conditions are looked for.

Edmonton.—Retail trade has been quiet for the past few weeks with collections only fair. Spring prospects ivery encouraging in city and country.

Vancouver.—All lines of trade, both wholesale and retail, fairly good, stating that they have no complaint to make. Collections fair to good. With the substantial building programme already started and in sight the outlook for 1925 is rather bright and a good improvement in general conditions is looked for within the next few weeks.

BARACA CLASS NEWS.

W. W. Richmond Teaches Wonderful Lesson— Banquet to Young Ladies.

The members took a prominent part in the regular class meeting of the Baraca Young Men's Class at Murray Street Church as usual Sunday morning. A greatly appreciated solo was rendered by Robert Moore, while a five-piece orchestra supplied music for the hymns, thus giving the class a very enjoyable musical programme before the lesson. The reading of the lesson was conducted by Ralph Switzer, after which the meeting was taken by W. W. Richmond. The lesson, following the one of last week, dealt with the death and resurrection of Christ. It is on such lessons as these that Mr. Richmond shows his value as a teacher of a young men's class. A young man himself, he brought home to the members present the beauty and nobility of this tremendous sacrifice made by Christ for them. By dealing with the subject as a personal matter, dealing with the pain suffered for them and the beauty of the new life which came afterwards, thus taking their sins away if they would only believe that the lesson was brought home to them and they left the class-room with added faith in the blessings of leading a Christian life.

All the members are asked to be present at the banquet the class is giving the young ladies' classes on Tuesday evening at 6.30 at the church. There will be no charge.

BOW-WOW BELTS ARE STYLISH NOW

Resemble Dog-Collars and Are Chosen for Sports Wear.

By HEDDA HOYT.

Fashion Editor of the United Press. (Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, March 13. (United Press)—Each season we have new accessories and fads which buffet the last season's frock over the waves of fashion and assist us in keeping that up-to-date-moment appearence. Some of them are exaggerated affairs which many of us do not attempt to wear, while others become so popular that they are almost universally accepted.

Bow-wow belts and bracelets are among the new novelties which are chosen for sportswear. These belts and matching bracelts look exactly like dog collars—except that they have no license plates attached to them. They are made of leather and trimmed with nailheals and use the regular clasp which is found on the dog collar and of course match the belt in design and color. While this may be called a "flapper" style, many smart matrons at southern resorts wear them with the simple suede clothes sports frock... Brown, green and red are the popular glazed and suede is quite popular, glazed kid effects.

Among the new jewelry novelties are the Napoleonic bee pins Since many of the newer costumes have the wide reveres and flaring peplums which were popular in Napaleon's day, the gold or silver bee pin is an appropriate accessory this season. The bee was a symbol with Napoleon. Today we see it worn upon the tri-cornered hats of felt, on the wide lapels, on the left shoulder and as a cuff pin. Paris began the season by wearing silver butterflies, dragon flies, etcs., but the bee is the latest insect to become a fad with smartly gowned women. Of course, these need not be of real gold or silver since most of the jewelry counters in the large stores sell them in imitation metals.

Handkerchiefs of brilliant color, trimmed in black, are newer than those of solid color. Often the black initial placed in one corner matches with narrow black border. White and black effects, however, are worn onl for morning.

Milliners are now displaying untrimmed felt hats with rather wide grims which are to be cut to suit the wearer. So many women like to trim their own hats that the milliners have brought out these wide brims so that women can cut off the brims to stuit themselves. The smartest felts this season have unbound brims and one can cut as one pleases.

A novelty seen in several smart shop windows carries out the shoulder corsage which has been so popular winter. Linen voile, crepe frocks have shoulder corsages embroidered in wool in floral designs. These are invariably embroidered on the left shoulder. On very fine materials the corsage effect may be worked in tiny cross-stitch.

Among the new bracelets are the elastic effects in silver or gold, which are worn over the short suede glove. As many as three may be worn on one arm. While these are very inexpensive, they look very smart with the street costume. Being elastic, they tend to hold up the cuff of the glove.

Huge silver ball earrings are the newest earring novelty. These balls are as large as marbles and are suspended on silver chain. They are very popular at southern resorts at present and their popularity will doubtless, extend northward as spring approaches.

Long necklaces are not as popular as they were during the winter months and many women are having long chains of semi-precious type made into two or three shorter necklaces. Crystal beads of average length can be made into three shorter contrasting chains.

PROBE OF PRESTON REPORT REQUESTED

British Shippers Say Interests of United Kingdom Affected.

LONDON, March 13.—(Canadian Press Cable.) — The Chamber of Shipping of the United Kingdom has written to the British Board of Trade requesting that the question of ocean freight rates and the report of W. T. R. Preston to the Canadian government on the matter, be submitted to the Imperial Shipping Committee. The Chamber says that the British steamship lines are ready to be represented and will arrange for competent representatives and witnesses to proceed to Canada. The request asserts that sea transport between Canada and the United Kingdom is a matter affecting the interests of the United Kingdom as much as it affects those of Canada, and the Preston report makes general allegations which are not confined to those countries.

"No doubt due regard was had to such considerations," the request continues, "when the Imperial committee was established at the instance of the dominions and was so constituted to make it specially competent to deal with the allegations, such as Preston made, which are matters of concern to more than one of the constituent parts of the British Empire."

The Chamber adds that though it might be impracticable for the committee itself to hold sittings in Canada at least a sub-committee could take evidence in the Dominion.

A TABLOID TRAGEDY.

(By Jeannette.)

It was a house of sickness. Supplies in the medicine-chest were running low. Both patients required a certain nostrum, and there was none in the house.

Their faithful nurse sighed. It was a dark and stormy night and she was very tired. The drug-store seemed a long way off, much farther than she cared to think about.

The telephone bell rang. It was a friend—one who was journeying down town and would be glad to purchase the medicine and leave it in on the way home. "I am going to bed soon. It is a wet night. I will leave something at the door for you to place it in, and will get it in the morning. Many thanks," said the Tired One gratefully, hanging up the receiver.

The wind blew hard that night. The rain fell in heavy spurts, and the banshee wailed about the house. Tucked warmly in bed, the sick ones slept.

Came eleven o'clock ,and the returning friend struggled to the door to deposit the medicine in the tin pail which had been the handiest thing in reach in the Tired One's pantry to clamp the lid down tightly, and depart with the noble consciousness of a friendly act performed.

The wind whistled about the house. The pail nestled comfortably on the doorstep.

A marauding tomcat, prowling about ,sniffed it speculatively and nosed resentfully at the tight-clamped lid. It didn't smell like milk anyway. He departed alleyward, seeking garbage.

Came the cold grey dawn and morning strollers. The early milkman made his rounds and the first empty street car ground a flat-wheeled protest up the grade, a yawning motor-man at the wheel.

A down-at-the-heel youth, flat cap over one ear, a dispirited fag hanging to the corner of his mouth, came slowly along the street. He was looking for a full milk-bottle, but his eye caught the glint of the bright red pail on the doorstep. He negotiated the block carefully, then returned. No one in sight. With a quick step, he came up the walk, seized the pail and made off.

Two blocks away, he stopped to investigate, shaking the pail carefully.

A look of disappointment crossed his face as he remarked an absence of liquid gurgle. "Thought it might have been home-brew," he muttered. The lid stuck fast. "Perhaps it's some guy's lunch-box that he went off and forget," he remarked hopefully. The returning street-car came round the bend and he resumed his journey.

The Tired One, refreshed after a good night's sleep, opened the front door. "I wonder if she forgot or if the wind took the pail and all," she said ,coming out to survey the landscape in a vain effort at reclaiming the vanished red receptacle. Shaking her head, she went within the doors. The patients must do without their medicine.

Far up the street, the lid still resisting his efforts, but still determined to wrest its prize from its interior ,a hopeful youth, with a cigarette hanging to his mouth, disappeared around the corner. In his hand was the red tin pail, still staunchly guarding a small package of epsom salts.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

How to Start Right with Poultry

The breeding of a good poultry stock lies in a good beginning. And that, in turn, depends on the proper selection of your first birds.

For the novice in poultry farming, experts have formulated rules by which poultry selection and breeding may be carried out on a scientific basis. These begin with a classification of the breeds of poultry in accordance with the end sought by the farmer.

For convenience, the experts classify poultry under the heads of egg breeds, meat breeds, general purpose breeds and fancy or ornamental breeds. The names signify the purpose for which each breed is raised.

The egg breeds include the small or medium-sized fowls which are very active, quick to mature, producers of white-shelled eggs, usually non-sitters, or at best poor sitters, and rather poor mothers. The various varieties of Leghorns and Minorcas are good representatives of this class.

Because they are poor sitters some other breed, or at least a few other fowls, should be kept if natural methods of incubation are to be used. On account of their early maturity some begin laying at the age of 4 1-2 months.

The fowls of this class have large combs and wattles, which make them sensitive to low temperatures.

Heavy Types.

The meat breeds include the largest fowls. These breeds are especially suitable for the production of large roasters. They are slow and somewhat sluggish, with little desire for foraging, easily confined by low fences, rather slow to mature, persistent sitters and rather indifferent layers of large brown-shelled eggs.

Brahmas, Cochins and Lanshans belong to this class.

The general purpose breed include fowls of fair size, which also produce a good quantity of brown-shelled eggs, making them especially adapted to the person who wants a supply of both eggs and meat.

These are generally good sitters and good mothers. They have medium-sized combs and wattles and endure cold weather well. They occupy a medium position between the egg and meat breeds as to size, egg production and docility.

Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Orpingtons and Rhode Island Reds belong to this class.

As a rule, the fowls in the ornamental class are not well adapted for farm purposes. The Polish, Exhibition Games, Silkies, Sultans, Frizzles and Bantams are representatives of this class.

Standard Stock.

Standard-bred stock is essential to success in poultry raising. A flock of standard-bred fowls possesses a uniformity of appearance which the mongrel flock never has.

Moreover, standard-bred fowls produce eggs and table carcasses which are much more nearly uniform in size, shape and color, and which therefore bring better prices. It costs no more to feed and care for such fowls than it does for mongrels.

Only by continuous selection for health and vigor is it possible to build up a flock which will produce fertile eggs, strong chicks capable of making quick growth, and pullets with sufficient stamina to stand the strain of heavy egg production.

Strong and Active.

The comb, face and wattles should have a good bright color. The eyes should be bright and fairly prominent. The head should be comparatively broad and short, having a fairly short, well-curved beak and showing no tendency to be long, "snaky" or "crow-headed."

The bird should be alert and have a strong, vigorous carriage. The legs should be set well apart and strongly support the body. They should show no sign of weakness or of knock-kneed condition. The bone, as seen in the shank, should be strong, straight and not too long.

The plumage should be clean and smooth, as a lack of condition ofte accompanies soiled, roughened plumage. The condition of flesh should be good, as a very thin bird is usually in poor health.

In selecting stock for mating, the poultry farmer must keep clearly in mind the purpose of the breeding. If it is the purpose to produce exhibition stock it is necessary to select birds that are nearest the standard in color, type and markings, or which when mated will combine their qualities toward a standard offspring.

For table fowl, a breed that has a standard type, or a body suitable for carrying an abundance of meat should be chosen. They should be broad and deep of body, have good length of back and keel, and especially a broad breast well covered with meat.

Egg Producers.

If the desire is to breed for eggs, good egg producers or their offspring should be selected. The high producing hen has a deep body with a long prominent breast. The head is well balanced and the eye is large and prominent.

Whatever the purpose of the breeding, progress will be made most quickly by picking out the best individuals in the flock and using them as breeders rather than by breeding from the flock as a whole.

The selection of a male for the mating will be influenced largely by the character of the females used. If there is a general weakness in females in any respect, this should be offset so far as possible by strength in that particular in the male used.

Matings should be at least two weeks before beginning to save the eggs for hatching. If less time is allowed, the maximum fertility may not be obtained.

The breed influences the size of the matings. If the fowls are confined to a yard it is usually desirable to run from 12 to 15 females of the smaller breeds such as the Leghorns; from 10 to 12 females of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks; and from 8 to 10 females of the heaviest breeds, such as the Brahma, with one male.

Range Better.

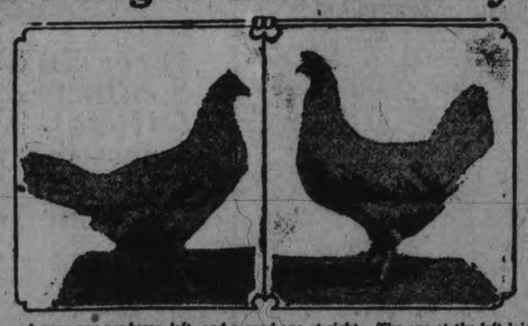
Where the fowls have free range and the male is strong and vigorous, it is often possible to obtain fertile eggs with a considerably larger number of females to each male. A vigorous Plymouth Rock cockerel on free range should give good fertility when mated to 20 females, while a Leghorn male under similar conditions can be mated to 35 or 30 females with good results.

If eggs for hatching are desired for a flock too large for a single male to fertilize, two or more males can be run with it, preferably by alternating males in successive days. It is best, however, to use a mating small enough so that a single male can be used.

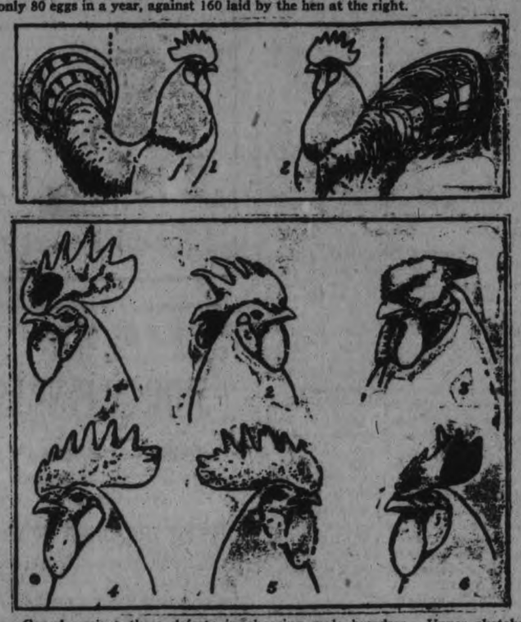
Either pullets or hens, and either cockerels or cocks can be used in the breeding flock. Cockerels and pullets must be well matured. Hens are better than pullets, as they lay larger eggs and give better fertility and stronger chicks. Yearling and 2-year-old hens are best.

If pullets are used as breeders they should be mated with a cock rather than with a cockerel. If a cockerel is used he should be mated with hens rather than with pullets.

As a rule, well-matured cockerels will give better fertility than cocks.



A poor egg producer, left, and a good one at right. The one at the left laid only 80 eggs in a year, against 160 laid by the hen at the right.



Guard against these defects in choosing male breeders. Upper sketches show defects in tail carriage. 1, tail carried too high; 2, tail carried to one side, called "wry tail." Lower sketches are of male heads with defetcive combs. 1, thumb mark; 2, blade of comb following neck too closely and points showing tendency to lop; 3, rose comb showing hollow center; 4, side sprig; 5, uneven, serrations and double point; 6, twisted comb.

GOOD MARKET FOR LAMB IS OFFERED

Present Western Lambs Are Not of Desirable Mutton Conformation.

There is a possibilty that an excellent market will develop in Eastern Canada, more particularly in Ontario, for Western lambs for finishing purposes. A trail is being made this year in the feeding of several car-loads of Western range lambs by the Swift Canadian Company at Toronto. Mr. A. A. MacMillan Chief of the Sheep and Swine Division of the Live Stock Branch at Ottawa, after examining the lambs being fed found a number of them lacking in desirable mutton conformation, in being too long in leg, neck and body. Mr .MacMillan drew attention to these observations when addressing the Saskatchewan Sheep Breeders' Association at their annual meeting this year ,and advised them that a profitable opening is to develop for western lambs provided they are of the proper mutton type. The market is becoming more and more discriminating in favour of well-finished lambs, weighing not over one hundred ponds. Not only do the shorter legged, thick bodied lambs fininsh into a better selling product but they incline to easier feeding. Mr. MacMillan prophesied a hopeful future for the western sheep raiser who will give attention to the quality of the stock he is able to turn out.

HOME-GROWN

Though a little square plot is the best that you've got, you still can grow food for your table. So, get out the hoe and the shovel; let's go! And garden the best that we're able.

Just don your old clothes, for the average man knows that the dirt and the dust soon will fly. It's almost like play when you dig in the clay, making beds for the seeds you will buy.

Whatever man plants, there is always a chance that he'll have better luck than expected. It pays you to stick to your task, for the kick that you'll get when what grows is collected.

There's something that's real, at the evening time meal, when you dine of the things that you've grown. They're better by far, than the store-bought things are, if the truth of the matter were known.

RAISING SHEEP NOT HARD.

Many people have an idea that sheep are hard to raise. They require no more care than other classes of stock. If farmers would give sheep the care and attention that they give other stock, few farms would be operating without them.

NEW ASSOCIATION STARTS BUSINESS

Millbrook Has Produce Association Opening Shortly —Handle Eggs.

MILLBROOKk March 16.—The general interest taken throughout the district in the newly-formed Millbrook Produce Association will be increased by the announcement that a place of business is being arranged for it, and the date of opening, and the location, will shortly be made public.

It is not the intention of the Association to gather eggs as they can be delivered by the individual producer cheaper than they can be gathered, with less handling and breakage, and a consequent higher grading.

Conditions at present are very favorable for making the Association an outstanding success as the merchants are giving their co-operation, and the benefit of their experience in marketing will be of decided assistance. The directors are anxious to have all interested feel "that this is your Association; it is providing you with the opportunity of obtaining the utmost possible out of your eggs. This result is dependent to a certain extent on the quantity handled by the Association, as the greater the quantity the lower the cost per dozen for handling. With quantity and quality the market hunts us. Split up among several dealers, it is a case of hunt your market. Every competitive dealer operating in your territory, by means of reducing your turnover, is a detriment to your Association, and antagonistic to your personal interests. Let us get together, stick together, and join up every producer in the Millbrook district. 'Join the construction gang, and not the wrecking crew,' the Association urges.

KNOW YOUR NEIGHBORS.

It was the day of the school concert, and the audience consisted mainly of mothers, proud or envious, according to the parts that their children were playing.

One small boy came on to the platform. Striking a bold attitude, he began:

"Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears!"

Whereupon one of the mothers turned to her companion.

"There, that's the Joneses' boy," she said tartly. "He wouldn't be his mother's son if he weren't trying to borrow something."

MAKING SURE.

Going into the playground one day, the schoolmaster found one of his pupils sitting on another who was lying prostrate on the ground. "Oh, Billie," he said, "haven't I always told you to count a hundred before you give way to temper. And here I find you sitting on Tommie's head. What have you to say?"

The child looked up. "I'm counting the hundred, sir," he said, "I really am. But I'm sitting on his head so that he will be here when I've done counting."

EARLY SPRING HURRYS FARMS INTO ACTION

Reports Gathered by Agriculture Department Show Great Activity.

SHOW OPTIMISM

Export Market Open to Alfalfa Growers of Haldimand County.

The following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

In anticipation of an early spring, farmers have commenced to prepare for the busy seeding period, especially in locating and preparing seed grains. The labour market has become much more active during the week and there are quite a number of men being placed at wages approximating last year's level. Ploughing weather would be appreciated in many sections to complete the turning over of ground which had to be left last fall on account of drought. Reports this week are generally more optimistic concerning the welfare of wheat and clover. All realize that the trying time is to come but in the Southern part of the Province, where the fields are bare, they look promising. In Kent County growth has started. Snow still covers these crops in the North and there is ice in parts of central and eastern Ontario. No orchard damage has been reported. Owing to improvement in the prices of market hogs, there has been a revival of interest and increased prices in breeding and feeding classes. Brood sows in Huron County are selling from $40 to $60 and young pigs at about $5.00. Bruce reports more cattle than usual being wintered but fow being grain fed. It has been estimated that there is 50% more grain in farmers' hands in Lambton County than the average for this time of year. Good seed will be scarce this season and farmers are warned to investigate germination capacity very carefully before depending on any particular lot. Potatoes coming out of storage in some districts show considerable loss due to rot. A comparatively ynew industry in this country is thriving in Haldimand, where farmers are hauling alfalfa hay to a local mill which has secured a satisfactory export market.

Bruce.—There has been possibly a larger number of cattle fed during the past winter than during recent years. However, they have been fed largely on roughages. It has been started by a number of dealers that there are comparatively few grain fed cattle to be had. Consequently the most of the cattle will be finished on grass during the coming season. A carload of hogs shipped from Lucknow recently graded 60 per cent. selects. It is reported by a number of sheep breeders that the losses in the lamb crop are smaller this year than a year ago.

Durham.—All live stock has been wintered well. There has been plenty of hay and straw and coarse grains. A load of Western two and three year grade Clyde colts, of fair type but rough, sold at Port Hope recently at prices varying from $40 to $80. Winter egg production has been higher this year than usual.

Hastings.—Mr. C. Wright, one of our Junior Farmers of West Huntingdon and a member of the West Huntingdon Bacon Hog Club, has started to reap the benefits of this club. He received a premium from the drover. This is the first lot of hogs sold which were sired by this boar.

Huron.—Hogs are enjoying a comparative boom at present. Sows that could hardly be given away three or four months ago are worth $50 to $60 at present. Small pigs are worth around $5 each.

Kenora.—A great number of farmers are having their stock tested for tuberculosis in an endeavour to clean up the disease in this district, with a result that there is now a keen demand for good dairy cattle that have been tested. Money is scarce but were it not for this one would have no difficulty in disposing of two or three carload of tested stock to farmers here.

Lambton.—Owing to the dry weather of last fall a great deal of the fall plowing was not completed. This is having its reaction on the number of acres contracting for sugar beets. In many instances the farmer did not get his plowing done in fields intended for sugar beets.

Lennox and Addington.—The weather has been cold until yesterday. Snow is going rapidly now. The shortage of water has been overcome. There is an increased interest in poultry this spring. At least a dozen stove brooders have been sold locally. Eggs are hatching well. One lot of 210 eggs at the community hatchery produced 160 strong chicks.

Victoria.—Reports of farm sales would seem to indicate that live stock prices are on the up grade. Out of 123 head of steers shipped from the county 99 graded good, and 24 common. This would indicate that live stock are being fairly well finished before being marketed.

FARMERS' BOYS SEE THE WORLD

BERLIN, March 16 (Associated Press).—A group of farmers of Pomerania are planning an exchange of their sons with farmers' sons of equal age in other parts of Germany. The purpose is to give the boys a broader view of life, and an opportunity to observe and become familiar with agricultural methods other than those of their home districts.

TIME TO PRUNE BERRIES.

Early spring, before the buds have begun to swell and after the danger of very low temperature is gone, is the right time to prune raspberries and blackberries. Cut out all the old canes which bore fruit last season.

READING, Pa., March 16.—Lyons Sarcastic Korndyke, a purebred Holstein-Friesian cow, has just completed a 10-months' test with a butterfat record which makes her the world's leading junior four-year-old over all breeds.

Her 305-day record was 854.88 pounds of butter fat (1,068.6 pounds of butter) and 24,062.3 pounds of milk. She gave birth to a 130-pound bull calf, carried for 200 days of the test period.

Lyons Sarcastic Korndyke broke the world's record for butterfat production in 10 months also as a junior three-year-old.

The new world's champion is on the farm of Abner S. Deysher at Sinking Springs, Pa.

A ration consisting of home-mixed grains, including oil meal, cocoanut meal, molasses and beet pulp, with considerable quantities of good corn silage and alfalfa hay, was fed.

Charlotte Lyons Korndyke, mother of the new champion, also has a spectacular record.

In 10 months this aristocratic ancestor of Lyons Sarcastic Korndyke produced 1,032.81 pounds of butter and 21,323.40 pounds of milk. She carried a calf for 191 days during this time.

In 365 days the same year her record was: Pounds of butter, 1,179.35; milk, 23, 866.5.

PLANTING AND CARE OF ROSES

Earth Must be Carefully Packed Around Roots and Well Watered.

SPRAY OFTEN

(Miss Anna Moyle for the Ontario Horticultural Association.)

I had the rose bed prepared in the fall of 1923, where a compost heap had been for two years. Well rotted stable manure was dug in and the ground left rough for the frost to break up, as it is stiff, cold clay.

In the Spring a sprinkling of air slacked lime was dug in and the bed left to settle.

When the rose bushes came, they were placed in a tub of water for an hour a hole dug large enough to lay all the roots out straight, one bush taken from the water, pruned back to give inches, placed in the hole, and half of the earth sprinkled in by hand, and well worked in among the roots. This was firmed with the foot, and well watered.

Proceed the same with the others, taking care that the plant is set, not less than two and a half, and not more than three inches below the bud, or the point where the variety has been budded to the stock.

When all are in, go back to the first one planted and nearly fill the hole with earth, firm again with the foot, then draw up the remainder of the earth and leave a loose covering around the plant. This is to prevent the earth baking if the sun gets very hot.

In a few days they were well sprayed with Bordeaux, as soon as leaves began to show were given another application.

When buds appeared, half a teaspoon nitrate of soda was forked in around each plant, in two weeks half a cup of fine bone meal (after a good rain).

Cultivated regularly, sprayed with nicotine for aphis, they bloomed till frost, and they had been blooming in one of the greenhouses in the village all winter.

The Purpose

This much I know: This little gift of years,
Which men call life, on me has been bestowed;
I have been set upon the open road
I have been set upon the open road
To journey through the sunshine and the tears,
To fashion something out of hopes and fears,
And doubts and little facts—a form or mode,
Which neither shame nor weakness can corrode,
And wait for judgment when the end appears.

I did not ask to come, nor do I know
How long my pilgrimage, nor whence nor why;
But still I feel all this will clearly show
Sometime, somewhere beneath a fair sky;
And then I hope I shall not blush to see
The finished thing I shall have made of me.

FARMERS HOPE TO BEGIN WORK

Very Little Snow Left to Cover Fall Grain Crop.

SONG BIRDS RETURN

COBOURG, March 16.—A lady reported to-day that while walking from her home down the street she saw two robins and a song sparrow. Crows have been heard "cawing" around for a couple of weeks and a citizen reports seeing a blue wax-wing. Other Summer songsters have been seen and heard also here within the last few days.

Fall Grain and Clover.

Excepting the little bit of snow that remains around the fences, the fields of fall wheat and rye and the clover acreage in this district, lies bare at the present time. Fall grain is looking well yet, but farmers fear for the continuance of this good condition. Some agriculturists in town today recalled the fact, that they had in some long past years been on the land to do Spring worok by the 17th of March. They are hoping that the present prospect of an early Spring may prove to be a correct one.

Motor Traffice Increasing.

This week there has been a marked increase of motors upon the Provincial Highway passing through the town. The highway from Cobourg to Toronto, and also east to Belleville is stated to be in good condition.

BOMB SUGAR CANE FROM AEROPLANES

Hawaiians Will Scatter Preventive Powder to Fight Eyespot Pest.

HONOLULU, March 16. —(AP).—Negotiations for the use of army airplanes to "bomb" the sugar cane fields of Hawaii with preventive dust in the fight against the eyespot pest, are in progress between headquarters of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, and it expected that the initial experiment probably will be made within a few months.

The work will be along the same lines as the method used in Texas and other states where airplanes have been used in dusting cotton fields to combat the boll-weevil. The estimated annual loss to plantations on Oahu through the effects of the fungus causing the eyespot disease is $100,000.

STRAWBERRY TIME.

Strawberries should be grown on rather fertile soil, preferably soil that has been manured during the winter before. The best time to plant the Standard variety is in early spring, although late fall planting is no less successful.

The Dear Old Biddy Hen

When all the bards of early spring
Bring out their pens and write,
While yet the snowflakes fill the air
And wild ducks take their flight,
'Tis all about the favorite birds
That cheer the hearts of men;
The cheeriest bird that I have seen
Is the humble Biddy Hen.

They picture robin redbreast plump,
The first to greet the ear,
And tell about the meadow-lark
That sings so sweet and clear,
And then the charming bluebird slides
Adown their nimble pen;
But not a word about my pet—
The dear old Biddy Hen.

Let poets sing, in later spring,
Beside the babbling brook,
When snows have fled from mossy bed
And from the dreamy nook,
And tell the charms of all the birds
From blue jay down to wren;
The sweetest music I have heard
Was from the Biddy Hen.

"Kut-kut-ka-docket," is her song.
And "caw-caw-caw," she says,
For then she's in a laying mood,
And I know where she lays.
So when the poets have their say,
I'll just remark again:
There's nothing in this wide world like
A laying Biddy Hen.

STAGE SERVED EARLY FARMERS

Montreal to Hamilton Was Line of Travel—Fare in Advance.

HELPED COBOURG

COBOURG, March 16.— William Weller, who did a great deal to build up Cobourg, for many years ran a line of mail stages between Montreal and Hamilton, with head office at Cobourg, where there was also a large repair and blacksmith shop. Mr. Weller continued this service up to 1856, when the Grand Trunk Railway was opened for traffic. The late Bernard McAllister of Cobourg, in writing of this mode of travel says:

"Mr. Weller's stage line was no small affair when we know that for every fourteen or fifteen miles there was a relay of horses. It was a four-horse coach with at least four fresh horses every fifteen miles, and men to feed them and have them in readiness at different points all the way from Hamilton to Montreal. Often some travellers who were out of funds would ask Mr. Weller for a pass. He would refuse and scold, but would tell the agent or bookkeeper in the office to issue the pass. He seldom ultimately refused."

Operated for 21 Years.

Mr. Weller's stage line was in operation at least from 1835 to 1856 and possibly before the former date. It was known as "The Telegraph Line." Whether or not this name was due to the despatch with which he landed the Governor-General in Montreal upon one occasion, is not known. In an advertisement in The Upper Canada Gazette, he engages to take passengers "through by daylight on the Lake Road during the winter season." This advertisement referred presumably to the stage route from Toronto to Hamilton.

Stage Every Four Days.

Another advertisement in the early Toronto press announced that on the 20th of September, 1816, a stage would commence running between York and Niagara. It was further announced that it would leave York every Monday and reach Niagara on Thursday. The baggage was to be considered at the risk of the owner and the fare was to be paid in advance. The mails were conveyed the same distance in three days.

The Yearly Express.

All this was a great improvement upon the time when Quebec was divided into Upper and Lower Canada, and when what was afterwards Ontario assumed the functions of a separate province. At that time Upper Canada had about 20,000 white inhabitants. There was only one mail post from England in the course of a year, and it was called as if in mockery "The Express." A reference to this Express in a post office advertisement in The Quebe Gazette of 1792, says:

"A mail for the Upper Countries comprehending Niagara and Detroit will be closed at this office on Monday, the 30th inst., at 4 o'clock in the evening, to be forwarded to Montreal by the Annual Winter express on Thursday, the 3rd of February next."

Passengers Booked at "The Coffin."

Dr. Henry Scadding in his historical notes on Old Toronto, tells of an old building, which was wedged in between others in a gore where "Market Street from the West entered Front Street at an acute angle." The building which sprang up "in conforming to its site, assumed the shape of a coffin." Dr. Scadding adds, "The foot of this ominous structure was the office where travellers booked themselves for various parts in the stages that from time to time started from York." This was truly a disconcerting sendoff for a journey which was not without its perils and hardships.

Near this spot in Toronto was erected the Ontario House Hotel, built in a style common then in the United States. A row of lofty pillars, in fact they were well-grown pines, which had been stripped of their bark and planed. They reached from the ground to the eaves and supported two tiers of galleries, which running behind the columns, did not interrupt their vertical lines. Another famous hotel in the vicinity was known as the "Steaboat Hotel," and was conspicuous because of the picture of a steam-packet of vast dimensions painted upon it and extending the whole length of the building. Ulick Hoverd was in the twenties of the last century, the proprietor of this hotel.

LARGER ACREAGE OF FALL WHEAT SOWN LAST FALL

Farmers in Hamilton Township Were Encouraged by Higher Prices.

GROW MORE ALFALFA

Is Advice of F. C. Paterson, Agricultural Representative for Durham County.

COBOURG, March 16.—A leading agriculturist of Hamilton Township is authority for the statement that considerably more fall wheat than usual was sown in this district last autumn. The reason given for this is that wheat has been commanding a higher price the last few months than for years before. If it is too early yet to estimate upon its condition. The fields are quite bare and grain is looking well at the present time, but everything depends upon weather conditions from now on.

There is not very much agitation as yet among farmers over securing hired help for the coming season. A young man who claimed to have had experience in farm work was here last week, but did not secure a situation to his liking, and went on to another township. A number of men, however, are being placed by the agricultural representative in this district.

Grow More Alfalfa.

F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative for Durham County, strongly advises every farmer in the county to grow alfalfa. His contention is that if every farmer would grow this clover, there would be much less talk about hard times and about there being no money in farming. Every farm, worth calling a farm, he contends, should have its field of alfalfa.

Auction Sales Held.

Mr. Oscar E. Dingman, who resides about three miles east of Morganston, had a sale of Percheron horses and pure-bred and high grade Holstein cattle on Wednesday.

Mr. Roy Machie had a sale of his pure and high grade stock and implements at his home three miles west of Dartford on Friday.

$11.50 For Hogs.

A hog buyer who went through the Hillier District during the last few days, offered 11½ cents per pound, and quite a number of farmers, who had hogs for sale, took advantage of his offer.

Western Horses in Demand.

That there is still a demand for horses in this district was evidenced by a sale of western horses at Port Hope one day recently. A string of twenty found buyers in less than an hour.

Talked Consolidated Schools.

The Farmers' Club in the English settlement in Murray Township discussed consolidation of schools at their last session. Mrs. Frank Moran gave an interesting paper on the topic. The question is one of great interest.

Hope Road Superintendent.

Mr. Wilfrid Lindsay has been appointed road superintendent by the municipal council of the Township of Hope. He is to receive 35 cents an hour.

Stock Judging Competition.

Ontario County branch of the Department of Agriculture has arranged for a two-day series of lectures and demonstrations which open on Monday. There will be livestock judging, especially designed for boys and young men under twenty-five, and the object is to give them practice in the judging of stock, preparatory to the Annual Ontario County Live Stock Judging Competition to be held late in the spring, and for other competitions held at the annual fairs.

Stock Sales.

A number of the outstanding breeders of South Ontario took a progressive step when they met recently at Myrtle Station for the purpose of taking the initiatory step in the organization of an association to co-operate in holding sales of the various breeds of stock produced in the county. A second meeting was held at Brooklin on Saturday to further plans.

Sale of Farm Properties.

Mr. Wellington Miller has purchased the farm of Mr. Richard Bedford near Consecon Station.

Mrs. Jos. Flynn has sold to Amanda Taylor, it is stated, a farm in Haldimand Township.

Mr. Wilfrid W. Chatterson has sold several lots in the same locality to John B. Harmden.

Young Men's Plowing Matches.

At the annual meeting of Prince Edward County Plowmen's Association it was suggested that the winner of the boys' class at the local plowing match attend and enter the Provincial Plowing Mateh under Association rules. Further, that the Association advises a class for young men plowing on their home farms, such plowing to be judged and prizes awarded by the Association.

POTATOES ON HIGH.

The Blue Mountain section of Oregon, at an elevation of 2,500 feet or more, has become a successful place to grow seed potatoes for certification. As soon as the potatoes are dug they are put into pits where the snow protects them from frost and keeps them dormant.

KEEP TREES VIGOROUS.

Borers prefer weakened fruit and shade trees. To prevent injury by this class of insects, keep the trees strong and vigorous. Dead and dying trees should be cut down and burned.

CALDER FINES EACH TIGER $200 FOR REFUSING TO PLAY FINALS

"Won't Pay It, and Will Ruin the Hamilton Club," Says Shorty Green.

RUMORS RIFE

Fans Divided, But All Disgusted at Disgraceful End of Great Season.

HAMILTON, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Rumors flew thick and fast in this city yesterday anent the future of professional hockey here, but, as usual, none was correct.

The first one stated that the Hamilton N.H.L. Club had been sold to Tex Rickard, the New York promoter, for the sum of $110,000. The second was to the effect that the Hamilton players would go to the United States in a body and play for one of the clubs in the proposed International League.

Officials of the Hamilton Club denied the report that Rickard had bought the franchise for New York. No offer has ever been received, they said. The players also professed ignorance of their supposed migration to the United States.

The players' demand for a $200 bonus and the club's refusal to "come through" is the big, in fact, the only topic in local sporting circles. The majority of fans blame the management, some say the players are at fault; all are agreed that it was a disgraceful ending to a great hockey season.

It is reported that President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League has imposed a $200 fine on all of the Hamilton professional players as a result of their refusal to stage the play-off series with Canadiens unless given a special cash bonus.

"Shorty" Green, the Sudbury flash, captain of the Hamilton team, when made aware of Calder's fine, said: "We will not pay the fine. We will go out of the League, but in doing so we will ruin the Hamilton club. That's our decision."

SKI RUNNING IS PREHISTORIC ART

Described in Books Written in South in Sixth Century.

UPSALA, Sweden, March 14. — (Associated Press).—In Sweden ski running is at least 14 centuries old and probably dates back to prehistoric times, according to Prof. Otto von Friesen of the University of Upsala. A runastone at Boeksta, not far from here, shows a picture of a ski runner and it is probable that long before they knew how to write runes the Swedes learned the art of skiing from the nomadic Lapps and Finns. Prof. Friesen says that in the sixth century southern European writers described hunters in Sweden who were able to glide through the forest at high speed. The ruhestone, which dates from the middle of the eleventh century, proves that ski running was then common in Sweden.

In the Viking age skis were in frequent use. Winter sports had a special divinity, Ull, who was himself devoted to the use of skis. Outwardly he was the symbol of the bright, sunny winter day that stimulates to outdoor life and warlike games. Roads being rare, the skis furnished means of communication, no matter how severe the winter, and speed on them was highly esteemed.

2,075,803 At 73 Games In English Soccer Cup Play

The lure of the Association Football Cup has been so great this season in England that the attendance at the seventy-three matches played in the first three rounds reached the enormous total of 2,075,803, with the huge gate of £143,309. In the first round there were forty-one matches, the attendance being 1,010,000 and the receipts £66,935; in the second round there were twenty-two matches, the attendance being 678,613 and the receipts £47,780, and in the third round there were ten matches, the attendance being 387,190 and the receipts £28,594. In the third round the largest outpouring of fans was at the game between West Bromwich and Aston Villa, which drew 64,612 for a gate of £3,888. The largest receipts were at the Spurs-Blackburn match, 54,521 persons paying £3,908, while all records for the Bramall-land grounds were broken by the 51,745, who paid £3,430 to see Sheffield United beat Everton.

THREE TEAMS WERE OFFERED NEW YORK

Madison Square Garden Signed Up for Five Years.

NEW YORK, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Announcement that three complete professional hockey teams had been offered to T. J. Duggan, president and owner of the New York Hockey Club, and that consideration was to be given shortly to plans for an all-American or new International circuit by New York promoters, ere thwe high lights in hockey circles here over the week-end.

Following a meeting on Saturday which was attended by Tex Rickard, Col. John T. Hammond, representing Madison Square Garden, Mr. Duggan and Tommy Gorman, manager of the new New York team, it was announced that Mr. Duggan had closed an exclusive contract for professional ice hockey privileges at Madison Square Garden, and that Mr. Gorman would sign a five-year contract with the New York Hockey Club as manager with a part interest.

Messrs. Duggan and Gorman will represent New York interests at the next meeting of the National Hockey Association.

No action has as yet been taken on the project to form an all-American professional ice hockey league which would include clubs of such cities as Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, but it is authoritatively stated that a scheme to form such a circuit has been suggested to New York promoters. Interviewed last night, Mr. Duggan said of the three offers made to him of complete teams two were under consideration, the third having been turned down. Someone, he said, has been going through Quebec and Ontario making overtures to hockey stars. This man had no connection with the New York Hockey Club, but was apparently seeking material for a team to represent New York in the United States Amateur Hockey League.

VARSITY TRIMS NIAGARA FALLS

Give O.H.A. Senior Champs 5-1 Beating in Eastern Finals.

RETURN TUESDAY.

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press).—History is well on its way to repeat. In 1920, Varsity were beaten in the O.H.A. series, but qualified for the Allen Cup playdowns by winning the Inter-Collegiate championship. The Collegians then eliminated the Sudbury Wolves who had just come through two hard games with Granites and reached the finals for the Canadian title. And this season Varsity were again among the also rans in the O.H.A. series, but winning the college honors got them into the Eastern finals for the Allan Cup, and in the first game at the Arena on Saturday night, the leg weary players from the Village of Roar went down to defeat by the score of 6 to 1. But they went down battling to the end, though they could hardly push one foot ahead of the other. A five goal margin to make up in the return game at the Falls tomorrow looms up like a mighty task for any team, but for one that has played 34 games, with not an easy contest in the lot, it appears to be an almost impossible undertaking.

SPORTS DISCOURAGE DRINKING

VARSITY CO-EDS DEFEAT ALERTS

Ottawa Girls, Twice Champions of Ontario League, Lost at Home 4 to 1.

WAS REAL HOCKEY

OTTAWA, March 16.—(By Canadian Press).—With a display of speed, backchecking and combination play that would have done credit to many boys' teams, Toronto Varsity's Ladies Hockey team defeated the Alerts here Saturday night by a score of 4 goals to 1. The margin represented by the score is a good indication of the visitors' superiority on the night's play, over the twice Ontario champions and holders of the Robertson trophy. As that was the first of a two-game series for the championship of the Ontario Ladies Amateur Hockey League, the second game of which will be played in Toronto this week, the Varsity girls have a comfortable margin to work on in the final encounter.

Judging by the form displayed here Saturday, they will have no great trouble in lifting the title and the trophy from the locals.

Brilliant combination plays, coupled with good goal tending and tireless backchecking brought the verdict to the Torontonians. Their four goals were all well-earned tallies that were the direct results of combination plays. They were too speedy for the Alerts, who with the exception of Edith Anderson and Shirley Moulds, could make little headway against the blue and white.

Alerts Score First.

Miss Moulds gave the Alerts the lead in less than three minutes when she rushed alone and beat Miss McIlroy from the corner for the opening goal. In two minutes more Varsity tied the score on a beautiful play. Marian Hilliard took Doris Ross' pass inside the Alerts' defence and when the goaler came out she returned the pass to Miss Ross who scored from the goal mouth.

The second period saw two more goals go to Varsity. Miss Hilliard rushed with Marjorie Ross and gave the latter the pass for the goal that put Varsity in the lead in six minutes. One minute later Miss Hilliard again carried the puck down, and after her shot had hit the net and gone behind, she retrieved it and passed out in front to Olive News, who rapped it home on a smart shot.

The only goal of the third period went to Doris Ross. When Molly Donaldson rushed and was checked at the Aletrs' defence, the puck went loose. Miss Ross pounced on it and took her time to pick the corner for the finally tally. The time was 11.00.

Best Seen in Ottawa.

The game was probably the best ladies hockey seen here. Varsity's work was giltedged all the way with Olive News and Marian Hilliard standing out as the best players on the ice. The former was the star backchecked of the game, while Miss Hilliard showed clever hockey both ways. Shirley Moulds was the best of the Alerts' although the goal tending of Florence Dawson was worth mention.

Not a penalty was inflicted by Referee Billy Smith.

The teams:

Varsity—Goal, Thora McIlroy; defence, Molly Donaldson and Marjorie Ross; center, Doris Ross; left wing, Marian Hilliard; right wing, Olive News; subs, Alice Taylor and Marjorie Fenwick.

VICTORIA HELD CALGARY TO TIE IN FIRST FINAL

Opening Game of Western "Pro" Series Saw Fast and Clean Hockey.

RECORD CROWD

Return Game in Victoria on Wednesday to Decide Western Winners.

CALGARY, Alta., March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Victoria Cougars and Calgary Tigers will renew their struggle for the Western Canada Hockey League championship at Victoria on Wednesday on even terms as a result of battling to a 1-1 score in the first game of the home-and-home series here Saturday night.

Both goals were scored in the third period and the draw is fair criterion of the play. The Tigers probably had the edge in the territory play but it was a fifty-fifty proposition so far as dangerous shots were concerned.

It was a close checking contest with each Calgary player marking a Victoria player and, as a result, the hockey, while fast and thrilling, was not as spectacular as many of the regular league games.

Two Quick Goals.

The team had hit up a lightning pace for slightly over forty-five minutes before a shot located the net and it was thirty-three seconds later that the other goal was counted. It fell on Jack Walker, hero of many crucial games, to give the Cougars the lead. He went from end-to-end at a terrific pace and just after passing the blue line he took a chance with a backhand lift. The puck travelled about four feet high and just managed to lodge below the cross bar behind Winkler. Before the fans had a chance to realize that Victoria was ahead, Oatman and Wilson staged a rush that equalled the count. Oatman was forced to the boards after crossing the blue line and passed the puck out in front. Fortunately, it went beyond the Cougars' defence and Wilson recovered and placed a shot that beat Homes all the way.

Heavy Checking.

Considering that the play was so fast and that there was so much depending upon the result, the play, while featured by heavy close checking, was free from roughness.

The Cougars apparently had instructions to play a defensive game in the hope of holding the Tigers, and they were successful. They had three men in front of Homes throughout and at no stage of the melee did the defence weaken. The Tigers featured in skating, their speed being the fastest of the season.

Holmes and Winkler stood out, both showing marvellous form in the nets. Dutton, who had been out of the game for three weeks, because of an injured knee, returned to action and played an important part in the performance, although he was not taking any chances.

Arena Packed.

The arena was packed to the roof, the crowd being the largest and most enthusiastic that ever witnessed a hockey contest in Calgary. The Cougars leave for home Sunday morning, while the Tigers will go west Monday afternoon.

The Cougars, with home and a home crowd to cheer them on, will have the advantage in the final game, but the Tigers will take some beating now that Dutton will be in the play.

The teams:

Victoria—Goal, Holmes; defence, Fraser and Loughlin; forwards, Frederickson, Hart and Walker; subs., Meeking, Anderson, Foyston and Halderson.

Calgary—Goal, Winkler; defence, Dutton and Gardiner; forwards, Sparrow, Oliver and Crawford; subs, Mackay, Oatman, McFarlane and Wilson.

Referee—Ion; Judge of play, Rattell.

The summary:

First Period.

No score.

Second Period.

No score.

Third Period.

1. Victoria ....Walker..... 5.13
2. Calgary....Wilson (Oatman) 5.16

FIRST DIVISION ENGLISH CLUBS RETAIN PLACES

Huddersfield Town Win Listless Game from Spurs—Bromwich Lost Chance.

TIED WITH ROVERS

Leicester Continue Victories, Beating Fulham by 4 to 0.

LONDON, March 16.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Huddersfield Town strengthened their hold on the First Division of the English League on Saturday when they emerged from their tilt with the Hotspurs with a two-to-nothing victory. Coupled with the fact that West Bromwich, who had been bracketed with them for leadership, were forced to accept a draw on their own ground from Blackburn Rovers, the Town's win enabled them to take a stride forward and break the deadlock.

Saturday's games went bad for the Metropolitan Clubs, both Tottenham and Arsenal being defeated, the latter by Nott's County. Huddersfield Town's win over the 'Spurs came after a listless first half, followed, up the last ten minutes of the game, by a featureless second period. It was in the few remaining minutes before the final whistle that the Town really woke up. Their determined tactics brought them their first victory on the 'Spurs' ground.

Arsenal were unlucky at Notts County for the reason that Donald Cock, their centre forward, who had recently been transferred from Notts County, broke his leg while playing against his old club. This was a costly loss for the Highbury team, since Cock's transfer is said to have pried them loose from the vicinity of £4,000.

The leaders of the first division underwent no change of position as a result of the encounters, the first five teams retaining their places. West Bromwich lost an opportunity when they were held to a one-goal draw by Blackburn Rovers, but they ecntinue to have a game in their pocket over Huddersfield Town. Newcastle United handed out an expected trimming to Burnley, even though the Tynesiders had to travel to Lancashire to do it. But Burnley have been able recently to emerge from the danger zone of relegation and at the moment are in a comfortable enough position. Newcastle are running third in the League race.

Whitewashed Villa.

Bolton Wanderers whitewashed Aston Villa when they stacked up four goals, which brought no response whatever from the Villa. The latter seem to have lost all their sand since they were put out of the cup fight and are themselves travelling along in the lowliest of company.

Cardiff City were in good Cup form against Notts Forest, who, by virtue of a convincing defeat and also by a win for Preston North End, have now dropped to the lowest rung in the ladder.

Beadles, of the City, injured his shoulder and was unable to resume after the interval. At that, however, with ten men the Welshmen were able to trounce the Foresters.

Bury, who are running fifth to Bolton Wanderers, should have been defeated at Sunderland on Saturday, for on play the home side were many points superior. But the result was a one-goal tie. Bury were leading at half time and in the initial frame they had done fairly well. The home team speeded up in the second period, however, and equalized. They allowed many chances to go a-begging and were weak in front of the goal.

A hard fight at Birmingham saw the Midlanders emerge with a draw against West Ham. The play was productive of excellent football and the game was fast and keen throughout.

Second Division.

The second division saw Leicester City assume a threateneing position against Derby County. Leicester's brilliant career of victories was continued when they totally outplayed Fulham and served up a four to nothing win to their fans. Duncan shot in three of the city's goals. This game put Leicester into second place in the league race. Their scoring average is large, 79 goals for to 28 against, a proportion of almost three to one. They have established themselves as the heaviest scoring club in the league, while their defence has been excellent, the 28 goals getting through in 31 games. Leicester City are now in a fair way to carry off the honors of the second division, or at least to travel with either Derby County or Manchester United into the first division next season.

Derby County failed badly against the fine Southampton team. The latter are now in great Cup-tie form, being aspirants in the semi-finals against Sheffield United, and they are capable of upsetting many of the outstanding second division clubs. An example of this ability was manifest by their win over Derby County, two goals being piled up against the leaders.

Coventry City, like their "vis-a-vis," Preston North End of the First Division, crawled out of the cellar on Saturday and climbed up two places over Stoke and Barnsley. Coventry defeated Barnsley 3 goals to two.

PATRICKS BEAT HIBERNIANS 3-1

Edinburgh Team Soundly Defeated—Lost Good Opportunity Saturday.

SIX GAMES PLAYED

GLASGOW, March 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—Due to the international game at Everton Saturday, only six of the scheduled fixtures of the First Scottish Division were played, the contests slated for Ibrox Park, Paisley and for Third Lanark being unplayed. The weather was ideal for football and the attendances good.

After the sensational midweek victory of Hibernians over the Rangers, the Easter Road Club were expected to do big things against Partrick Thistle. They served up one of the biggest disappointments of the season, when Partick trimmed them and trimmed them badly. Three goals to one was the count the West of Scotland rolled up against their Edinburgh rivals. The Thistle were in their brightest form and their victory was won entirely on their merits. Salisbury, Grave and Miller counted for Partick, with McColl registering the Hibernians' orphan goal.

Tynecastle Park was the scene of a "near sensation, when Kilmarnock administered a severe fright to Heart of Milothian. The Ayrshire men scored first, Dunlop acquiring the tally, but Green got his customary counter for the locals and the game stood equal until the last sound of the whistle.

Queen's Park Lose.

Queen's Park, who are now in a bad fix, put themselves into a worse one when they failed to hold the Hamilton forwards, with the result that the Academicals ran up three goals to one against them. Miller counted two of the winners' tallies with Gibson getting the add. Nicholson scored for the "Amateurs."

Cowdenheadth, who were promoted from the Second Division this season, got a brilliant and well-deserved victory over the Celtic at Cowdenheath, when they sent in three shots that defeated Celtic's net tender. Celtic were without McGley, who was playing at Everton, and they took things easy in view of their cup-tie replay against St. Mirren today. Devlin, with two goals and Pullar with one, did all the scoring for Cowdenheath. The game was won in the second half.

Ayr United made a manful effort to extricate themselves from a compromising position when they stacked up three goals to two against Raith Rovers. The Kirkcaldy team battled well and valiantly, but the United, faced with relegation, were out in full strength. Tolland, Brae and MacKenzie were the stars for the home team, with James and Millar counting for the Fifeshire club.

Dundee's orphan goal against Motherwell was obtained by Rankin in a gruelling encounter.

Airdrie Heading.

As matters stand in the First Division, the Airdrieonians continue to head the league, with Hibernians following in second place and Rangers third. Hibernians lost a fine chance Saturday, when they failed to get further ahead and close up the small gap between themselves and Airdrie.

The fourth round replay of the Scottish Cup between Celtic and St. Mirren, the second replay for each team, will take place today.

REGINA JUNIORS ARE CHAMPIONS

Defeat Calgary for Western Title and Meet Eastern... Next.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 16.—After striving valiantly for many years, the Regina Pats reached the pinnacle and their goal—the right to travel east in quest of the Canadian junior hockey championship.

For the second time in three days the Regina puck chasers took the measure of the Calgary Canadians, defeating the Alberta champions bp a score of 4 to 3 Saturday night and as a result of their 2 to 1 victory in the initial game won the round 6 to 4 and with it the Abbott Cup, emblematic of the Western Canada honors.

Undoubtedly the series was the best played on local ice this season, while Saturday's game was not as fast as the first game, it was crammed with thrilling incidents which had the 4,000 fans cheering and groaning through 60 minutes of hockey which were filled with exciting play.

Superior finish and ability to take advantage of the opportunities were the deciding factors in the Pats' victory. While great praise is due to the Regina boys, for their triumph, enough credit cannot be given to the Calgary team for their brilliant shooting, and only some hard luck prevented them from turning in a win.

While Regina was by far the more dangerous team, Calgary on the night had slightly the better of the territorial play. The break that decided the series came after seven minutes of play in the second session. When Calgary, playing a man short, Acaster went down, but it was checked and Morrison pounced on the loose puck and banged in a shot which did not leave the ice and had Gleason completely out of position. Just eight seconds later, Acaster secured the puck from the face-off and sent in a drive from outside the defence which went through Gleason's pads for the softest goal of the series. Before the period ended, Regina added another tally.

AURA LEE IN JUNIOR FINALS

Beat Sudbury Wolf Cubs 7-5 After Twenty Minutes' Overtime.

SONS OF IRELAND NEXT.

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Once Again Bill Marsden's game little team wearing the red and white of the Aura Lee A. C. has come through in the pinch with colors flying, and when the kids whose hockey Wily Bill developed alt by himself defeated the Sudbury Wolf Clubs, 4 to 2, in twenty minutes of overtime Saturday afternoon, they eliminated from the O. H. A. Memorial Cup series one of the strongest teams that the N.O.H.A. has ever sent to Toronto. The score on the round was 7 to 5 and Aura Lee will now play Sons of Ireland, champions of Quebec and Ottawa Districts, a sudden death game at the Arena tomorrow night. The winners meet Regina Pats or Fort William in the finals for the Memorial Cup and the Canadian Championship here next week.

O.A.S.A. MEETS IN NEXT MONTH

Softball Enthusiasts Have Opportunity to Co-ordinate Rules of Game.

HINTS SOUGHT.

The Sporting Editor:

Dear Sir,—Last year about this time a circular was forwarded to as many of the papers of which I could obtain addresses. The idea of this was to try and show the Sporting Public, by the aid of the different papers throughout the Province, the importance of organized Softball. In a number of cases we received letters asking for information in this connection and as a lot of these places promised to enter the O.A.S.A. in the coming year or at least send delegates to our Annual Meeting, we are writing you to see if it would not be possible for you to publish in your valuable sporting page some information in regards to the Softball Association.

It is possible that the young men in your section are playing Softball under different rules to what our Organization uses and I am sure that if any one could show us where they are obtaining better results and have a better set of rules, that our organization would be only too glad to discuss these thoroughly. This is one reason why I would like to have as many as possible at our Annual Meeting, and I am sure that we would make them very welcome.

The information which I would like to be given out is as follows; "The Annual Meeting of the Ontario Amateur Softball Assoc., to be held at Galt, Ontario on Good Friday, April 10th 1925. Nominations for officers must be in the hands of the Secretary two weeks prior to the Annual Meeting. Also notices of proposed alterations in our O.A.S.A. Constitution; By-laws and Rules, must be in the hands of the Secretary two weeks prior to our Annual Meeting."

Hoping that you will see your way clear to give us a very small space on your Sporting Page in this connection, and I am sure that it will do a great deal towards the furthering of Softball throughout the entire province.

Yours truly,
F. JEFFERESS,
Secretary Ontario Amateur Softball Association, Brantford.

STANLEY CUP DATES.

Pro Play-offs to Start March 21 in Calgary or Victoria.

CALGARY, Alta., March 16. — (Canadian Press). — Dates for the Stanley Cup series were announced last night by President E. L. Richardson, of the Western Canada Hockey League. If Calgary wins the championship the Tigers will play the Canadiens here Saturday, March 21, at Vancouver, March 23, 27, 30, and April 1st if the fifth game should be necessary.

But if Victoria wins the Cougars will meet Canadiens at home March 21st, at Vancouver Monday, March 23, and the balance of the games in Victoria.

CHURCH LEAGUE HOCKEY.

Fast Game in Junior Series at Brock Street To-night.

Knox Church Juniors meet St. James Juniors in a league game at Brock Street Arena tonight, from 7 to 8, both teams have lost one game. The winner of this game has a good chance of winning the league championship, which is held at present by George Street Juniors.

Knox beat St. James in the first game, 6 to 0, but the St. James' Juniors think they can reverse it this time.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

The modern record for stealing bases during a season is 96 and was made by Ty Cobb in 1915. Incidentally Cobb was caught trying to pilfer on 38 occasions the same year, a record number of tossouts.

Back in 1888 Harry Stovey, while playing with Philadelphia in the old American Association, swiped 150 sacks and three years later Billy Hamilton stole 115 as a member of the Phillies.

SOCCER STAR QUITS GAME

George Elliott, the noted forward of the Middlesbrough soccer football eleven of England, has announced his retirement at the end of the present season. His career began with the Tees-side club sixteen seasons ago, and during that time he has been capped for England on three occasions for international games, and also has played in trial and inter-league contests.

BIG RACE AT AINTREE SOON

Grand National Steeplechase Will Be Run On March 27.

87TH ANNUAL RACE

LONDON, Egnland, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Racing under National Hunt Rules—cross-country, chasing and hurdling, which flourishes particularly during the winter months when flat-racing is suspended,—reaches its zenith with the running of the Liverpool Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree on Friday, March 27. Famed throughout the world wherever horse racing is conducted, as the most spectacular and severest test of the thoroughbred's strength, stamina and speed, the "National" is to cross-country racing what the Derby is to flat-racing—the blue riband of the turf.

Although the entries for the Grand National this year were fewer than last year's nominations, most of the best fencers in training were to be found among the 64 horses nominated. Of this number nine were declared out after the announcement of the weight, leaving a field of 55 from which to choose a winner in the most difficult race in the world. Two previous winners—Sergeant Murphy, in 1923, and Music Hall, in 1922, are included in this year's nomination, while Fly Mask and Silvo, second and third respectively last year, were also entered. Silvo, nine years old, was placed at the top of the stable of weights, with the maximum impost of 175 lbs., while over a dozen were allotted the minimum of 120 lbs.

The "National" course covers four miles and 856 yards of formidable country, in which no less than thirty jumps have to be negotiated. The fences for the most part are larger and more difficult than those found elsewhere and each year a goodly proportion of the starters came to grief at one or another of the obstacles. In fact, in 1921, Shaun's year in which the record number of 35 started, all but the winner met with some sort of mishap during the contest. Three were subsequently remounted and finished the course.

Few races arouse greater controversy, both before and after its decision, than does the "National." During the weeks separating the appearance of the entries and the running of the event the prospects of the "candidates" are discussed and their trial performances or records keenly scrutinized. After the race is run and won there are usual arguments as to what would have happened if such and such a horse had not been bumped, knocked over or fallen. Then on those occasions when the casualties are unusually plentiful, well-meaning critics assert that the race should be abolished or at least made less "inhuman" it was a subject of a question in parliament some years ago. But the "National" remains throughout it all, as has been the case for years, the greatest and most popular event of cross-country racing.

Inaugurated in 1839 by a syndicate of sportsmen who desired to improve the status of steeplechasing the "National" has steadily grown in importance and popularity. Originally run on weight-for-age lines it has later converted in is a handicap, and the maximum impost to 175 pounds. Since its inception it has, with the exception of three years during the Great War when substitute races were run at Gatwick, been run without interruption over the Aintree course. During this time the monetary value of the prize has increased until now, with 5,000 sovereigns added to the sweepstakes of 100 sovereigns each, the value of the winner is well over 8,000 sovereigns.

PLAYERS PREPARE TO LEAVE N. H. L.

Stay Out of Hockey Forever Rather Than Play Under Hamilton.

HAMILTON, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Members of Hamilton N.H.L. Club were preparing to-day to leave for their homes, determined to stay out of hockey for ever, rather than play under the Hamilton management again.

Captain "Shorty" Green, who has acted as spokesman for the players since the trouble started, was busy to-day preparing a statement for publication, in his effort to point out that the players were not to blame for the trouble. Other members of the squad were busy to-day trying to point out to Manager Percy Thompson that he had no right to hold up their salary for the last week of the playing season, but to no avail, and, according to reports, they will take action in the courts to recover their money.

The report sent out of Toronto on Saturday to the effect that the players had been fined $200 each and suspended could not be confirmed here. Manager Thompson, when interviewed, stated that President Calder had not notified him of a fine having been imposed on the players.

THE NATURE LOVER

The books I read are lying wide around
The sky o'erhead, green fields and ocean blue
Spread out on either side;
The rustling trees, and flowers dipped in dew
Most glorious themes provide.

I need no printed volumes to unfold
Weird tales of love and war or mystery,
To me the clouds reveal
Far more than e'er was told in history,
No secrets they conceal.

Blind Homer's Odyssey I need not scan
For tales of travel, or in search of lore.
The butterfly and wren
With shimmering wings and warbles sweet, teach more
Than e'er was writ by men.

And so in Nature's wisdom-book I read
See yonder sunbeam on yon cooing dove!
Inhale that perfumed breeze.
Did man e'er pen such symphony of love
As lurks within those trees.

LADIES' LEAGUE AT Y.M.C.A.

The Buttercups captured all three games from the Dandelions in the second play-off of the Ladies' League at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday morning, and by doing this captured first place in the League for the season 1924-25. The Dandelions had on Thursday taken two games in the play-off, while the Buttercups only managed to get one, but the Buttercups made a strong recovery on Saturday and took three straight, all three games being fairly close, however, for only eleven pins separated the two teams in the second game, and it looked as if the Dandelions might take the third game and thus tie up the series, but Miss Clara Adams came through with a 205 score that shattered their hopes, so the Buttercups emerged winners by 4 games to 2. This gives the Buttercups first place prizes and the Dandelions second place prizes in the prize money.

Miss Adams, by virtue of her 205 score, took high single for Saturday, though Miss Ross, with 203, had the high single for the play-offs. Miss Adams had another nice single of 176, Miss Nicholls 178 and Miss Buckham 173. Miss Adams was also high for three games on Saturday with 518.

The Buttercup team is composed of Misses C. Adams (captain), M. Ross, V. Buckham, E. Eagleson, E. Doughty, F. Pammett, V. Burgess and M. Lancaster.

The Dandelion team is composed of Misses Doris Burgess (captain), E. Nichol, A. Ryley, M. Herridge, E. Richardson, F. Williams, and T. Paxman.

The scores on Saturday were as follows:

Dandelions—
D. Burgess	152	152	148	452

DISARMAMENT IS IMPOSSIBLE NOW

Security of Europe's Frontiers is Still Too Frail to Make it Practicable.

WAIT FOR LEAGUE.

PARIS, March 16. — (Canadian Press.)—The security of Europe's frontiers is still too frail to make it possible to talk on disarmament now or in the near future. Such is the semi-official French opinion concerning the proposed disarmament conference in Washington.

The League of Nations' security protocol, in spite of the blow given it at Geneva last week, is in the main reliance of France for the moment. Government will bend all efforts towards resuscitating it at the September meeting of the League Assembly, in the meantime considering any proposal for a regional pact which appears likely to tranquillize Europe.

If either a general or partial pact is realized then French Government will be ready to talk partial disarmament.

The French view consequently is that a disarmament conference would have little chance of accomplishing anything before the September meeting of the League assembly.

It is also pointed out that political instability in some of the European States such as Belgium, where elections are being held this spring, with a probable change of government thereafter, makes it difficult to estimate the chances of such an important international meeting as President Coolidge envisages.

ANGELS OF THE AIR TO HELP THE SICK

Sisters Play Hawaiian Music and Sing Sweetly Into Radio.

DALLAS, Tex., March 16.—Two sisters, Edith and Grace MacDowell of Dallas, have captured the hearts of radio fans throughout the country.

Their Hawaiian music, both vocal and instrumental, has won them the title, "Sweethearts of the Air."

Unabashed by this, however, the MacDowell sisters are planning a new and more alluring title to fame. They want to help heal nervous diseases with their music.

The sisters first conceived the idea of healing nervous persons by having patients listen in to their entertainments. Then they began to get letters from sick folk throughout the country. All declared their playing and singing made the patients feel better.

Now the sisters are planning a larger tryout of this stunt. They hope to make their soft Hawaiian music useful in the cure of nervous diseases.

Besides being called "Sweethearts of the Air," the MacDowell sisters have such titles given them by fans, as "Angels of the Air," "Sweet Air Angels" and "Texas Mocking Birds."

Hundreds of telegrams are received during their programs, wherever they may be broadcasting, and an average of 100 letters a day must be answered. The sisters also receive gifts, the latest being a Navajo scarf and handbags from Guatemala.

The sisters perfected their Hawaiian music by going to Hawaii and studying there for almost two years. Their music now is reproduced on phonograph records.

INVESTIGATE DEATH 17 YEAR OLD BOY

A. F. Farmer Tells How He Came to Visit Sick Youth.

TORONTO, March 16. — The death of David Redding, a 17-year-old boy, who died at his home, 291 Symington Avenue, is to be investigated by Coroner M. M. Crawford. Young Redding's death is believed to have been caused by rheumatism and a heart condition. A doctor from the neighborhood had attended the youth through part of his illness which extended over a period of about 14 weeks. Later upon the advice of a relative the family called in Arthur Black Farmer, a graduate of the Boston College of Vitosophy.

Interviewed by the press, Mr. Farmer, related how he come to see the boy. "Mr. Redding's brother attended a lecture at the Toronto college of chiropractic—a private lecture I gave to my clients and students on nervous and mental cases last Tuesday. After the lecture Mr. Redding told me about his brother's conditions and begged me to go out and see him. He told me his brother had been ill about eleven weeks and informed me he had been ill with inflammatory rheumatism, then pneumonia set in and pleurisy developed and that the doctor that had been attending him said he had only a few days to live. I did not see that I could do any good and it was doubtful if he could live if he had reached that stage. The brother insisted that I see him. I went out last Wednesday. The boy did not appear to have a margin to go on."

"Did you treat him?" "I showed the family how in cases of that kind to wash the body and how to handle a weak patient to keep the skin active and make the boy as comfortable as possible."

"Did you treat him yourself?" "Yes, I sponged him with water."

"Did you make any recommendation?" "I suggested that I did not agree with the medical treatment that had been given and suggested a doctor I knew."

"What medical work do you do?" "My work is teaching and educating people how to keep healthy. I am registered under the Medical Act of 1923 but it is a sort of a dead letter since a recent decision was made under the Chiropractors' Act."

The family, Mr. Farmer stated, were quite satisfied.

The father of the boy stated he does not blame anyone for his boy's death, and that Mr. Farmer came into the case on the suggestion of his son who had heard Mr. Farmer lecture.

ENGLAND LEADS AMERICAN AUTO

Necessity in Europe Forces Motor Efficiency—High Taxes Blamed.

FULLY EQUIPPED

LONDON, March 16.—Necessity has forced Great Britain, and the rest of Europe for that matter, far ahead of America in automobile development.

High taxes, high maintenance costs have driven the engineer to design a car that will cost as little as possible and could be driven at the cheapest expense.

The result is a drove of small automobiles of even as low as seven horsepower, running about the streets of London, Paris and Berlin.

The British Morris is an example. It is designed in three models, ranging from a 1-horsepower car costing less than $1000 to an 18-horsepower vehicle selling for $2,400. Even the smallest model has equipment equal to many good cars in America.

Fully Equipped.

There is a 1-volt ignition system with five lamps, a speedometer, an eight-day clock, oil and gasoline gauges on the dashboard, and a complete and efficient side curtain equipment for inclement weather.

Some of the smaller cars, like the British Austin, or the French Mathis, are of only seven horsepower. Yet they are designed to carry two passengers comfortably and go up to 45 miles an hour. Their gasoline requirement sure low.

Opposed to these attempts at economy are some of the most gorgeous affairs ever seen on the streets of London—or New York. And even these are intended mostly for the colorful princes of India and other Asiatic countries, where lavishness and display persist.

A Compromise.

The Maharajah of Alwar, for instance, has had a Lanchester made especially for him. It looks more like an old-time horse-drawn coach than a modern automobile. But it is so constructed as to give its owner the height of comfort and pleasure.

The coach body is built apart from the engine, so that an occupant could hardly believe he is being drawn by modern motive methods. It is said actually to float along, despite rocky and rutty roads.

The engine is of the six-cylinder, 40-horsepower type, and the chassis has a wheelbase of 178 inches, almost twice the length of a Ford. The body is elaborately ornamented.

The Maharajah of Rewa has a Lanchester sedan just as elaborately ornamented and specially equipped. This car has a special ventilating system so the maharajah may keep cool under the hottest rays of the Indian sun.

Even the windows are made of a special type of glass which is opaque only from the outside, keeping out the sun and the vision of curiosity seekers.

FLORENCE VIDOR STARS IN STORY OF STAGE LIFE

In essaying the role of a show girl, Florence Vidor, whose first starring picture, "The Mirage," comes to the Royal Theatre to-day, found herself on unfamiliar ground. This part is unlike any she has heretofore portrayed, but, as usual, Miss Vidor was equal to the occasion, and in "The Mirage," she shows us once more that she is an actress of unusual ability and appeal.

"The Mirage," which is an adaptation of Edgar Selwyn's stage play of that name, is sensational. It deals with life as it is known to that part of society in which men-about-town, typical New York first nighters and "gold-diggers" move.

The settings in "The Mirage" are gorgeous. No expense was spared in making the stage scenes of the Knickerbocker Roof, the New York Apartment Roof Garden and the "gold diggers'" apartments as they are in reality.

"The Mirage" is a dramatic play, but there are a number of comedy touches, many of these supplied by Vola Vale in her role of Betty Bond.

Playing opposite Miss Vidor are Clive Brook, noted English actor, and Alan Roscoe. Myrtle Vane and Charlotte Stevens are also in the cast.

George Archainbaud, a Frenchman, whose direction shows "that foreign touch," staged "The Mirage."

"WAGES OF VIRTUE" UNUSUALLY COLORFUL PICTURE OF FRENCH FOREIGN LEGION, STARRING GLORIA SWANSON.

Without question, the most colorful of all Gloria Swanson's starring pictures for Paramount is "Wages of Virtue," the new Allan Dwan production, which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

The story is a romantic-drama, into which the star and director have introduced many light comedy touches, written by Capt. Percival Christopher Wren, adapted to the screen by Forrest Halsey.

Most of the action of the production takes place in the little Algerian barrack town of Sidi-bel-Abbes where the French Foreign Legion is stationed. It is in this sequence of scenes that you see splendid Spahis, romantic looking Chasseurs d'Afrique, burnoosed Arabs, and swaggering Turcos; arrogant in fez and frock coats, mingling with the soldiers of the Legion. In the bazaars are the merchants, the Greek "kushkus" sellers, the coffee vendors, the peddlers of water, the bootblacks in their French "berets," and the little black newsboys, naked except for white trousers, carrying their bundles of "Echoes d'Oran," and scuttling out of the way of huge, clumsy wagons piled high with purple stained casks of Algerian wine.

In the doorways are crouched the miserable mendicants, whining piteously for alms, the singers, and the pious holy men "playing their way into heaven" on one-stringed instruments. And at night, on the balconies, appear the veiled and bangled women, holding candles under their faces to illumine their charms.

It is against such a background that Miss Swanson, as Camelita, and Ben Lyon, young American recruit in the Legion, carry on one of the most delightful romances that has ever reached the screen.

Norman Trevor and Ivan Linow also have prominent parts in these scenes. Trevor is Marvin's (Lyon) guardian, and Linow has the 'heavy' role of the regimental bully, Luigi, ex-circus strong man.

Joe Moore, the youngest of the 'movie Moores'; Armand Cortes, Adrienne d'Ambricourt and Paul Panzer complete the all-star cast.

AT THE REGENT

EDMUND LOWE STARS IN PICTURE MAJORITY OF THE FANS' DEMAND.

Popular Mystery, Action and Love Abound in Newest William Fox Feature Attraction.

Regent Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

A story of the kind the fans prefer to most others is announced with the showing of "The Brass Bowl," starring Edmund Lowe, at the Regent Theatre, beginning today. This is the second picture William Fox has produced with Mr. Lowe in the stellar role and he selected this Louis Joseph Vance classic because it offers plenty of the mystery, action and love interest the devotees to the cinema art dote on most.

The story has to do with the extraordinary adventures of a wealthy bachelor resulting from his close physical resemblance to a master crook. Mistaken identity is given several new and surprising twists and when the hero falls in love with what seems to be a wicked girl crook he meets in the course of his being mistaken, the audience is given ample cause to gasp as one suspenseful moment follows another. When the girl turns out to be someone else and the hero is all but doomed because others are convinced he is the crook, something totally unexpected happens and once more the audience is given occasion to gasp.

At least all the foregoing is in accordance with the promises of the Regent Theatre, who also takes occasion to call attention to the fact that critics in the larger cities have been prone to agree that this is a superbly acted picture. Of course Mr. Lowe gets the lion's share of the praise, but Claire Adams, his leading lady, comes in for a good share of the applause while the support offered by J. Farrell MacDonald, Leo White, Jack Duffy and Fred Butler is said to be of the highest order. Jerome Storm directed from a scenario written by Thomas Dixon, Jr., who was particularly careful to preserve those numerous qualities which made the Vance novel such a best-seller.

Y.W.C.A. ACTIVITIES.

The items of special interest at the Y.W.C.A. this week are as follows:

Sewing — Mothers, members and friends are asked to help with the making of the numerous costumes for the gymnasium pageant, either by sewing at the "Y" Monday, Wednesday and Friday, afternoon and evening, or by taking costumes home.

Regular activities, including gymnasium, badminton, basketball, home nursing, elocution and the T.M.T.M., Cheerio, Kumjoynus, C.O.S., Ever Bright and Sunshine Clubs, will meet this week at their regular time. Senior gymnasium members are reminded of the special practice on Friday at 8 p.m. and elocution pupils of the extra class this week on Tuesday afternoon.

New Classes — Two new ukulele classes start this week. One for advanced pupils on Monday at 7 p.m. and one for beginners on Tuesday. The St. John's Ambulance First-Aid course will start Tuesday, March 24. All interested are asked to 'phone the Y.W.C.A. this week.

Parties—The Tuesday and Thursday ladies' gymnasium classes will hold a Masquerade Party in the gymnasium on Thursday night. All members of these two classes are invited to attend this jolly party. The junior gymnasium pupils are entertaining the babies' class at a St. Patrick's Party on Saturday morning.

Recital—On Friday evening at 8 o'clock the elocution pupils of Mrs. Gerald McClelland will give an informal recital in the Green Room. Mothers, friends and all interested are cordially invited. Admission, silver collection.

Foreign Work—All members who are helping to raise the $150 for the work of the Y.W.C.A. in Japan are asked to make their returns as soon as possible. Fifty cents per day is Peterboro's share in this work and already 184 days have been marked off the big poster on the "Y" bulletin board. Help mark off the remaining 180 by contribution for one or more days. 1d-64-6025

SERVICES IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH WELL ATTENDED.

Rev. Mr. McGregor Delivered Interesting and Timely Messages Yesterday.

Rev. Alexander McGregor, Moose Jaw, a teacher in the Boys' College there, was the preacher at both services in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday, before large congregations. His messages were of a high order spiritually, and with the sound advice to be loyal to the faith of their fathers, a mutual chord was struck. The congregations were appreciative, and the sermons will not soon be forgotten.

The choir, too, is alive to the task before them, and with about forty-five members out at both services, the music, under the direction of Martin B. Chenhall is steadily improving. The congregations are not slow to make complimentary remarks anent the music.

Intimation was read yesterday, from Rev. D. A. Thomson, Clerk of Presbytery, declaring the church vacant as from 15th March and empowering the congregation to proceed with all convenient haste, with the calling of a minister to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. Robert Pogue.

Preparatory Service.

On Wednesday evening preparatory service will be held at 8 o'clock, conducted by Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville, who also is interim moderator of the church during the pulpit vacancy..

Communion service will be held on Sunday next in the morning, and will be an open one for members of the three Presbyterian churches in the city, as well as others who may wish to participate. For this occasion, the Session were fortunate in securing the services of Rev. John Gibson Inkster, of Knox Church, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Inkster comes with the reputation of being a brilliant preacher, and large congregations are expected next Sabbath.

ORHANAGE DAY NETTED $1,056.09

Bleak Weather on Saturday Put Ladies on Their Mettle.

SLIGHT DECREASE.

Saturday's tag day in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage was bleak and shivery, but the taggers did good work under real hardships. A total of $1,056.09 was collected for the worthy work, only a little less than last year. Other donations yet to come are expected to bring this up to last year's total.

Mrs. John Lynch was convenor in chargee of arrangements, and was assisted by Miss Annie Simons.

Lunch was served to the workers at the Lyceum, Mrs. M. La Plante, Miss Nevin and Miss Johanna McCarthy being in charge of this department.

Never, perhaps, have the ladies of the three parishes worked under so great discomfort, and their success is remarkable in view of the handicaps.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARTIN COUGHLIN, SR.

Mrs. Martin Coughlin, Senior, died this morning, aged 85. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. A. J. Kelly, Toronto, and three sons, Ambrose, James and John of Douro. The funeral will be from the residence of James Coughlin, Douro, on Wednesday morning, at 8.30, to St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, and St. Peter's Cemetery, Peterboro.

MRS. A. G. DICKSON.

There passed away on Saturday, March 14th, at her residence in Toronto, 294 Clinton street, Katherine Davidson, daughter of the late Geo. and Esther Davidson, and wife of A. G. Dickson.

She was raised at Auburn from a child, her parents moving here from Galt many years ago. She was 65 years of age, and there are left to mourn her loss her husband, Mr. Dickson, and brothers, George, of Toronto, Adam, James and Wallace, of Peterboro, and John of Philadelphia, and one sister, Mrs. George Latimer of Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday to Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Mr. Adam Davidson and Mr. Jas. Davidson, are in Toronto attending their sister's funeral.

Society

Mr. Roland Denne, who has been laid up for the past week, is much improved.

Mrs. M. Tierney and son of Rochester, who motored to Peterborough last week, returned home to-day.

Mrs. W. D. Cotton, of Gananoque is visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Cotton, 308 Park street.

The many friends of Mrs. M. H. Park will be glad to hear that she is recovering from a severe attack of tonsilitis, which has confined her to her home for the past ten days.

Miss Bernice Courneya has returned to her home in Stoco, after spending a couple of weeks visiting her aunt, Mrs. W. Cooke, of 471 Sherbrooke street, city, and Master Joe Cooke returned with her to spend a few weeks.

Mrs. Wallace Paton, of Toronto, spent the week-end visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Porter.

WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, March 16.—(Canadian Press)—The wheat market opened erratic this morning from 2½ cts. to 4½ cts. lower at $1.70 to $1.72 for the May futures. Liverpool quotations opened to 2 to 2½ pence higher, but at 2.15 were 1 3-4 to 2 3-4 pence lower. This reversal in the foreign market created a bearish feeling locally and brought out a lot of selling from those who had purchased on the break Saturday.

MORE C.G.E. SHARES.

The addition of $2,600,000 of common and $2,600,000 of preferred shares of the Canadian General Electric Company was made on Saturday to the Toronto Stock Exchange list. This represents the additional stock that is being issued by the company. The additional shares will be called for trading on 1st April. A considerable portion of the new preferred stock goes into the hands of the public, but since General Electric Company of Schenectady owns practically the entire common stock issue, the additional common shares issued to present shareholders does not add greatly to the amount in the hands of the public.

APPEALS TO WOMEN.

Ask Help in Looking After Children of Strikers.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 17 (Canadian Press).—The Mail publishes an appeal to the women of Nova Scotia, written by Mrs. Charles Archibald (whose husband for many years was manager of one of the Cape Breton Collieries) asking for help in looking after the welfare of the children of the men on strike. "Babies cannot live on ethics," she says. "This is no time to hold back while we decide who is to blame. We cannot allow the children of Nova Scotia to perish, while capitalists, union officials and Government officials wrangle over the points in dispute." Mrs. Archibald, for her splendid humanitarian work during the war, was decorated by the King a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

STUTTGART, Germany, March 13.—American radio stations can now be heard by subscribers to the southern German radio circuit. After numerous experiments the Stuttgart station has succeeded in working out the technique by which American radio contributions are made available to German listeners.

On a recent Sunday, at midnight, a concert at Pittsburgh was transmitted by the Stuttgart station on a 443-meter wave to its subscribers. They were thrilled to learn that the American station was at the same time being heard by radio fans in England, South Africa and Stuttgart.

Five Cents On Dollar From Defunct Company

MONTREAL, March 16. — The creditors of the defunct brokerage house of Fairbanks, Gosselin & Co., which went into liquidation with liabilities of $812,007 on January 20th, 1922, will receive about five cents on the dollar, according to the final report of Gordon Scott, trustee, which was forwarded to them to-day.

AUSTRALIA TRAINS IDLE

Unskilled Men Given Intensive Training to Overcome Shortage.

MELBOURNE, March 13. — (United Press).—A system inaugurated in Australia last year of training unskilled laborers as a means of overcoming shortage of skilled workmen has been extended to all states of the Commonwealth.

Faced with a shortage of skilled workmen and with a considerable number of unskilled laborers out of work early in 1923, the Federation of Master Builders of Australia decided upon a plan of training for the unskilled unemployed.

A start was made by establishing classes for bricklayers. The course of training lasted 13 weeks, and at the end of the course a test was made of the quality and quantity of the work done. The student bricklayers apparently did a very good job, as the President of the Federation stated, that most of them were able to lay 1,000 bricks a day on rough walling, and up to 400 a day on work of a better class.

GOOD GERMS AND BAD

Only a Few Are Really Dangerous and Science Can Fight Them.

"Why from reading this book one is likely to come to the conclusion that all of us are surrounded by deadly disease germs," Mrs Mann declared, looking up at her husband.

"Not only that," replied Mr. Mann "but many of us have the germs crawling all over us. They get in our eyes, and mouth and nose and—"

"Oh, sure, sure," exclaimed Mrs. Mann, "but not all of them are dangerous.

"Some of these tiny microbes are animals, and some of them are of the plant kingdom, and only a few are really dangerous.

"Some are friends of man. How could one flavor butter, make vinegar, or wine even, if it were not for the small bacteria which produce fermentation?

"The really dangerous kind of bacteria are those which have formed the habit of living off the human body.

"And science has learned how to fight these. It has learned that these parasites, if removed from the body, do not know how to make a living.

"Some have learned to live in milk, when kicked out of the human body, but in water, dust, earth and air most of them die quickly.

"Water often is blamed for typhoid fever. And the fever can be caught from drinking water, but if it is, it is because the water is dank before the germs have had time to die."

PROBLEM OF COURT.

Women's Court Bothered By Girls' Desire For Adventure.

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Out of her wide experience as a magistrate, Dr. Magistrate Patterson gave the Methodist Ministerial Association many interesting sidelights on her work, saying that there is a decrease in the number of women charged with drunkenness.

There were two main problems confronting the court, the abnormal desire of girls for adventure, and the lack of proper supervision over boarding and rooming houses. In this connection, Dr. Patterson urged the full registration of all rooming houses, so that the authorities might keep check on the proprietors and tenants.

DIED SUDDENLY AFTER CHURCH

Mrs. Jackson Passed Away Yesterday in Her Daughter's Home Here.

FUNERAL TUESDAY.

Soon after her return from George Street Methodist Church yesterday, Anne Lytle, widow of late Henry Jackson, dropped dead in the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Armstrong, George Street. She had just removed her wraps and was in apparently her usual health when death suddenly struck her.

The deceased is survived by two sons, Wilfred of Emily Township, and Ernest of Lakefield, three daughters, Mrs. Henry Lowes, Emily Township, Mrs. T. H. Ruth, and Mrs. John Armstrong, Peterborough. A brother, Thomas Lytle, of Peterborough also survives.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at 12.30 from the residence of Mrs. Armstrong, interment being made in Emily Cemetery at Omemee.

GREAT GERMAN SCIENTIST DIES

Professor August Von Wassermann Originated Celebrated Blood Test.

RESEARCH MAN.

BERLIN, March 16 (Canadian Press). — Professor August Von Wassermann, director of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Experimental Therapy, and Professor of Internal Medicine at the University of Berlin, originator of the celebrated Wassermann blood test, died this morning. Professor Wassermann was one of Germany's greatest medical research men. He was 59 years of age.

MELBA IN LONDON.

Will Sing at Summre Opera Season at Convent Garden.

It is now quite definite that there will be a brilliant opera season at Covent Garden in the summer (just now the famous theatre is being used for a dance hall, with a half-dollar admission fee), and Melba will sing at many gala performances. Toscanini, fieriest and most electric of conductors, is coming over to conduct some of the performances. There is a good deal of speculation as to whether he will conduct on one of the Melba nights, for his disregard of "stars" and their whims is notorious. Melba, by the way, is now completing her memoirs, which will be published shortly.

CRICKET CLUB.

Peterborough Club General Meeting—Prospects Good for the Season.

A general meeting of the the Peterboro Cricket Club was held in the Chamber of Commerce building. It was well attended. Reports of the activities of the Executive since the annual general meeting were received and approved.

The by-laws were submitted, discussed and approved. The question of club colors was brought up and it was decided to retain the use of the old Peterboro Cricket Club colors of black and white stripes. The report of the grounds committee was submitted, but through unforseen circumstances the actual location of the ground remains in abeyance. The secretary announced the schedule of matches which, however, is not completed as yet, but it nevertheless indicates a full season, winding up with a couple of matches in Toronto for Labor Day week-end.

Judging by the number of applications already received and others promised, there is every prospect of being able to field two elevens throughout the season.

There was present a representative of the Sons of Scotland Society to ascertain the likelihood of the formation of a district league, and whether they would be eligible. He was encouraged to urge his society to form a club, and assured that should they do so, the probabilities were that a league would be formed.

The outlook for the coming season was very encouraging.

16th Century Tortures Fifty Cents a Trial

If you really want to get the

If you really want to get the creeps, the Tower of London will now be the place to go to. The authorities have just thrown open to the public four more of the Towers, including the dungeon and torture chambers, which have hitherto been considered too gruesome.

For an extra fifty cents you can enjoy the privilege of being trussed up on the identical rack on which Crammer, Latimer and Guy Fawkes were tortured; and you are also shown what are believed to be the bones of Lady Jane Grey. The French sword with which Anne Boleyn was beheaded is also on view beside the clumsy looking axe that brought Catherine Howard's troubles to an end.

Victim of Fort Erie Tragedy Laid Beside Father at Lakefield.

THIRTY PRESENT.

Thirty people stood shivering in the bleak Lakefield Cemetery today as the body of Nathan McIlmoyle was laid to rest beside that of his father, Nathan McIlmoyle, Sr. Nearby are many of his forbears, respected pioneers of the district, who broke their way into the uncharted wilderness of the lake district and hewed homes for themselves out of the virgin forest. Now Nathan, Jr., has joined them, his body coming from the house where he was found dead last Wednesday with the body of Mrs. Rose F. Kahn of Buffalo.

The service was conducted by Rev. P. H. Neville, Methodist minister of Bridgenorth, and was impressive in the extreme. A cold bleak wind swept over the spectators, rustling the leaves of the two sprays of flowers that rested on the casket—the only tributes seen. They came from Brown Brothers, the firm for which the deceased had worked.

Mrs. McIlmoyle, the dead man's wife, from whom he had obtained a legal separation, was not present, being held by the authorities in Fort Erie. When he left her, Nathan McIlmoyle left her pactically all he possessed, his relatives say, and his insurance policies were still in her name.

A sister of the deceased told The Examiner that the family is assured death occurred through coal gas poisoning. She added that Nathan McIlmoyle's age is really 58, and not 47 as was previously reported.

Both families—McIlmoyle's and his wife's—are well known and highly respected in this district, both having been pioneers. Mrs. McIlmoyle's brother, S. R. Pearson, is first division court bailiff in Peterboro, and hundreds of acres of the the finest farm lands are held by the family.

Among the family survivors are Peter Nicholls, Stephen Nicholls, brothers-in-law of the deceased; Allan McIlmoyle, Nathan and Oscar, Nicholls, nephews.

FERGUSON FROWNS ON MEMBERS DEALING WITH GOVERNMENT AS NEW INSTANCES ARE DISCLOSED

Hon. Jas. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, Explains Sale by His Company.

ECCLESTONE ALSO

Transactions Legal, Says the Premier, But Create Suspicion in Public Mind.

TORONTO, March 17.—Premier Ferguson, while merely expressing an opinion, practically gave an ultimatum to the Legislature Monday afternoon that no more buying of articles or goods from a member of the House by the government would be tolerated. It is legal for a member of the Legislature to sell goods to the government if the interest in which he is concerned is a limited company, but the Premier even frowned on this stating that the interests of government would be better served if limited companies restrained themselves from any government business.

The question arose when Hon. Jas. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, took occaion to reply to certain questions asked by the Opposition about the Jas. Lyons Supply Company which sold material to the Ontario Government as appearing in public accounts. Hon. Mr. Lyon said he was a director of the company, but that since he had become a minister he had devoted little attention to the affairs of the company. He declared that he had never used any influence to get contracts and that such articles as has been purchased from his company had been bought by the local engineer of the highway's department under competition.

"I wish to say that there will be no further articles bought from my company as long as I am a member of this House, and I have given instructions to this effect," said the Minister.

Raises Suspicion.

The Premier stated that the House would be glad of the frank statement given by the Minister.

"While I think every item was within the law, I think it a good thing in the interests of the Government and the province if the ministers and the members of the House would refrain from doing any business with the Government," said Premier Ferguson. "It only gives rise to suspicion which not only reflect upon the Government, but also upon the member himself. I would like to see members connected with limited companies keep them from doing business with the Government although they may be quite legal. It would help to purify public life. I hope that suggestion is received in the way it is meant, not that there is anything illegal in what has been done, but we want to rid public life of insinuation."

Still Another One.

George W. Ecclestone (Conservative, Muskoka) whose name was connected with certain of the accounts in the public record, followed stating that his hardware firm in Bracebridge had done business with every government since the Mowat Government. He pointed out that his firm was the only one which sold explosive in his district that they of necessity sold to the government. "However, I have no desire to sell any goods to the government," said Mr. Ecclestone. "I have never solicited any business from them and I am quite in accord with the desires of the Premier, and I have hiven instructions to my firm not to accept any business from the government."

Amend Marriage Act.

Second reading was given the bill proposed by E. R. Wigle (Centre Huron) to amend the marriage act by making it compulsory that the license be taken out three days ahead of the actual marriage. The Premier although not favoring all of the bill, said it might have the desired tendency of stopping some hasty marriages, and allowed the bill to go to the legal committee.

The following bills passed through committee of the whole: Bills allowing Toronto one mill taxation for park purchases; amending the act incorporating St. Patrick's Asylum, Ottawa; placing definite and defined duties upon the deputy provincial secretary; amending the succession duty act and giving the provincial auditor a straight salary instead of bonus pay.

A bill was introduced by Dr. Jamieson (Conservative, South Grey) to allow villages to declare certain half holidays in the week, a right now held only by towns and cities.

Hon. J. R. Cooke, minister without portfolio and member of the Hydro Commission, introduced a bill rescinding the bill of last year by which municipalities doing busness with the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission were to have their financial statements in at the end of the provincial year, October 31. This scheme of making both hydro and provincial years the same has not been found workable.

Insurance Amendment.

F. Spence (Conservative, Fort William) introduced a bill amending the Insurance Act, whereby in Ontario no one outside the province may insure an Ontario risk if his own province have a law preventing outside insurance companise from insuring risks within that particular province. Manitoba has a law preventing companies without branches in that province taking up risks in that province and Mr. Spence seeks the same right for Ontario. Quebec has no such law and by the wording of his bill he would still allow Quebec companies to carry on in Ontario as long as they did not localize their own business.

A Peggotty For Every Forlorn Vilna Barkis; Many Maids Lonely Too

VILNA, Alta, March 17 — Villna bachelors will not need to search England and Ireland for girls More than 100 letters have been received up to date by the secretary of the Vilna Citizens' League, from lonely maids, in all sections of Canada and the United States, asking for particulars of the 63 bachelor farmers of the district, and giving all sorts of encouragement to the most bashful of them to step out and propose right away

The greater part of the enquiries hail from Toronto and other Ontario points. Montana and British Columbia also are well represented, while Chicago and New York furnish about a score between them.

And so the appointment of the overseas envoy was cancelled at the last meeting of the League and a scheme of advertising for Canadian girls adopted in its stead

MRS. ROSE KAHN BURIED QUIETLY

Woman Whose Body Was Found Beside McIlmoyle Given Splendid Burial.

$2,000 CASKET.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 17. — (Special to the Examiner.) — Incased in a magnificent $2000 bronze casket, adorned in the finest raiment, and covered with roses, the body of Mrs. Rose Kahn, wife of "Benny" Kahn, o. No. 374 Broadway, Buffalo, and a principal in the Fort Erie 'love' mystery, was taken to New York city on Saturday afternoon, amidst the deepest secrecy.

Kahn, the husband, it was learned, was frantic with grief over the tragic death of his wife in such sordid surroundings. He was grieved at her faithlessness, ut nevertheless showed his devotion by providing the finest funeral raiment, and casket possible for her burial.

It has been ascertained here that the deceased woman left an estate valued in the neighborhood of $7000, all of which is left to her husband, a tobacconist here and well known in horse racing circles.

The body of Nathan McIlmoyle, who was Mrs. Kahn's companion in the death house, was buried in Lakefield yesterday.

The mystery of the death of the couple will be revealed at the coroner's inquest, to be conducted at Ridgeway, Ont., on April 2nd.

The Canadian authorities are satisfied that poisoning caused the fatalities and a thorough investigation is being carried out.

The intestines of both McIlmoyle and Mrs. Kahn are being analyzed at the University of Toronto laboratories to find the cause of death.

ROBIN BRIGADE COMES TO TOWN

Many Trees and Poles Had Their Chirruping Birds Yesterday.

WELCOME SIGN.

The main guard of the spring birds arrived in the city over the week-end in the form of a brigade or robins. The welcome "chirrup" notes of the robin redoreast were broadcasted in cheery notes from many a tree and pole at sunset last evening. The advance guard came last week, but a whole army has now made its appearance.

Scientists say that it is the male bird that flies north first. So it was Mister Robin, who has come up to reconnoitre the old nesting tree, whom you heard yesterday. Perhaps he grew weary under the steady increasing rays of the hot tropic sun and like Andy Gump, longed for the cooling breezes of Ontario. Be that as it may he is surely welcome and it is hoped he will be able soon to pull a whole string of luscious worms from the front lawn.

The number of boy babies born in the world is estimated to be slightly in excess of the number of girl babies. The ratio varies from 103 to 107 to 100.

BRITISH RADICAL KIDNAPPED, HE SAYS, TO KEEP HIM FROM ATTENDING MEETING

Taken From Train on Trip to Liverpool, Held in Hotel Until Sunday Afternoon, and Then Sent Back to London.

LONDON, March 17.—An incident recalling the kidnapping exploits of the Italian Fascisti is reported from Liverpool. M. Pollitt, general secretary of the National Minority Movement, which has "red" leanings, boarded a train at London for Liverpool Saturday to attend a demonstration and conference to be addressed among others by Tom Mann, general secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, and the Communist, Arthur McManus.

Pollitt relates that when the train arrived at Edge Hill Station on the outskirts of Liverpool four men invaded his coach and after a struggle threw him from the train to a platform, where others surrounded him and conveyed him forcibly to a waiting automobile. He was driven about until two o'clock in the morning, and then taken to a hotel, where a guard was mounted to prevent possible escape until Sunday afternoon. Finally he was placed on a train which brought him back to London.

The Liverpool branch of the British Fascisti denies any official part in the affair, but its secretary says: "It is quite possible that some of the members have acted together and carried out the kidnapping unofficially."

Questions put to the government in the House of Commons last night suggested that several of the abductors were disguised as policemen and that this prevented railway officials from going to Pollitt's assistance. The government has promised to institute an inquiry.

BOY CRUSHED BY HEAVY WAGON SAID HE WAS UNHURT, AND DIED SHORTLY AFTER

Clayton Hamlin Slipped Under Wagon Loaded With Cinders on Barnardo Ave.

TRIED TO CLIMB ON

Clayton Hamblin, 11, was fatally injured when he fell beneath the wheels of a wagon driven by Frank Manley, R.R. 1, in front of 198 Barnardo Avenue about 4.30 yesterday afternoon.

The wagon, loaded with cinders, was going west on Barnardo Avenue and a number of boys from the Queen Alexandra School climbed on. The Hamblin boy was climbing in at the side, between the wheels, when he slipped and the rear wheel passed over his chest.

The boy walked to the sidewalk and said he was not hurt. The driver Manley, picked him up and carried him into 198 Barnardo Avenue. Dr. Eastwood was called and sent for the police. Police Sergeant Thomas and Provincial Constable Maker and the boy's mother were present when he died.

BOY RETRACTS PLEA OF GUILT

Confessed to Murder of Doctor to Free His Guilty Mother.

BROKE DOWN.

LOS ANGELES, California, Mar. 17th. — Harold ("Sonny") Willis, 15, has admitted that his attempts to prove himself guilty of the murder of Dr. Benjamin Baldwin were made solely to save his mother from prison. Breaking under the strain of an all-day grilling at the District Attorney's office, "Sonny" late yesterday sobbed out a retraction of his confessed guilt.

"I did it because I didn't want mother to stay in prison the rest of her life," he said brokenly.

The boy who but recently put on his first long trousers, suddenly crumpled from his pose as a heroic young man and became a tearfully remorseful child.

Mrs. Margaret Willis his mother, was found guilty last summer of killing Dr. Baldwin and putting his body in a trunk. She pleaded self-defence, and was sentenced to a life term in San Quentin penitentiary.

After "Sonny" came forward with his confession of the crime she changed her story, putting the blame on the boy. She was haled before District Attorney Keyes last night and informed that her son had admitted the truth, and told that she would start for San Quentin within a few days.

From the time "Sonny" first confessed the authorities have been skeptical, scenting a trick to free Mrs. Willis.

The boy is being held in Juvenile Hall, pending action on a delinquency complaint.

TRAPPER FOUND DEAD.

The Manitoba Police Suspect Murder and Begin Search.

WINNIPEG, March 17.—Shot through the head, the body of James Perry, middle-aged trapper, has been discovered about 30 miles northeast of Sturgeon Landing, Man.

Provincial police believe the frozen corpse to be mute evidence of another murder in the northern lands. A discharged rifle was found nearby and the police patrol is scouring the north in hunt of the owner.

A patrol from The Pas left Sturgeon Landing Monday with instructions to conduct a searching investigation. More than 40 miles of the trip will have to be made by dog team and at least a week will elapse before further report can be expected from the north.

PASSENGER OF BOAT MISSING

Disappeared From Cabin on Sunday Night on Pacific Coast Boat.

POLICE BAFFLED.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 17.—During the trip down the coast Sunday night, John Smith, 65, mysteriously disappeared from his cabin on the steamship Charmer. Blood was found on a pocket knife in the room and several drops of blood marked a trail from the cabin to the steps leading to the deck.

Smith, who boarded the steamer Sunday night at Powell River, had wired his brother, a detective here, to meet him Monday.

There is no direct evidence of suicide and nothing as yet to establish a murder theory, say the police, who admit that the case has so far baffled them.

Blood stains were found in different parts of the cabin and the extent to which these had dried led the officers to believe that they had been there for several hours. Stains on the door proved mystifying, for there was a large smear about a foot from the bottom of the door and on the door frame were more stains.

W. Smith, brother of the missing man, expressed himself as being confident that is was not a case of suicide and said that there was no motive for such an act.

The missing man had been a prospector and miner, one of the "Originals" of the Klondyke rush.

STRANGE REQUEST.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, England, March 17.—During an inquest over the body of a Japanese sailor, who was accidentally killed, another member of the crew was granted permission to take the hair and toenails of the dead man to the widow in Japan.

A STORY WITHOUT WORDS

CHAMBERLAIN AND HERRIOT ARE AMIABLY DIVIDED ON PROTOCOL; FRESH SEARCH FOR TRANQUILITY

British Foreign Minister Regards Geneva Scheme Dead — Herriot Hopes It May Yet Be Adapted to Problem of Security.,

REMOVE BRITISH OBJECTIONS

Neither Will Consider Any Proposal That Would Sacrifice the Interests of Any Ally—Britain Willing to Participate in Practicable Plan.

PARIS, March 17.—Premier Herriot's talks with Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, and Dr. Eduard Benes, the Czecho-Slovak Foreign Minister, yesterday opened a new phase of Europe's search for tranquility which probably will take the form of lengthy negotiations through regular diplomatic channels. Only when there is some definite basis for either partial or general accord on means for security along the frontiers will a conference be called to settle details.

The outstanding facts of Monday's exchange of views are that France considers the league of nation's protocol may yet serve as the means for providing an eventual solution of the security problem, while Mr. Chamberlain regards it as dead; that any agreement that may be made with a view to guaranteeing peace will be made with all the Allies.

Both Secretary Chamberlain and Premier Herriot declared after their talk that there was no question of considering any proposal that would sacrifice the interests of any ally.

During their interview the French Premier and the British Foreign Secretary passed lightly over the events of last week's session of the league of nations' council at Geneva, addressing themselve directly to the future. M. Herriot remarked that the French Government would pursue its efforts to find a way of adapting the league protocol to the problem of security in the hope that a formula would be discovered which would remove the British objections before the meeting of the league assembly in September.

No Encouragement.

There are ample reasons to suppose from the remarks made later by Mr. Chamberlain that he offered M. Herriot no encouragement on this point.

The ministers discussed the problem of security generally as separated from the league protocol and confined to the powers directly interested, including Germany. Mr. Chamberlain took the stand that the plan proposed by the Berlin Government for a security pact offered a basis for discussion and proposed that consideration of that plan continue through regular diplomatic channels.

Premier Herriot said the French Government was ready to discuss any plan that would contribute to the tranquility of Europe but the French position was that security and disarmament could not be separated and that any plan adopted, whether general or partial, must be based on the idea of security, with obligatory arbitration of disputes, first, and disarmament afterward.

After the interview Mr. Chamberlain asserted that in the idea of all the allies, no frontier is excluded from the security plan they have in view. As to disarmament, Great Britain would willingly participate in any conference to that end in which all the great Powers would join, but he knew of no definite steps that had been taken to bring this about.

Satisfactory Conference.

He was altogether optimistic. His talk with M. Herriot has been quite satisfactory and he was sure continuation of the negotiations through the chancellories would bring an agreement satisfactory to both countries and beneficial to the peace of the world.

Premier Herriot declared that France asked nothing better than to lend any aid she could to bring about effective security and disarmament, while insisting that security must take precedence, he said, he did not have any definite indication as to when a disarmament conference would be held.

Mr. Chamberlain and M. Herriot discussed the question whether it would be advisable to publish the military control mission's report on military activities and arms discovered in Germany. The British minister pronounced agamst publicaton and decision was deferred.

SOLUTION IS REMOTE

LONDON, March 17.—Austen Chamberlain's two visits to M. Herriot, the French premier, before and after the meeting of the league council at Geneva, although they have made for clearer perception of the difficulties and possibilities surrounding the question of a new security pact by the British and French governments, have evidently left the main question still a subject for diplomatic negotiations, and it seems unlikely that Mr. Chamberlain, when he again meets the House of Commons will be able to throw much additional light on the problem to be solved. In view of the favor in which France held the Geneva protocol, which Mr. Chamberlain's visit to Geneva virtually killed, and of the reluctance of Germany to enter the league of nations until she is well assured of the terms upon which she will be permitted to enter, it would seem that very protracted negotiations would be needed before any solution could be reached.

The question also arises in political circles in London as to whether the possibility of another disarmament conference on initiative in the United States may not further complcate the security problem, and, as the two questions of security and disarmament are so closely bound together, whether it would not be desirable to postpone settling the security problem pending the result of the suggested disarmament conference.

SEVERE BREAK WHEAT MARKET

Crash of 13 1-2 Cents This Morning Completely Disorganized Trading.

PANIC APPARENT.

WINNIPEG, March 17.—(Canadian Press). — With a crash which sent the wheat market here into a state of complete disorganization this morning, prices dropped 13½ cents within ten minutes. Heavy liquidations and continued declines in Liverpool cables, combined with a general bearish sentiment, precipitated the break. May went down to $1.59 on the extreme bulge, while July underwent an even more serious loss, slumping 14¼ cents.

Panic also seized the coarse grain markets, prices on all these commodities breaking severely.

S. R. PEARSON NOT MEMBER OF FAMILY

In the interests of accuracy The Examiner is glad to make the following correction in a report appearing yesterday:

March 17, 1925.

The Peterborough Examiner,
Peterborough,
Ont.

Dear Sirs,— On page 12 of the Peterborough Examiner of March 16, an article appeared headed "McIlmoyle was buried to-day." In the course of this article the following sentence appears: "Mrs. McIlmoyle's brother, S. R. Pearson, is the first Division Court Bailiff in Peterborough." This statement is incorrect, and we must ask you to insert a correction of this misstatement.

While Mrs. McIlmoyle's name was Pearson, she belongs to an entirely different family from Mr. S. R. Pearson of Peterborough. Mr. Pearson has only one sister who is a trained nurse in Detroit.

Yours truly,
Peck, Kerr & McElderry,
Per M.

THE WEATHER.

To-day is the 17th of Ireland. While everything still bears a somewhat wintry aspect, the season is probably as far ahead as the average; in fact, St.Patrick's day in some years has been favored with quite sharp weather. In 1916, on the 17th of March, we had it 6 below; on the following day 18 below. There was on that date 20 inches of snow on the ground. In 1912 there were 36 inches of snow still left at that date. On March 17th, 1910, we had it 8 below, and 11 below the next day. At that date in 1899 we had the heaviest fall of snow that winter. There is, of ccurse, another side. In 1922, robins and blackbirds were around, and spring was in the air. Much the same conditions prevailed the previous year. In 1915 the roads were entirely bare of snow at that date, and the dust was flying on some of them. These are a few comparisons given simply to bear out the truth of the homely philosophy that things are never so bad but they might be worse.—V. P.

RECEIVED $1,000 FOR IMMIGRATION FRAUD

Galt Man Brought Syrians Into Canada Under Wrong Name.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 17.—Charged with conspiracy to defraud the Department of the Secretary of State by securing the issuance of certificates of naturalization under the wrong name, George Alexander, of Galt, Ont., faced Magistrate Joynt in the police court on Monday, for preliminary hearing, and elected to be tried by a jury.

The charge is similar to a previous charge against Alexander, and arises out of bringing the family of David Mesropian, of Guelph, into Canada from Syria. Mesropian stated in court that he had paid Alexander $1,000 to bring his family into the country. The case was adjourned until to-day.

David Mesropian appeared before the magistrate earlier in the morning charged with perjury in connection with the case and pleaded guilty, being remanded for sentence until two weeks from to-day. The charge was laid against him by Oscar Coderre, solicitor for the Department of the Secretary of State.

ASSAY OF GOLD LONG DELAYED

Sample Sent to Cobalt Seven Years Ago—Reply Returned Recently.

FOUND BY FARMER

WINNIPEG, March 17.—The gold discovery, which has thrown the people of Minitonas and Swan River into a frenzie of excitement, and has resulted in the staking of more than 30 claims, covering approximately 51 acres, was made seven years ago, it was learned here Monday. It was not till last week, however, it was established, that there was precious metal in the find.

The strike was made by D. McVicar, who farms about 5½ miles from Minitonas, Man. He was digging a well on his farm, when he came across a streak of yellowish substance, which to him resembled gold. He sent an assay sample to Cobalt, Ont. Years passed and no reply was forthcoming. Then the other day he received a letter from Cobalt, saying that traces of gold had been found in the sample he forwarded seven years ago.

The news spread throughout the community and today the snow-covered prairie surrounding the McVicar homestead is well staked out and claimed. Excitement is running high and some of the more enterprising prospectors already have brought in machinery to begin operations with the first thaw.

MUSICAL TREAT AT ROYAL.

The much-heralded Dubins' Russian singers, now at the Royal, more than live up to their advance advertising. M. Dubin himself, who has appeared on all the prominent concert platforms in England, including the Royal Albert and the Queen's Hall, London, Eng., and St. Andrew's and City Hall, Glasgow, is without doubt the best singer to appear locally in some time. His voice has both power and natural beauty.

To-night by special request, he will sing Sullivan's 'Lost Chord," and an Irish selection, with other numbers on the programme. To-night and Wednesday will be the only opportunity for local music lovers. We guarantee this programme and the artists should have crowded houses to-night and to-morrow.

HOUSE DEMANDS ACTION AGAINST WATERED STOCK

Resolution Passed by Commons Calling for Restrictive Legislation.

DIFFICULT TASK

Fraudulent Issues Floated by Dominion Charter After Rejection by Province.

OTTAWA, March 17.—(Canadian Press). — Without dividing, the House of Commons last night passed a resolution calling for legislation "which will make difficult, and if possible prevent, the practice of issuing what is known as 'watered stock'."

The resolution was submitted by Milton N. Campbell (Progressive, Mackenzie), who cited various stock issues. He mentioned Lord Beaverbrook as responsible for the cement merger and as now living in England on his "ill-gotten gains." Mr. Campbell thought there should be some government control. Hon. A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, held that the question of stock issues was being considered by his Department every day. Anything that could possibly be done to improve administration of the Companies Act Mr. Copp promised would be gladly undertaken.

Suggestions made during the debate were that tariff protection should not be granted nor bounties paid on steel until water was squeezed out of the stock. John Evans, of Saskatoon, with passing reference to present trouble in the Cape Breton coal fields, said that the British Empire Steel Corporation was squeezing its employees to pay dividends on watered stock.

Complicated Question.

Hon. A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, said the question was a very complicated one. It was being considered every day by his Department, which had charge of the incorporation of companies and the issuance of new stock. Provincial governments also had grappled with the problem, and several provinces had their blue sky laws. Now that Mr. Campbell had brought the matter to the attention of the House, members could study the problem again, and on behalf of his Department, Mr. Copp promised that anything that could be done to improve the administration of the Companies Act would be gladly undertaken.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) asked if Mr. Copp approved of the idea of watered stock.

Mr. Copp said that the real difficulty was to define watered stock.

L. R. Steel Victims.

Mr. Woodsworth stated that the L. R. Steel Company was able, through manipulation, "to victimize a large number of people" throughout the country. Families in his own constituency had suffered. The Hearst Music Publishing Company, which had a Manitoba charter, had difficulty in that province in regard to a license. It then proceeded and obtained a Dominion charter, and snapped its fingers in the face of the Provincial Government, and the public generally. He hoped that the Secretary of State would take particular notice.

The only thing that could be done was to provide machinery for scrutinizing stock issues. The House might easily also pass legislation by which any company holding a Dominion charter would be able to sell stock only under the laws prevailing in the various provinces. The latter would be a preliminary step. If the need for a superintendent of insurance and a chief inspector of banks were admitted he considered that it was also the duty of the Government to protect the public in matters of stock.

E. J. Garland extended his sympathy to the Government in the matter, stating that "the usual policy of evasion is to be continued in this matter as in others." One of the chief causes of low wages was the paying of dividends on watered stock.

Mr. Garland suggested that the Government cut off all bounties on steel until the water was squeezed out of the stock. He also suggested that the protective tariff enjoyed by some companies be removed until watered stock was eliminated.

Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, remarked that he presumed "we have had all the illumination on this subject we are going to get from the Government." Mr. Garland had extended his sympathies to the Government, but his sympathy was with the Progressives in that their hopes on this subject, as in others, were apparently to be dashed to the ground. He did not think that all the evils charged

DEATH GERMS SOLD TO HEIR

FOR $100,000.

CHICAGO, March 17 (Canadian Press).—The typhoid fever germs, which killed William Nelson McClintock, the "millionaire orphan," were given to William Darling Shepherd, foster father and chief heir, upon his promise to pay $100,000 after settlement of the estate, C. C. Faiman, head of the school of bacteriology, told Robert E. Crowe, State Attorney today. The amount was decided upon, Faiman said, after he first had demanded a quarter of a million dollars, reduced the amount to $200,000, and finally compromised upon a promise of $100,000 after numerous conferences with Shepherd. Faiman said that he advised the method of administering the germs and advised Shepherd as to further steps to assure the death of the rich youth.

MAN PLEAD GUILTY

Responsible for Death of Girl by Operation.

MONTREAL, March 17.—Alexander Sweezey, brakeman, and Arthur Evans, prominent local football player, yesterday pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mary Kelly, twenty-three-year-old Hamilton girl, when they appeared for trial before Mr. Justice Wilson, who will pronounce sentence on March 23.

Mary Kelly was found dead in an apartment on St. Mark Street on January 5 last. An examination of the remains by the morgue physician showed that death was due to an illegal operation. Sweezey was charged with performing it at the request of Evans, the dead girl's fiance.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER.

HANDEL WAS TOO WISE.

Rejected Flaxen Haired Girl and Wandered Into Great Career.

Those who have read the life of the great musician and composer, Handel, will remember that during his early days, the post of organist at Lubeck was vacant. For this reason he went on foot to that town to make application for the position. But on arriving there, as the story goes, he found an unusual stipulation attached to the vacancy. Whoever obtained the position was required to marry the deceased organist's daughter. Handel immediately retraced his steps without making application. Had the girl been prettier, and Handel's pocketbook heavier, the result might have been different, and his whole career changed—for the worse.

The musical world should be thankful that this young German musician was not attracted by the flaxen-haired daughter of that old organist. Had it been otherwise, Handel, it is said, might have settled down to an honorable obscurity in that ancient German town and been diverted from that wonderful career of composition which has left the world so much his debtor.

LASHES FOR RAPE.

Colored Man Gets Four Years and Ten Stripes at St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, March 17 (Canadian Press).—Four years in Kingston Penitentiary with ten lashes was the sentence imposed this morning by Justice Riddell on George West and Joseph Miller, convicted last night on a charge of rape upon a young girl. All parties in the case are colored.

DRESS HINTS FOR THE SKINNY GIRL

Just as Difficult to Fit as the Stout Woman.

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(United Press). — The woman who is too slender has as difficult a figure to dress as has the "fat" woman. While styles of late years have tended towards straight lines, the stringbean shape is never attractive and women who conceal their curves in straight-line frocks are preferable to those who reveal their angularities in them.

Slender women make a great mistake in thinking that straight line frocks are meant for them. They flatter themselves in believing that because most women are dieting to get thin, they can inflict their bones upon the public and get away with it.

There are a good many walking hoop-poles who should put on a little bone covering before smugly smiling, "Thank Goodness! I don't have to diet and I don't have to wear a corset."

They might do well to recall the days when human cadavers wore hips of wire, bustles and rubber chests in their effort to fool the public. However, here are a few gentle hints to the wise:

Get away from the straight-line idea if straight lines make you look like "the long road that has no turning," since skirt fullness in vogue clings to this style as a drowning man does a life raft.

The Skirt Treatment.

There are various kinds of skirt treatments which will keep the straight line effect and at the same time make one look humanly formed. Fullness achieved by means of front pleating, ruffles, etc., are newer than hip fullness. One who needs fullness at the hips, however, can try the apron idea, permitting the shirred apron to extend well over the hips. Most frocks are flat in the back this season, so aprons are worn in front rather than in the rear.

It is a simple matter to make the summer frock for the slender woman, since sheer materials are always at their best when made in fluffy effect.

One charming frock made of rose-colored cotton voile has a long-waisted bodice shirred in the underarm seams to give breadth to the body and the skirt is made of four pecot-edged ruffles which extend entirely around. The bodice is made slender enough so that the shirred side-seams fall in soft folds about the body. The same model in navy taffeta makes an admirable frock for street wear for the slender girl.

As to bodices! None but the slender person can wear the form-fitting bodice to advantage. These, however, are usually prettiest in silk or wool materials. In cottons and sheer materials for summer, one would suggest straight lines from neck to hem in front and rear with fullness at the sides of the skirt, the fullness being either soft pleating, circular insets or ruffles, according to the material used.

The slender-hipped person may take advantage of the wide belts that are occasionally worn these days. One of the prettiest figured frocks is made of white crepe de chine figured in black, the gown being cut on slender lines. About the hips is worn a wide belt of white suede leather with a huge buckle in front. Figured materials are always good ones for the slender figure, providing, of course, that the figures are not too large.

Necklines for Thin.

Rounding necklines are usually becoming to the slender person. V-shaped necks are disastrous in most cases. High necklines are smarter than any other type when the neck is too long and slender. Here's a good neck treatment for a woollen street dress. (Of course, we all want to rebel at the thought of a high neck, but remember that a long neck can't even boast of an Adam's apple for shapeliness is seldom enticing).

On a black cloth frock of tailored lines there is a high collar made of shirred black grospraine ribbon which fits about the slender throat and ties with a perky bowknot of many loops at the left side of the neck. The long sleeves are trimmed with cuffs of grosgraine finished in loops on conform with the collar. This makes a very clever looking frock for street wear. A great deal of its smartness comes from using two entirely different black materials—a dead black and a glossy black.

As to sleeves, since long ones are so smart these days, the Russian sleeve similar to the ones used on peasant blouses is a nice one for the slender arm. This sleeve may be of any material shirred into a rather tight armhole and into a wristband. In silk it may be of contrasting color embroidered in the tone of the frock.

BABY'S COLDS

Children's delicate digestions are easily upset by too much "dosing." Still, the little ones' cold troubles cannot be neglected.

At the very first sign of croup, sore throat, or any other cold trouble, apply Vicks VapoRub over the throat and chest. There is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. Colds go over night, croup is usually relieved in 15 minutes.

ROYAL ARCH MASONS HAVE ANNIVERSARY

Prominent Officers Expected to Visit Ionic Chapter at Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 17. —Ionic Chapter Royal Arch Masons will celebrate their 16th anniversary to-night. Among the visitors expected to take part are Grand Superintendent Charles I. Davidson of Lindsay, and I. A. Humphries, formerly of town, but now of Toronto.

Girls in Training.

The C.G.I.T. of the Baptist church at their last meeting elected the following officers:

Jessie Carter, president; D. Montgomery, vice-president; Ida Adams, secretary; Mary Shore, treasurer; Violet Mason, pianist. Mrs. H. Shore gave an interesting talk on early missionary work in Bolivia.

T. L. Diamond reports the following real estate sales:

James Reeves of Rear street, has purchased Stuart Crossen's house on Front street, and will move in on March 24th.

Herbert Cumings has bought the the house on Front street lately owned by Victor Hay. The sale was made yesterday morning and the new owner takes possession at once. This property has changed hands several times lately, one of the recent owners being Seymour Waller of Stirling, who was in town yesterday.

The remains of Miss Helen Kerr, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro, on Monday, were brought to Campbellford last evening by way of Havelock.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S.

Miss Hazel Atkinson read an interesting paper on Thomas Moore, the favorite Irish poet, at the meeting of St. Andrew's Young People's Society last night, touching on the main events of the life of Ireland's distinguished literary son. Interspersed in the reading of the paper were solos from the works of the poet, Miss Atkinson singing "She is Far From the Land," and Miss Lillian Hay rendering "The Minstrel Boy." Mrs. John Storie played the accompaniments. Miss Mary Watson read the poem, "The Canadian Boat Song," written by Moore during his trip on the Ottawa River when he visited Canada early in the last century. John Storie presided in the absence of the president, J. D. McEachern. Several members who were on the programme to sing selections from Moore were kept away by illness.

Members of the society are rehearsing the play, "Excuse Me," which will be presented in a few weeks.

Personal.

Mrs. T. L. Diamond is in Toronto visiting her daughter, Mrs. Vanderwater.

SPRING AT RAWDON.

Sap Is Running and Sawing Outfit is on Wheels.

RAWDON TOWNSHIP, March 17.—Quite a large number attended the funeral of the lates Mrs. Prisley on Sunday.

Mrs. Fred McKeown has returned home after spending a few days under the parental roof.

It has every indication of Spring in this district, some have already tapped their trees.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stiles and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mathews were visitors at Mr. David Wilman's on Monday.

William Stiles, Jr., has accepted a position in the Union Bank at Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. McKeown, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown and Mr. and Mrs. David Wellman were visitors at Mrs. Thomas McKeown's on Tuesday.

The sawing machine is again busy. Owing to the lack of snow, ictor and Thomas have the sawing outfit on wheels.

MOONLIGHT TENNIS.

LONDON, March 17.—Moonlight tennis is becoming popular on British courts. When the moon is not full, strong arc lights are used.

PROGRESS OF CAMPBELLFORD IS SET OUT IN ASSESSOR'S REPORT; HAS CHEAPEST POWER IN CANADA

Municipal Power Plant Supplies Citizens at Actual Cost —Rate is $15 a H.P.

WOOLLEN MILL BUSY

Town's Big Industry Operating Overtime—Financial Credit is Excellent.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 17. — Campbellford may figure seldom or never in the south-east corner of a certain morning paper, in which corner are recorded the natural freaks and other marvels of Elmira, Milton and other places struggling for a place in the sun, but for substantial progress and steady prosperity this town ranks second to none of them. It is on the financial pages of the big city dailies that Campbellford should appear, noted as it is as a manufacturing and an electrical centre and with natural advantages that make it a desirable place of residence.

The Assessor's Figures.

The figures of Assessor Mulhearn for 1924, figures which have been compiled some time ago, but never yet published, told the story of Campbellford's growth during the twelve months referred to.

The total population of the town is now 3,070, a substantial increase over 1924. Of these, 886 are between the ages of 21 and 60.

The total assessed value of all lands and buildings is $1,679,645, as against $1,332,925 in 1923. This increase represents an actual growth of the town, and is not due to a boost in the percentage of valuation.

The exempted property is divided into the following classes: Government, $14,900; municipal, $19,050; schools, $101,500; churches, $56,000; seminary, $2,700.

Property valued at $123,277 is liable for school taxes alone. That property upon which all taxes are due is assessed at $1,362,218.

The property upon which a high school tax is due is assessed at $1,485,495.

The general tax rate for this year will be based on a total of $1,362,025, a sum in excess of the amount a year ago by $29,295.

Against this assessment only two appeals were filed, and both of these were disallowed by the Court of Revision.

Lower Tax Rate.

The taxpayers in Campbellford should escape lightly this year. The increase in the assessed value of property means a difference of over six mills in the rate, provided the amount to be raised is the same as in 1924. Besides this prospective reduction the Water and Light Commission have turned over to the town from their surplus the sum of $6,000, which will reduce the rate by four mills.

Some Advantages.

Campbellford owns its own electrical lighting and power plan, furnishes the cheapest power, $15 per horse-power in Canada, and supplies its citizens with light at actual cost. Even at these low rates the Commission, besides extending and improving the plant, have been able to accumulate a surplus of $30,000.

More power is produced by the Hydro in this district than in any other in Canada, outside of Niagara. Two new power houses have been completed within a short distance of the town, and the erection of a third is under advisement.

Campbellford's large woollen mill is now running overtime, and other industries are busy. The former mill appeared to feel the hard times of the past two years less than any of its competitors, and was never in danger. Two of the departments were moved to headquarters in Toronto last summer, but the space so vacated was utilized for the extension of other lines.

Campbellford has in operation the only automatic electrical regulator in Canada, a contrivance invented by local talent and installed last summer at the dam here. This regulates the height of water in the Canal without oversight, is on duty night and day, and does away with the danger of the town being flooded by a sudden rise in the water.

In no town of Ontario is there a better equipped fire department or one where the fire loss is lower.

The death-rate in Campbellford is lower than in other towns of its size. In 1924 it was a fraction less than 12 to the thousand.

Campbellford's new High School building is second to none of its class in Ontario, and the academic standing of that institution is of the same class as the results of the Departmental examination show.

Campbellford has what competent critics declare to be the best band in Ontario, the official band of the Northumberland Regiment.

This town's credit with the financial firms of Canada is gilt-edged, and bonds issued by the municipality are always in demand. The last issue brought a premium of five per cent.

The representative of a Western Ontario brickyard who was here the other day booking orders, said that he had during the past two years sold more brick in Campbellford than in any town of its size on his route. This is exclusive of the large amount of brick required in 1923 for the new High School. In spite of the building operations, houses in town are still scarce.

Delegates to Ottawa.

R. J. Ribbr, W.M., of L.O.L. No. 525, and H. Spencer, M.W., of L.O.L. No. 2322, are at Ottawa attending the meeting of the Grand Lodge for Eastern Ontario. Clarence Conperwaite, of Dartford, D.M. of this district, and Orville Walters, of Warkworth, County Master, are also in attendance. W. I. Stillman, town, is a delegate from the Black Preceptory.

Back to the Land.

Fred. W. Wilsher, express and down town ticket agent for the C.N.R. for the past six years, has resigned his position and will leave town as soon as his successor has been appointed. Mr. Wilsher has been left a fine farm of 190 acres close to the city limits of Granby, Que., on condition that he live upon the premises. As there is a sugar bush 40 acres in extent on the property, Mr. Wilsher is anxious to get into the country as soon as possible so that he may secure at least a part of the season's crop which the trees will yield.

Mr. Wilsher is undertaking no new venture, as he spent his early years on a farm, and always liked an independent existence in the open air. Granby is a city of over 14,000 population, and the farm of which Mr. Wilsher has become owner lies within easy walking distance of the post office.

By his courteous dealings with the public here, Mr. Wilsher has made a host of friends, who will regret has departure. He always took a lively interest in the affairs of the town, and was prominent in Masonic circles, being a Royal Arch Mason and an esteemed member of Christ Church.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

Sometimes in the forecastle the old seaman in the mate's watch, the one with the figurehead tattooed on his forearm, would take the pipe from his mouth and hint to the lanky youngster, now on his first voyage, that he could tell a tale or two of Porto Bello and the pirates who sank many a ship in these waters—cutlass tales that had come to him by word of mouth when he, in turn, was a green lad. But when the lanky youth said one night 'Sealed orders," the old seaman stared, and with a gesture of the pipe implied, "Now you been readin' story books."

Yet the sailing route from Bermuda to Melilla in Morocco does not lie north-west by north, and though Melilla was the name on the ship's papers, the new order was given between the master and the helmsman, with the barnacle light for witness.

Mr. Tweedie, the chief mate had ears in the back of his head, as a chief mate should. He heard some of the men whisper and he saw others look wise; as for himself, he stuck to his discipline. But he wondered. The captain was a reticent man.

In the forecastle there were fewer off-watch hints now of Bleackbeard and walking plank, and the spinding heard suggestions, threats, plans, secrets.

"Rum Row—that's what!" the men would say, winking.

As the Veronica beat north, stretching the leagues behind her, the men split in groups, watch and watch, and talked under their breath "I'd make 'em toe the mark," said Mr. Tweedie to himself, for he had seen trouble blew that way before this. But the captain was a man who kept his own advice.

When the Veronica dropped anchor twenty-five miles south of Montauk Point, with a rusty tramp rolling patiently to the north of her and a sloop to the south with a too-freshly painted name on her stern, the men no longer mersly talked. They figured. They conferred. They united. They grabbed phrases such as "million dollars," and "cargo of champagne," and some vowed they wouldn't lie rotting on the old wagon just so other people could make a haul.

They came forward in a body, a sea lawyer at their head, with hints at the costliness of silence. The lanky lad was in the forefront, very valiant and scowling, and the old seadog was there, too; even he, too negligent for good discipline as he leaned against the rail and folded his tatooed arms.

"Fifty per cent, extra," said the captain, "and not a cent more," and fifty it was. Cheap enough to avert a mutiny, with a cargo of Scotch and French merchandise worth $700,000.

"It wont be for long,' 'the captain voluble for once, told Mr. Tweedle. Next day it seemed that he knew, for white specks to landward became speed boats, curving to rest against the Veronica's side. Into them went 4,500 cases. A day or two more, and another speed boat, this time with a man from London and New York, the agent. In good time a schooner would lie to and there would be some work for the boats, and then the Veronica would ride higher with an empty hold.

Mr. Tweedle in three days heard a hail from a launch. "Here we are," said the man who was the first to throw a leg over the side. The mate laughed. He was glad it was the end, for he wanted to be stepping ashore from a London dock, confident in the master's papers which he carried and looking for a decent berth with no rum foolery about it.

"First give up a nip," said the man from the launch.

Mr. Tweedie led them to his cabin. He set out the glasses and bent over the low cupboard for the bottle. He straightened up and turned to look into four black revolvers. Mr. Tweedie, with an unconscious reflex, raised the arm that held the bottle—and when he opened his eyes again everything about him was as black as a ship's hold. The No. 2 hold, in fact, empty now and with the hatch battened down. Or was it fastened tight? The mate started to see. He found himself bound hand and foot.

The sounds from the deck came faintly; thuds, a cry now and then, a roaring voice. H heard a thick voice talking of Porto Bello; it was the memory of the old seaman yarning. Were the crew prisoners, too? He tried the ropes at his wrists; he bit them, he writhed, he shouted, and time became chaos. When they took him out at last, unfed and thirsting, it was the third day.

The men, unloosed, overawed were working industriously, keeping half an eye on the machine guns aimed from the boats alongside. And so worked Mr. Tweedie when invited to act as navigator and take the Veronica somewhere else—with the machine guns pointing the way. "See them guns " said the man from the launch.

Eventually a British steamer found an empty vessel with an exhausted crew and towed her into Halifax.

On that last leg the tattooed veteran began: Buccaneers, now—I remember . * 'But the spindling youth said, "So do I," and walked away.

This tale of piracy, almost within hailing distance of New York, was recounted in London in the year of grace 1925 by Captain J. T. Tweedie, who shipped on the Veronica thinking he was bound for Morocco, where pirates have not been a menace for a century or more. He added that the pirates' mate told him a United States cutter came near while the Veronica was held as a prize, and passed on.

C.N.R. DEFICIT LAST YEAR IS INCREASED

Was $57,000,000 as Against $52,779,350 in 1923.

OTTAWA, March 17 (Canadian Press).—The deficit on Canadian National Railways last year, including fixed charges, was approximately $57,000,000. In comparison with with $52,779,350 in 1923. This is the conclusion drawn from a reply by Hon. C. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, to a question asked by Sir Henry Drayton in the House Monday.

A return published by the Brueau of Statistics a few days ago, gave the 1924 operating income of Canadian National lines as $11,689, 794. This is exclusive of fixed charges. Mr. Graham informed Sir Henry yesterday that 1924 fixed charges "exclusive of the obligations of lines in the Uuited States, and of separately operated properties" would amount to $68,730,216. If, from this figure, is deducted the operating income, there is a deficit including fixed charges of $57,040,42. Of 1924 fixed charges, however, $31,271,043 is on debt to the Government; the remaining $37,459,173 being on debt to the public.

During 1924, added Mr. Graham, $118,165,686 was added to the debt on the Canadian National Railways. Of this amount, $90,680,526 was added to the debt due the public.

Fixed charges on Canadian National lines in 1923 were $66,144,226. Operating income in 1923 was $13,239,091.

It is expected that the Minister of Railways will submit his annual statement to the House before Easter.

And probably all of the time it was waiting for them at home .... in the eyes of a baby, in the clink of teacups beside the hearth, or in the odor of wet lilacs outside the kitchen door!

Women have gone happiness-hunting to the ends of the earth. They have looked for it on the Palm Beach sands and among the snows of Switzerland.

Government Plans to Develop Dominion Coal Industry This Year.

ALBERTA SHIPMENT.

OTTAWA, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, indicated in the House last night Government plans for the development of the Canadian coal industry. Two lines of activity were proposed.

(1) Continuance of the financial assistance provided last year for the transportation of Canadian coal;

(2) Legislation to assist the manufacture of coke.

Mr. Stewart said that as a result of the $200,000 voted last year to assist in transporting coal, the market for Nova Scotia coal had been extended 100 miles further westward.

Owing to the strike in the Alberta coal fields, it had not been possible to lend financial assistance in transporting Alberta coal east, but there was to be a trial shipment in the spring and if the rate of $6.00 per ton transportation charges could be obtained plus $3.50 per ton for mining and loading on the cars it would be possible to bring Alberta coal into Ontario to meet competition with American anthracite. Further, if Nova Scotia fuel could be turned into high grade coke in Quebec Mr. Stewart thought that a million and a half tons could be used to take the place of anthracite now brought in from the United States.

Kingston Prisoner on Hunger Strike Regains Weight.

KINGSTON, March 17.—For a year or so there has been a hunger strike in the Portsmouth Penitentiary Maddened because the authorities took his money (about $80) after he was shot in the leg in attempting to escape from the police who caught him robbing a store, he has steadily refused to take food since his entry into the penitentiary. His weight went down from 140 to 90, and then forceful feeding was resorted to with the result that he now eights 160 pounds.

PERCY TOWNSHIP ENDEAVOURS TO MAKE TEACHERS PAY TAXES

Will Make Test Case of Miss Shirley Muir, Claiming $39.

SEEK ADVICE.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

WARKWORTH, Mar. 17.—Reeve John McCubbin of Percy Township, has been authorized by the council to secure legal advice with regard to the collection of income taxes from teachers in the public schools, whose houses are outside the limits of the township. The reeve will get the opinion of G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., of Peterborough, the first time Mr. Gordon is home from Ottawa.

It is proposed to make a test of the case of Miss Shirley Muir, who taught school in the village of Warkworth during the latter half of 1923, and the first half of the following year, and whose home—at least that of her parents—is in Toronto. Miss Muir resigned her position in Warkworth to go to Mount Albert where she is still teaching. She was charged with income tax on the full amount of the salary which she earned in Warkworth. She now refuses to pay this tax, about $39, and a lawyer in Toronto acting on her behalf, has challenged the right of the township to make the levy.

This challenge the township proposes to take up and, if necessary, to take the matter into Division Court, as there are a number of other cases in the township.

Seymour Township Council had a parallel case before Judge Huycke in Campbellford last summer, the defendant being a Peterboro lady whose parents resided in that city, but who was teaching in Seymour. Judge Huycke gave his decision in favor of the township.

It seems that the trouble in all of these cases arises over the fact that the teaching year begins and ends in midsummer, whereas the tax is levied for the straight calendar year. Miss Muir was really assessed for parts of two years.

"If I had only known—"

TWO women went out to buy a certain expensive labor saving device for the home.

One was greatly dissappointed when, a few days later' they compared notes. She had bought the same product that many of her friends had owned.

The other woman had secured a greatly improved, new product—costing less, but of much more value.

"If I had only known there was a better one," the first woman said, "I would never have bought this one."

'I had just read about it in an advertisement,' explained the wise buyer.

WHAT CAN BE DONE?

The Examiner has on many occasions urged the citizens to get behind the Peterboro Horticultural Society, realizing the possibilities before such an organization if given the benefit of genuine community support.

Just what can be accomplished by a Horticultural Society under such conditions is most admirably illustrated by the record of the St. Thomas Society, the annual book of which, containing some 80 pages, has just been made public.

The organization started out with the idea of making St. Thomas known as the Flower City, and with the hearty co-operation of the citizens the aim has been accomplished.

Blooms from St. Thomas have been successful in capturing numerous trophies at flower shows throughout Ontario, and even New York has been invaded successfully.

The extent of the yearly activities of the society can be judged from the financial statement for last year, which shows that the St. Thomas organization in 1924 expended the large sum of $21,436.

What has been done in St. Thomas can be equally as well done in Peterboro under the same conditions.

The Horticultural Society provides the necessary machinery—what is lacking here is the enthusiastic support and co-operation of the citizens generally.

We can well look to St. Thomas for a new conception of what a community can accomplish if it goes whole-heartedly into an enterprise of public welfare.

CUTTING OFF THE SUPPLY.

The majority of people will approve of the action of the Federal Government in tightening the regulations regarding the export of liquor from border points in Ontario.

The Customs Department is now refusing clearances from places where there are no custom officers for cargoes of liquor to United States ports, and as a result of this ruling the business of shipping liquor to our neighbors and, incidentally, of short-cutting it back into Canada has received an unexpected and severe jolt.

There seems no doubt that a considerable amount of the liquor sold by bootleggers in this Province has been obtained by taking advantage of the lenience with which exports consigned for United States border ports were given clearances.

It is claimed that it was a regular custom of some of those engaged in the export traffic to clear their vessels for an American port, and then under cover of darkness, double back and land their cargoes in Ontario, the bootleggers depending upon this method for much of their supply of liquor.

If that has been the case, the administration of the Ontario Temperance Act will be appreciably facilitated by the decision of the Federal Government making it impossible for a number of Ontario ports to be used as a shipping point for liquor consignments.

The Federal authorities are to be commended upon taking this attitude, which is in the interest of this Province in particular.

THE O. T. A. AMENDMENTS.

The chief event of interest this week in the Legislature will be the bringing down on Thursday by Attorney-General Nickle of the amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act dealing with the now famous 4.4 beer and with other changes in the measure.

Mr. Nickle's announcement is being eagerly awaited.

Not only will he state the method by which the stronger beer will be handled, but he is also expected to have something to say about doctors' prescriptions, and to inform the House of more drastic penalties for bootleggers and lighter punishment for minor offenders under the Act.

The last two changes will be supported by a very strong pressure of public opinion.

If there is one feature in particular about the Ontario Temperance Act that has been responsible for bitter antagonism to the measure it has been the weight of the penalties inflicted for what a large section of the population at least regard as trifling offences.

In every district there have been cases that have aroused indignation because of the severity of the punishment inflicted under the Act, and if Mr. Nickle proposes to make such cases impossible in the future he will be making a valuable contribution toward establishing respect for the O. T. A.

At the same time he will do well to tighten the pressure upon the man who nonchantly breaks the law for the purpose of putting money in his own pocket—in other words, the bootlegger.

A jail term without the option of a fine upon conviction for trafficking in liquor would do much to stop the illegal sale.

Fining the convicted vendor—who nearly always is the agent for the man higher up—does not even momentarily slow up the traffic.

The "ring" comes through with the money with which to pay the fine—and the agent starts out again to call on his customers.

Jail sentences will quickly kill off the supply of agents and paralize the traffic.

HEALTH MATTERS.

When Dr. McCullough, Chief Medical Officer of Health, told Peterboro audiences yesterday that the establishment of a full-time Medical Health Department here was a business proposition, he opened a viewpoint that is often neglected in the discussion of such matters.

It is good business to guard the health of the community.

It is good business to have a full-time protection against disease.

It is good business to prevent epidemics from breaking out, inasmuch as it is obviously cheaper to prevent disease than it is to deal with frequent outbreaks of contagious ailments.

It is good business to save the lives of several dozen babies and perhaps a score of adults every year.

Yet municipal councils almost invariably starve their health departments.

They are satisfied to make a mere gesture toward protecting the health of the people whose representatives they are.

Just as Provincial and Federal Governments are always more generous in their grants to protect animals from disease than they are in assisting to protect mankind, so municipal authorities can get more interested in street paving or something of that kind than in keeping down the death rate.

Dr. McCullough pointed out that the infantile mortality in Peterboro in 1923 was 90 per 1,000 births, and as a contrast he referred to a Western Ontario city which, by establishing a full-time health department, cut its infantile mortality down to 38 per 1,000 in five years.

Eventually it will work around to the question of whether Peterboro can afford to not have a full-time department rather than whether she can afford to have one.

ST. PATRICK.

Irishmen the world over today celebrate the anniversary of the patron saint of old Ireland, St. Patrick.

Much of the information about St. Patrick is legendary, and there are widely varying views by modern scholars as to the exact year of his birth and the year of his death.

Pope Leo XIII. gave his approbation to the following story of St. Patrick's life:

St. Patrick was born toward the close of the fourth century in a village called Bonaven Tabernaiae which seems to be the town of Kilpatrck, on the mouth of the River Clyde, in Scotland, between Dumbarton and Glasgow.

He was said to be a Briton and a Roman, or a mixed extraction. His father was of the family name Calphurnius.

In his sixteenth year he was carried into captivity by barbarians who took him to Ireland, where for six months he served as a slave in watching cattle on the mountain sides.

He fled and obtained passage on a ship heading toward his home, but the ship was forced to land and for 27 days he wandered through a desert country.

St. Patrick continued his travelling, going to Gaul and Italy, where he received apostolic benediction from Pope Celestine.

He returned to Ireland to preach the gospel. He travelled over the whole island, penetrating into the remotest corners. He ordained clergy, established schools and colleges and monasteries.

Many legends, which do not appear in the story approved by Pope Leo, have been related.

The most popular legend is that which gives him credit for driving all the snakes and vermin out of Ireland.

It seems that St. Patrick, wherever he went, was always preceded by a drum, to attract the people. Just before going up the hill to preach the sermon that was to finish the snakes the drum was beaten so vigorously it burst.

A great multitude had gathered and the people were horror stricken when a large black snake, with jaws extending, was seen gliding toward St. Patrick.

But, as the story goes, an angel came down from heaven, patched the drum, the sermon proceeded and all the reptiles vanished as if by magic.

INDUSTRIAL STRIFE IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Once more Nova Scotia is the scene of industrial strife.

When will people realize the folly of blind partisanship when varied and complicated principles are involved? In many cases where labor and capital fail to understand one another, the truth is not always on the one side, and for one party of the controversy to close his eyes to the other's strong points merely because the latter has also made some which are indefensible, is only damaging his own cause in the eyes of all thinking men.

The general tendency of trade unionists and their sympathizers to look at the proceedings and motives of employers with eyes only too ready to see their selfishness and injustice and to misrepresent the facts as much as possible and to twist them to their own advantage is not an uncommon thing.

A request for higher wages may be refused for the very good reason that even a very small advance may make on a given contract the difference between a profit and a loss. Immediately the refusal is made the outside labor element begins to call names. It does not know the circumstances. Then why should it speak? This sort of ignorant partisanship does infinite harm to thecause of labor and weakens it in estimably in the eyes of the public, upon whose favor the ultimate success of unionism or any other cause will be forced to hang.

Labor will find it necessary to have a thorough understanding of the position occupied by capital, not only generally, but in individual cases. Often both are right, and often both are wrong, and strict adherence to one side or the other is very absurd and leads to bitter feeling without due cause.

Just as this short-sighted partisanship on the part of labor is to be deprecated on the one side, so it is on the other. Granted that the demands of labor are often unreasonable. Does that necessarily warrant the friends of the capitalist class in condemning the representations of the worker in toto. If employers have the right to join together for mutual protection and the furtherance of their own interests, why not the employees, and any group which refuses to recognize the right of the employees to organize is heading for trouble. The union is there in actual fact. To refuse to see it is the height of folly; it has to be accepted, and how much valuable time and bitter feeling would be saved by accepting it at once instead of after a protracted cuffing of the empty air!

Capital and labor must work together and in harmony. To this harmony, perhaps the greatest enemy is ignorance, and that is why the call for a clear knowledge of all the facts in each case is necessary before praising or condemning instead of indiscriminate laudation or condemnation, according to one's sympathies.

The situation in Nova Scotia is a very acute one and fraught with great difficulty. The district directly affected is suffering from genuine destitution, and it is to be hoped that something be done speedily to bring about an adjustment that will be satisfactory to all parties. The matter is one calling for a Government inquiry clothed with authority to investigate the entire situation.—Monetary Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

An organization to encourage research work in Ontario should have most beneficial results. We in this country are miles behind the procession in this regard.

The Globe points out that while some people claim that Canadians are the hewers of wood for the United States, it must not be forgotten that Chicago is the drawer of water.

A THOUGHT.

WORSE THAN WAR.

The United States consumes four times as many tons of narcotic drugs as all of Europe, and authorities declare that less than 1 per cent. of these drugs are necessary for medical purposes.

Over a million Americans are victims of the drug habit.

To lose a million young men in war would be considered a calamity, but cocaine is more destructive than cannon, heroin of greater harm than the shells of all the world.

"Those who have studied alcohol scientifically can well appreciate the peril of narcotics by comparison. Five ounces of alcohol is considered a fatal dose. Five ounces of morphine taken at one time will kill fifteen hundred men.

"It requires months and often years of repeated regular drinking with many drinks a day to produce a drunkard out of a youth. One dose a day for six days will make a youth a drug addict. An ounce of heroin could make two thousand addicts within a week.

"A drinking man as a rule likes company in drinking, but will advise others, especially the young, to avoid his fate and go the other way. A heroin addict has literally a mania to lead others into addiction, and will make every effort to do so, having no pity even for children.

"Morphine given in illness by a careless physician and contained also in patent medicines may bring addiction with its train of sorrows to parents in established homes. Heroin on the other hand, usually catches the boy and the girl between 16 and 20, or even younger, like the young bird before it has learned to fly, and the new homes are never built."

NEW QUEBEC COMPANIES

Incorporation of Twenty-Six Last Week Gazetted.

QUEBEC, March 17. — Canadian Press. — Twenty six new companies with a combined capital of $1,510,600, were incorporated in the province of Quebec last week, according to the current issue of the official Gazette.

The Brenmer Rest Preventorium, with a capitalization of a half million dollars and headquarters in Montreal, heads the list, followed by the Elephantis Company, also of Montreal, with $149,000. The Wilder Realty Corporation of Montreal, and the Simplex Oil Heating Company of Canada, another Montreal concern, have each a capital of $100,000 each.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 16.—Although export buyers were practically out of the market this morning, except for two or three loads of bulls, the moderate run of cattle was more than well taken care of in a strong active butcher cattle. Packers and the wholesale butchers made strong bids for the choice heavy butcher steers, prices going as hight as $8 to $8.50, as good as the exporters were paying for them last week. The choice lighter weight butcher steers were in good demand and strong at last week's range from $7.25 to $7.75; and good medium at $6.75 to $7.

Choice fat butcher cows are in active demand and strong from $5 to $5.75, and a few extra choice at $6. Other grades in fair steady market.

Good enquiry for choice feeders, some good western feeders going at $5.50 to $6.50, and choice short keep at $7 to $7.25.

Calves steady.

Sheep and lambs, scarcely enough to make a market, but strong at $15 to $16 for top lambs.

Light run of hogs and market 25c higher at $12.50 f.o.b., and $13.50 off cars.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—An English correspondent states that the outlook in Great Britain is that prices will be lower this year than last for storing and pickling purposes. Already prices are 2 shillings per 10 dozen lower than a year ago. There is nothing definite to state at the present time with regard to the possible basis for storage in this country. Imports were very few last week, and as a result of this the tone of the market is slightly firmer. The consuming public has re-acted to lower prices and consumption is heavy. At some points local receipts are barely sufficient to meet requirements and this may result in one or two more cars of United States arriving during the present week. Ontario country shippers paying extras 29, firsts 26, seconds 22 to 23, making sales extras 33, firsts 27 to 29, seconds 26 to 27, f.o.b.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Sudden fright over a dearth of buying swept through the entire grain market to-day at the last, and resulted in big selling and a general upset of values. Wheat fell 8¼ cents a bushel from the day's top figures, and closed excited, May delivery 164½ to 165 and July 145¼ to 145½, the bottom prices reached. 4½ to 6 3-4 cents, under Saturday's close. Rye finished at 4¼ to 4 3-4 cents net loss, corn 3¼ to 4 cents down, oats 1 5-8 to 2 1-8 cents off, and provisions varying from seven cents decline to 27 cents advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 16. — (Canadian Press).—Erratic trading throughout the major portion of today's session on the wheat market, culminated with another slump in prices, the May future closing five cents below Saturday's final figures at $1.71½. July declined 5 3-8c to $1.66 3-8, and October 4¼c to $1.39. All the coarse grains and flax suffered additional drastic losses, flax dropping 6½c, rye 7c, barley 2 5-8c, and oats 1 3-4c.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—A weaker feeling in the local grain market reflected the weakness of Winnipeg closing prices while a dearth of demand from exporters brought a general easing up in trading. No. 1 Northern closed at $1.70½, No. 2 at $1.65½, and No. 3 at $1.61, ex-store, Fort William. The only change in premiums was an advance of ¼ cent per bushel for No. 2 Northern, with sales of odd lots at 6 cents per bushel under the May option.

A reduction of 2 cents per bushel for cash oats on spot featured the local trade in that commodity, but this produced no response from buyers, and business was limited with No. 2 Canadian Western quoted at 67 cents, No. 3 at 59 cents, No. 1 feed at 56 cents and No. 2 feed at 52 cents per bushel, ex-store.

The flour market furnished no exception to the prevailing quietness, but the tone of the market was steady. Car lots of spring wheat first patents were quoted at $10.20; second patents at $9.70, and strong bakers at $9.50 per bbl., ex-track, less 10 cents per bbl. spot cash. The export trade was dull and without feature.

Demand for millfeed was small. Manitoba bran was quoted at $23.25, shorts at $30.25, and middlings at $36.25 per ton. In the baled hay market the trade was featureless and prices were unchanged.

A stronger tone developed in the trading in the local egg market and prices were advanced 1 to 2 cents per dozen. No change of importance was noted in potatoes.

Beans were quoted at $2.70 per bushel.

The cheese market was inactive but firm. Fodder made No. 1 white and colored goods were quoted at 21 to 21¼ cents per pound, and No. 2 grade at 20 to 20¼ per pound. The demand for butter was limited but prices were steady.

PETITION FOR PIRIE

Abnormal Condition of Veteran Stressed in Plea.

MONTREAL, March 17. —Over 600 persons signed a petition praying the Minister of Justice to recommend exercise of clemency in the case of John Buchanan Pirie, of Ottawa, who is due to hang on Tuesday next for the murder of his wife and two children. The petition which was drawn up and forwarded to Ottawa Monday by the Canadian Prisoners' Welfare Association, National committee, lays stress on the abnormal condition of Pirie, who saw active service at the front.

RADIO NEWS.

Arrangements have been made to broadcast a concert programme to be given during the meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East, to be held in Ottawa on March 19. The music will be supplied by the Masonic Choir of Ottawa and the Knights of Pythias Minstrels. There will also be patriotic speeches delivered by men who are prominent in public life and hold leading positions in the Association. This will be the first occasion when such a programme has been broadcasted in Canada. Those responsible for the meeting are to be congratulated on their enterprise.

IS THIS Your BIRTHDAY

TUESDAY, MARCH 17.—If today is your birthday, you are very studious, preferring to retire to your room and bury yourself in a book rather than to attend any social function. You dislike trouble and noise of all kinds. You do not like wordly or commercial things. You are inclined to be very serious. An extra laugh now and then would do you a lot of good.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

by James Oliver Curwood

It was late in August when Baree saw the first of his kind outside of Kazan and Gray Wolf. During the summer months Pierrot allowed his dogs to run at large on a small island in the centre of a lake two or three miles away, and twice a week he netted fish for them. On one of these trips Nepeese accompanied him and took Baree with her. Pierrot carried his long caribou-gut whip. He expected a fight. But there was none. Baree joined the pack in their rush for fish, and ate with them. This pleased Pierrot more than ever.

"He will make a great sledge-dog," he chuckled. "It is best to leave him for a week with the pack, ma Nepeese."

Reluctantly Nepeese gave her consent. While the dogs were still at their fish, they started homeward. Their canoe had stolen well out before Baree discovered the trick they had played on him. Instantly he leaped into the water and swam after them—and the Willow helped him into the canoe.

Early in September a passing Indian brought Pierrot word from Bush McTaggart. The Factor had been very sick. He had almost died from the blood-poison, but he was well now. With the first exhilarating tang of autumn in the air, a new dread oppressed Pierrot. But at present he

"Her eyes were big and dark and steady. 'I am not going, mon pere!'" said nothing of what was in his mind to Nepeese. The Willow had almost forgotten the Factor from Lac Bain, for the glory and thrill of wilderness autumn was in her blood. She went on long trips with Pierrot, helping him to blaze out the new trap lines that would be used when the first snows came, and on these journeys she was always accompanied by Baree.

"By midwinter I will have him the finest dog in the pack, mon pere!"

This was the time for Pierrot to say what was in his mind. He smiled.

"I am going to send you down to the school at Nelson House again this winter, ma cherie," he said. "Baree will help draw you down on the first good snow."

The Willow was tying a knot in Baree's babiche, and she rose slowly to her feet and looked at Pierrot. Her eyes were big and dark and steady.

"I am not going, mon pere!"

With a shrug of his shoulders Pierrot watched her. After all, was he not glad? Would his heart not have turned sick if she had been happy at the thought of leaving him?

"The Saints be blessed!" he murmured. "Now—now—it is Pierrot Du Quesne who knows what to do!"

CHAPTER XVII.

Back to Lac Bain, late in September, came McDonald, the map-maker. For ten days Gregson, the investigating agent, had been Bush McTaggart's guest at the post, and twice in that time it had come into Marie's mind to creep upon him while he slept and kill him. The Factor himself paid little attention to her now, a fact which would have made her happy if it had not been for Gregson. He was enraptured with the wild, sinuous beauty of the Cree girl, and McTaggart, without jealousy, encouraged him. He was tired of Marie.

McTaggart told Gregson this. He wanted to get rid of her, and if he—Gregson—could possibly take her on with him it would be a great favor. He explained why. A little later, when the deep snows came, he was going to bring the daughter of Pierrot Du Quesne to the Post. In the rottenness of their brotherhood he told of his visit, of the manner of his reception, and of the incident at the chasm. In spite of all this, he assured Gregson, Pierrot's girl would soon be at Lac Bain.

It was at this time that MacDonald came. He remained only one night, and without knowing that he was adding fuel to a fire already dangerously blazing, he gave the photograph he had taken of Nepeese to the Factor. It was a splendid picture.

"If you can get it down to that girl some day I'll be mightily obliged," he said to McTaggart. "I promised her one. Her father's name is Du Quesne—Pierrot Du Quesne. You probably know them. And the girl——"

The next day MacDonald started for Norway House. McTaggart did not show Gregson the picture. He kept it to himself, and at night, under the glow of his lamp, he looked at it with thoughts that filled him with a growing resolution. There was but one way. The scheme had been in his mind for weeks—and the picture determined him. He dared not whisper his secret even to Gregson. But it was the only way. It would give him Nepeese. Only—he must wait for the deep snows, the mid-winter snows. They buried their tragedies deepest.

McTaggart was glad when Gregson followed the map-maker to Norway House. Out of courtesy he accompanied him a day's journey on his way. When he returned to the Post, Marie was gone. He was glad. He sent off a runner with a load of presents for her people, and the message: "Don't beat her. Keep her. She is free."

Along with the bustle and stir of the beginning of the trapping season, McTaggart began to prepare his house for the coming of Nepeese. He knew what she liked in the way of cleanliness and a few other things. He had the log walls painted white with the lead and oil that was intended for his York boats. Certain partitions were torn down, and new ones were built; the Indian wife of his chief runner made curtains for the windows, and he confiscated a small phonograph that should have gone on to Lac la Biche. He had no doubts, and he counted the days as they passed.

Down on the Gray Loon, Pierrot and Nepeese were busy at many things, so busy that at times Pierrot's fears of the Factor at Lac Bain were forgotten, and they went out of the Willow's mind entirely. It was the Red Moon, and it thrilled with the anticipation and excitement of the winter hunt. Nepeese carefully dipped a hundred traps in boiling caribou-fat mixed with beaver-grease, while Pierrot made fresh deadfalls ready for setting on his trails. When he was gone more than a day from the cabin, she was always with him.

It was the Willow's voice which Baree had learned to understand, and the movement of her lips, her gesture, the poise of her body, the changing moods, which brought shadow or sunlight into her face. He knew what it meant when she smiled; he shook himself, and often jumped about her in sympathetic rejoicing when she laughed; her happiness was a part of him, a stern word from her was worse than a blow. Twice Pierrot had struck him, and twice Baree had sprung back and faced him with bared fangs and an angry snarl, the crest along his back standing up like a brush. Had one of the other dogs done this, Pierrot would have killed him. It would have been mutiny, and the man must be master. But Baree was always safe. A touch of the Willow's hand, a word from her lips, and the crest slowly settled and the snarl went out of his throat.

Pierrot was not at all displeased.

"Dieu! I will never go so far as to try and whip that out of him," he told himself. "He is a barbarian—a wild beast—and her slave. For her he would kill!"

So it came, through Pierrot himself and without telling his reason for it—that Baree did not become a sledge-dog. He was allowed his freedom, and was never tied, like the others. Nepeese was glad, but did not guess the thought that was in Pierrot's mind. To himself, Pierrot chuckled. She would never know why he kept Baree always suspicious of him, even to the point of hating him. It required considerable skill and cunning on his part. With himself he reasoned:

"If I make him hate me, he will hate all men. Mey-oo. That is good."

So he looked into the future—for Nepeese.

Now the tonic-filled days and cold, frosty nights of the Red Moon brought about the big change in Baree. It was inevitable. Pierrot knew that it would come, and the first night that Baree settled back on his haunches and howled up at the Red Moon, Pierrot prepared Nepeese for it.

"He is a wild dog, ma Nepeese," he said to her. "He is half wolf, and the Call will come to him strong. He will go into the forests. He will disappear at times. But we must not fasten him. He will come back. Ka, he will come back!" And he rubbed his hands in the moon-glow until his knuckles cracked.

The Call came to Baree like a thief entering slowly and cautiously into a forbidden place. He did not understand at first. It made him nervous and uneasy, so restless that Nepeese frequently heard him whine softly in his sleep. He was waiting for something. What was it? Pierrot knew, and smiled in his inscrutable way.

And then it came. It was a night, a glorious night filed with moon and stars, under which the earth was whitening with a film of frost, when they heard the first hunt-call of the wolves. Now and then during the summer there had come the lone wolf-howl, but this was the tonguing of the pack; and as it floated through the vast silence and mystery of the night, a song of savagery that had come with each Red Moon down through unending ages, Pierrot knew that at last had come that for which Baree had been waiting.

"Slinking low under the bushes, his tail drooping, his ears aslant—the wolf as the wolf runs on the night trail."

In an instant Baree had sensed it. His muscles grew taut as pieces of stretched rope as he stood up in the moonlight, facing the direction from which floated the mystery and thrill of the sound. They could hear him whining softly; and Pierrot, bending down so that he caught the light of the night properly, could see him trembling.

"It is Mee-Koo!" he said in a whisper to Nepeese.

That was it, the call of the blood that was running swift in Baree's veins—not alone the call of his species, but the call of Kazan and Gray Wolf and of his forebears for generations unnumbered. It was the voice of his people. So Pierrot had whispered, and he was right. In the golden night the Willow was waiting, for it was she who had gambled most, and it was she who must lose or win. She uttered no sound, replied not to the low voice of Pierrot, but held her breath and watched Baree as he slowly faded away, step by step, in the shadows. In a few moments more he was gone. It was then that she stood straight, and flung back her head, with eyes that glowed in rivalry with the stars.

"Baree!" she called. "Baree! Baree! Baree!

He must have been near the edge of the forest, for she had drawn a slow, waiting breath or two before he was back at her side. But he had come, straight as an arrow, and he whined up into her face. Nepeese put her hands to his head.

"You are right, mon pere," she said. "He will go to the wolves, but he will come back. He will never leave me for long." With one hand still on Baree's head, she pointed with the other into the pit-like blackness of the forest. "Go to them, Baree!" she whispered. "But you must come back. You must. Cheamao!"

BANK MANAGER IS SAID TO HAVE STAGED HOLD-UP

Charged With Stealing the Sum of $3,498 from the Bank.

MONTREAL, March 17.—Charged with stealing the sum of $3,498 from the Ste. Anne De Bellevue branch of the Banque D'Hochelaga, of which he was manager, Joseph A. Boyer, of Lachine, appeared before Judge Enright Monday.

On January 27, last, Boyer reported to the police that two armed thugs held him up while he was alone in the bank and escaped with the money. Not the slightest trace, however, was ever found of the robbers, and the Crown now contends that Boyer himself was the thief. The accused is also charged with a shortage in his accounts of $1,100 between June, 1924, and January 28, 1925.

Boyer was remanded until March 24, and bail set at $5,000. At the time of the alleged "hold-up" the manager declared that his assailants had struck him on the head with a bottle. He was found lying on the floor by a customer.

GRIMSBY, Eng., March 17.—"A person may have pneumonia and not know it," said a doctor at an inquest here. He said a man who died while eating dinner had been suffering from pneumonia for several days.

EARTH'S DIAMETERS ACCURATELY FIXED

Measurements of Dr. Hayford Accepted by International Congress.

CHICAGO, March 17 Director John F. Hayford, head of Northwestern University College of Engineering, has determined the equatorial and polar diameters of the earth with such accuracy that his figures have been adopted in all countries.

This triumph for American science was announced by the International Godetec and Physical Union at their recent meeting in Madrid, Spain, it was stated today by Professor William H. Burger, Professor of Civil Enginering at the university. Director Hayford is seriously ill at his home in Evanston.

This decision of the international union means that every boundary survey in the world in the future will be based on the Hayford figures Measurements prove the form of the earth is an ellipsoid, a sphere flattened at the poles. This is known as the ellipsoid of reference, for to it are referred all the computations, astronomical and geodetic, which employ the dimensions of the earth.

By working with measurements gained with the United States Geodetic Survey, Director Hayford has fixed the value of the equatorial diameter at 7,926,678 miles and the polar diameter at 7,899,964 miles. The difference between these two diameters is 26.894 miles and the ratio for the earths flattening at the poles is therefore 1 part in 297.

In 1696 Reicher turned the attention of mathematicians to the earth's deviation from a spherical form. Since that time French, British and Germans have worked at the problem. Newton, late in the seventeenth century, computed that the earth as a revolving body, must take the form of a slightly flattened sphere.

Various values chiefly those of Clark in 1866 and the earlier one of Bessel, have been used during the last century. it became neccesary in order to coinordinate the geodetic work of various nations that they should all use the same elips. soid was raised in 1919. In 1921, when the first general assembly of the union was held in Rome the section of geodesy charged the Executive Committee to fixe and recommend as soon as possible an ellipsoid of refence common to all nations on the same continent. Twenty-five nations were represented at the Madrid meeting recently and this was the decision.

"The Hayford ellipsoid, determined in his investigation in 1909 and 1910 upon the figure of the earth and isostasy, was the one which represented with the greatest precision all of the land surface of the earth. The values computed by him have about four times the weight of the other ellipsoids These values, though deduced from observations made in the United States have been show to apply equally well to other regions."

Dr. Hayford was presented with the Victoria Medal of the Royal Geographical Society of Great Britain in 1924 for his researches.

HOUSE DEMANDS

against watered stock were attributive to it. Watered stock was stock issued for nothing, but a matter with which tariff protection had nothing whatever to do. He was in favor of the curtailment of watered stock, large blocks of which had the effect of deceiving the public.

Mr. Meighen considered that the granting of charters without placing a par value of stock would be a real reform; and if the Dominion and Provincial Governments would cooperate with a view to issuing charters, in this way, it would be a proper step. At least the public would not be deceived by anything the Government might do in the issue of a charter in this respect. Mr. Meighen declared that he did not oppose the resolution.

W. F. MacLean (Conservative, South York) advised seeing that a large proportion of the money which came from organizations watering their stock found its way back to the Dominion treasury. Te duty of the Government was to frame a policy which would reach this illegal form of financing. Mr. MacLean said that "even if Max Aitken gets a peerage because he floated a great watered stock on the public," there was no reason why this illegal process should be allowed to go on.

John Evans (Progressive, Saskatoon) said that the issuing of watered stock was a fraudulent extraction of money from the pockets of the people. "The British Empire Steel Corporation is to-day squeezing its employees to pay dividends on this watered stock," he said. The Dominion canners also furnished an illustration of the watered stock system

Mr. Evans made some comparison of profits of big corporations and those of the average farmer and citizen. Corporations, he said, could not pay as high as 310 per cent. without doing injustice to the public. He hoped the Government would take some steps to equalize the profit on industry, before it was too late.

Closing the debate, Mr. Campbell said that he had been struck with one remark made by the Secretary of State in the afternoon. Mr. Copp had said that the public did not have to buy the products of any corporation. How about the Canada Cement Company, asked Mr. Campbell. It controlled the cement business, and Canadians had no choice but to deal with them.

Up to Government.

Mr. Copp had said that the Government was studying the matter. How long would it go on studying without doing anything? Mr. Copp had invited suggestions for the strengthening of the Companies Act. It was for the Government," said Mr. Campbel, to make any changes necessary in that Act. If it was not prepared to take the responsibility, it should give up office. The Solicitor-General had invited the member for Centre Winnipeg (J. S. Woodsworth) to suggest amendments. He fancied that if Mr. Woodsworth was Solicitor-General, he would not be inviting suggestions from the Opposition benches as to how a Government bill should be amended. It was all very well to say that control of stock issues was impossible. A few years ago, it had been said that the inspection of banks was impossible. Now it was an accomplished fact.

Hon. J. A. Robb—"Who did it?"

Mr. Campbell—"The Government. But only under pressure of public opinion. It floated like a chip on the crest of a wave." Mr. Campbell concluded by saying that there was no reason why Canada could not have Government control of the issuing of watered stock.

HEART TROUBLE SHORTNESS OF BREATH

Mrs. Geo. E. Bowman, Morrisburg, Ont., writes:—"I am writing you a few lines to let you know of my experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Two years ago I became very poorly with my heart and nerves and whenever I took the least little bit of exercise my heart would start to jump and flutter. I could not walk up-stairs without having to sit down and rest before I was half-way up, on account of my breath becoming so short.

"I commenced taking

STIRLING CHURCH OPENS ITS VOTING

Church Union Question Will be Decided by Ballot—Other Town News.

STIRLING, March 17. — The W.M.S. of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday at Mrs. J. M. McGee's, with the president, Mrs. A. B. Fargey, in the chair.

The topic "Korea" was ably taken by Mrs. Jas. Montgomery and Mrs. Bissonnette.

Many expressions of sympathy were heard for Mrs. Robt. Reid who has been ill for some time. Potted plants were ordered sent to Mrs. Reid and also to Miss Hume. Mrs. Levery gave a short talk on the "Messenger" which was much appreciated by those present. The hostess served candy at the close of the meeting.

On Tuesday evening a congregational meeting was held in St. Andrew's church, to arrange for the polling of the vote, re Church Union. The session had everything arranged and after the meeting had ratified what they had done, the voting began under the supervision of the following committee: M. W. Sive, poll clerk; Messrs. T. F. Ward, Wilson Harlow, T. H. Matthews and L. Meiklejohn as scrutineers.

Mr. L. Meiklejohn was chairman and Mr. Edwin Reid acted as secretary of the meeting.

It was decided to continue the voting on the following days:

Thursday, March 12 at 7 to 9 p.m.
Tuesday, March 17 at 7 to 9 p.m.
Thursday, March 19 at 3 to 5 p.m.
Thursday, March 19 at 7 to 9 p.m.
Tuesday, March 24 at 8 to 9 p.m.

On the last night the meeting will be recovened and the result of the voting will be announced.

Business Change.

The latest business change here is the purchase of R. A. Elliott's restaurant and ice cream business by Thos. Cranston, who intends to continue the business along similar lines.

The sewing meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid held at the home of Mrs. Harper Rollins on Thursday last was a decided success, the attendance being over 40.

Obituary.

Mrs. Jones, widow of the late Robert Jones, after a brief illness passed away on Friday afternoon. The funeral was held Monday afternoon. She is survived by two stepsons, Wesley and Wilbert.

Mr. Robert Morton of Sine suffered from a stroke on Wednesday last, from which he never rallied passing away early Saturday morning, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clayton Tucker. Mr. Morton had been the village blacksmith at Sine for nearly fifty years, and was well and favorably known not only for his honesty in serving the public, as the large business he enjoyed for so many years proved, but he was also kindly of heart and ever ready to give a helping hand to those who might need his neighborly service. He leaves two daughters, Miss Melissa and Mrs. Clayton Tucker; two sisters, Mrs. Robert Johnston of Sine and Mrs. John Meiklejohn of Campbellford, and one brother, Mr. Alex Morton of this village. The funeral was held on Monday forenoon from the home of Mr. Clayton Tucker to Bethel church, Sine, interment at Bethel cemetery.

Sap Running.

Several farms in this vicinity have tapped their sugar bushes with a good run of sap in some cases.

Mrs. Rainnie of Burnbrae is visiting her sisters, Mrs. Bissonnette and Miss Hume for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Meiklejohn of Ryleston, spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Meiklejohn.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones, Henry street, had the misfortune to fall and break his collar bone.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Montgomery returned on Saturday from their winter's sojourn in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Weight and daughter Grace are spending the week-end in Belleville.

Mr. Murney McCann of Warkworth is here to attend the funeral of his uncle, the late Mr. Morton.

STOWAWAY IS NOW AIR FORCE PILOT

William Ballantyne Made Good After His Escapade on Dirigible.

LONDON, March 17. (Associated Press) — William Ballantyne, who was a stowaway on the R-34 when she flew to America in July 1919, has at last been successful in obtaining his "wings," or in other words, his pilot's certificate. After his escapade on the dirigible Ballantyne was sent back to Howden in Yorkshire, where he remained until the airdrome closed down and was then transferred to Egypt. Here he studied for the Royal Air Force pilot's certificate. He passed his tests and is now pilot-sergeant in one of the air mail planes between Cairo and Bagdad, a desert journey of 700 miles each way.

Ballantyne was an original member of the crew of the R-34, but it was found necessary to leave him behind. He was bent on making the trip however, and two hours before the craft left Scotland, he hid himself in the rigging. When the airship was about 60 miles out he was discovered, lying sick and feverish among some gas bags to which he had crept from the rigging. After treatment by the staff physician he worked his way across for the rest of the voyage.

REDUCTION IN TARIFF ON AUTOS REQUESTED

Progressive Expects All Parties to Support the Resolution.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 17. — (Canadian Press.)— A substantial reduction in the customs tariff on automobiles and motor trucks is asked in a resolution introduced in the House of Commons last night by G. G. Coote (Progressive-Macleod).

There was a general demand, Mr. Coote said, for a reduction in the price of these vehicles. He thought all parties in the house would support his resolution. It was in line with the present Liberal policy. The Progressive party, he thought, were behind it, and the leader of the official opposition had said in 1911 that when an industry demonstrated its ability to export a large proportion of its output, the tariff thereon, could safely be lowered.

BUYS ANOTHER SHIP.

Vessel Crushed by Ice to be Replaced.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 17.—Captain J. A. Farquhar, veteran Nova Scotian shipping broker and sealer, sailed Monday for England, where he will purchase a steamer to replace the Stella Maris, which was crushed in the ice and sent to the bottom while accompanying the Newfoundland sealing fleet to sea last week. The Stella Maris was one of Captain Farquhar's fleet and was under charter to Job. Bros., of St. John's. Captain Farquhar was accompanied by four seamen who will help man the new steamer. Asked who would bring the craft out from England, Captain Farquhar replied:

"I hope to spend most of the time at the wheel."

He will be 83 years of age next October.

SCHOOL BOY DROWNED

Broke Through the Ice on His Way Home.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., March 17. — A drowning occurred near here on Monday afternoon, when an eight year old boy, Wiliam Brade, son of Joseph Brade of this town, fell through the ice on the Skinner drain near Running Creek.

The little chap with a companion, a Belgian boy, left school at three o'clock, for home, and were walking on the ice which covers the drain, when Brade fell through.

His companion proceeded to the deceased boy's home and gave the alarm.

Joe Chzezytowski, employed on the Knight farm, nearly a mile from the scene of the fatality, rushed to the spot and dived into the icy waters and brought the lad to the surface. Efforts were made by several of the neighbors to restore respiration, but without avail.

The depth of the water where the boy was drowned is about ten feet.

STOP ISSUE OF WATERED STOCK

House of Commons Takes Action to Protect Public Investors.

SCORES BEAVERBROOK.

OTTAWA, March 17. — Without dividing, the House of Commons last night passed a resolution calling for legislation which will make more difficult, and, if possible, prevent, the practice of issuing what is known as "watered stock."

The resolution was submitted by Milton Campbell, Progressive, Mackenzie, who cited various stock issues.

He mentioned Lord Beaverbrook, as responsible for the cement merger and as now living in England on his "ill-gotten gains."

SCHOOL STRIKE CLAIMS DIFFER

Catholics Say it is Successful While Socialists Call it Failure.

BISHOP CALLED IT.

STRASBOURG, France, March 17 — (Canadian Press). — Conflicting claims are made regarding the extent of the Catholic school strike which was called throughout Alsace by the Bishop of Strasbourg in protest against the Herriot Government's institution of inter-confessional or religiously neutral schools. Catholic newspapers and authorities say it was a great success, while Socialists term it a failure.

VILLAGES DESTROYED.

Reports From Angora Say Rebels Cleared Out—Some Destroyed.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 17— (Canadian Press).—Reports from Angora say that all villages within twelve kilometers of Diarbekr, Kurdistan, have been cleared of rebels. Those villages in which Turkish troops were fired upon were destroyed.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

RUNCIMAN SUGGESTS CONFERENCE ON ARMS

No Reason Why Britain Should Wait for Initiative By Others.

LONDON, March 17.— The first allusion in parliament to the suggested disarmament conference came in the house of commons last night from Walter Runciman, Liberal, during a discussion of the army estimates. Mr. Runciman said that if ever there was a moment when disarmament coul dbe dealt with satisfactorily by the government this was the time. The atmosphere was more favorable in the United States than ever before. The events of the last 24 hours showed that a disarmament conference dealing with armies, as well as navies and air forces, was much more possible than a month ago.

The secretary of war, added, Mr. Runciman, ought to join hands with the prime minister and foreign secretary and urge the holding of the disarmament conference in which Great Britain could take the lead. He saw no reason for always waiting for a lead in such matters from another power, or from the United States. While American co-operation was needed in dealing with the navy, so far as the army was concerned the agreement made with the European powers would meet all British necessities.

JOSEPH WATSON OF LAKEFIELD BURIED

Funeral on Sunday Largely Attended—Was Prominent in Village.

LAKEFIELD, March 17.—The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon of the late Joseph Watson. After a short service at the house, the cortege proceeded to St. John's Church, where the funeral was held, with Rev. W. Cox, rector of the parish, officiating. The church was filled almost to capacity by relatives, neighbors and friends, who assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to the deceased, who was well known and greatly respected in the village.

Mr. Cox, in a brief address, took as his text: "I am not the Lord of the dead, but of the living," stressing the fact that death is only a portal to a higher and greater life, when the Lord Himself is King, and separation is unknown.

The bearers were Messrs. R. J. Lennox, John Blewett, James Campbell, R. J. Jory, W. H. Casement and Charles Thomson.

The Reeve, J. C. Strickland and Councillor W. W. Leonard represented the village at the funeral, and the members of Court Lakefield, Canadian Order of Foresters, of which the deceased was a member, were present also.

ROADS OPENED FOR YOUNG'S POINT CARS

Cleared for Traffic to Lakefield—Rev. Mr. Gardener Ill.

YOUNG'S POINT, March 17.—Rev. Mr. Gardener, on account of his ill-health, is in Peterboro for an indefinite time. Mr. Lewis of Toronto will carry on the services of the churches. Service in St. Aidan's church will be held at 7 p.m. next Sunday, March 22.

Capt. Scollard returned home from the North on Friday.

A number of the local men have shovelled the roads through from here to Lakefield so that now they are passable for cars.

Mr. Austin Walsh returned to his home in the village on Friday, from an extended trip to Florida, U.S.A.

Mrs. Fred Young returned home from Peterboro on Thursday.

The Misses Margaret Young and Mary Buchanan of Peterboro spent the week-end at their homes in the village.

Miss Edith Hockaday was in Lakefield on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Northey and Master Clifford, left on Friday to visit friends in Toronto.

ORPHAN MISSING AGAIN.

Was Found Wandering a Week Ago By Doctor.

WINNIPEG, March 17.—For the second time within five weeks, Herbert Johnson, 13, an orphan, has disappeared mysteriously. Several weeks ago the young man was found by Dr. W. H. Teake of Transcona, Man., wandering aimlessly on the streets of the town, exhausted and nearly starved. The doctor has cared for him since that time. Yesterday he was missing once more. He had taken with him only an extra pair of boots.

An organized search of the district has started, school children and Boy Scouts joining in the hunt. Dr. Teake told the police that Johnson was subject to lack of memory and stated that the boy had told him, if he ever went away, he would never return.

FARMERS' SERVICE

In the heart of every Irishman the shamrock holds a tender spot.

Dear it is to the children of Erin and in return it always blooms for them on every field on St. Patrick's morning.

There are many tales and legends told concerning this little plant and of the prickly, flowering blackthorn.

It is told that when St. Patrick came to Ireland, to preach the gospel, King Laeghaire ruled at Tara. He was a stubborn adversary of the doctrines of Christianity.

Laeghaire refused to believe in the mystery of the trinity. Although he had been brought to a point where he believed the doctrines at least partly, the mystery of the trinity was an obstacle.

St. Patrick, it is told, tried often to explain the mystery to the king, but could make no progress, the pagan king obstinately refusing to believe the doctrine of three in one.

One day while preaching before Laeghaire, without apparent success, St. Patrick beheld at his feet the little shamrock plant.

Stooping down he picked a spray and carried it to the king, showing him the three leaves on one stem, yet all a part of it. And the story goes that King Laeghaire immediately embraced Christianity.

Many other legends are recalled on St. Patrick's day when the little shamrock is the greenest. There is a story that once St. Patrick was caught in a blizzard and hurrying to shelter, found himself beneath a blackthorn bush.

No sooner had he gotten under the bush than the snow melted and a multitude of beautiful blossoms coveted the bush. Now despite inclement weather the blackthorn blooms on St. Patrick's morn, being one of the few bushes whose blooms precede the coming of its leaves.

The blackthorn grows all over Ireland, but is especially fond of Tipperary soil.

Perhaps the blackthorn or shillalah is often called "the Tipperary rifle" for this reason.

C.P.R. WHEAT HAULINGS.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 17.—A statement tabled in the House yesterday under an order for return shows that the Canadian Pacific Railway hauled 3,781,661 tons of grain to Fort William and Port Arthur during 1924, and 961,500 tons to the Port of Vancouver in the same year.

BRITISH AND GERMAN FAMILIES ARE SECURED

Two Settlement Schemes for Parts of Alberta.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 17.—Plans for the settlement of 180 families of British stock in one block of land, north of Vermilion, Alta., have been completed, by the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, it is announced by the Edmonton representative, Dave Conroy, who has just returned from a trip to Winnipeg. The society has mde the purchase from a Belgian corporation of some 30,000 acres of land which is located in one block and will be tapped by the proposed extension of the Cutknife-Whitfor Lake branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway on its way to the Edmonton terminus.

Settlement of the land will begin this Spring and work in preparation for the newcomers will start as soon as the snow leaves.

25 German Families.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., March 17.—Twenty-five German-Russian families are coming to this district for the sugar beet fields. They will be brought in by the Utah-Idaho Sugar Company by June 1. Arrangements are being made to bring considerable other labor to the district by beet thinning time. Orders for building material for the new Raymond factory are now being placed.

PROTECT WILD BIRDS.

Ask European Countries ot Unite in Protecting Migrating Birds.

STOCKHOLM, March 17.—(Associated Press).—International protection for migratory birds, so that it will be illegal to shoot or trap them in one country while the season is closed in another, has been endorsed by the public lands department in Sweden. The countries that will be asked to join in this agreement are Great Britain, the Netherlands, Germany, Belgium, Norway, Finland and Denmark. Without such a treaty there is danger that wild ducks, quail and other edible birds that fly south for the winter will be exterminated.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ANN FITZMARTYN.

Mrs. Ann Fitzmartyn died Sunday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas McAvoy, Front Street, after a long illness, due to old age. The deceased was born in Ireland, and lacked only one month of being 86 years old. She had resided with her daughter here for about six years, but formerly resided in Napanee.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. McAvoy, the deceased is survived by another daughter, Mrs. John Cunningham, of California, and by two sons, John of Frontenac County and S. P. Fitzmartyn of Calgary. The funeral will be held at 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning, and after services at St. Mary's Church, the remains will be taken to Napanee, where the husband of the deceased was buried 36 years ago.

HELEN KERR.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 17th.—Helen, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Kerr, died on Monday morning in St. Josephs Hospital, Peterboro, to which institution she was taken last week. She underwent an operation from the effects of which she was unable to rally.

The late Miss Kerr, who was only 20 years old, was born in Campbellford and had always lived with her parents here. She was a favorite in social circles and an active worker in St. Mary's Parish.

Besides her parents the deceased is survived by four brothers and one sister. The brothers are James, well known to the travelling public, as proprietor of the St. Lawrence Hotel, Edson, and Paul, of Toronto, and Bernard, of Detroit. The sister, Clyta, who married H. R. Hamather, resides with her husband, in Saginaw, Michigan. All of the immediate relatives are expected here to attend the funeral, which will be held from the family residence to St. Mary's church, at 9 o'clock on Thursday morning.

On receipt of the news of their daughter's death, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr, accompanied by their son James and his wife, left for Peterboro. The parents returned on the noon train but the others remained to accompany the body back to Campbellford.

HER FACE WAS COVERED WITH PIMPLES

She Got Rid of Them By Using Burdock Blood Bitters

Miss T. Hunter, R.R. No. 8, London, Ont., writes:—"I wish to recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to all women who are suffering from pimples or any facial blemishes. About two years ago I was greatly troubled with pimples and sores breaking out on my face, and could get no relief until, finally, a friend recommended me to take B.B.B. This I did, and I am now glad to say that your remedy has given me the desirable results, and I now have a nice smooth, clear skin as it eliminated all the impurities from my blood."

Get B.B.B. when you ask for it; it has been on the market for the past 46 years; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

QUEBEC CANS SALMON.

Sample Tins From New Industry Received.

QUEBEC, March 17.— First results of the establishment by the Provincial Government of the salmon canning industry for the canning of Gaspe salmon, at Carleton, Bonaventure county, were received Monday at the Legislative buildings in the form of sample tins, with net weight of sixteen ounces, and with label showing the packing to be done under the supervision of the Quebec government. Optimism is felt for the future of the industry in this province and it is suggested that it may soon be rival to the product of the British Columbia canneries.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened you hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

APPEAL TO PROVINCE.

Montreal Citizens Want Action on Coderre Report.

MONTREAL, March 17. — If prompt action is not forthcoming from Montreal's executive committee with regard to Judge Coderre's report on the administration of the police department and vice conditions in this city, a delegation of citizens will go to Quebec before the close of the present session of the Legislature to ask for a municipal election next month, declared Alderman Bubreuill and A. T. Laurence, president of the St. Edward's Citizens' Association, the two fathers of the movement which resulted in the new famous "probe."

FLU OUTBREAK IN MILLBROOK

Another Epidemic in Winter's Train—Rev. C. Clarke's Sermon in Old Church.

A MILLBROOK BOY

MILLBROOK, March 17.—The epidemic of mumps and measeles having abated, there is now apparently, an outbreak of a serious form of flu in the village and community. In some cases all the children in a family are ill, and the grown folk also are not escaping.

It would seem as if the winter has brought more thn the usual amount of sickness, and the spring will be welcomed if warmer weather and more sunshine, succeed in banishing the germs to parts unknown.

Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard, and Mrs. (Dr.) Rea, teachers of the young men's and young women's Bible classes, respectively, will have charge of the quarterly review in the Methodist Sunday School on March 29, at 2.30 p.m. Slides will illustrate the lessons covered in the review. The general public is invited to attend.

Rev. C. Clarke's Sermon.

"It is a long, long trail since the days when I sat in the class to the right of this pulpit, and many changes have occurred, and more are to be looked for in the years ahead, since it will likely be again a long, long trail when I walk from behind this desk tonight, before I am once more in the old home town."

These were the introductory remarks of Rev. Charles Clarke, of the British Columbia Conference, a former Millbrook boy, who preached in the Methodist church on Sunday evening to a large congregation.

"Religion has changed with the passing years, and our conception of God has changed, though we hesitate to admit any possibility of alternation along such vital lines, but our attfude toward life, mankind, Jesus Christ, and the Kingdom depends upon our conception of what God is, and His plan for us, and for the universe."

"The heathen are not the only ones who make images. It is a common practice to endeavor to make God fit into our creeds, but a creed-made God cannot stand since anything man-made is imperfect. And here is one reason of the church's failure for if the soul be bound down it cannot grow. Men were like that in the time of Christ but He set out on a new line and broke the bonds. Our creeds should never form our God, rather our knowledge of God should form our creed, and we see the time is coming when the creeds of Christendom must be changed."

An "Absentee God."

Men have held the conception of an "absentee God," who set the universe going, retired to some far-off fragment of space, and made occasional visits in the awy of earthquakes, wars, famines, pestilence. Lightning rods, when first invented, were preached against as being an effort of man to interfere with a visitation of God. God does not delight in suffering as such, and most of the disasters in the way of war, epidemics, etc., are due to the greed, and cowardice of men. If sickness, disease, and kindred evils, are God's way of calling upon His people, why then do we, by doing everything possible to prevent and heal, strive to cut His visits short? Jesus, himself, withstood God's will for He healed even the incurable, and brought back from the power of the grave. It is by the sins and imperfections of humanity that these evils come, and we are slowly learning that God is ever present, and does not appear only in the unusual.

God Is Israel.

Israel's conception of God was that of a tribal Deity, holding sway over a particular part of the earth, hence the question, "How can we sing the songs of Zion in a strange land?" And Christian nations are not free of this manner of thinking. In the late war, did not those on both sides of the channel implore God to assist them against their enemies? Our religious tendencies lead us to connect God wth a certain denomination, or as the originator of a particular creed, and the church in general apparently has the conception of Him as the God of the Christians, saving only those who receive Him. These ideas are fast changing, and must alter, if we are to live as brothers one of another. Like the father in the Prodigal Son, God rises above the low ideal of "giving a man his right deserts," and we accept Him, not to derive benifits from Him, but to give, to enjoy fellowship, and to serve our fellowmen.

A third conception of God was that of an autocratic monarch, a king whose mercy could be purchased, but who must be approached through the medium of a priest. He was spoken of as "an angry Judge," whose wrath must be appeased in some manner. Surely one of the glories of our Christian belief lies in the fact that we may come directly to God and enjoy sweet intercourse with Him? Jesus taught us to think of God in terms of Fatherhood. Of recent years the conception of fatherhood has changed. It used to be that the head of the household ruled with an iron hand, his children trembled before him, and dared not refuse to obey. Boys spoke of their father as the "governor," because he governed, and as the "boss" because he did boss. True fathers were respected and honored but, the tragedy lay in the fact that there was very little companionship between a boy and his father.

Still Creating.

Was it an ywonder that people took the father that existed and moulded God after that type? The relationship of a loved son, a joint heir with Jesus Christ, is the real Father's attitude. God is still creating, and the greatest thing He creates is personality, and the sons of men have not yet come to the highest peak possible in Christian character. God is still moulding, "shall we hope that He is moulding you and me?"

"He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father," so we learned to approach God through Jesus Christ, the supreme manifestation of the Father to the sons of men. "Go to Jesus if you would know God as you should, in the radiant, wooing presence through which He has manifested Himself." And yet God seeks to manifest Himself through Christians, and if they fail, how else is He to reveal Himself to the world at all?

"Where is God? Wouldn't it be the greatest thing in the world if we could say: 'God dwelleth in me'?"

FIRE DESTROYED BETHANY HOUSE

Herbert Bigelow Saved Some Furniture From Blaze on Saturday.

BETHANY, March 18—Mr. Herb Bigelow was unfortunate in having his house burned to the ground on Saturday morning. The fire was first noticed about six o'clock and started from an overheated pipe. Fortunately part of the contents had been moved into his new house which is practically completed. Mr. Bigelow intended moving in the very near future and had moved what could be spared with sleighs. The wind, which was fairly high, and accompanied by rain from the east no doubt saved his barn as it was situated east of the house. Mr. Bigelow lost a fine residence about two years ago in the same manner and has just completed a two and a half storey brick house on the old site.

MEMORIAL SERVICE MARMORA CHURCH

Late Rector, Canon C. M. Harris, Remembered by Congregation.

MARMORA, March 17—The evening service at St. Paul's on Sunday partook of a memorial nature. Two years have passed away since the entrance into rest of the late beloved Rector, Canon C. M. Harris. Special hymns were sung and in his address, the Rector, Rev. P. Caizer Watson spoke very impressively of the faithfulness which had marked the ministry of his predecessor.

He also mentioned the fact that within the past week, a personal friend of Canon Harris's had voluntarily offered to present the church with a pair of large brass candlesticks as a memorial of the late Rector if such should prove acceptable to the congregation.

This he, the preacher, trusted would be the case.

ANOTHER MYSTERY CASE STIRS ALL ENGLISH SOCIAL CIRCLES

Members of Nobility Named as Defendants in Charge of Fraud. ALLEGED LIAISON.

LONDON, March 17. — Another "mystery" case involving persons of high rank, came up before the British court to-day, when the suit of Mrs. Muriel Sheldon went to trial, after counsel at the Judge's request, had vainly tried to effect an out-of-court settlement of the affair.

One of the remarkable features of the case—which was merely docketed as one involving "fraudulent misrepresentation," was the declaration of Mrs. Waterhouse's counsel that Lady Wilson-Barker was the principal defendant and that Sir David, who is a noted naval expert and geougrapher, was made a defendant "because he is legally liable for her wrong-doing."

Outlining the case, counsel said the victim of the alleged conspiracy was the late Alfred Francis Waterhouse, son of a wealthy family, who first met Lady Wilson-Barker, at Harrogate, a fashionable watering place, in 1896.

His widow was now seeking, counsel declared, 'to recover money extorted from him."

She alleged that Lady Wilson-Barker secured large sums of money from Waterhouse through fraudulent representations with Sheldon.

Discussing the character of the case, which was barely outlined, the counsel said it was one of the kind "which of late has been too common."

"If it represents in any way the normal state of English society," he added, "then I am tempted to think, with exposure after exposure, that a strengthening of the law is the only remedy, but I am sure it does not represent anything but a very exceptional case."

Claims $50,375.

Lady Wilson-Barker, who then was Mrs. Wilson-Baker, had gained the affection of Waterhouse's aged mother many years ago, counsel T. E. Haydon said, and meantime had intrigued with the son, and later told him a man had discovered the liaison and had threatened to tell her husband unless he was given large sums of money. In this way, counsel alleged, she had extorted over a period of years a total amount of 10,075 pounds from her wealthy love. It is this sum which Mrs. Waterhouse is seeking to recover, counsel said, adding that plaintiff's principal evidence would be that of a man servant taken by commission when he was dying.

KITCHEN HELPS.

Mrs. R. M. Waddell Demonstrates Electrical Appliances to Interior Decoration Club.

A meeting of the Interior Decoration Club was held yesterday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. R. M. Waddell, Monaghan Road.

The subject considered yesterday was Kitchen and aLundry and Kitchen Helps, and Mrs. Waddell gave the members a very interesting demonstration of various electrical appliances in use in her home.

Mrs. Joseph Wearing gave a paper on House Planning, describing the proper method in choosing a site for a home and building for family needs. A house built around the rooms of the size required, was recommended, and it was also advised to cut down the building expenses by eliminating non-essentials, which might be added later.

The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks' time at the home of Miss Mamie Rogers, Homewood avenue, when a paper on Linens will be given by Mrs. R. A. Brown; also a paper on Upholstery, by Miss Geraldine Glover.

SIX GENERATIONS.

Saskatchewan Boasts Unique Line of Women From 93 to 6 Months.

SASKATOON, Sask., March 17.—Unique possibly on the American continent, Saskatchewan boasts of a family of six generations. Mrs. Odell, 93, of Hanley, Sask., has a great, great, great grand-daughter. Mrs. Odell was married at 16 and the issue from each generation has begun with a daughter, each one of whom has married between the ages of 16 and 18 years. The eldest daughter of Mrs. Odell is 76 years old.

There are 38 grand-children, 45 great grand-children, seven great, grand-children and a six months' old great, great, great grand-child. Mrs. Odell still reads and sews without the aid of glasses. She claims that her faculties are unimpaired as those of a young girl. Five generations of the family live in Saskatchewan, and the other in the United States.

Newfoundland Lady Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to all Sufferers from Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. John Collins is now feeling well.

MIDDLE AMHERST COVE, Nfld., March 16. — (Special). — "Dodd's Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy for all troubles of the kidneys," so states Mrs. J. Collins, who is well-known and highly respected here.

"For nineteen years I have suffered from kidney troubles and seeing so many recommending your Dodd's Kidney Pills, I decided to give them a trial. After using six boxes I am now feeling quite well and recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from kidney troubles, as I have suffered."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely a kidney remedy. They tone up and strengthen weak kidneys and put them in condition to do their full work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Strong healthy kidneys are absolutely necessary if the blood is to be pure and the body healthy.

Pure blood coursing through the body carries to the different organs the nourishment they need, keeps them sound and enables them to throw off disease of different kinds.

WOMAN TRAPPER.

18-Year Old Girl Brings First Catch to Fort Vermilion.

FORT VERMILLION, Alta., March 17.—Among the trappers who have arrived at the Fort with their preliminary winter's fur catch was Miss Mary Hallett, only woman trapper of the district. She is 18 years old. This is her third year in the north country.

During the past two years, Miss Hallett, has broken trail on snowshoes for her father's dog team, but this season she has been working with her own trapline and team. Her first catch this winter reached well over $300.

Miss Hallett, who came from the United States, with her father, lives a life of the open air. She can ride, shoot, cook bannock, and strap herself in a northern sleeping bag when the mercury skids down to the lower depths and emerge from a winter's hard trapping in the best of condition. Miss Hallett's chief diversion is study of music and attending her dogs.

SHE LOVED COLONEL DENNISTOUN NOT AS HUSBAND BUT AS BROTHER

Maid Tells of Mrs. Dennistoun's Astounding Admissions and Affairs.

COURT AMUSED.

LONDON, March 17. — A record crowd which jammed the court room was disappointed to-day when Lieut. Colonel Dan Onslow Dennistoun failed to appear to continue his testimony regarding the escapades of his former wife, who is suing him for money alleged to have been loaned prior to their divorce.

It was announced that the defendant was suffering from a severe attack of sciatica.

Marguerite Pryronnence, at one time maid in the Dennistoun household, took the stand instead of Col. Denistnoun. She asserted that Mrs. Denistoun intrigued with General Sir John Cowans and Bolin at the same time.

The maid testified that when Sir John Cowans was seriously ill in 1921, Mrs. Dennistoun was travelling abroad with Bolin, who tried to prevent her going to the General's bedside. When Mrs. Dennistoun finally decided not to go and see Sir John, the maid added, he sent her a message 'cursing her, and saying that he was going to the other world cursing her."

The witness brought a smile even to the faces of the learned counsel, when she described the alleged attempts by Mrs. Dennistoun to hide from General Cowans her intimacy with Bolin. Once, said the maid, Bolin was at Mrs. Dennistoun's London flat, when General Cowans arrived unexpectedly, and her mistress told the maid to escort the Spaniard to the basement while she received the general.

At another time the witness testified, Mrs. Dennistoun put her own dressing gown on the flocr for Bolin to walk over to the door, explaining to the maid that she did not want the caretaker of the flat to hear anyone going out late at night or early in the morning. The maid added: "Mrs. Dennistoun told me she loved Colonel Dennistoun not as a husband but as a brother."

SPRING HATS LARGER.

London Shows Broad Brims and Many Ostrich Plumes.

Nearly all the new Spring hats are of the broad brimmed kind which as the days get warmer will quite replace the cloche. The cloche indeed has already nearly gone. Ostrich feathers, shaded, glycerined or 'hemmed' are used plentifully for trimmings, the plumes sometimes hanging down to the waist, and there are ostrich muffs to match. Evening dresses are shorter than ever, so short indeed that you can get one easily into the little bags in which you carry your powder puffs.

ONE MAN GUILTY ONE DISCHARGED

Wheeler Fined; Lee Dismissed; Wyatt on Trial in Still Case.

In the County Court this morning, Harry Wheeler, Bert Lee and Howard John Wyatt appeared, charged with having a still.

J. A. O'Brien, acting for Wheeler, changed the plea from not guilty to guilty. Joseph Wearing, for the Inland Revenue Department, said they would be satisfied with the minimum fine. Sentence was passed of $200 and costs, or, in default, six months with hard labor.

In the charge against Lee, Mr. Wearing asked for the withdrawal of the charge owing to lack of evidence, and the case was dismissed without costs.

Wyatt was represented by W. F. Huycke, and pleaded not guilty. Wheeler was called to the box and gave evidence that he and Wyatt had entered into a partnership to make corn whiskey out at Wheeler's farm. He had supplied the boiler and Wyatt the worm. Wyatt was to make the whiskey and they would split it evenly. Mr. Huycke protested against admitting the evidence of an accomplice, but the objection was overruled. They had operated the still for about two weeks and had made about 22 gallons of liquor. On either the third or fourth Friday of February they had taken the still apart and hid it in a fence corner. On February 28 the witnes had taken the still himself to Bert Lee's barn, where the revenue officers had found it. Wheeler said that he had bought corn, sugar, and yeast and had grown the potatoes on his own farm. He had made whiskey a couple of times before, but this was the first time he had been caught.

William Lee, hired man on the Wheeler farm, said that he had heard Wheeler and Wyatt making an agreement to divide the whiskey evenly. He did not know who owned the still, and had seen both of them operating it. Wyatt had done nothing else on the farm but make whiskey and one batch of beer. Bert Lee said he lived about a mile from Wheeler, and had seen the still one Sunday. Wheeler was operating it at the time. He knew nothing about the ownership of the still or the product.

The case continued this evening.

INVESTIGATE COLLERIES.

Hon. A. S. MacMillan Makes Report on Conditions in Cape Breton.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 17 (Canadian Press).—Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Minister of Highways, returned this morning from Cape Breton, where he was investigating the situation in the collieries of the British Empire Steel Corporation for the benefit of the Government. He reported at once to Premier Armstrong, and the Government went into session at twelve o'clock. It is expected that Premier Armstrong will be ready to issue a statement following the meeting of the Government, both on the question of the acceptance or rejection of the miners' offer to maintain the mines if they are taken over by the Government for that purpose, and also on the question of Government action toward relief of the distressed colliery districts, which Mr. MacMillan was investigating.

DE LAVAL NIGHT AT CONSERVATORY

"At Home" Was Great Success—Dancing and Cards Enjoyed.

Monday night was De Laval Night at the Conservatory of Music, where between ninety and one hundred members of the De Laval organization and their friends met for a St. Patrick's Eve gathering. A small Irish flag was presented to each person on entering the hall as a reminder that there was no longer snakes in Erin or Ontario.

The hall was tastefully decorated and arranged, the tables for cards being placed at the lower end, leaving the larger part of the floor for dancing. Some of the more staid and sedate arranged themselves at the card tables and distrustfully eyed each other every time it came to marking down the score. Owing to this watchful scrutiny no large counts were made, or at least not announced.

An intermission was called at eleven, during which Mrs. Ross Williamson showed a true De Laval spirit by favoring the gathering with two songs entitled "Come to My Heart," by Granville English and "Wake Up," by Montague S. Phillips, accompanied by Miss Alma Blanchard. Miss Pearson then gave an illustration of De Laval cooperation by adding her voice to the harmony of the evening in solos entitled "The Enchanted Glade," by G. Hubi-Combe and "Perspicacity." She was accompanied by Miss Muriel Bridge. Charles Foster made the hit of the evening by an exhibition of his elocutionary powers; he certainly knocked out a home run.

After the programme and refreshments dancing was again resumed and everybody participated. The committee in charge was composed of the Misses G. Gollop, G. Kirn and T. Pearson and Messrs. Derry and Ham. The music which would have inspired even a mummy to dance was furnished by Mr. Lorne Bell's Orchestra.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Hughes, C. D. Cook, J. A. Robinson, E. F. Lawrence, J E Smith, Thos, Pitchford, B Pitchford, N. Porter, R. A. Williamson, E. Clarke, A. McWilliams, C. Foster.

ATTENDANCE AT PUBLIC HEALTH MEETING SMALL

Subjects That Vitally Concern Every Person Discussed by Health Officers.

WORK IN SCHOOLS

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough Intimated That Peterboro Lags in Health Department.

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, chief medical officer of the Ontario Department of Public Health, and Dr. Fair, in charge of School Health Supervision, addressed a poorly attended public meeting in the G.W.V.A. hall last night.

Dr. Fair was the first speaker. He said that in this province little or nothing had been done in school health work until about twenty years ago. Reports from other countries showed that this work had received the attention of the authorities as much as one hundred years ago. This work had always been associated with the Educational Authorities and only recently has it been recognized and set aside as part of the community health program. The Health Department has a number of points on which it is centering its work. The first of these is the control of communicable diseases. The majority of these, said Dr. Fair, are diseases of childhood and the educational laws of the province require the gathering of the children together in the schools making the school a potent factor in the spread of these diseases so that the school is the logical place to start this work. For this there must be an adequate staff and there must be correlation between all those concerned.

The second important point is the detection and correction of physical defects, said the speaker. The results of the examinations of pupils, once shortly after starting to school and once before leaving the school showed that a great many defects were present when they entered school and that an improvement in the care of the children of preschool age is necessary.

Other points of great importance are the care of the physically defective, such as cripples, and the mentally subnormal and the supervision of the physical activities of the pupils. Many pupils, especially girls, said Dr. Fair, take part in athletics for which they are not fitted and damage their health for the rest of their lives.

A most important thing is health education. It is very important to get this information to the people and the logical place is in the schools when the pupils are in the formative stage. It was formerly thought that a nurse working alone and that all that was needed was an intimation to the parents that the child was below par and that they would take steps to remedy the defects. Nurses were chosen and given special training but it was found, said the speaker, that it was necessary to employ a good physician and where possible to have the examination conducted in the parents' presence.

This has resulted in about 75 per cent of the children found defective being treated by their family physicians for the defects noted. This method proved successful when there is co-operation between teacher, parent, nurse, and physician.

Until this year this work was left entirely to the Educational Department, but the health work has now been turned over to the Department of Health. Those municipalities which have their school health work separate are free to keep it that way as the decision to change is left to the school boards. However the Province makes a generous grant for nurses doing school and general health work and Dr. Fair thought that it would therefore be to the advantage of the School Boards to make the change.

A Community Interest.

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough said that health is a community interest. It concerns the Dominion, the Province, the municipality and the individual. The Federal Government looks after the health of the country by seeing that the immigrants who come into Canada are healthy and they also look after the Indians and Eskimos. Most of the public health work was left to the Provinces at confederation and they have handled it ever since. They set up Departments of Health, and established Laboratories and training courses.

In many communities the work does not progress as it should because the people are not willing to spend the money to have a man on the job all the time. Many municipalities are unable to finance this but cities the size of Peterborough are well able to do it, said Dr. McCullough. Where this is concerned Peterborough is not up to date. In the case of the townships which are not able to pay a man's full time salary the logical way is for them to combine so that several townships, instead of each paying a small sum to a different man could all pay to the one man who would be on the job all the time. This plan has been successfully tried, said the speaker, in England and Scotland, and in the United States.

Many part time medical officers of health do good work but they are working under a disadvantage. Some of their official acts offend those who might be patients thereby doing harm to their private practice. There are only eight cities in Ontario who have whole time medical officers, said Dr. McCullough, and those that have not are losing great sums through the poor service they are getting.

Dr. McCullough pointed out as an example of how money would be saved the prevalence of tuberculosis. This disease causes the Province to spend $1,500,000 every year and costs the municipality twice as much. The only adequate way of dealing with this is to smother the disease in its early stages while the patient can be saved and before he infects someone else. These early cases can only be detected with proper medical examination and a full-time officer is necessary to find them.

Striking Results.

He quoted the figures of two Ontario cities about the same size. One of these spends $20,000 on its health department and has a full time health officer. The other spends $6,500 and has a part time officer. In the first in five years since they appointed the full time man the infant death rate has decreased till it is now 38 in every 1,000 births. In the other in the same time the infant death rate has increased from 63 to 71 per 1,000. In Peterborough the rate is 90 per 1,000 births. Surely, said the speaker, these infants who might be saved are worth as much to the country as any immigrants who might be brought here to fill up the country.

The experience of the city of Halifax was also mentioned. In the five years since they appointed a full time officer they estimate that they have saved the lives of 550 children and 1,750 adults.

Dr. McCullough mentioned who might aid in this campaign. He said that the province would aid if asked. A great business that gains greatly from public health work is the life insurance business and they are spending great sums now on health. They would doubtless be willing to co-operate with the municipalities.

In conclusion, Dr. McCullough said that progress is slow but would gradually gain speed as the people were educated to the value of the work. It is in the interest of every municipality to help in the work and to increase its scope.

Mayor Turner was the chairman of the evening and introduced the speakers.

Ford Raises Workers' Ire By Prohibiting Alcohol

COPENHAGEN, March 17.—Henry Ford has shocked the workers of this city by issuing a strict prohibition against alcohol in his automobile work here.

Twenty years ago, laborers declare, he would not have found one worker for his factory, regardless of the good pay he offers. But now old timers sadly opine, "bending the arm" is no more considered an inviolable right of the Danish working classes.

A Little Gift From Ireland.

"Here, gran'ma, here's a present, it has come a distance, too;
'Tis a little pot of shamrocks, and it comes addressed to you,
Yes, all the way from Ireland, and the cards mention more—
They were gathered at your birthplace, on the banks of Avonmore."

"From Ireland! Do you tell me? O, darling, is it true
Acushla, let me feel them—and you say 'twas there they grew?
Why, I can scarce believe it, is it really what you say?
From my birthplace in old Ireland, poor Ireland, far away.

"I'm old and stiff and feeble and in darkness, God be praised!
Yet Katy, how it stirs me, how my poor old heart is raised,
To feel it here so near me, the soil that gave me birth;
The very clay of Ireland! Let me kiss the holy earth.

"These blessed little shamrocks, I can't see them yet, I know,
They bring me back the eyesight of the happy long ago.
And gleaning through the darkness comes the vision that I love,
The dear green fields of Ireland and the sunny sky above.
"I see as once I saw them, when a girl like you I stood
Amid the furze and heather; there's the chapel, hill and wood;
There's the abbey clad with ivy, and the river's winding shore,
And the boys and girls all playing on the banks of Avonmore.

"God bless the little shamrocks, then for calling back the scene,
The beauty of the sunshine, the brightness of the green;
Through long, long years to see it and to see it all so plain,
Ah, child, I'm sure you're smiling, but I'm feeling young again.

"And though I'm truly thankful for the blessing that God's hand
Has brought me, Katy, in this great and happy land,
I can't forget the old home, 'midst the comforts of the new,
My heart is three parts buried where these little shamrocks grew."

MORE PROTESTS ON SHIP RATES

Memorandum of Manufacturers and Others Tabled in the House.

DISCRIMINATION.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 17.—(Canadian Press).—Further correspondence with various organizations in Canada on the subject of ocean rates was tabled in the House of Commons Monday by Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Minutes of the hearings in Canada of the Imperial Shipping Committee were included in this addition to the file, which is becoming a bulky one.

A joint memorandum from the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Canadian Export Club and the Toronto Board of Trade, addressed to the Imperial Shipping Committee, dated April 21, 1924, say that there is a discrimination against Canadian products in the matter of marine insurance on the subject of ocean rates. The memorandum says that Canadians view with considerable alarm the tendency to a material increase in ocean freight ratres, and draws particular attention to the general increase made effective by the North Atlantic Conference Eastbound last month. While this increase was stated to average 25 per cent., some important commodities were increased to a much greater extent. In some cases the rates on identical commodities were made greater from Canada to the United Kingdom than from the U. S. to Canada.

Amongst other Canadian organizations complaining of discrimination in ocean rates was the Dominion Millers' Association.

Reply to Millers.

A sequel to the protest of Canadian millers against what they claimed to be disproportionately higher ocean rates of flour as compared with wheat is seen in a document tabled Monday in the House of Commons by the Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. T. A. Low. The Canadian millers' protest was published last week. Yesterday the House got a copy of a memorandum submitted to the Imperial Shipping Committee by Robert Hutchinson, of Nottingham, England, president of the National Association of British and Irish Millers.

British millers, says Mr. Hutchinson, have a right to expect that freights should be based on the cost of transport. Flour is more valuable than wheat, occupies greater space, is harder to handle, and is subject to greater damage in transit, therefore the rate would naturally be higher. How much higher, only the most careful investigation could reveal, adds the memorandum.

The fact that the United States millers, Mr. Hutchinson says, "have induced the United States Shipping Board to give them an uneconmical rate on export flour is in itself unfair to British millers. Fortunately, the volume of United States flour going into Britain is comparatively small. If the concession were extended to Canadian millers it would appreciably increase the handicap to British millers." If the imports of Canadian flour, the memorandum adds, were greatly increased, a serious condition would be created in the event of a Canadian crop failure.

Clemency For Matthews.

Petitions Being Circulated Asking Lightening of Sentence on Treasurer.

TORONTO, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)— Petitions are being circulated carrying an appeal to the Minister of Justice at Ottawa for executive clemency for Charles A. Matthews, Jr., formerly assistant treasurer of the Province of Ontario, now confined to Portsmouth penitentiary under a two year sentence imposed by Mr. Justice Mow-

Wouldn't Leave Husband; Communists Divorce Her

FRANKFORT, March 17. — Emmy Bloch refused to comply with the order of the Communist party, of which she was a member, to divorce her husband. He had abandoned the party for fear that its secrets might be discovered and himself incriminated. The Communist party answered Mrs. Bloch's refusal by meeting and "divorcing" her by resolution.

MUSICAL PRODIGY.

Walter Parratt Played Church Organ at Seven Years of Age.

Music and chess cannot be said to be closely allied terms, yet there is a story told of one who was a prodigy in both these directions. The reference is to the celebrated Walter Parratt, who was knighted by Queen Victoria.

Young Parratt played the organ in a Yorkstire church when only seven years old. At ten he performed all of Bach's forty-eight preludes and fugues without the music before him, and in later life he accomplished the extraordinary feat of playing, blindfolded, three games of chess and one of Bach's fugues at the same time, manipulating the keys of the organ and calling out his moves on the chess board simultaneously.

START TOGETHER ON SUMMER TIME

Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa To Get Away at Once.

TORONTO, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—For the first time in the history of daylight saving in Canada, the three biggest Canadian municipal proponents of the system, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, have agreed on the same starting date for the season, Sunday morning, May 3. Some other Canadian cities will adopt daylight saving time, but as a whole the Dominion will retain the old time, and except as may be modified for local train services, the railways will also operate on standard time.

NEW CABLE OPEN.

First Direct Cable Between United States and Italy.

NEW YORK, March — The first direct cable between the United States and Italy, the cable which eventually is to serve northern, southern and eastern Europe through Rome and Emden, was opened yesterday with the exchange of mutual good wishes between the officials of the two countries.

The new cable has five times the message capacity of any other cable in the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Volstead Name Their Baby 'Gin'

NEW YORK, March 17. — and Mrs. Richard Volstead have named their new baby Gin.

Mr. and Mrs. Volstead, be it known, are the elderly camels in the Central Park Zoo. Because they sometimes did not even drink water for days at a stretch, their keepers named them Volstead.

A wobbly little camel has arrived in the Volstead corral and henceforth it will be known as Gin Volstead.

LADIES' AID HAD GOOD PROGRAMME

Hastings Church Scene of a Pleasant Event on Friday.

In speaking last night of the Provincial Laboratories, of which there is one in Peterboro, and the work they do, Dr. J. W. S. McCullough congratulated the city on having such a fine plant as the Peterboro Milk Products to supply the citizens with pasteurized milk. He pointed out that since pasteurized milk had become common bovine tuberculosis had practically disappeared. He said that milk is the only animal food that is used in its raw state, and it is particularly exposed to disease.

LEAVE UNION BILL TO CHURCH GROUPS

Private Bills Committee Decides to Give Opportunity For Settlement.

TORONTO, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—Owing to the possibility of an agreement being reached by the Church Unionists and Anti-Unionists on the issues involved in the two bills now before the Legislature, the Private Bills Committee, which met this morning to consider the bills, adjourned until ten tomorrow.

When the committee assembled this morning, Hon. W. F. Nickle, chairman of the Private Bills Committee, stated that the two Church groups had been in conference until eleven o'clock last night, and that the differences were on the verge of being dissolved. He suggested that another day be allowed in which to continue the conference aiming at a settlement and the committee acted on his suggestion.

Shelve Woman's Suffrage.

Chamber of Deputies Postpones Question Until Friday.

PARIS, March 17 (Canadian Press).—The Chamber of Deputies again failed to discuss the Woman's Suffrage Bill this morning, although it was the second item on the order of the day further discussion being postponed until Friday.

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT.

Crop Is Estimated at 160,000,000 Bushels — Increase of 36,000,000.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 17. — Australia's 1924-25 wheat crop is officially estimated at 160,000,000 bushels, an increase of 36,000,000 as compared with the yield of 1923-24.

The farmers are receiving the highest prices they have got for their wheat since the great war.

ORDER INVESTIGATION.

Examine Freight Rate Structure of U. S. Railroads.

WASHINGTON, March 17—(Canadian Press).—In conformity with a resolution adopted at the last session of Congress, the Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day ordered an investigation into the existing freight rate structure of all railroads of the United States.

WILLS MATCHED WITH GIBBONS

Meet in 15 Round Bout May 29—Dempsey in the Fall.

$150,000 TO WILLS.

NEW YORK, March 17.— Harry Wills, negro heavy-weight, and Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, Minn., will meet in a 15 round match at the Milk Fund bouts at the Yankee Stadium, May 29, providing the managers of the two principals can be given assurance that there is no possibility of a title revealed by Tex Rickard, promoter of the bouts Monday, following a conference with Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills.

Mullins withheld definite assurance that he would sign articles for the match with Gibbons, until Wednesday when he will know definitely whether there is a possibility of Wills meeting Dempsey for the title some time this summer. Eddie Kane manager of Tommy Gibbons, has already agreed to terms for the match. The winner of this fight will meet Dempsey in a title match later in the year.

Wills will receive a guarantee of almost $150,000 for the Gibbons match, Rickard intimated when he said it would almost equal the guarantee given to Wills when he fought Lusi Angel Firpo at Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City last summer. Wills was guaranteed $150,000 for the Firpo match.

Rickard told Mullins that Jack Kearn, Dempsey's manager had conferred with him upon his arrival in New York, Sunday and had informed him that Dempsey would not be in shape to meet either Gibbons or Wills before fall.

FIRST SOCCER GAME BE PLAYED EASTER

Two Select Teams to be Chosen by the Respective Boards.

The Peterboro and District Football Association meet last evening, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms with President J. Wylie in the chair, along with a full Board of Directors.

First Game Easter.

The Junior Association will select a team to play against a select team chosen by the Senior Executive, on Easter Day. Tickets have been issued for this game and it is up to the supporters to make this game a success.

Agreeable Solution.

The committee between the Senior and Juniors discussed the rules pro and con but the "Transfer" rules brought up many interesting points that eventually found the ruling as follows: "In the event of any Senior club, not desiring the further services of any player be allowed to transfer to any 2nd Division team irrespective of how many games he has played for the seniors but that he must play at least one league match before participating in a cup tie. All senior players transferred back to juniors must appear before the Senior Executive.

Every player and enthusiast should study the foregoing rule carefully.

A junior player may play three league games for a senior club but must first receive permission from his club.

.. Referees Have Own Body.

The question about Referees was left to the "Knights of Whistle" to make their own arrangements so as to facilitate matters between the two executives. They will meet in near future to discuss the arrangements for the season.

C.P.C. Office-Bearers.

The Junior C. P. C. club elected the following office- bearers for the 1925 season: Patron, T. F. Matthews Hon. Pres., A. J. Matthews; Pres., G. Dryland; Vice-Pres., T. Ball, Secy F. Hall; Tres., W. Downer; Manager T. Creighton; Representatives: J. Edwards and B. Chard.

Rules to be Printed.

The secretary was instructed to proceed with the printing of the rules and Regulations of the P. and D. F. A. According to rules, every member is advised to obtain a copy so as he will not be ignorant of the rules.

Last Notice To Football Clubs

All clubs who anticipate entering the football leagues are requested to notify the secretary, J. Cridland, 864 George street on or before next Monday evening, March 23rd.

Mr. J. Campbell, of De Laval, was appointed Vice-President of the Junior Association last evening.

The Thistle F. C. will hold a meeting in Sutherland's Store, Simcoe Street, on Thursday evening. Please bring all equipments belonging to the club.

ROCKEFELLER ISN'T SERIOUS OVER GOLF

Doesn't Throw Clubs When He Makes a Bad Shot.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(Canadian Press).—Anxiety lest Mr. John D. Rockefeller should be taking golf too seriously is allayed by analytical dispatches from Ormond Beach which stress his attitude, says the Herald-Tribune. He does not hurl a club in disgust over a missed putt, but throws it in the air in glee when he makes a "birdie," as frequently the veracious chroniclers report, he does. With such a temperament Mr. Rockefeller is a welcome companion in a foursome.

But as to his not taking the game seriously. His remarks on the technique of the swing have the real textbook flavor. He ventures, moreover, to admit that he has attained "the right psychological attitude," and if the onlookers are not deceived, his study of every shot is a marvel of concentration. He plays golf suspiciously like a person to whom the game really matters, but, of course, he doesn't take it seriously. He isn't at all concerned about his score. Oh, no!

Life is queer stuff. Here is Mr. Rockefeller at eighty-five trying might and main, with the aid of philosophy and phychology, to do with a little ball things that a fourteen-year-old caddie can do infinitely better without half trying. Such is golf.

COLLINS BIGGEST QUESTION MARK

Efforts as Manager of White Sox Will be Watched With Interest.

EDDIE COLLINS

BY BILLY EVANS

SHREVEPORT, March 17.—Will Eddie Collins, greatest second baseman of all time, be a success as manager?

I desire to go on record as predicting he will. I want to be one of those "I-told-you-so's."

Collins absolutely refuses to turn prophet. His only future booking is that the Chicago White Sox will not finish last.

"I am convinced that the fans are not interested in winning the pennant in March," says Eddie. "They judge you on where you finish in October.

Doesn't Expect Pennant.

"Candidly, I don't expect my team to win the pennant. We may not be in the first division and then again we might. We won't finish last!

"I am going to impress on the boys that I want them to go the limit to win each game. Then, when it's over, whether it's won or lost, forget it and go after the next one.

"Ball games and pennants are won by making runs, not through the medium of conversation. We are going to concentrate on each ball game and let the others take care of themselves. It is the team that wins the most games and loses the least that goes over the wire a winner.

I am proud to be at the head of the Chicago White Sox. It is composed of a great bunch of fellows. I know, I have been one of them for years, am still one.

To Give Best.

"I know they are all for me. I know they are going to give me their best. When we are beaten it will be because the other club has played better ball.

"I figure this is my big chance. Of late years I have wanted to take a whirl at managing a ball club. Old opportunity has arrived and I am going to try to make the most of it.

"There was a certain thrill when I was named manager of the White Sox but it in no way compared to my emotions the rest of that day.

"Within several hours after I had been named manager I received a wire from every member of the club on which for years I had played, offering congratulations and pledging support.

Fans' Good Will.

"The thrill of being made manager meant nothing when compared to those messages from the players. Right away I felt as if 50 per cent of my troubles had been erased. It made me feel that the players were with me to a man. That means something to a manager."

While the baseball fans of the country have made no manifestation of their feelings, Collins will have their good will as well as the players.

Like Walter Johnson, Collins is one player who has endeared himself to the public. He is the gentleman off the field, the sportsman on it.

CUB RECRUIT IS VERSATILE.

Mel Kerr Has Athletic Record on the Order of Jim Thorpe.

Bidding for a berth on the Chicago Cubs' line up at the Catalina Islands is a long-legged Canadian boy with an athletic record that reads like the career of Jim Thorpe.

The youngster in question is Mel Kerr, a product of the sandlots, of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, and rated as one of the greatest all-round athletes developed in the Dominion in more than a decade.

Kerr is a left-hander, fast as lightning and with aspirations to become an outfielder with the Cubs. He was recommended to Charles Veeck, president of the Chicago club, for a tryout by Frank Miley, a former professional baseball player and at one time president of the Western Canada Baseball League.

Kerr's prowess as a slugger earned him considerable of a reputation in western Canada. He has been one of the leading hitters in the Saskatoon Senior Amateur Baseball League for several seasons. Last summer he outstripped the field by a big margin and wound up with a batting mark of .435.

Baseball is not his only forte, for his career in Saskatoon and district sport circles has been a series of brilliant performances in basketball tennis, swimming, track and field and football.

Kerr is one of the smoothest basketballers that ever graced a Canadian court and the chances are he'll try to catch on with some professional club during the winter months.

A wonderful hurler, the Saskatoon boy ran second in the Canadian championships at Calgary two years ago, and, had he been able to make arrangements, would have been an almost certain member of the Olympic team to Paris.

MANY LADY GOLFERS

922 Clubs Affiliated With English Union—10,000 Members.

LONDON, Eng., March 14. — (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Lewis Smith presided over a meeting of between 300 and 400 delegates representing upward of 10,000 lady golfers affiliated to the Ladies' Golf Union, at the annual Council meeting of the union at the Aeolian Hall, London, recently.

Fourteen new clubs were elected to membership, it was announced, making the total membership of the Ladies' Golf Union now 922 clubs.

Some of the rules of handicapping were amended, the most important of these being that to reduce a handicap below 6 a player must have returned one score on three separate courses, the scratch score of which must not be less than 73.

It was declined that, instead of the Ladies' Golf Union inviting offers of greens for the open championship, the union in future request the use of a course from a club in the district in which the championship is to be held.

Ladies' open championship will be held at Troon, beginning on May 18. The English ladies' championship will be held at Westward Ho, beginning Oct. 5.

A Chicago boy reports having heard 41 stations in one evening's work at the controls of his one-tube Reinartz receiver.

CARPENTIER AND FIRPO IN COMPANY

Negotiations Under Way to Join Forces Under Descamps.

PARIS, March 17.— Firpo, Carfensive of the new combination a formidable pugilistic firm, the formation of which may be announced any day if negotiations now in progress between Descamps, manager of Carpentier, and "The Wild Bull of the Pampas" come to a successful termination. The first real offensive of the new combination would be staged about mid-summer. Carpentier and Descamps are now considering an offer from Floyd Fitzsimmons, the Michigan promoter for a bout between Carpentier and "Young" Stribling at Macon, Ga. the home town of Stribling, some time around August, and Descamps is certain that if Firpo will place himself under his care he will have no trouble in getting matches for his new protege in the United States and be able to start Luis Angel on the road to another fight with Jack Dempsey.

Firpo, on his return here recently from Riviera, let it be known that he was tired of acting as his own manager and that he would not be averse to joining Descamps' stable.

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER.

GLASGOW, March 16. — The second replay of the fourth round contest of the Scottish Cup this afternoon between Paisley, St. Mirren, and the Glasgow Celtic, saw the Celtic move up into the semi-finals in a stubbornly fought out contest the Glasgow team emerged with a one-goal margin over their rivals from the thread town. The game was played on the ground of the Rangers, Ibrox Park, here.

With the elimination of St. Mirren, only four teams are now left to battle out the semi-finals which are scheduled for Saturday first. The Celtic will meet Rangers at Hampden Park, while another feature contest is staged for the East of Scotland where Dundee will meet Hamilton Academicals, at Tynecastle Park, Edinburgh.

LONDON, March 16. — West Bromwich again moved up to be bracketed with Huddersfield town in the running for the English League honors this afternoon, when they divided the points with Birmingham on the latter's ground. The game was scoreless.

Liverpool defeated Sheffield United in a league game, one goal to nothing being the result at Sheffield.

In the Northern Section of the Third Division, Barrow defeated Rotherham one to nothing.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

The inaugural address of the baseball rookie in the spring campaign is, "When do I eat?"

Babe Ruth says he doesn't care who writes the country's laws if he may keep the dimensions of his waistline a private matter.

Perhaps one reason why the spring seems so incomplete to us is that Eddie Rouse is not a holdout.

It is said Nurmi has increased Finland's credit by $50,000,000—in other words, he is a credit to the country.

Fable—Once upon a time there was a baseball veteran who refused to predict he would have the greatest season of his career.

The Tigers have a pitcher named Johnny Walker—it goes without saying he has plenty of hops to his fast one.

About the only thing the lightweight tournament proved was that Benny Leonard was a great champion.

People writing to broadcasting stations express a preference for clasical music. . . The presumption is that people who prefer jazz are unable to write.

Joe Shaute, of the Indians, has the best tenor voice in baseball. . But in all other respects he is the perfect gentleman.

The .400 hitter who publicly resolved to stay back home on the farm rather than sign for a measly $15,000 is now in the training camp spearing peas with a butter knife.

Here it is March already and nobody has yet been able to explain the mystery of how Cyril Walker won the open championship last year.

D. W. Griffith is showing a film called "America." . . . It probably will be an awful bust in Herrin, Ill., and other foreign countries.

A rookie reported in the Cleveland camp with three trunks, a golf bag and a radio ....."The boy's got a lot of stuff," admitted Speaker.

The longest run of the year is accredited to young Jake Schaefer, but it hardly qualifies him for a run against Nurmi.

Joe Beckett is getting ready to stage a come-back .....The date on which he will be knocked out by Carpentier has not yet been announced.

How many children in the chapel today can remember the delightful medieval period when ball players used to go south in the spring to play ball?

Back in the sun-bathed afternoons when Mathewson's fadeaway and Bresnahan's strange-looking shinguards commanded headline positions in the metropolitan dailies, spring training was an operation closely related to the business of ball playing.

Old-fashioned managers, wearing a chip on their shoulders and a van dyke on their chins, would hoard their broods together on March 27 and have them in shape to whip any umpire in a 40-round fight by April 3.

If the demon athlete of 1908 vintage even mentioned golf in training camp he would be ostracized by the honorable rough necks on the squad and ugly rumors would begin to circulate that he slept in pajamas and used a tooth brush.

Nobody wore knickers in those days except polished English villains in Clyde Fitch drawing-room dramas. . . . Ball players who failed to wear heavy red sweaters and three days' growth of beard in hotel dining-room were tossed out as imposters.

Progressive bridge tournaments were not considered necessary to take old-timers' minds off arduous training program. . . . The business of hokum was not so far advanced in those days and ball players were not supposed to have minds. . . . .

MODERN TRAINING CAMP IS A CROSS BETWEEN A LONG ISLAND HOUSE PARTY AND AN EXCLUSIVE ATHLETIC CLUB. . . . IT'S A FASHIONABLE SPOT FOR EVERYTHING BUT BASEBALL.

A rookie who can do his home course in three under par and who knows whether to wear a white bow or a black ascot with a dinner coat goes over bigger than a .400 hitter with a Ty Cobb trade-mark.

Baseball has changed sharply since Charley Ebbetts grabbed off his first holiday date, but the change has been dictated largely by the fashion pages of Vanity Fair and wide circulation of Books of Etiquette.

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

Winning two games in one afternoon is a bit out of the ordinary in the major leagues nowadays. For, unlike the halcyon period of Joe McGinnity, famous "iron man" of the Giants, pitching both frays of a double-header is pretty much passe. In other words, it isn't being done very often.

Back in 1908, however, Bib Ed. Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs not only pitched two games in one afternoon, but won them both. And, further than that, he tossed up goose eggs in each fracas.

Brooklyn was the opposition on that memorable occasion. And Reulback at that time was at the height of his great career. Reulbach was considerable of a shutout artist but to hurl double blanks in a single afternoon was about the maximum in pitching achievement even for a gunner of his ability.

Certain ball clubs often hold a sort of spell over other teams. That is, one club may be particularly easy picking for another regardless of their respective standings in the league. Obviously, pennants are sometimes won and lost in this manner, the feat working both ways.

Back in 1909 the Chicago Cubs held such a hand over the Boston Braves. In the 22 games played between the two teams that season, the Cubs won all but one. That, according to the records, is the most games one club ever won from another during a season's play.

* * *

In the American League Boston, in 1904, whipped Washington 20 times to but two defeats and the Athletics turned a similar trick on St. Louis in 1911.

LONDON IS STILL COLD TO SOVIET

Negotiations for Anglo-Russian Treaty Expected to Fail.

LONDON, March 13.—(United Press).—Upon his return from Moscow to London the Soviet charge d'affaires, Rakovsky, may attempt to revive the negotiations for a treaty to replace the draft Anglo-Russian agreement, which was abandoned after the fall of the British Labor Government.

In several speeches, delivered during his brief visit to Russia, Rakovsky spoke cheerfully of the prospects for concluding a treaty with the British Conservative Government.

Those acquainted with the intentions of the Soviet embassy in London believe that Rakovsky will release a "trial balloon" soon after his arrival. A hint from Soviet sources that they are ready to entertain new treaty proposals from Britain, it is thought, might induce the British Foreign Office to assume the initiative in reviving the discussion.

Soviet spokesmen insist, however, that the Moscow Government has made its maximum concessions in the agreement arranged with the MacDonald regime. While the British Labor Government offered to guarantee a substantial loan to the Soviets, their Conservative successors are definitely committed against such a guarantee. If the Russians are to obtain a British loan at all, it must come privately from London bankers.

Opinion in semi-official British quarters does not appear to bear out the Soviets' optimism regarding the treaty outlook. A strong group of London bankers is willing to grant a loan to the Soviets providing at least two-thirds of it are spent in England. But an equally potent, if not more powerful section of financiers, is now opposed to advancing credits to Moscow under any existing circumstances.

The conviction prevails that at least another year must elapse before the question of a new British-Soviet agreement can become acute.

CURLING CLUB CLOSES SEASON WITH SATISFACTORY BALANCES AND REPORTS OF ACHIEVEMENT

R. F. Downey Succeeds George Boucher as President for 1925-6.

TROPHIES PRESENTED.

Motion of Congratulation to Ladies' Club on Winning the Tankard.

The annual meeting of the Peterboro Curling Club was held last evening with a good attendance. The secretary - treasurer's report showed finances to be in a healthy condition and that the club had enjoyed a very successful season in all ways. Alex. Kay reported that the junior section was doing well.

W. D. Campbell read the report of the Open Bonspiel Committee, showing a nice balance to carry forward to next year....

The following were elected as the officers for 1925-26:

Honorary President—George B. Boucher.

President—R. F. Downey.

Vice-President—Ira D. Moore.

Management Committee—G. H. Duncan, J. J. Howden, Gray Copping, J. Bacon.

Representative to O.C.A. — Alex. Kay. Alternative—Jas. Connal.

Auditor—C. H. Pennefather.

Umpire—A. McIntosh.

Prizes Presented.

The presentation of prizes then took place.

The Robert Neill trophy, with desk lamps, was won by Martin Chenhall's rink, consisting of M. B. Chenhall, Alex. Dick, J. Selkirk, W. Stocker. Second prize, four salad bowls, went to R. M. Waddell's rink, consisting of R. M. Waddell, Archie Moore, George Gillespie, and Charles Brewer.

The vice-skips' Bonspiel was won by J. Richmond's rink, who won the E. G. Patterson Cup and individual prizes of umbrellas. The rink consisted of J. Richmond, H. Foote, A. Metheral, and S. J. Feir. Second prize of curling caps went to Carl McLean, W. R. Widdess, W. Stocker and James Cullen.

In Group B the schedule prizes went to J. E. A. Fitzgerald (skip), J. Gillespie, A. Ringer and R. Bacon. In Group C the prizes went to Ray Best (skip), George Cairns, Lorne Northey and J. E. Lillico. Group A has not been decided. The prizes for this are Pyrex pie-plates.

To Choose Rinks.

A motion by Ray Best relative to the Tankard and District Cup rinks was passed, which provided that a committee of three be appointed to appoint skips and act in conjunction with these skips regarding the personnel of the rinks.

The committee appointed consisted of J. H. Metheral, J. E. A. Fitzgerald and Thomas Brightman.

A motion by Gray Copping to increase the active membership from 140 to 160 was passed.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the auditor, C. H. Pennefather, and to the umpire, A. McIntosh, and to the Press.

The secretary was instructed to write to the Ladies' Curling Club, congratulating them on winning the Tankard.

J. H. Metheral was thanked for the cup he presented to the juvenile section of the club. This was won this year by the rink skipped by Jack Amys.

The G. N. Gordon Trophy for the schedule games was won by Walter Rye's rink.

NIAGARA FALLS CAN'T DODGE IT

Responsibility For Failure Rests With System Adopted—Sympathy Misplaced.

HOGGED GATES.

Much sympathy is being expressed for Niagara Falls because the O.H.A. champions are said to be stale from too much hockey. And a lot of the sympathy is wasted.

If the Falls crew are paying the penalty for playing too many games the fault is largely their own, and that of the other clubs in the Big Six group who for reasons that need no explanation adopted a double schedule of twenty games—twenty-two for the winners who had to play off with the second team—when ten would have been plenty.

You can't have your cake and eat it—and the Falls chose to gather in gate money in preference to having their team ready for the Allan Cup grind.

As for the old complaint about Varsity having two chances, there is not much to that. True, the students played in the O.H.A. as well as the Intercollegiate, and the O.H.A. was very glad to have them, but they elected at the beginning of the season to qualify through the Intercollegiate Union, an organization that has been unrepresented in the Allan Cup race for a number of years because Varsity, the winners of the College race, elected to qualify through the O.H.A.

So far as the Varsity is concerned, or the Allen Cup aspirants, either, the Niagara Falls team have not been unfairly treated.

The Falls got their overdose of hockey in their own group and in the O.H.A. elimination series.

The only Allen Cup games they have played before the series with Varsity were with Montreal, and Varsity had a series with the Montagrauds, so the teams are even so far as the Allen Cup schedule goes.

REGENT

AT THE REGENT

EDMUND LOWE IN "THE BRASS BOWL" SCORES A BIG TRIUMPH HERE

Edmund Lowe as a star and "The Brass Bowl" as a photodrama stood the test of an interesting premiere before a critical audience at the Regent theatre last night, and, out of a spirit of fairness it must be admitted this combination for entertainment emerged quite adorned with blue ribbons, figuratively speaking. This is a William Fox production, admirably presented, and, much credit should be given to Jerome Storm for his splendid directorial work.

"The Brass Bowl" is an adaptation of the popular novel by Louis Joseph Vance and the ingratiating spirit of the author in the development of his theme is preserved in the cinematic version. For this wise version, praise is due Thomas Dixon, Jr., who prepared the scenario.

The story revolves around the adventures of a handsome bachelor who happens to look so much like a notorious crook that he is mistaken for him and becomes involved in a police case replete with thrills. To say the plot is suspenseful is expressing it mildly, because this is one of those few pictures which really keeps whole audiences clinging to the edge of their seats, literally, at times.

There is a unique romance—unique because it is not the usual conventional love affair in which the outcome is obvious from the inception. In this instance, you cannot fathom who the heroine is or what her motives might be until the very last and therein she is different—likewise refreshing.

Edmund Lowe plays both the roles of the hero and the crook, displaying a decided versatility in the case with which he changes his dramatic temp to suit each character. Claire Adams plays the girl in the case and distinguishes herself in the part while J. Farrell MacDonald, Leo White, Fred Butler and Jack Duffy are all satisfactory in the supporting cast.

AT THE ROYAL

SIX MONTHS TO FILM SUNDOWN

Hugh Production Is Stirring Chapter From History of Thrilling West.

100,000 CATTLE IN SCENE.

Superb Cast Headed by Bessie Lov, Hobart Bosworth, Charles Murray and Others.

Six months to make.

More than 100,000 cattle used.

Cost exceeded $500,000.

Scenes taken in eight states in two countries.

Players and technicians travelled over 15,000 miles by train and horseback to procure the scenes.

These are the principal statistic facts of "Sundown," the gigantic and impressive epic of the West which is to open Thursday at the Royal Theatre for a three-day engagement.

A page from current history, of which only those in the great West seem to be aware, the First National picture tells the story of a tremendous migration which has been going on during the last few decades. Forced from the ranges by the steady encroachment of the homesteader and the small farmer, the big cattle owners have been gradually forced south into the unfertile desert country of the Southwest and into Mexico.

Today the Northern States of Mexico are the big cattle raising areas of the Western Hemisphere. The ranch owners, for the most part, are Americans, the sons and grandsons of the pioneers who wrested the West a generation or so ago from the Indians.

On this pathetic phase of modern history "Sundown" was written. Earl Hudson, supervisor of the First National production, is the author of the story and in presenting the stirring epic to the screen he has produced a soul-inspiring drama of reality that cannot help but arouse the emotions of the most blase.

"THE MIRAGE" A GRIPPING FILM.

Florence Vidor as a Show girl, Popular Star Skilfully Handles Hard Role in "The Mirage."

"The Mirage," based on Edgar Selwyn's sensational play, is the current Producers Distributing Corporation release showing at the Royal Theatre.

This picture deals with the social life of a certain class known as "gold diggers" and "men-about-town." We are apt to look askance upon anyone who belongs to this class; apt to wonder about their moral code; apt to look down upon them. "The Mirage" presents them as they really are and gives one an opportunity to alter one's opinion or have it strengthened, as the case may be.

"The Mirage" is a daring story. It treats the old question of the "misjudged girl" in a new and pleasing manner. Playing with Miss Vidor are Clive Brook, Alan Roscoe, Myrtle Vane, Vola Vale and Charlotte Stevens.

RUSSIAN TENOR AT ROYAL.

Coming here so highly recommended, patrons of the Royal were led to expect a lot from the Dubins. Last night's audience was agreeably surprised and delighted. This is without doubt the finest singing novelty offered in Peterboro' in some time. M. Dubin possesses a voice of natural beauty and power and reminds one of Caruso, his vocalism being of the Italian type. His lady partner (Mrs. Dubin), is a true artist and her harmony was superb. Opening with a duet in Russian, then an English ballad, followed by American jazz, they closed with a burlesque opera scene from "The Gamblers." Lovers of real music should be out in full force at the Royal where the Dubins will appear tonight and tomorrow, matinee and night.

AT THE CAPITOL

GLORIA AS A SPITFIRE ITALIAN GIRL AT THE CAPITOL.

Algiers, the French Foreign Legion and as colorful a love story as you've ever seen on the screen.

That's "Wages of Virtue," Gloria Swanson's newest Paramount picture, an Allan Dwan production, which was shown for the first time in Peterboro' at the Capitol Theatre yesterday.

The story is an adaptation of Percival Wren's novel, with Ben Lyon in the leading man's role opposite the star and Norman Trevor, Ivan Linow, Joe Moore and others in the cast.

To those who remember Gloria of "Manhandled" and the Gloria of "Her Love Story", we say here's a role that combines the finer moments of both earlier characterizations. As Carmelita, the star is both the exotic, bizarre Gloria of the Arthur Stringer story and the motherly Gloria of Mrs. Rinehart's romance.

Hers is the role of a young Neapolitan girl of the slums who becomes the pride of the Foreign Legion, a little mother to "men without a country." Ben Lyon is a recruit in the Legion, a young American with whom Carmelita falls in love. Trevor plays John Boule, veteran of the internationally famous French regiment and Joe Moore has the role of a New York gangster also in the ranks of the Legion. Linow has a "heavy" role as Luigi, ex-strong man for a side-show and now the regimental bully. It is about these characters that the story revolves.

Forrest Halsey wrote the screen play. Armand Cortez, Adrienne d'Ambricourt and Paul Panzer are included in important supporting roles.

"Wages of Virtue" is Gloria all through!

CHARGE GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS WITH THEFT OF PUBLIC MONEY

Two Arrested For Alleged Irregularities in Brick Plant at Mimico.

SAY MONEY KEPT.

TORONTO, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—The audit which the Ontario Government has been making of various branches of public service created a further sensation yesterday at parliament buildings when it resulted in the arrest of W. W. Dunlop, Inspector of Prisons and public charities, in the provincial secretary's department, and of F. C. Williams his associate in the work of inspection. Both officials have lengthy records in the Civil Service and both are now being held upon charges of theft connected with their stewardship of the Government brick plant at Mimico.

Mr. Dunlop was apprenheded at his home to which he was confined by illness.

A Provincial officer remained there in charge of him.

The Government operates a brick plant at Mimico and it is in connection with the sale of its product that the allegations against Dunlop and Williams arises.

It is claimed that they failed to turn over in full the amount of money which they received for brick. Irregularities in Mr. Dunlop's case are placed at around $8,000.

Dunlop has been an employee of the Government ten years and Williams 32 years.

BANK DECLARES BAD BILS ARE IN CIRCULATON

Batch of $75,000 Passed the Clearing House and Distributed.

TOTAL $250,000.

TORONTO, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—The latest information confirms the belief that the counterfeit fraud in $100 Imperial Bank bills has been carried out on a large scale. It is admitted the bills have been coming back to Canada for several months through branches of British Banks in various parts of the world. The total in bills now located runs around $250,000.

About three weeks ago a batch of $75,000 was received from London and passed through the clearing house, being accepted as genuin, with the result that they were placed in circulation and apparently they have been in general use ever since.

All banks are keeping a close watch for the bogus bills.

Officials of the Canadian Bank of Commerce have stated that some of the bills have arrived from their various branches in Ontario and the east and others have been reported at scattered points.

WARREN REJECTED; APPOINT SARGENT

Senate Turns Down Warren Second Time— Sargent Named To-day.

WASHINGTON, March 17 (Canadian Press).—John G. Sargeant of Vermont was nominated today by President Coolidge to be Attorney-General.

The name of Mr. Sargent was sent to the Capitol after Charles B. Warren, twice rejected by the Senate had declined to take the recess appointment to the Attorney-Generalship.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—Charles B. Warren to-day advised President Coolidge that he did not desire the recess appointment as Attorney-General. The President had reached no decision, it was said, when the Senate met at noon as to what further action he would take.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Senate Monday rejected for a second time the nomination of Charles B. Warren to be Attorney-General.

The vote was 46 to 39 and compared with the tie vote, 40 to 40, on which the nomination was first rejected last Tuesday.

President Coolidge has announced he will offer Mr. Warren a recess appointment, but the nominee has not indicated whether he will accept.

Every one of the thirty-nine Senators voting for confirmation were Republicans. The Opposition was a combination of Democrats and Republican insurgents.

CANADA'S AVERAGE

OTTAWA, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—Canada's wheat area of 22,055,710 acres in 1924 yielded 262,097,000 bushels of an estimated value of $320,362,000, according to the last report of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The average acre yield of fall wheat was 28.8 bushels against 23.75 bushels in 1923 and 22.8 bushels for the last five-year period.

Valuation of other field crops of Canada for the year was estimated at $203,034,000 for oats, $60,509,000 for barley, $22,626,000 for mixed grains and $18,849,300 for flaxseed.

The aggreate value of all field crops was $996,257,900, an increase of $97,091,000 over the previous year.

CONTROL OF OCEAN RATES VITAL NECESSITY PREMIER ARGUES IN DEFENDING PETERSON CONTRACT

Government Attempting to Carry Out Findings of Parliamentary Committee—Shipping Companies Had Refused to Co-operate With Minister of Commerce.

SIMILAR OFFER MADE TO THE C.P.R.

Peterson Contract Drawn Up for the Government by Mr. Eugene Lafleur, K.C.—Canadian Ports Suffering From Discriminating Rates.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 18. — (Canadian Press). — Resuming the debate on the Petersen Contract in the House of Commons on Tuesday General A. E. Ross, (Conservative-Kingston) claimed that the Preston report did not establish the fact that a combine actually existed.

The proposition before Parliament how was one which would discourage the tramp steamer, and the tramp steamer trade was most valuable to Canada. In the past few years they had been bringing increased business to Canadian ports. The government should be able to give more information as to what was to be done with the merchant marine. There had been twelve merchant marine ships engaged in European voyages last year, and they were only able to make fortnightly sailings. Ten vessels, he said, would not be able to make a much better record, certainly, than the merchant marine.

General Ross summarized his objections to the proposal of the Government as follows: The attempt of a State to break the Shipping conference was a most difficult one.

The attempt of a State as deeply in debt as Canada, seemed almost futile.

The Petersen contract looked like a reversion to the Middle Ages, when monopolies were granted to interests by the Government.

Canada's future would be best served by co-operation with Canadian organizations and interests.

Premier's Comment.

In view of the fact that the Government's plan had been referred to as "A pea-shooting scheme," It seemed rather amusing for General Ross to object to it on the ground on monopoly, said Premier King. General Ross suggested that efforts be made to develop the Canadian Government merchant marine, but he did not explain, said the Prime Minister, why the Government of Right Hon. Arthur Meighen had not done this.

The principle which the members of the House were being asked to pass upon, was that of control of ocean rates, said the Prime Minister. The Government had, from the outset, adopted the course that this agreement must go before a special committee of the House of Commons. The reason that the Government had taken that course, was so that no member would feel hesitation in supporting the bill up to second reading. Such support meant merely, that members were in favor of the principle of ocean rate control. The contract did not come into effect until the bill was passed by the Commons, the Senate, and signed by the Governor General. It might be killed on third reading, and the contract would be of no force whatever.

Referring to the Preston report, the Prime Minster remarked that at any rate, Mr. Preston had had the courage to put his name to the document. This was not the case, he said, with another document opposing the Preston report which had been brought into the discussion. When the special committee met, he hoped that care would be taken to discover who the author of the second report was.

No Action Taken.

The amendment, said Mr. King, admitted the necessity for the control of ocean rates. It suggested that the situation might be dealt with by some Empire Commission, or a body of that nature. This suggestion had been made over & over again. Sir Robert Borden, Sir George Perley, all of them had taken that view, and nothing had come of it. Over and over again, the associated Chamber of Commerce of Great Britain, had tried to secure the establishment of some such body, but without success. They were unable to get the Imperial Shipping Committee to consent to such a body The Dominion Government could hardly do it.

The second part of the amendment, was wholly untrue, said Mr. King, and he asked the members to vote against it on that ground. The contract entered into between the Government and the Petersen interests, was not based on the Preston report. It was entered into before the Preston report was made.

Offer Made to C. P. R.

Premier King declared that as a result of the report of the special committee, of the House of Commons on Agriculture, made two years ago, the Government had decided to take action in this matter.

The Government had "made it known at the outset, that it was prepared to make a contract with any company in this country that was prepared to give a return similar to that being given by Petersen.' It was prepared, stated Premier King, to give it to the Canadian Pacific Steamship Services along identical lines.

The Premier stated, that he personally had made a proposal to the President of the Canadian Pacific a short time ago. He invited that company along with a proposition to give the Government control over line to the same extent as that given by Petersen, on a similar basis.

"Any Canadian Company, that will give similar services and similar rates will be given similar treatment," he declared.

Any discussion about a subsidy was all beside the mark. Sir William Petersen had offered to put a fleet of 10 steamers on the Atlantic, give the Government of Canada the right to fix the rate, in return for the consideration by the latter mentioned in the agreement. By such a contract, it would not be long before the other parts of the British Empire realize the significance of this agreement. "The Steamship companies know it, and that is why we are getting the kind of propaganda we are," he stated.

Contract Not Criticized.

Members of the opposition had been making great heroes of themselves in attacking Mr. Preston when he could not be on the floor of the House to defend himself. They would have the opportunity of meeting him before the special committee to which the Petersen contract was being referred. Sir William Petersen and Mr. Preston had been criticized by the opposition: "But not the contract itself,and the purpose it seeks to serve.

Why had the Government taken action in this matter?

What had been the origin of the contract entered into?

The whole matter had been one of great importance to the country during the last 14 or 15 years and dealt with by various commissions, and committees. A royal commission had been appoined in 1906, which made its report in 1909. In 1912, a Dominion Royal Commission had also been constituted, following the Imperial Conference of 1911; and this body had made a report on Feb. 21, 1917. Sir Henry Drayton when chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, had also been appointed to conduct an investigation in 1913. An Imperial Shipping Committee had been formed and a special committee of the Canadian House of Commons dealt with the subject two years ago. Surely the formation of these numerous bodies was sufficient evidence of the importance of dealing with the combine.

That committee, said the Prime Minister, found that cattle rates had increased 300 per cent since the war, and that the transportation business was very largely in the hands of rings or conferences.

The report of the committee had suggested that if control of rates was to be made effective, something in the nature of international control would be required. These steps, said Premier King, would take many years to accomplish. In the meantime, the Government was proceeding with measures which would determine whether or not the allegations made by the committee of two years ago, were true, or not. The Government was simply attempting to carry out the findings made by a committee of the House of Commons.

Repulsed By Companies.

Premier King emphasized the endeavours made by Mr. Low (Min-

Tribesmen Reported to Have Lost Three Hundred.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—A despatch from Jeddah reports that troops of the Kingdom of the Hedjaz on Sunday severely defeated the Wahabi tribesmen, who lost 300 in killed. The Hedjaz troops are said to have suffered 9 killed and thirty wounded.

Stole Widow's Pension Gets Minimum Sentence

REGINA, Sask., March 18.—Andrew Krauss, a member of Regina Council for many years in the pre-war period, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary following a conviction in the city police court Tuesday on a theft charge. It was the minimum sentence for the crime, theft of mail matter. Two other charges, forgery and uttering, were withdrawn by the crown immediately sentence was pronounced.

Krauss stole a letter containing a cheque issued by the Saskatchewan Government in favor of Mrs. Lena Nina, her monthly widow's pension.

$50,000 DEMANDED IN LIBEL ACTION

Hon. Wm. Sloan's Suit Against Gen. McRae Revived.

VANCOUVER, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Reviving his libel action, Hon. William Sloan, Provincial Secretary and Minister of Mines, has caused a statement of claim to be filed in Nanaimo against General Alexander McRae, Vancouver capitalist.

The plaintiff claims unstated damage from the defendant, although the endorsement to the writ named $50,000 as the desired monetary compensation. The libel complained of followed charges concerning the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, wherein, it is said, Mr. Sloan was accused of having accepted approximately $50,000 to protect the promoters of the railroad.

According to the statement of claim the words meant that the plaintiff accepted bribes and after the election afforded protection and favorable treatment to the promoters of the P.G.E. and that Mr. Sloan had been guilty of an indictable offence. The charges have been investigated by Mr. Justice Galliher, who exonerated Hon. William Sloan.

TOKIO DEVASTATED BY CONFLAGRATION

Thousand Homes Swept By Fire To-day—Troops Keep Order.

TOKIO, March 18. — (Canadian Press)—A conflagration which swept over Northern Tokio this afternoon, fanned by a gale, destroyed more than 1,000 homes by 10 o'clock tonight, and was spreading in all directions.

Great confusion prevails. Troops are on the scene tearing down houses in an effort to prevent the further spread of the blaze, while thousands of residents laden with household effects are streaming towards safety.

Firemen were helpless in the attempt to check the outburst because of the drought that had exhausted the reservoirs. The fire started in a factory at Nappori Junction, north-western Tokio and to-night was sweeping in a south-westerly direction towards Uyeno, largest of the city parks on the site of the famous imperial museum and zoological gardens.

WOLVES ARE BUSY.

Farmers Suffer a Severe Loss as Sheep Are Killed.

KINGSTON, March 18 (Special to The Examiner).—Wolves continue to give trouble around the village of Northbrook. Many farmers are suffering a severe loss, as a result of the wolves killing their sheep. The farmers have organized bands to kill off the wolves.

SIX "SHIEKS" ARRESTED.

Winnipeg Youths Face Many Charges.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 18.—Six Winnipeg youths were arrested here Tuesday in a coupaign being waged against hold-up men who have been particularly active during the past two months. The boys, who are termed as "professional shieks" by the police, are faced with many charges, including burglary, highway robbery and assault. They were remanded one week for trial.

FOUR BELIEVED DROWNED.

NEWBURGH, N.Y., March 18. — (Canadian Press)—Four persons are believed to have been drowned in the Hudson River, off this city, yesterday when a barge loaded with cement capsized. Fred. Dortwardt, owner of the barge, and his wife and two small children are missing.

DENNISTOUN ALMOST PENNILESS EXCEPT FOR BOUNTY PROVIDED BY WIDOW OF LORD CARNARVON

His Flat Was Furnished and His Bank Account Fattened by Her.

MANY AFFAIRS.

Evidence Still Sensational in Celebrated English Society Scandal.

LONDON, March 18. — (Canadian Press). — The French divorce which Mrs. Dorothy Muriel Dennistoun obtained in 1921 from Lt.-Col. Ian Onslow Dennistoun, again came to the front in proceedings in the trial of Mrs. Dennistoun's suit for money she alleges she loaned her former husband, when Col. Dennistoun returned to the witness stand to-day. He was somewhat drawn and haggard, still suffering from the effects of the attack of sciatica which prevented his attendance in court yesterday.

Sir Marshall Hall, attorney for the defense explained he was not attacking the validity of the divorce which he said did not affect the pending matter but he brought out by questioning his client that the reason Col. Dennistoun would not permit the divorce in the Scotch courts was that he did not want to lose any part of the 10,000 pounds his father had placed in trust for him. Witness said it was agreed with his then wife that he would not oppose the divorce proceedings if she agreed not to take any of the money. In return he would do nothing so far as her settlement was concerned.

"I had no intention that Bolin or any other man should have this money," Col .Dennistoun said. Bolin is the Spaniard with whom Mrs. Dennistoun, it has been testifed, travelled abroad prior to her divorce from the Colonel.

Col. Dennistoun described how he met Lady Carnarvon at the Ritz Hotel in Nov. 1921 when Mrs Dennistoun asked him to pick up a parcel from a dress makers. Lady Carnarvon invited him to tea, after which they went shopping together. He said that Lady Carnarvon had an attack of illness so I took her back to the hotel and stayed to see her made comfortable in bed."

Replying to counsel, Col. Dennistoun said that was beginning of his friendship with the widow of Lord Cornarvon which ended in their marriage in Dec. 1923. Apart from the yearly pension of 250 pounds sterling and 800 pounds from his father, he added, he had no money except what Lady Carnarvon provided. She furnished his flat in Sackville Street taking it in his name and paid everything. He transferred the flat to her when they were married saying it was the only thing he could transfer. In May, 1922, he testified Lady Carnarvon opened an account for him at a bank. Lady Carvarvon was not present in court, during this recital.

Scenes in Bathroom.

Stories of incidents in bathrooms and communicating hotel bedrooms were told in detail at Tuesday's session of the suit of Mrs. Ian Onslow Dennistoun against her divorced husband, Lieut.- Col. Dennistoun. The stories came out during the testimony of Marquerite Pyronnene, former maid for Mrs. Dennistoun. The incident were such Miss Pyronnene said ,that she warned her mistress that she did not desire to witness any more of them. Mrs. Dennistoun the maid said, merely replied: "There is nothing in it."

Lieut. Col. Dennistoun, who was suffering from sciatica was not present in court yesterday. His wife, former Dowager Countess Carnarvon, attended the session and during the testimony repeatedly used her smelling salts bottle.

The setting of the triangle drama in the Paris Hotel in the fall of 1920 was described thus by Miss Pyronnenc:—

"Mrs. Dennistoun was on the sixth floor, the Spaniard Bolin on the fifth and Colonel Dennistoun, who was ill was in a room poorer than my own maid's room."

Miss Pyronnenc who seems to have been on terms as equally intimate as those of the other maid, Hanna Parker, with Mrs. Dennistoun, said she rebuked Mrs. Dennistoun for always grumbling because Dennistoun did not give her money, where as he could not even pay his own bills. The witness said that to this Mrs. Dennistoun retorted that she couldn't help that.

At Barcelona, Spain, Mrs. Dennistoun, Bolin and another man and woman formed a party of four on a jaunt "which was a mixture of love and business combined," Miss Pyronnenc testified. She related the receipt there by Mrs. Dennistoun of a telegram from Sir John Cowans, Great Britain's war-time quartermaster general, in which, after cursing Mrs. Dennistoun he added that she had been "artful, heartless and deceiving all through." Sir John died a month later.

Miss Pyronenne also said that Mrs Dennistoun had a picture of Oscar Senhouse, who was later killed in the war, on her dressing table and another in a locket. The witness added that Mrs. Dennistoun would have eloped with Senhouse if he had not been killed. The witness agreed to return to Paris to get certain letters containing intimate details which she said Mrs. Dennistoun wrote to her.

William J. Nash, who was chauffeur for Sir John Cowans described how he drove Mrs. Dennistoun and Bolin a score of times. He said Sir John never saw Bolin.

NON CONFIDENCE IN FERGUSON MOVED IN HOUSE BY MR. RANEY

Budget Debate is Livened by Tilt on Home Bank Cases.

PREMIER'S ANSWER.

TORONTO, March 18 (Canadian Press).—The Budget debate which was achieving a record as the most lifeless in the history of the legislature became animated late last night and issued forth in a resolution of want of confidence in the Ferguson Government. Hon. Mr. Raney was the author of the motion, the substance of which he drew from the McGarry stewardship of the provincial treasury—specifically from the bond issue of $4,000,000, awarded to the Home Bank in September, 1919, in respect to which the bank paid $57,000 in commissions.

Mr. Raney's censure was prompted by the fact that, while Peter Smith is serving a penitentiary term for receiving $15,000 of this sum, the recipient of the remaining $42,000 has never been traced. The whole matter was a resurrection of the toll gate charges of last session of the House.

The manoeuvre of the Progressive leader brought down upon him the vigorous criticism of Premier Ferguson, who alleged that it broke the understanding which party leaders had reached with respect to the closing of the debate.

BROKE AGREEMENT.

In view of Mr. Raney's action in thus introducing a want of confidence motion after having become a party to the other agreement, Premier Ferguson said that he could not accord the Progressive leader any further courtesy in consulting his convenience in the House arrangements.

So far as Mr. Raney's charges themselves were concerned they dealt largely with his claim that the public accounts committee of last session has not been impartial in probing the Treasury Department's irregularities; that it had been influenced to press Peter Smith because of his political stripe; and that it had been influenced to spare further probing because of the political stripe of thos whom it might affect.

The significant conversation between Hon. Mr. Drury and Peter Smith, in which the latter had stated on taking charge of the Treasury Department that it looked to him as though samething had been amiss in the McGarry-Home Bank transaction was emphasized, and it was further charged that the report of the Public Accounts Committee had been drafted with the improper motive of sparing the McGarry incident while stressing those connected with the U.F.O. period.

Replying to these charges against the committee in vigorous fashion, W. Finlayson, its chairman, said he preferred to accept the commendation which the Opposition leaders, Sinclair and Doherty, had given when they had stated that the committee's work had been conducted upon a high plane.

Mr. Finlayson was still reading from the evidence taken before the committee when the House adjourned. The debate will continue today.

The sensational twist given to the budget debate in the Legislature by the unexpected amendment moved by W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, will probably prolong the session of the House until after Easter.

The prolonged budget debate may prevent the bringing down of the Government's Ontario Temperance Act amendments to-morrow, which were promised for this week.

JEWISH SCHOOL QUESTION FOR HIGHER COURTS

Legislation Enabling Appeal Introduced in Quebec Legislature by Premier.

TO PRIVY COUNCIL.

Judgment Last Week Declared the Act of 1903 Ultra Vires.

QUEBEC, March 18. — Provision for getting the opinion of the Supreme Court of Canada and of the Privy Council, on the Protestant-Jewish school question on the Island of Montreal, is provided for in a bill which Premier Taschereau put through the Legislature in first reading on Tuesday.

This bill arises from the submission by the Department of the Attorney-General to the Court of Appeal of a series of questions on the Jewish-Protestant matter. The judgment given last week declared the Act of 1903 ultra vires, and also laid down the principle that the province of Quebec cannot legislate to establish schools other than for Catholics and Protestants.

It so happens that the matter could not go higher under present legislation in the matter of a reference, and this is held to be the most ready way of bringing the issue to the highest courts.

The matter went to the Court of Appeal under Article 579 of the Revised Statutes, which reads: "The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may refer to the court of King's Bench, appeal side, for hearing and consideration, any question which he deems expedient, and thereupon the Court shall hear and consider the same."

Article 582 of the Revised Statutes, 1909, reads: "The opinion of the court (Appeal Court) upon any question referred to it under this chapter is advisory only and cannot be appealed from."

The present bill before the House, while not distributed, is to enable an appeal on the reference either via the supreme court, or directly to the Privy Council.

Status of Clergymen.

First reading was given by the House to Mr. Taschereau's bill respecting the Act of Civil Status.

This Act is necessary in respect of the status of clergymen affected by Church Union.

The Church Union Bill, having been killed for this session at least, and the Ottawa Act having been passed amalgamating the churches, the clergymen of the various churches would find themselves without civil status in the matter of marriages and the keeping of civil status in the matter of marriages, and the keeping of civil status after next June unless there is temporary legislation. This is now what Premier Taschereau proposes.

CHATHAM MAN IS HELD FOR ABANDONED BABY

Infant Left at Door of Hospital—Found by Nurse.

CHATHAM, March 18. — City police investigation of the abandonment late Monday night of a new born baby girl on the steps of a rear entrance to St. Joseph's Hospital resulted yesterday in the arrest of a Chatham young man.

Police withhold his name, pending completion of the enquiry. It was announced, however, that after questioning, he was released when bonds to the value of $2,000 were furnished by relatives for his appearance at the police request.

"This baby was born at 10 o'clock Care for her," so read the message which had been printed with a pencil on an envelope and pinned to the bundle of humanity which the night nurse found on the hospital steps.

Going her rounds, the night nurse heard a faint cry. Opening the door she was amazed to find the babe wrapped in a shawl.

EARTH TREMORS.

Northern Coast of Channel Islands Rocked This Morning.

LONDON, March 18. — (Canadian Press). — Severe earth tremors were felt along the Northern coast of the Isle of Jersey and other of the channel Islands between two and three o'clock this morning. Residents declare the shock was the severest felt in the locality for many years. No damage was reported.

ABSENT TREATMENT OF INFANT FAILED

Investigation Involves Christian Scientist Practitioner.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., March 1. —An investigation has been ordered by Coroner G. N. Lawrie into the death of the infant child of Kenneth W. Boyd, here Monday.

At the inquest yesterday, evidence was adduced to show that the baby had been "ailing." The father admitted that a Mrs. Plumeridge, aged 70, Christian Science practitioner, had been requested by Mrs. Boyd to give "absent treatment." The child was taken out by the parents last Sunday, and died on the following morning. Dr. Charles Powel was summoned about an hour after the infant's death, but failed to diagnose the cause, and declined to issue a death certificate.

The investigating jury will give its verdict on Thursday.

FIND NO TRACE OF LOST MINERS

Thirty-four Believed Entombed in Last Night's Explosion.

THREE ARRESTED.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., (United Press.) — Ten hours after last night's explosion in Bethlehem mine, No. 41, at Barracksville, near here, the rescue workers had penetrated one mile in the working without finding a trace of the thirty-four entombed men.

Officials of the Bureau of Mines held out no hope that the men would be found alive. They pointed out that the trapped workers were veteran miners, and if they were not caught in the explosion they would at once brattice off a section to protect themselves from gas.

Despite the denial by the mine officials that the explosion was caused by dynamite planted in the mine, Sheriff Riggins arrested three men to-day on suspicious character charges.

These men were hired by the company only recently and were the last to leave the workings before the explosion.

The men had given their names as A. G. Kendall, Clarence Wetzel and M. D. Edmunds. R. M Lambie, the chief of the West Virginia Department of Mines, would not hazard a guess as to the cause of the explosion He said the rescue work was progressing rapidly and the chambers were the men were believed to be trapped should be reached this afternoon.

DRUG ADDICT PLEADED TO BE SENT TO PRISON

Feared He Could Get Drugs in Manitoba Jail.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 18.—Pleading that he be given a two-year sentence in the Penitentiary instead of 23 months in the Provincial Jail, where, he claimed, drugs could be obtained freely, Joe Litman, drug addict and shopbreaker, had his request granted by Magistrate Sir Hugh John Macdonald Tuesday. Defence counsel told the court that Litman was formerly a substantial businessman in Toronto, and stated that an overpowering craving for drugs led to the shop breaking.

Provincial Jail authorities stated that no drugs were obtainable there, but Litman has been advised by them to ask for a penitentiary sentence to keep him away from numerous pals of his confined in the Provincial Jail.

REAL TALENT AT ROYAL.

It is seldom that artists of the calibre of The Dubins, now at the Royal, come our way. BUDGET DEBATE.

Peter Heenan Makes Protest Against Advertisements in Old Country for Labor.

TORONTO, March 18.—The budget debate was carried on Tuesday by W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, and W. E. Raney, Progressive leader.

Bills were introduced to allow the fire department of one municipality to fight a fire for another municipality and get payment for the same. Another bill would give municipalities the right to license fruit dealers when the latter were selling United States fruit dumped on the Canadian market in competition with native fruits.

Peter Heenan (Labor, Kenora) protested against advertisements in British papers asking working men to come to Toronto. The Premier replied that the Government could not stop private concerns from advertising in England, and that the Provincial agents over there had been instructed that Ontario did not want working men just at present.

Mr. Sinclair regretted that the debate had been so short. Days had been spent on 4.4 beer but a $50,000,000 budget had interested only eight speakers. He outlined the rapid increase in the budget from twenty years ago when it was $6,000,000 at the close of 33 years of Liberal rule to the present time when it had reached $50,000,000, and the development of a Provincial debt of nearly $350,000,000 in a period of about 25 years.

To Look Into Commissions.

He reminded the House that when speaking in the debate on the address he had referred to the bond transactions of the Conservative Government in 1919, and did not propose to elaborate these in the present debate. He stated, however, that this matter would have to be thoroughly threshed out either in the House or in the Public Accounts Committee and that this session would not come to a close without the Liberal party using every possible means to locate the destination of the large commissions of $42,500 paid by the Home Bank to some party or parties at present unknown. The people would be satisfied with nothing less than that and the public morality of the province demanded it.

Mr. Sinclair recalled that last year the Provincial Treasurer had promised to make the public accounts book much smaller. He had certainly done so! There was no broken pledge here! The treasurer claimed a saving of $10,000 but had afforded an opportunity of concealing the testing of millions of dollars. Mr. Sinclair instanced the department of fire ranging where over $850,000 had been spent and this was all included in less than four pages while last year with an expenditure of less than $500,000 seventeen pages had been allowed. He also referred to the Department of Lands and Forests where an expenditure of $5,500,000 was concealed in 38 pages, while last year about the same amount was shown on 118 pages. He further referred to the Northern and North-Western Ontario development accounts where last year 28 pages were taken to cover $2,500,000 and this year nearly $3,000,000 was included in 12 pages. The treasurer had claimed that the accounts were better, but Mr. Sinclair contended that the financial comptroller had become a financial concealer. It had taken 15 months to secure this official and, judging from the public accounts book, a backward step had been taken.

Calls Price's Boast.

In regard to the increased receipts of which the treasurer boasted, Mr. Sinclair showed that last year had been a full twelve month year,

Board of Health Orders Many People to Install Sanitary Conveniences.

TO MAKE REPAIRS.

The Board of Health held their regular meeting yesterday. The Plumbing Inspector reported that the house at 575 Stewart Street, had no sanitary conveniences except a sink. The owner will be given till April 15 to install them. The inspector also reported a number of houses that needed conveniences, and the M.O.H. was instructed to notify the owners that sanitary conveniences must be installed. A statement of payments on hospital account was received as were the reports of Queen Mary Hospital and the Provincial Laboratories. A request for the installation of sanitary conveniences to be paid for on the installment plan was referred to the City Solicitor.

The chairman was authorized to advertise for tenders for the repair of the verandahs at the Queen Mary Hospital. The Board recommended that the City Council appoint the Plumbing Inspector, A. G. Metheral, as a sanitary inspector in order that he might have the authority of such an officer.

A number of accounts were passed for payment.

TRUSTEE OF DISABLEMENT FUND TELLS OF PAYMENT TO VETERANS

Acceded to War Veteran's' Request After Consulting Hon. Dr. Beland.

GOVERNMENT'S WISH.

Carruthers Fund Devoted to Special Requirements of Disabled Veterans.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 18 (Canadian Press).—The payment out of the Disablement Fund last year of $15,000 to the Dominion Veterans' Alliance and the Great War Veterans' Association is discussed in a file of correspondence tabled in the House of Commons Tuesday.

As trustee since its foundation in 1915 of the Disablement Fund, sometimes called the Carruthers Fund, E. H. Scammell, assistant deputy minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, explains that after consulation with the minister, Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, he decided to accede to the request of the Great War Veterans for a loan of $5,000 out of the Disablement Fund, which for ten years has been devoted to special requirements of disabled veterans.

This advance was to be part of the $100,00 provided in the Canteen Funds Bill for the formation of an adjustment bureau for disabled soldiers. That bill failed to pass the Senate last session, however. In September last it was decided that the Dominion Veterans' Alliance was entitled to further assistance in its work for disabled soldiers and so a further concession of $10,000 was made. Both sums were received by C. G. MacNeil, who is officer of the Alliance as well as of the G.W.V.A. Incidentally, Mr. Scammell, in his report to the minister, says that the order-in-council under which the payments were made was "ambiguous, because the sum advanced in 1924 was $15,000 and not $25,000."

G.W.V.A. Executive Appointed.

Mr. Scammell in his report goes into the history of the disablement fund since its foundation in July, 1915, by James Carruthers of Montreal, who contributed $65,000. As its trustee, he had been left to administer it in the best interests of disabled veterans. Sir Arthur Currie had endorsed Mr. MacNeil and his associates in the executive of the G.W.V.A. as the best men to constitute the proposed adjustment bureau.

In 1924, when the $15,000 was advanced to the G.W.V.A. and the Veterans" Alliance, a total of $117,-648 had been paid out for the relief of veterans. After consultation with the Minister of Soldiers' Re-establishment, he had decided that the Dominion Veterans' Alliance was "serving a useful purpose" and entitled to assistance out of the fund.

In conclusion, Mr. Scammell says that, without wishing to disclaim responsibility, he felt that he was compelled to carry out the wishes of the Government of the day, unless its wishes involved a violation of his pledge as trustee of the fund.

CONTROL OF OCEAN RATES VITAL

ister of Trade and Commerce) to secure the co-operation of shipping companies, with a view to the reduction of cattle rates, but. Mr. Low "got little encouragement." Last year, Mr. Low had gone to Montreal twice to confer with the shipping companies, which carried cattle and "it was because the Government found it impossible to get the co-operation of our own Canadian shipping companies that we took the step of finding a company elsewhere to do what we are now proposing to do." Mr. Low had gone to Montreal "prepared to make a very generous offer," said the Prime Minister.

The Prime Minister stated that the Government was not in the least concerned whether the Petersen Company paid a dividend or not. The contract between the Government and Sir William Petersen had been drawn by Eugene Lafleur, K. C., who enjoyed as high a reputation as any legal man in Canada.

"Was he retained by the Government or by Sir William Petersen?" interjected J. D. Chaplin (Conservative-Lincoln).

The Prime Minster replied that Mr. Lafleur had been retained by the Government, and instructed to see that the contract was so drawn that the Government was obligated to nothing. If the other party failed to carry out the terms of the agreement.

W. A .Boys (Conservative-South Simcoe) asked whether or not Sir William Petersen would remain responsible after the formation of any new company to operate the service.

Mr. King replied that he believed Sir William would, but even if a new company was formed it would not receive a cent of money until it had performed the services laid down in the contract. "What we are paying for is the right to control rates," said the Prime Minister.

Reduce Cattle Rates.

He discussed with Sir William Petersen, the question of cattle rates Sir William had expressed the opinion that he could cut the rate on cattle rate from twenty dollars to fifteen or even ten dollars, and deliver them in the British market. The government felt that it was worth while trying to do something to get Canadian cattle into the British market. But, aside from cattle rates, ocean freight rates affected every single commodity produced in Canada .

Complaints from various interests, that the ocean rates from New York to overseas ports, were so much lower than from Canadian Ports, that it was almost impossible to compete, had poured in on the Government. The Government was trying to do something to remedy a serious situation.

A Vital Necessity.

"The control of ocean freight rates is vitally necessary, stated Premier King. "That is what we are seeking to bring about, in the only way that we think it is possible." The Government did not consider that the agreement entered into with Sir William Petersen would effectively control ocean rates for all time but is a beginning in the right direction.

Mr. King pointed out that the present leader of the opposition had had representations, when in power, from his own colleagues, including Sir Henry Drayton, urging that some steps should be taken to see that the matter of ocean freight rates was remedied.

Millers, Vegetable and other exporters had made numerous complaints of the detrimental effect on Canadian industry of higher ocean rates from Canadian points, as compared with shipments from New York to the United Kingdom.

TEACHER TRAINING CLASS AT NORHAM

Many Social and Business Gatherings as Spring Opens Up.

NORHAM, March 18.— Twenty-nine attended the teacher training class held in Norham church hall last week. Rev. G. S. Hammond is the instructor.

The Ladies' Aid held their monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. Clem Palmateer last Tuesday. A committee was appointed to arrange a programme for the literary to be held on Friday evening. It was also decided to celebrate the birthdays of those having birthdays in March and April by a social evening to be held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Gummer on April 2nd.

The annual spring meeting of the cheese factory was held on Thursday afternoon last and was attended by about twenty of the patrons. Alfred Cliffe was appointed secretary. The milk routes were called for but no business was done.

The recent snow fall has retarded the work of making maple sugar. Several farmers had tapped and report a good run of sap. The snow was welcomed especially by those interested in the small seeds and fall wheat.

A play entitled "Patty Makes Things Hum" was put on in Codrington hall by a number of young people from Orland and Codrington last Friday evening. The inclement weather resulted in a small attendance. The play which was given in three acts was managed by George Clark, of Myersburg and was well given. Between the acts numbers were given by the Orchestra from Hilton, Miss Jessie Sharp of Wooler, Mr. Heal, Mr. Fred Huycke and Miss Laura Arkles of Norham.

Their many friends will note with regret that Mrs. Thomas Poiser, of Mt. Olivet was taken to Belleville hospital on Saturday last; also that Samuel McCall, of Bethany, ex-Reeve of Brighton township, is in Toronto undergoing X-ray treatment.

SINCLAIR SAYS

whereas the previous year when the revenue was $34,000,000 it had been a ten and a half month year, and if last year on that basis had been a full twelve months the revenue would have been nearly $38,000,000, so that the treasurer could not claim credit for the increased receipts as it was simply due to full collecting.

Speaking of the deficit the Liberal leader regretted that it was so large. He stated that it was something which stood to be reduced by the treasurer, but the fact was that the deficit was a shortage on each year's transactions—last year $15,-000,000, and this year $8,500,000, both of which were paid by borrowing money, and caused an additional payment of interest in years to come of over $1,000,000. There were two remedies for a deficit—"spend less" or "collect more taxes." A perusal of the public accounts showed that the first was possible as there were many items which could be cut down, and if more taxation had to be secured the suggestion of the member for West Ottawa was the proper solution.

Urges Monthly Statement.

Speaking of the capital assets referred to in the public accounts, Mr. Sinclair showed that the treasurer last year had spoken rather glowingly of $900,000,000. Last year Mr. Sinclair had criticized this statement, and he was glad that this year the treasurer had put in about $588,000,000 of this only for "advertising purposes" and had not included it as actual assets of the province.

In reference to the savings offices in which the interest rate had been reduced, Mr. Sinclair thought the government should have made a better reply to the question asked as regards the deposits. Other banks had to make monthly statements, and he claimed that the provincial banks should do the same. If the rate to depositors had been reduced to three per cent. with the idea of helping the farmers in their loans, Mr. Sinclair contended that the rate on loans to farmers should be reduced from six to five per cent. and not to 5½ per cent.

The New Taxes.

The new taxes which the treasurer had announced were not worked out in detail. The treasurer could not say how the beverage tax was to be levied or on what it was to be levied, so that it simply looked like a case in the meantime of precluding members from discussing its real merits in the budget debate. As to the gasoline tax, Mr. Sinclair argued that of the 112,000 city pleasure cars three-fourths of their driving was done within the city, which would mean that about 31 per cent. of all motor cars in the province never used country roads. Of commercial cars the cities had over 17,000, and three-fourths of their driving would easily be within the city, so that about 42 per cent. of the total in the province were never used on the country roads.

Thirty-one per cent. of the pleasure cars and 42 per cent. of the commercial cars represented at least one-third of the use of motor vehicles. The treasurer estimated a revenue of $2,200,000 for six months from his gasoline tax or over $4,-000,000 for a full year. One-third of this tax, therefore, was levied for the purpose of road maintenance on those who never used the roads. This did not appear to be a fair way of getting the road tax paid—if it was for balancing the budget the treasurer should say so, but it should not be levied as tax for road maintenance. The total tax levied for licenses and gasoline tax would in a full year run close to $10,000,000, and the maintenance charges on roads for 1924 covering interest on capital investments would be about $7,500,000. So that the treasurer was levying more for the purpose than the situation demanded!

Public Wants Information.

Mr. Sinclair regretted the elimination from the public accounts of the statement of last year in regard to Hydro, when 80 pages of the accounts were filled with this information. This year the accounts carried only about half a page. He contended that the public were interested in this information and that the treasurer should not save money at the exnense of giving information.

Mr. Sinclair referred to the legislative secretary for Northern Ontario. He had had a motion on the order paper for some days which had not been called and so he chose to speak of it in the debate. The legislatiye secretary was appointed by an act of the legislature in 1924 with wide powers. The statute gave him a salary of $6,000, but said nothing about travelling expenses. The public accounts showed that Mr. Keefer, the legislative secretary, had drawn as travelling expenses $708.67. There was no provision in the law for this although the Premier had answered a question stating that this was provided for the estimates of 1924, but the estimates of 1924 were passed before a legislative secretary was thought of. The payment was certainly improper. The House wanted to know what the legislative secretary had done but had heard nothing of it so far. The only thing that had come to light was a big feast of 1,000 Danes about Christmas time when they were given special hunting privileges by the legislative secretary, and it looked as if the legislative secretary was a political missionary rather than a developer of New Ontario.

Lawyer's Opinion Confirmed.

Last session the legislature had passed a bill to amend the judicature act. The Liberal members had opposed it as bad in law. The Attorney-General had had doubts and asked the judges of the Supreme Court whether his law was good. They had told him that it was not. He had then appealed to the judicial committee of the Privy Council and was again told that his law was no good. It had cost the province a lot of money to get confirmation of the oninin of the Liberal lawyers in the House. Mr. Sinclair remarked that the provincial treasurer could not balance his budget when the Attorney-General spent the public money to learn law.

Mr. Sinclair said that the legislature had witnessed peculiar things this session. The other day the member for West Hastings had been referred to as his store had delivered some biscuits and cheese when a celebration was on at Trenton. The members had taken no exception to this, as it was an oversight. But there was a statute which prevented members from dealing with the government, and in this statute there was an exception which allowed joint stock companies, of which a member of the House might be a shareholder, to deal with the government. Questions had been on the order paper for some days, and were recently answered showing that the member for Sault Ste. Marie and the member for Muskoka were shareholders in companies which had dealings with the government to a considerable amount of money. This drew a statement from these members on Monday, but Mr. Sinclair said he proposed to discuss these matters in spite of such statement. The public accounts showed that Geo. W. Ecclestone and Co., Limited, had dealings with the colonization roads department, with the Northern and North-Western Ontario Development Department and with the Public Roads Department totalling in all over $7,500. The public accounts also showed that Geo. W. Ecclestone had sold goods to the government to the extent of $338.80, although the Premier had said this was a misprint in the public accounts. Mr. Sinclair stated there would be a considerable profit on these transactions, and that G. W. Ecclestone and Co., Limited, had 400 shares, of which the member for Muskoka held 396. Technically speaking, there might be no offence, but the fact remained that these large deals had been made and the money had gone to the member for Muskoka, the majority shareholder in the company. It seemed unfortunate that the member for West Hastings should have to have a private bill stand on the records of the legislature forever for selling by accident some biscuits and cheese, while the member for Muskoka, a shareholder in a joint stock company, had dealings of about $8,000.

Speaks of Lyons Company.

But this was not the only offender. Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, was a shareholder in the Lyons Fuel and Supply Co. True, he had only one share, but his wife had 199 shares and Geo. W. Goodwin held 115 shares in trust so that the Lyons family had practically all the stock. Mr. Sinclair stated that Hon. James Lyons had the distribution of $5,000,000 under the recent vote for the Northern and North-Western Ontario Development Act and his company last year had dealings of over $14,000 with this department. Mr. Sinclair argued that this was highly improper and that a Minister of the Crown had no right to engage in such transactions. While the Prime Minister had referred to this matter on Monday after the statement made by the Minister, Mr. Sinclair thought that it came at a poor time and that the Minister of Lands and Forests had acted in a highly improper manner throughout the whole of his tenure of office. It must be a source of disappointment to the Minister to be asked by the Prime Minister to discontinue this practice, said the Liberal leader, because the Lyons Co. was being reorganized to carry on business on a much larger scale. Transactions like these demanded the enlargement of the public accounts book rather than curtailment, and the public should not be satisfied with any statement from the government which did not disclose in detail all payments and to whom the same were made.

AWARDED $19,893.

National Breweries Used Map on Calendar.

QUEBEC, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Reversing a recent decision of the Superior Court, the Court of Appeals, five judges division, has condemned the National Breweries, Limited, to pay the sum of $19,893 jointly to the Crown and to Alphonse Paradis, road engineer in the employ of the city of Quebec, for infringing on the latter's rights of author.

The case, which has been pending for some months, is the outcome of an action entered by the plaintiff against the brewery firm to the effect that he had drawn up and completed a map of roads finished and unfinished for his own and the benefit of the public. He claimed that the defendant company used his map on a calender that was issued after he himself had 240,000 copies printed.

It's a Fine Old Custom

In the morning upon rising—drink a dash of ENO's in a glass of water.

It's a custom that brings inner cleanliness, which is just as important from the standpoint of health, as outward cleanliness. Gently, effectively, ENO's "Fruit Salt" eliminates the poisons that clog the system and give rise to constipation, depression, liver trouble and rheumatic conditions.

But be sure it is ENO's you take each morning — the world-famed effervescent saline containing no harsh or drastic mineral salts. ENO's possesses the beneficial and refreshing qualities of fruit in concentrated and convenient form. A dash of ENO's each morning is a pleasant premium to pay for bounding health and mental vigor that it gives.

At the British Empire Exhibition, Wembley, London, you will be welcome at the ENO Kiosk, No. 1, Ringway West.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18, 1925.

SENATOR W. H. BENNETT.

In the death of Senator W. H. Bennett of Midland the Trent Waterway and the whole district bordering on it loses an eloquent and earnest advocate.

Senator Bennett had always been a firm believer in the possibilities of the Trent Canal, and never ceased to urge its completion as necessary in the interest not only of the district immediately affected but of the country as a whole.

He was enthusiastic in his endorsation of and zealous in his support of the Trent Waterway Development Association, and never lost an opportunity to be of service to the development of the district through which the waterway runs.

Senator Bennet was personally known to many Peterboro citizens, to whom the news of his death came as a shock, while many others who knew of him only by his record of service in connection with the Trent Canal and in other fields of public affairs will realize that his passing is a loss to this section of Ontario, removing as it does a man who in season and out was an outstanding supporter of every movement that had for its objective the advancement of this part of the Province.

FUEL INDEPENDENCE.

Canadians generally will approve of the efforts being made by the Federal Government to reduce Canada's dependence on the importation of United States coal for domestic and industrial purposes.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, has announced that legislation will be introduced to authorize Government assistance to the manufacture of coke in Central Canada, and also that further experiments are to be made on a large scale in the shipment of Alberta coal to Ontario and the extension of the market for Nova Scotia soft coal to points as far as Cornwall.

The Minister declared that the Government hoped that Alberta lignite will ultimately supply American anthracite in Ontario.

That hope will be echoed by every citizen of Ontario who realizes the desirability of rendering this Province independent of supplies of United States coal.

The value to Canada of keeping at home the money now sent out of this country for fuel, and of giving employment to thousands of Canadian miners and of building up business for Canada's railways, is so apparent that the Government should be sure of general support in any constructive programme that aims to bring these things about.

REMOVE SUSPICION.

The warning issued by Premier Ferguson in the Legislature that no more buying of goods or articles from a member of the House by the Government would be tolerated, is one that will be popularly received.

While it may be legal for a member of the Legislature to deal with the Government if the interest in which he is concerned is a limited company, it does not seem desirable that there should be transaction of this nature, and the Premier is right in issuing an ultimatum that so far as his Government is concerned there will be no more of them.

It is undoubtedly true that dealings of this kind, while within the law, are such as to cause suspicion to fall both upon the Government and upon the member concerned, and in the general interest it is much more satisfactory that suspicion of this kind should be avoided altogether.

Members who happen to be connected with limited companies will be expected to see, too, that these companies do not accept Government business—and if the warning is faithfully followed out public life will be freed of suspicion on this score.

There have been three or four cases reported during the present session which were obviously within the law, and yet it would have been much better from all viewpoints if such incidents had not occurred.

The Premier's ultimatum should have the desired effect.

SOME LABOR FALLACIES.

Some remarks of Mr. William Green, successor to Samuel Gompers in the presidency of the American Federation of Labor, call for passing comment, says Barron's. He says that "the trade union is thus far the most effective weapon against unemployment ever devised." He quotes reduction in the hours of labor and wage advances, and adds: "It has fostered the development of machinery." What are the plain facts? The most that can be said in the matter of preventing unemployment is that it may have done so to some extent in the case of unionized workers alone. It has fostered unemployment elsewhere. Mr. Green is, of course, a bull on his own stock. He says there must be "no wage reduction; no going back." But the record shows wage reductions where it becomes a case of work or starve.

According to the National Industrial Conference Board's figures wages rose slowly from 1840 to about 1862, with a sharp war rise to 1865 continued slowly to 1872. There was a decline from that point to 1880 in spite of the inflation produced up to 1879 by unsecured greenbacks. There was a slight rise in the next twenty years and a steady and rapid advance from 1900 to 1915. A war advance like that between 1862 and 1865 was shown up to 1920, with a sharp drop to 1922, about one-third recovered in 1923. In spite of improving business the tendency was rather downward in 1924. Of the 125 per cent. advance in wages over 1914, as a consequence of the World War, there was a reaction to 95 per cent. advance at the end of last year.

What Mr. Green says about unemployment and trade unions is flatly in the face of facts as regards Great Britain, which is far more strongly unionized than this country. The registered recipients of unemployment pay, largely unionists, were over a million and a quarter at the beginning of last year. The number is as large today, in spite of a marked improvement in trade shown in 1924. Mr. Green can hardly expect his argument to be treated seriously where he fails to formulate correctly his own major premise. What he says is mere assertion, and rather uninformed asser-

WHAT DO YOU READ?

A school superintendent of the State of Illinois recently made inquiry among high school students in his district concerning the kind of literature they read in their spare time, says the Hamilton Spectator in an editorial for young people. Of the 800 scholars to whom he addressed his inquiries, only one expressed a preference for Shakespeare, all the rest admitting they had never read him at all of their own free choice. Half the pupils confessed they never looked at any other books except those they had to study in connection with their school work; there was one who reported a liking for the poet Tennyson; two read Fenimore Cooper, two Sir Walter Scott, two Nathaniel Hawthorne, four Dickens, one Kipling and one Barrie. One-fourth of the total number—that is to say, 200—admitted they never read the daily newspapers. Probably, the majority of the remainder were interested in only that section which had to do with sports, and possibly the comics. Young people of high school age are supposed to be more sensible and wide-awake than that. Possibly, if the inquiry had been extended to some of the sensational modern productions, a different story would have been told; but if the habit of reading good literature has not been formed by the time the boys and girls have reached high school age, it is likely never to be formed at all. And that means a lifelong loss to them.

It would not be fair to judge of Hamilton's high school population by what is done—or rather left undone—by the students of Illinois. But it is not safe to assume that a similar investigation in this city would give much better results. We will hope that it would. Our splendid local library and the special efforts which are made to interest young people, both by that institution and by the educational authorities, in the best books would surely not prove so utterly barren of results. Nevertheless, it is pertinent to urge upon the young people that they should not neglect the great writers. To do so is to sacrifice one of the most satisfying of pleasures.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

The Brockville Recorder and Times has been endeavouring to do for its community what the Examiner has been seeking to accomplish here—the awakening of the public generally to the necessity of giving the Horticultural Society general support.

The following remarks from the Recorder and Times may be applied with equal force to Peterboro:

After having seen the excellence of the display made at the recent Spring Flower Show and having heard of the future plans and the past accomplishments of the Horticultural Society, we are willing to acknowledge that this organization whose activity is so pronounced, is one without which the town can ill afford to do.

Those who effected the re-organization of the Horticultural Society and who have since administered its affairs with a praiseworthy devotion to the town's interests are deserving of the very special thanks of the community. The improvements which have already been made show how much may be accomplished by dint of a little effort, and there are a great many more which might profitably be undertaken. If a grimy railroad city such as St. Thomas, in other years not particularly noted for either its cleanliness or its beauty, can be made to blossom as the rose as the result of the work of its Horticultural Society, surely the same result can be attained in a town which has always possessed these attributes and which has natural surroundings of a character with which neither St. Thomas nor any other Ontario city or town is so abundantly blessed.

It may as well be admitted that although in the main the appearance of Brockville leaves little to be desired, there are not a few rubbish-heaps and other unsightly spots within its limits which require attention and to which the Horticultural Society could appropriately devote its efforts. The people of this town have for so many years been told that they live in a community of priceless beauty and have grown so accustomed to hearing its praises rung by the visitor, that they are in danger for forgetting that even the most hardy plant will fail and ultimately die for want of attention. If rubbish heaps, rickety fences and unkempt surroundings we must have, let them be in some manner hidden.

The work done last year in the planting of embryo shade-trees was one which cannot fail to be of the greatest benefit in the years to come. Who can estimate the value of a shade-tree? A United States Congressman, who has recently been stressing the necessity of tree surgery in the preservation of such trees in town and country, spoke as follows:

"A court of law a few years ago decided a shade tree of average size adds $500 to the value of a piece of real estate. But the value of a tree cannot always be reckoned. Some trees are priceless.

"A magnificent tree stood in a field on an Ohio farm. To a friend of the farmer a man said, 'If you will arrange to buy that farm for me, I will pay $15,000 for it. I want that tree.' Before negotiations were begun the farmer cut down the tree because, by shutting the sun from a tiny patch of soil, it was costing him a few bushels of oats or wheat every year. Then the prospective purchaser wouldn't have the farm at any price. The farmer sold it for $4,500. Cutting down that tree lost him more than $10,000.

"A Chicago man had some good-sized trees moved to his property at a cost of $1,000 a tree. He knew the value of trees. He could build a costly mansion in a few months, but for all his money he could not grow a great tree spreading abroad its arms in forest beauty in fifty years."

The preservation of the shade-tree is, indeed, a responsibility of good citizenship, and the Municipal Council of last year, in co-operation with the Horticultural Society, is to be congratulated for giving the movement such splendid support. May the good work continue.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 17.—Yesterday marked a complete change in the situation at the Union Stock Yards and a sellers' market has turned into a buyers'. The change, in so far as prices are concerned, has not gone far, but today there is at least a difference of 25 cents a cwt. on butchers' cattle between this week and last. With the exporters out of the market, there were too many cattle on Monday, and only 3,335 were sold out of receipts of 3,755. Today's first receipts were not so heavy as last week, but were fully enough with 57 cars, 810 cattle, 261 calves, 1,147 hogs and 227 sheep and lambs.

Butchers' cows were an exception to the general market and were fully as firm as they have been, with choice cows at $6.25, and good cows $5 to $5.25. Some cows, thought by some to be in the canner class, sold at $4 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee took a few heifers for export to hold till next week at $7 to $7.25 a cwt. Stockers and feeders are selling better than the butchers' cattle, and a load of the latter just over 900 lbs. each and not too good quality were sold at $6.35 a cwt. With trade slow, some cattle will be carried over again today.

Receipts of calves were not as heavy as anticipated, and this held the market firmer and an odd choice calf sold at 13½ cents a pound. J. Abrams was buying for Buffalo today and medium calves were up to 10 cents a pound. Prices generally were 50 cents a cwt. higher.

Lambs were steady but buyers are not disposed to raise prices to get supplies. All the good lambs sold at 16 cent for the ewes and 14 cents for bucks. Good butcher sheep were 8 to 9 cents a pound.

Hogs are higher in Buffalo and sellers are holding out for another advance of 25 cents a cwt. this morning, making the f.o.b. quotation $12.75 a cwt. and, with a small run it looks as though this will have to be paid.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—In excited trading seldom equalled, the wheat market slid 11 cents down in a straight line today and later fell three cents beyond. The sensational drop in prices yesterday and today totalled 31 3-4 cents a bushel, and apparently marked the surrender of big speculators who have been battling to hoist wheat above $2.00 a bushel. Huge selling, asserted to include much of the heaviest individual holdings in the market, accompanied today's break in values. The close for wheat was notably unsettled, 5 to 12 cents under yesterday's finish, May 153 to 153 1-2 and July 139 3-4. Corn and oats each showed a net loss of 2 1-8 to 3 cents. Provisions closed at 10 to 25 cents advance.

Bottom prices touched today by the wheat market represented a drop of 51 cents in fifteen days, and were 54 7-8 under the season's top record, 205 7-8 on January 28. Aside from the wholesale efforts of wheat owners to put a stop to losses, the trade here was affected by a great volume of speculative selling, especially when rallies took place, and by demoralized foreign markets. Heavy arrivals of wheat at European ports and predictions that large shipments from surplus countries would continue for two months or more tended further to drag down values.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 17.—(Canadian Press).—During one of the most chaotic and nerve-racking sessions of trading experienced during normal times on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, grain prices were blasted to new low records for the present movement, under a relentless attack by bear traders.

May wheat suffered a decline of 18 cents on the extreme dip, the heaviest single-day loss recorded since the dramatic post-war sessions, the nearby future halting at the low point of $1.53 1-2. July underwent a similar fate, receding to $1.48 for a loss of 18 3-8 cents. October's extreme bulge took the future 10 1-2 cents below yesterday's closing prices. There were some reactions from the bottom, but advances were stubbornly contested until near the close, when the market recovered about three cents, with May at $1.56 1-2, 15 cents down; July $1.53 1-4, 13 1-4 cents lower, and October $1.31 1-2, six cents off.

Bottom also dropped out of the coarse grain markets, oats declining 2 5-8 cents, barley 3 1-4, flax 7 1-2 and rye 9.

Market in Turmoil.

Throughout the session the market was in a turmoil, with brokers fighting in a frantic effort to execute their orders. The selling pressure was tremendous and poured in from all quarters, it being estimated that millions of bushels of wheat were thrown back on the market.

Exporters reported some business in Manitoba's worked overnight, but the lifting of hedges against these sales was powerless to stem the break. Trades generally ignored the news.

Importers Face Ruin.

Private cables stated that importing firms on the Continent were in a state of panic, and that many were going into bankruptcy, owing to the recent drastic declines in wheat prices. The large amount of supplies in course of shipment which have been purchased by foreigners, consequently were refused by these interests, necessitating a large volume being thrown back on New York firms, which were forced to hedge these supplies on the American market.

Trade volume was very large,

Why Men Crack

When on the Highway to Success

"Sleeplessness," Doctor Kennedy tells us, "is one of the commonest signs of nervousness. Another is physical unrest. You are showing signs of nervousness when you cannot keep from twitching your eyebrows, shrugging your shoulders, swinging one foot when your legs are crossed; or when you cannot sit at a desk or table without continually tapping with the fingers."

THE warning symptoms, as outlined above, are well worth careful study because with this knowledge you can detect the indications of failing nervous energy while yet there is time to prevent serious results.

Your digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment to the nervous system.

On this account outside help is necessary, such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, before you can get back your strength and vigor.

You will not be using this restorative treatment long before you are sleeping, and resting better, appetite and digestion will improve and you find yourself well on the way to health and happiness.

Yours BIRTHDAY

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 18.—Persons born this day are noted for their fine memory. Many of their friends call them "walking encyclopedias." They have much ability, being able to grasp any situation quickly. Women born today are fond of children and make splendid mothers. They are good home managers, being very economical.

GOOD MANNERS

After the engaged couple has been toasted at dinner the young man usually says something like this in answer: "I can't make a speech and you know it. But I certainly am lucky and you know it."

Life is a gamble. The cards you catch are no good unless you watch how you play them.

EXHAUSTED WOMEN QUICKLY RESTORED

COUNTLESS thousands of women must work day after day in their homes, in offices and stores who are really unfit for their tasks. With bodies exhausted and nerves overstrained, they must get through each day by will power alone.

Such women should not be content to drag on, making their sacrifices of health, strength and even happiness. They should begin at once the upbuilding of their bodies.

Weakened bodies can quickly be restored. Amazing improvement often is shown in just a few days. Signs of returning vitality soon appear.

Wincarnis gives to wasted bodies the very elements they must have to be nourished back to vigor. For fifty years this strength giver has revivigorated weak, nervous, exhausted men and women.

If you are lacking in strength and your vital nerve force is failing, go to your druggist today, obtain a bottle of Wincarnis, and begin the safe Wincarnis treatment. Wincarnis is so effective that only three tablespoonsful a day need be taken. Try Wincarnis at once and see the difference just a few days will bring.

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

CHAPTER XVIII.

No longer, as in the days of old, did the darkness of the forests hold a fear for Baree. This night his hunt-cry had risen to the stars and the moon, and in that cry he had, for the first time, sent forth his defiance of night and space, his warning to all the wild, and his acceptance of the Brotherhood.

He ran straight into the darkness to the north and west, slinking low under the bushes, his tail drooping, his ears aslant—the wolf as the wolf runs on the night trail. The pack had swung due north, and was travelling faster than he, so that at the end of half an hour he could no longer hear it. But the lone wolf-howl to the west was nearer, and three times Baree gave answer to it.

At the end of an hour he heard the pack again, swinging southward. Pierrot would easily have understood. Their quarry had found safety beyond water, or in a lake, and the muhekuns were on a fresh trail. By this time not more than a quarter of a mile of the forest separated Baree from the lone wolf, but the lone wolf was also an old wolf, and with the directness and precision of long experience, he swerved in the direction of the hunters, compassing his trail so that he was heading for a point half or three-quarters of a mile in advance of the pack.

This was a trick of the Brotherhood which Baree had yet to learn; and the result of his ignorance, and lack of skill, was that twice within the next half-hour he found himself near to the pack without being able to join it. Then came a long and final silence. The pack had pulled down its kill, and in their feasting they made no sound.

Baree had not forgotten Nepeese. A dozen times he turned his head back and whined, and always he picked out accurately the direction in which the cabin lay. But he did not turn back. As the night lengthened, in search for that mysterious something which he had not found continued. His hunger, even with the fading-out of the moon and the coming of the gray dawn, was not sufficiently keen to make him hunt for food.

It was cold, and it seemed colder when the glow of the moon and stars died out. Under his padded feet, especially in the open spaces, was a thick white frost in which he left clearly at times the imprint of his toes and claws. He had travelled steadily for hours, a great many miles in all, and he was tired when the first light of the day came.

At last it had come—the meeting with that for which he had been seeking. It was in an open, lighted by the cold dawn—a tiny amphitheatre that lay on the side of a ridge, facing the east. With her head toward him, and waiting for him as he came out of the shadows, his scent strong in her keen nose, stood Maheegun, the young wolf.

There was not a fortnight's difference in their age and yet Maheegun was much the smaller of the two; her body was as long, but she was slimmer; she stood on slender legs that were almost like the legs of a fox, and the curve of her back was that of a slightly bent bow, a sign of swiftness almost equal to the wind.

When the sun rose, half an hour later, it found them still in the small open on the side of the ridge, with a deep fringe of forest under them, and beyond that a wide, timbered plain which looked like a ghostly shroud in its mantle of frost.

Maheegun, too, had sought the hunt-pack, and, like Baree, had failed to catch it. They were tired, a little discouraged for the time, and hungry—but still alive with the fine thrill of anticipation, and restlessly sensitive to the new and mysterious consciousness of companionship.

To the flesh-eating wild things of the forests, clawed and winged, the Big Snow was the beginning of the winter carnival of slaughter and feasting, of wild adventure in the long nights, of merciless warfare on the frozen trails. The days of breeding, of motherhood—the peace of spring and summer—were over; out of the sky came the wakening of the Northland, the call of all flesh-eating creatures to the long hunt, and in the first thrill of it living things were moving but little this night, and that watchfully and with suspicion. Youth made it all new to

"At sight of those swiftly moving gray bodies Baree's heart leaped for an instant into his throat."

Baree and Maheegun; their blood ran swiftly; their feet fell softly; their ears were attuned to catch the slightest sounds.

In this first of the Big Snow they felt the exciting pulse of a new life. It lured them on. It invited them to adventure into the white mystery of the silent storm; and inspired by that restlessness of youth and its desires, they went on.

The snow grew deeper under their feet. In the open spaces they waded through it to their knees, and it continued to fall in a vast white cloud that descended steadily out of the sky. It was near midnight when it stopped. The clouds drifted away from under the stars and the moon, and for a long time Baree and Maheegun stood without moving, looking down from the bald crest of a ridge upon a wonderful world.

An hour after they entered the plain there came suddenly out of the west the tonguing of the wolf-pack. It was not far distant, probably not more than a mile along the foot of the ridge, and the sharp, quick yapping that followed the first outburst was evidence that the long-fanged hunters had put up sudden game, a caribou or young moose, and were close at its heels. At the voice of her own people Maheegun laid her ears close to her head and was off like an arrow from a bow.

The unexpectedness of her movement and the swiftness of her flight put Baree well behind her in the race over the plain. She was running blindly, favored by luck. For an interval of perhaps five minutes the pack were so near to their game that they made no sound, and the chase swung full into the face of Maheegun and Baree. The latter was not half a dozen lengths behind the young wolf when a crashing in the brush directly ahead stopped them so sharply that they tore up the snow with their braced forefeet and squat haunches. Ten seconds later a caribou burst through and flashed across an open not more than twenty yards from where they stood. They could hear its swift panting as it disappeared. And then came the pack.

At sight of those swiftly moving gray bodies Baree's heart leaped for an instant into his throat. He forgot Maheegun and that she had run away from him. The moon and the stars went out of existence for him. He no longer sensed the chill of the snow under his feet. He was wolf—all wolf. With the warm scent of the caribou in his nostrils, and the passion to kill sweeping through him like fire, he darted after the pack.

It was as if Baree had belonged to the pack always. He had joined it naturally, as other stray wolves had joined it from out of the bush; there had been no ostentation, no welcome such as Maheegun had given him in the open, and no hostility. He belonged with these slim, swift-footed outlaws of the old forests, and his own jaws snapped and his blood ran hot as the smell of the caribou grew heavier and the sound of its crashing body nearer.

It seemed to him they were almost at its heel when they swept into an open plain, a stretch of barren without a tree or a shrub, brilliant in the light of the stars and moon. Across its unbroken carpet of snow sped the caribou a spare hundred yards ahead of the pack. Now the two leading hunters no longer followed directly in the trail, but shot out at an angle, one to the right and the other to the left of the pursued, and like well-trained soldiers the pack split in halves and spread out fan-shape in the final charge.

The two ends of the fan forged ahead and closed in, until the leaders were running almost abreast of the caribou, with fifty or sixty feet separating them from the pursued. Thus, adroitly and swiftly, with deadly precision, the pack had formed a horseshoe cordon of fangs from which there was but one course of flight—straight ahead.

Baree had found his place in the lower rim of the horseshoe, so that he was fairly well in the rear when the climax came. The plain made a sudden dip. Straight ahead was the gleam of water—water shimmering softly in the starglow, and the sight of it sent a final great spurt of blood through the caribou's bursting heart. Forty seconds would tell the story—forty seconds of a last spurt for life, of a final tremendous effort to escape death. Baree felt the sudden thrill of these moments, and he forged ahead with the others in that lower rim of the horseshoe as one of the leading wolves made a lunge for the young bull's ham-string. It was a clean miss. A second wolf darted in. And this one also missed.

There was no time for others to take their place. From the broken end of the horseshoe Baree heard the caribou's heavy plunge into water. When Baree joined the pack, a maddening, mouth-frothing, snarling horde, Napamoos, the young bull, was well out in the river and swimming steadily for the opposite shore.

The restless movements of the waters ceased now. A new and wonderful interest held them rigid. Fangs closed sharply. A little in the open Baree saw Maheegun, with a big gray wolf standing near her. He went to her again, and this time she remained with flattened ears until he was sniffing her neck. And then, with a vicious snarl, she snapped at him. Her teeth sank deep in the soft flesh of his shoulder, and at the unexpectedness and pain of her attack, he let out a yelp. The next instant the big gray wolf was at him.

Again caught unexpectedly, Baree went down with the wolf's fangs at his throat. But in him was the blood of Kazan, the flesh and bone and sinew of Kazan, and for the first time in his life he fought as Kazan fought on that terrible day at the top of the Sun Rock.

That fight, if it had been fair, would have been a victory for Baree, even in his youth and inexperience. In fairness the pack should have waited; it was a law of the pack to wait—until one was done for. But Baree was black; he was a stranger, an interloper, a creature whom they noticed now in a moment when their blood was hot with the rage and disappointment of killers who had missed their prey. A second wolf sprang in, striking Baree treacherously from the flank; and while he was in the snow, his jaws crushing the foreleg of his first foe, the pack was on him en masse.

Such an attack on the young caribou bull would have meant death in less than a minute. Every fang would have found its hold. Baree, by the fortunate circumstance that he was under his first two assailants and protected by their bodies, was saved from being torn instantly into pieces. He knew that he was fighting for his life. Over him the horde of beasts rolled and twisted and snarled; he felt the burning pain of teeth sinking into his flesh; he was smothered; a hundred knives seemed cutting him into pieces; yet no sound—not a whimper or a cry—came from him now in the horror and hopelessness of it all.

It would have ended in another half-minute had the struggle not been at the very edge of the bank. Undermined by the erosion of the spring floods, a section of this bank suddenly gave way, and with it went Baree and half the pack. In a flash Baree thought of the water and the escaping caribou. For a bare instant the cave-in had set him free of the pack, and in that space he gave a single leap over the gray backs of his enemies into the deep water of the stream. Close behind him half a dozen jaws snapped shut on empty air. As it had saved the caribou, so this strip of water shimmering in the glow of the moon and stars had saved Baree.

The stream was not more than a hundred feet in width, but it cost Baree close to a losing struggle to get across it. Until he dragged himself out on the opposite shore, the extent of his injuries was not impressed upon him fully. One hind leg, for the time, was useless; his forward left shoulder was laid open to the bone; his head and body were torn and cut; and as he dragged himself slowly away from the stream, the trail he left in the snow was a red path of blood. It trickled from his panting jaws, between which his tongue was bleeding; it ran down his legs and flanks and belly, and it dripped from his ears, one of which was slit clean for two inches as though cut with a knife. His instincts were dazed, his perception of things clouded as if by a veil drawn close over his eyes.

He did not hear, a few minutes later, the howling of the disappointed wolf-horde on the other side of the river, and he no longer sensed the existence of moon or stars. Half dead, he dragged himself on until by chance he came to a clump of dwarf spruce. Into this he struggled, and then dropped exhausted.

All that night and until noon the next day, Baree lay without moving. The fever burned in his blood; it flammed high and swift toward death; then it ebbed slowly, and life conquered. At noon he came forth. He was weak and he wobbled on his legs. His hind leg still dragged, and he was racked with pain.

Husband And Wife In Separate Pulpits

EASTPORT, Me., March 18. — (United Press).—The Rev. T. J. Winslade, and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Winslade, of Eastport, enjoy the unique distinction of filling separate pastorates in different denominations in the same city. While Rev. Winslade fills his regular pulpit at the Washington Street Baptist Church, Mrs. Winslade performs an equal service in the Central Congregational Church on Middle street. But Mrs. Winslade goes the reverend husband one better. She still continues to conduct a Sunday school in the Baptist Church.

PERTH LEAD MINES SOLD TO SYNDICATE

Boston Financiers to Spend $600,000 on the Property.

KINGSTON, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—The lead mines on the Perth road, owned by the North America Smelting Company, have been sold to a syndicate of Boston, Mass., financiers, who have already twelve men at work on the plant preparing for substantial and drastic improvements, and who expect to spend at least $600,000 on the mines during the next two or three years.

The plant on the Perth road has been practically idle during the last ten years, and the first action of the new owners will be to install the latest modern equipment and machinery at the mines, and they intend to spend between forty and sixty thousand dollars for this purpose, almost immediately.

The property is considered as most valuable by the purchasers, carrying as it does an eighteen-foot vein through almost the centre of the mines, and running as far as any survey has yet been made. The ore in the vein, while not of a very high grade, is such as to justify expectations of reasonable profits when worked with modern equipment, and the purchasers of the property are evidently determined that bygone methods shall not handicap them in their venture.

All skinny men and women

Can grow stronger, healthier and more vigorous and take on solid needed flesh in 30 days just by taking McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets four times a day—as easy to take as candy.

And what a hit these flesh producing tablets have made. One druggist tripled his sales in one week.

Everybody knows that nasty-tasting, evil-smelling Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful vitalizer, flesh producer and health creator.

But who wants to swallow the horrible stuff, when these wonderful tablets—McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, are just as good and so easy to take.

A box of 60 tablets for 60 cents and if any skinny man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days—money back. Ask Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, or any good druggists anywhere in America.

Be sure to get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and don't forget there is nothing on earth so good to make backward, listless, underweight children grow strong and robust.

MAID BURNED PUTTING OUT FIRE IN LAUNDRY

Clothing Near Stove in Kitchen Caught Fire.

CHATHAM, March 18—(Canadian Press).—Miss Keller, a maid employed by Mrs. W. A. Hadley, suffered bad burns about the face and arms Tuesday morning in successfully beating out a fire which developed in the laundry of the residence. Several articles of clothing hanging near a stove caught fire and a serious blaze was threatened. The maid, oblivious to danger, stuck to the task of beating out the flames until they were controlled, but in doing so her clothing ignited. Mrs. Hadley was successful in smothering the fire which enveloped the girl.

NEW LEGISLATION ON SOLDIERS' PENSIONS

Beland Delayed by Representations of Ex-Service Men.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19 (Canadian Press).—New legislation in regard to soldiers' pensions, promised some three weeks ago will be brought down soon—perhaps this week, Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Soldiers' Re-establishment, stated in the House Tuesday.

Brigadier General J. A. Clark (Conservative, Burrard), had asked the reason for the delay. Dr. Beland explained that a delegation from the ex-service men had made an appointment with him for last Friday, when they presented their views. He had since been working very hard, to complete the bill, and hoped to bring it down soon.

In answer to a question from Col. James Arthurs (Conservative, Parry Sound), Dr. Beland said that there were no very material changes in the bill from the recommendation of last year's committee on re-establishment.

INTERIM SUPPLY BILL PASSED BY COMMONS

Sir Henry Drayton Says Opposition Will Not Impede Government.

OTTAWA, March 17—An interim supply bill for $39,409,846, being one-sixth of the total estimates now before the House of Commons, was put through all stages in a few minutes when the House met Tuesday.

Sir Henry Drayton, in agreeing to the passage of the bill, stated that the arrangement was entered into so that the Government could carry on the business of the country. In the past, there had been opposition which opposed the granting of interim supply and did their best to impede the Government in getting the money to carry on the necessary services. This was not the attitude of the Opposition today. The supply, however, was granted on the usual conditions. These were that, that no member of the House was committed to any item whatever in the estimates, but all were open to discussion from every point of view.

NAVIGATION ON LOWER ST. LAWRENCE IS OPEN

"Pride of the Fleet" Braves Heavy Ice Floes.

QUEBEC, March 18.—To a hardy mariner of Bersimis, a few miles below Quebec, on the North shore, goes the honor of officially opening navigation for the 1925 season below this port. His vessel, appropriately named "The Pride of the Fleet," set sail at an early hour Tuesday for Franklin, on the North shore, and Matane, a port about opposite on the South shore.

This is the earliest in some years that such a venture has been made. It is considered all the more remarkable because of the immense floes of ice which are hourly drifting down from the upper reaches of the St. Lawrence, and which are not even despised by the ice breakers whose business it is to bock them.

S. S. CHILDS DEAD.

Founder of Famous Chain of Restaurants.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Samuel S. Childs, president of the Child's Company, operators of a chain of restaurants, died Tuesday in a local sanitarium.

Mr. Childs was born in Basking Ridge, N.J., April 4, 1863. After working for two years as a civil engineer on railroads, he accepted, in 1887, a position in a restaurant, and later founded, with his brother, William, a chain of restaurants in various sections of Canada and the United States.

PROSPECTORS MENACED.

Working Their Claims in the Rouyn Gold Field.

QUEBEC, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Claiming that unscrupulous persons are menacing their property, and even their lives at times, a number of prospectors who have been working their claims in the gold fields in the Rouyn and surrounding districts and who have recently returned to Quebec, have made a representation to the Provincial Police to get protection in future.

Provincial Detectives Begin and Tobin were despatched to the north country to investigate.

HER 27TH CHILD.

Eleven of German Mother's Other Offspring Living.

DESSAU, Germany, March 18. — (Canadian Press).—All records for Germany were topped here Monday when Frau Becker, wife of a manual laborer, bore her twenty-seventh child, a healthy boy. Eleven of the other boys and girls are still living, among them several pairs of twins.

On the same night of the arrival of the latest addition to the family, his eldest married sister, Anna, gave birth to twin girls.

Frau Becker is 47 years old and her husband 48.

THREE CALVES BORN.

CHATHAM, Ont., March 18. — (Canadian Press). — Triplets were born Tuesday to a Holstein cow owned by W. M. Fleming, well-known Chatham Township farmer. One of the calves died, but the two are thriving and are fine specimens, according to opinions of breeders. The Holstein performance is said to be a record for Kent County.

MARRIAGE ANNULLED.

Montreal Woman Forced Into Union by Parents.

MONTREAL, March 18.—Affirming that she had been forced into a marriage by threats, scoldings and the nagging of her parents, and that her consent to the ceremony was not voluntary given, Sarah Vineberg yesterday had her marriage with Joseph Kogon, performed in 1921, declared null and void by Mr. Joseph Demers, in the Superior Court.

Miss Vineberg also complained that J. H. Judelsohn, who performed the ceremony, was not competent to do so. The marriage took place without the publications of banns and without any dispensation. After hearing the plaintiff's accusations, the judge said that she had established her contentions and straightway annulled the marriage.

Do you know that Bon Ami comes in two forms—cake and powder? Both are made from the same ingredients—both have the same wonderful gift of cleaning and polishing without scratching.

For some purposes you'll want the Bon Ami powder in its handy, sifter-top tin—it's so easy to shake out on a damp cloth. For other uses you'll prefer the solid Bon Ami cake that you can rub on the cloth like soap.

Most housewives keep both the cake and powder always on hand. These two "partners in cleanliness" are unequalled for cleaning and polishing all the things listed at the right.

IS WORLD BETTER ASKS A PREACHER

Rev. F. G. Weir Preaches on Timely Subject at Warsaw.

WARSAW, March 18.—On Sunday evening Rev. F. G. Weir preached a most interesting and instructive sermon on "Is the world growing better or worse?" taking fo his text, Eccles VII-10, "Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this." Mr. Weir took up the question because so many, not so far away are considering the question; some lightly, and some deeply. Several times during the sermon he emphasized that, no matter what may come or what evil we may think may happen, the thing for us to do, is to live and do right, and so do our part to keep things from growing worse.

True, the Bible does not in so many words say whether the world is growing worse or better, but it is wise for us to do our part to try to make it better. Some really devout Christians, consider the gloomy side and some who are not Christians take the bright side. It is like two men each one trying to prove he is better than the other; each thinks of all the vices of the other and of all the good of himself. A few examples of former times given were: The day of Penticost, almost two thousand years ago. There were a few people who were very good, but the great mass of people of the world knew nothing of God and led very wicked lives, even the so-called civilized people. We might take the time of William the Conqueror. He was a devout Christian, but he could, and did destroy whole tracts of land, with the homes thereon just for a hunting ground. He could destroy a whole town because some one from that town spoke slightingly of his parentage. The great mass of people were ignorant and were treated with no consideration. The over-lords dictated what they had to do. Coming down later to about 100 years ago, the Duke of Wellington could say that the rich should rule, as they hold the property. Children, even at five years of age, could be taken, and made work sixteen hours a day in factories; the children slept in beds, that were never cold, as one shift got in when another got out. The former time, while they certainly had much good, when examined did not appear to be any better.

But whatever may or may not happen, it is for each one to do his or her best to make the world better, to put more brightness, more hope, more Christianity into the world.

Womens Institute.

On Thursday evening, the Woman't Institute held their annual open meeting. Rev. F. G. Weir occupied the chair. The feature of the evening was an adderss by Rev. W. Atkinson on "Little Things That Make Life Beautiful." Mr. Atkinson began by showing that little things had very much to do in the making of history. Great events grew out of little things. For long there were certain writings no one could understand. The finding of the Rosetta Stone gave the key. The story of the widow's mite has been handed down to us since the time of Christ. The best lives are those lived modestly, with care for minor details.

Sometimes a young woman may marry a very wise man, who forgets the little kindnesses of life and the home is unhappy; for, after all, happiness in the home does not depend so much on the great things as on little actions—a smile, a thank you. A song is a small thing, but it may brighten a whole day. The esteem of worthy people, the love and caresses of the home bring joy.

The Coral Islands are made of multitudes of insects. God was not in the rushing wind, not in the earthquake, but in the still, small voice.

Little things are often bad, little sins, little evil thoughts or words, or deeds, undermine character of individuals, and national life is marred by the infelicities.

Great cities have gone out by small vices. Typhoid fever is often contracted by drinking a little infected water.

Great reforms have often been started by obscure lives.

Our great opportunities in life are the little things at hand. God's little things which He has given us a chance to do every day. Just little words, little attiudes, little thoughtful deeds, these are the things that bring brightness into life.

Mr. Fred Crowe gave a reading, Mrs. George Taylor an instrumental, and Mr. Weir two solos.

There was a spelling match and light refreshments were served.

Personal.

Mrs. T. A. Crowe and Mrs. Gordon Payne spent a few days in Norwood last week.

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

IN CONSTIPATION, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

CHURCH AFFAIRS COBOURG SECTOR

New Pastors In Some Churches—Others Vote on Church Union.

COBOURG, aMrch 17. — The services at the Cobourg Baptist church were of a special character on Sunday.

The auditorium has been extensively redecorated and improved, the roof of the edifice has been shingled and other improvements made, and the reopening services took place. Rev. Mr. Schutt, Toronto, was the special preacher for the day. Rev. J. N. Norton is pastor of the church. There were excellent sermons at both services and special music.

On Monday evening a congregational and social gathering further marked the re-opening of the church.

Rev. Bremner Supplying

Rev. W. A. Bremner, former pastor of St. Andrew's church here, is supplying at the United church. Rev. R. F. Stillman, because of illness in the family is unable to take his work. The congregation here has been considerably augumented and a number of Unionist choristers have joined the choir. Very helpful services are being held.

At St. Peter's.

Rev. Dr. Boyle took his second Sunday's services at St. Peter's church. A fluent cultured speaker and a man of fine presence, he is already becoming popular and highly esteemed both with his congregation and with citizens of the town generally.

The Presbyterian Churches.

The Presbyterian Board is continuing to supply the pulpits of the churches in its locality that are remaining Presbyterian. On Sunday Rev. T. W. Goodwill, Toronto, again took the services at St. Andrew's church here. Rev. Mr. McConnachie, Toronto, preached at St. Paul's church, Port Hope.

Voting On Church Union.

The vote as to wether Roseneath Presbyterian congregation will join the United church or not is being taken at present in the village. The Bethseda church (Harwood), is the Associated charge with Roseneath and Rev. T. McCord is pastor.

Rev. Wilson at Colborne.

Educational sermons were preached at Colborne on Sunday, where Rev. S. C. Moore, a former Peterboro pastor is in charge, by Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, B.A., B.D., Brighton, president of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference. Mr. Wilson was heard with much pleasure and profit.

Invited to Remain.

The congregation of Colborne Methodist church has extended a most cordial invitation to Rev. S. C. Moore to remain in his present charge for another year.

A PRESENTATION

Miss McConnachie Leaves Bank of Toronto at Millbrook.

On Saturday, Miss McConnachie took leave of the Bank of Toronto, Millbrook, where she has served for eight years, latterly as teller. During the week she was made the recipient of many gifts and good wishes. The bank staff presented her with a beautiful cut glass berry bowl, along with the following letter of appreciation.

The Bank of Toronto
Millbrook, Ont.
March 14, 1925

To Miss Annie McConnachie:

Dear Miss McConnachie,—We, the members of the staff, together with Mr. A. A. Smith, the bank's solicitor, take this opportunity before you leave us to take up the true woman's sphere of life, to show to some extent, our appreciation of your kindly and friendly manner, not only to ourselves, as your fellow-workers, but also to the bank's clients and others who came into the office.

We most sincerely trust that you will have the best of all that could be desired, with a long, happy and prosperous life ahead of you.

Kindly accept this as a token of our esteem and regard for you.

With ever the best of wishes, we remain always,

Yours most sincerely,

H. J. Grasett, A. A. Smith, E. H. Barnes, R. W. Hutchison, A. G. Reynolds, A. H. Armstrong.

FORD TRIES AGAIN.

Detroit Financier Wants to Oust Shareholders in His Railroad.

NEW YORK, March 17.—(Canadian Press).—Henry Ford, according to a story printed in the New York Herald Tribune this morning, is to re-attempt the ousting of a determined little group of security holders who remain in partnership with him in his railroad enterprise, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway.

Three years ago Ford was prevented by an adverse decision of the Inter-State Commerce Commission from securing complete control of the D., T. & I. Road.

The Detroit financier's latest plans, according to the Herald Tribune, call for an outright sale of the D., T. & I.

HIS HEAD GASHED BY CIRCULAR SAW

John C. O'Brien, of Douro, Escaped Serious Injury.

DOURO, March 18.—There is much activity recently at the sawmill of Mr. Richard Tedford, near the Burns bridge. Many logs have been drawn in by the farmers and sawing of lumber commenced last week. Mr. Tedford's son, a lad in his early 'teens, was unfortunate enough to have his finger injured by the saw one day last week.

What might have been a fatal accident occurred last week while sawing operations were in progress on the farm of Hayes and Farley. A drag-saw was being usgd and Mr. John C. O'Brien was throwing the sawn blocks away from the saw, when seemingly forgetting where he was for an instant, he raised his head too farm, but at the same time stepped backward, which latter fact probably saved his life. As it was he was thrown to the ground and received quite a gash in his head. The other men present received quite a shock, as they thought for a few moments that Mr. O'Brien was seriously injured or killed.

A large amount of shingle bolts has been piled at the mill of Mr. Ross Staples to be cut into shingles during the summer.

Personal Notes.

Mrs. Daniel Corkery of Otonabee spent a few days with her brother, Mr. Michael McManus, recently.

Mr. T. Fitzgerald of Toronto was a recent week-end visitor with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald.

Rev. Fr. Leahy of the Guelph College spent a few days with his aged mother and other members of the family last week. Mrs. Leahy is far advanced in years and has not been well all winter.

Miss F. McAuliffe, R.N., of Peterboro was a week-end visitor with Miss Adeline Torpey.

Rev. J. J. Garvey of Lakefield visited his parents one day last week.

Mrs. Edward Sullivan has been visiting Lakefield and Peterboro friends for the last week.

Mrs. P. G. Towns, who underwent an operation one day last week at St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro, is making satisfactory progress.

Mrs. Coughlin of Lakefield, a very aged lady who died in Peterboro this morning, was one of Douro's pioneers and has relatives here.

Married in Cobalt.

Word has come to friends here of the marriage of Miss Mary (Mollie) Mahoney, formerly of Douro, but now of Cobalt, to Mr. J. D. Muirhead of that place, the marriage taking place some three weeks ago. Miss Mahoney was a popular young lady and best wishes are extended to her.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Allen and children of Peterboro were Sunday visitors with friends here.

Miss K. Gourlay of Peterboro is visiting Mrs. James Collins.

Miss Alice Fitzgerald of Peterboro was a week-end visitor at her home here.

Mrs. Richard Sheehan, Jr., spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Austin Hogan of Norwood.

Mr. Phillip Mahoney left for Toronto last week after a few weeks' visit at his home here.

HYDRO CONTEMPLATING POWER DEVELOPMENT ON CROWE RIVER 12 MILES FROM CAMPBELLFORD

Negotiations Under Way For Dam and Power House at Allan's Mills.

DRAINS TWO LAKES.

Belmont Canal, Planned Several Years Ago, May Be Undertaken This Year.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18.—The Hydro is planning further extensions in this district now that there have been completed the two power houses down the Trent River from Campbellford. The latest proposition is the erection of a dam and power house at Allan's Mills which are situated on Crowe River about 12 miles from here. The survey has been completed and Hydro officials have made Mr. Allan an offer for his property.

Crowe River drains both Crowe and Belmont Lakes, and enters the Trent River at Crowe Bay, a short distance from Campbellford.

Allan's Mills, where both lumber and flour are manufactured and which are driven by water power, are situated in a valley. The survey made by the Hydro engineers calls for the erection of a dam just below the bridge, which spans the river at that point. The river there is about 100 yards in width at ordinary water level but the banks are high on each side and a tremendous reservoir of water could be secured, water that would indundate the low land for miles upstream and which would entail a heavy outlay for damages. An idea of the extent of the undertaking may be gathered from the fact that Mr. Allan's residence which stands on high land about 300 feet from the low water mark of the river, would be submerged if the dam as at present planned is put in. Part of the negotiations between Mr. Allan and the Hydro officials have to do with the problem and the prospective purchasers agree to move the residence, which is a handsome and commodious frame structure, to a point which has already been surveyed farther up the hill.

The Belmont Canal.

Over a year ago it was announced in The Examiner that the Hydro engineers had made a survey for a canal to connect Belmont Lake with the Trent River at a point near Healey Falls. The distance to be traversed was seven miles or more. A new dam was to be built to conserve the supply of water in Belmont Lake, this supply to be turned would arise in the event of an unwould arise in the even of an unusually dry season.

As Crowe River drains Belmont Lake, a dam at Allan Mills would do away with the necessity of the canal referred to.

It is impossible to get from the resident Hydro officials any definite idea of the plans of the Commission, if for no other reason than that the former are as much in the dark on that score as are the public. When Hyro surveyors come to this vicinity to carry on operation, and purchasing agents arrive to make offer for property, it is impossible for them to cover up their tracks. The Examiner representative visited Allan's Mill Tuesday afternoon, and after interviewing several parties interested, explains the situation as it exists today

Delora Interested.

The Hydro is not alone with plans for electrical development on Crowe River. The huge refining plant at Delora calls for a vast amount of power which is secured from the Hydro, the contract calling for a maximum of 900 horse-power. The Delora company have been for some time ambitious to own their own electrical plant, and the location they have in mind is at Callahan Rapids, about three miles up Crowe River from Allan's Mills. The necessary survey has been made and plans prepared for a dam and power house. If, however, the Hydro built the dam as proposed at Allan's Mills, the location of the Delora company would be drowned out. A resident of that vicinity stated yesterday that if the Hydro does not take quick action at Allan's Mills, it is possible that the Delora people will step in and forestall their rivals by purchasing the location at the former point.

If the building of a dam and power house, or of the dam alone is undertaken, it will involve a heavy outlay, and will provide work for a small army of men. Wage earners in Campbellford would be benefitted as the scene of operations would not be too far away to permit residents of this town from going to and from work every day by auto. Then, too, boarding houses would be provided at the works.

Local Outlay.

It is estimated that the two new plants which the Hydro has put in during the past two years in this district—the one at Dam 8 and the other at Dam 9, represent an outlay of over two million dollars. The contract price for the tail race at the latter place was a quarter of a million. Campbellford men, workers and merchants benefitted by this expenditure, and further extensions will have the same local effect. The power plant at No. 9, the first built, is now running steadily, adding to the electrical energy of Central Ontario. In the other, the machinery has been put in and two of the three units are in operation.

The steady development of electrical power in this district as well as the prospective extensions, is likely to renew the agitation in favor of the removal of the Eastern Ontario Hydro office from Belleville to Campbellford, the latter being the central point in the system.

Automobile Chances

There are many of them for the carefully planning, prospective purchaser who takes advantage of the Want Columns in the Examiner.

What makes appeals to you most—would you like to get some particular style or kind of auto at a special price? Would you like to pick up a second-hand or a re-built car at a sacrifice price?

See what the Wants can do for you in accomplishing any of these automobile desires.

You may keep in close touch with automobile owners who will be interested in a chance to trade or sell their cars if you make the fact known through the Want Columns of The Examiner.

SOME NEW SEWERS FOR CAMPBELLFORD

Council Passes By-laws Providing For Construction of Several

TRUNK SEWERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18. — At a special session of the council the necessary bylaws were passed to provide for the construction of the following sewers:

On Canrobert street, from Sebastopol to Garry street.

On Tice street, from a point opposite the Methodist church to the manhole near the government core wall at the bridge.

On Market street and Oliver Road from the intersection of Rannie and Market streets, to a point 100 feet west of Cromwell street.

The Oliver road sewer will extend from the intersection of that thoroughfare and Market street to a point opposite lot 157.

These sewers will be constructed by day labor under the supervision of Street Foreman Fox, who has proved so efficient in this line of duty during the past two seasons. Work will begin as soon as the season opens. When these improvements have been finished Campbellford will have an up to date sewerage system and the councils of succeeding years will be in a position to take up the problem of modern street paving.

The question of a proposed trunk sewer on Second street was informally discussed but no decision was arrived at. The main issue is how to distribute the cost of such a sewer among the adjacent as well as the adjoining property owners, as the former are benefited by the improvement.

News Notes.

Rev. R. J. Wilson of Finch, near Ottawa, will preach in St. Andrew's church on Sunday next. This is the first candidate for a call to be heard by the congregation since the resignation of Rev. C. F. McIntosh. Rev. D. A Thomas of Hastings, clerk of the Peterboro Presbytery, is interim moderator

Receipts were $10.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Church, realized the sum of $100.00 at their tea and sale of home cooking. All the ladies of the congregation responded generously to the request for donations. The following programme was rendered:

Piano solo, Mrs. John Storie; reading, Miss Lillian Hay; piano solo, Mrs. F. de F. Free; solo, Miss Jean Anderson; solo, Miss Hazel Atkinson. piano solo, Miss Dorothy Ackerman; reading, Miss Gurley; solo, Miss F. De Carroll.

In Memory of St. Patrick.

The usual 9 o'clock service was held at St. Mary's church yesterday in memory of St. Patrick. Rev. Father Phelan delivered a brief address to a large congregation.

Walter Phelan, famous as a lacrosse player in Peterborough in former days, is the guest of his brother, Rev. Father Phelan, at the presbytery.

St. Patrick's Day Dance.

The Regent Theatre, bright with colored lights and decorations, was thronged with a gay assemblage last night, the occasion being the St. Patrick's Day dance given by Capt. Hyland to his patrons. The captain has held these entertainments at intervals during the winter, as a variation from the usual picture programme, and they have never failed to attract a crowd. Last night's function was by common consent voted the best social event so far this season. Herb. Leonard's orchestra furnished the music and the programme consisted of round and square dances, the floor being constantly occupied unitl the gathering broke up at 1.30 a.m. Each guest on entering the theatre was presented with a shamrock as a souvenir.

The theatre has been equipped with a new curtain, handsomely flowered, and when aranged for dancing makes the most spacious and attractive ballroom in town.

If Food Causes Stomach Trouble

If Bloating, Gassiness, Heartburn, Sour Stomach or Such Distresses Follow Meals be Sure to Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A good appetite for the savory dishes, come what may, or as they say, "from soup to nuts," is one of life's chief enjoyments. Then, on the other hand, stomach distress afterward is one of life's chief disappointments. To enjoy eating and feel perfectly safe one should follow meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They aid digestion, they stop sour fermentation, they take up the sour risings and gassiness, they sweeten the stomach by giving it the alkaline effect and they also stimulate secretions in the stomach and intestines.

Thus, whether you eat pork and beans, sausage and buckwheat cakes, mince pie and cheese, or the foods that most people complain of making the stomach uneasy and sour, you experience that happy state of enjoyable, solid comfort.

AN INACTIVE LIVER IS THE CAUSE OF CONSTIPATION

When your liver gets sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers.

Your bowels become constipated; you have sick and bilious headaches; your tongue coated and furry; your breath bad; specks float before your eyes, and often you feel as if you were going to faint, especially if in a crowded place where there is little or no ventilation.

When in this condition there is only one thing to do, and that is to take

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

They will stimulate the sluggish liver so that it will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, and thus clear away all the poisonous matter that is responsible for all your liver troubles.

SALESMAN GASSED.

Entered Room Where Gas Was Being Used to Fumigate.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Allan, Scott of Hamilton, salesman for the Johns-Manville Roofing Co., met instant death by being gassed on the steamer Berryston, lying in the harbor here, yesterday afternoon.

Scott entered the chief engineer's room, apparently to visit that official. The room was being fumigated, and the powerful Hydro acid gas fumes caused instant death. The body was removed to the Morgue, where an inquest will be opened. Scott was well-known about Port Colborne.

Dog Awakes Family Then Dies in Fire

PEMBROKE, March 18. — (Canadian Press). — Aroused from sleep by the barking of their dog, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Burgoin escaped with their four children from their burning home early this morning. The charred body of the little dog was later found in the ruins.

QUEBEC BEGINS BUILDING YEAR WITH BIG GAINS

Increase of 214 Per Cent. In Permits Issued During February.

DOMINION AHEAD.

Ontario Only Province Reporting Decline in Permits for January.

OTTAWA, March 18 (Canadian Press).—According to reports tabulated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the value of the building permits issued in 60 cities increased from $5,433,204 in January to $5,781,842 in February, a gain of $348,438 or 6.4 per cent.

In February, 1924, the building authorized was valued at $4,027,780; there was, therefore, an increase in the month under review, of $1,753,862 or 43.5 per cent in this more significant comparison.

Some 47 cities furnished detailed statements, showing that they had issued nearly 600 permits for dwellings estimated to cost $2,800,000. And for approximately 900 other buildings valued at more than $2,800,000.

As compared with January, 1925, there were increases in the building permits issued in all provinces except Ontario, where there was a decline of $900,494 or 31.4 per cent. Quebec showed the greatest actual gain of $733,978, or 46.5 per cent, but the proportional increases in Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia were larger.

February Figures.

Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Ontario and Alberta registered reductions as compared with February, 1924; Nova Scotia showed the most pronounced loss of $150,685 or 82.1 per cent of the increase recorded elsewhere; that in New Brunswick of $31,700 or 823.4 per cent. was proportionately the largest, while Quebec reported the greatest actual gain of $1,575,903 or 214.1 per cent.

The aggregate value of estimated building in 60 cities during the first two months of this year was $11,214,846, as compared with $8,481,899, and $9,813,909 in the same two months of 1924, and 1923, respectively; there was, therefore, an increase of 32.2 per cent. in the former, and of 14.3 in the latter comparison.

OPERATE ON GIRL'S LUNG.

St. Louis Surgeons Remove Abscess Caused by Blade of Grass.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 18. — "Jimmie" English, an eleven-year-old San Antonio, Texas, girl, was operated upon at Barnes Hospital here Monday to remove a dangerous lung abscess caused by swallowing a blade of grass four years ago. An incision was made in the left side and the abscess cauterized.

The patient appeared cheerful after the operation and seemed to be getting along all right. Physicians said it might be weeks before the ultimate success of the operation could be determined.

"Jimmie" was brought here for treatment after a San Antonio newspaper had raised an expense fund of $1,000.

Conquers Bad Breath and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

CHILDREN MUST HELP PARENTS

Campbellford Council Advised by Solicitor—When Children Have Means.

LAW OF 1921.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18. — That children of means can be compelled by law to support their parents who would otherwise become public charges is a fact that appears to be little known among the general public. Town Solicitor Lynch has called the attention of Council to a statute to this effect, the existenece of which had not been expected. The prospect of a test-case being made by a local affair vanishes as the childern of the indigent parent in question have agreed to provide for her after a request to that effect had been made by the municipality.

An aged lady who was receiving aid from the town has two married daughters in good circumstances, living in Toronto, and at the request of Deputy Reeve Palliser, chairman of the charity committee, Town Clerk McGregor wrote to the daughters informing them of the straits to which their mother had been reduced and offering, on behalf of the town, that her fare would be paid to Toronto, if the daughters would undertake to provide for her after arrival.

This communication was never answered but it seems that the daughters wrote direct to the mother offering her a home and she will be sent to that city.

Lww Passed in 1921.

The law with regard to the care of indigent parents, was passed by the U. F. O. government in 1921. It defines a dependent parent as a person unable to maintain himself or herself. If such person has children of age and possessed of means, he or she can, with the consent of the Crown Attorney, have such child or children summoned before the police magistrate who will investigate. The children can be made to contribute to the support of such indigents, up to a maximum of $20.00 a week, according to their means.

Now that the existence of such a statute is known, it is likely to be applied her in every case in which the circumstnces jusify legal action. Fortunately, however, the number of charity cases in Campbellford is exceedingly small.

SAYS ROTHERMERE 'FEARS BOYS' TEST

W. G. Clove Challenges Wealthy Publisher With Cowardice for Refusing.

LONDON, March 18 (United Press).—W. G. Cove, Laborite member of Parliament, has written to Lord Rothermere charging the wealthy British publisher with cowardice for refusing to take the intelligence test that was to have decided whether an old man's mentality was equal to that of a 14-year-old boy.

In his latest caustic letter, the former miner and school teacher says Lord Rothermere has not the courage to "enter the examination room without the protection of Harold Cox, to whom you are clinging pathetically."

Lord Rothermere specified that the questions he was to to answer would have first to be approved by Cox, a British journalist.

Cove's letter states he is willing to permit Cox to inspect the questions, provided such an inspection is made in the examination room immediately before Lord Rothermere attempts to answer them.

"Will you take the examination under these conditions?" the letter asks.

Cove charges that when Lord Rothermere submitted the questions to school boys, from which action the present controversy developed, he did so simply in the way of a newspaper stunt and did not intend to hire them, as he claimed.

NO AGREEMENT CHURCH UNION

Conference in Toronto Abortive—Up to Private Bills Committee.

PROPERTY SNAG.

TORONTO, March 18.—(Canadian Press). — Conferences between the opposing sides to the Church Union controversy, beginning in the morning at the Parliament Buildings, and ending in the evening at the same place, failed yesterday to result in any agreement being reached. Failure to settle the issue as it is at present constituted by negotiation was accordingly recorded, and the matter will now have to be fought out before the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature.

While the parties to yesterday's conferences were sworn to secrecy, it is understood that the anti-Unionist proposal, that they be given Knox College and $500,000 in endowments was not acceptable to the Unionists. The whole vexed question of apportionment of denominational properties therefore comes as a thing of contention for the Legislature to decide.

Stole Bonds In Ohio; Jailed In Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 18 (Associated Press)—The search for a thief who got away with liberty bonds in Ohio in 1920 was ended here recently when a Bulgarian was sentenced to prison for 18 months.

The securities, amounting to $1500 were stolen while in transit between two banks in Ohio. The loss was still unexplained when a Bulgarian giving the name of R. C. Russoff entered a Sofia bank eight months later, and was given cash for Liberty bonds to the amout of $1,500. The return of the securities to an American bank brought the information, from their numbers, that they had been stolen. Russeff was located, charged with the theft, tried, found guilty and sentenced.

DIED OF EXPOSURE

CHATHAM, March 18.—Mrs. Mary Rock, whose age is said to be 90, and who was found Friday in a pitiable condition, in a shack where she lived alone, died this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital. The woman was discovered by the police with her feet bare and frozen so badly that they had the appearance of being burned. She suffered from a malignant growth.

Never Suffer From pains you can stop

Most of the pains you suffer can be stopped at once. These include rheumatic pains, soreness, lameness, backache. And the congestion of chest colds.

The way is to rub the sore spot with St. Jacobs Oil. Cause a counter irritation. Or relieve the congestion by bringing the blood to the skin. A moment does this, and comfort follows before the rubbing stops.

St. Jacobs Oil has done this for 65 years. It has saved people eons of pain. Anybody who has used it will tell you that these pains are folly. A little rubbing and the pain is soothed. It seems to evaporate. Then Nature has a chance to cure while you rest in comfort.

Get this time-tried method proved by millions. You will never find anything better. It is sure and soothing, and it doesn't burn. Have it ready when the pain begins. Keep it on your shelf. The cost is but 35 cents.

And the time is bound to come when it will save some one about you many hours of pain. Ward off the suffering which is so unnecessary.

100,000 YEARS AGO.

LONDON, March 18.—The skull found at Broken Hill, Rhodesia, in 1921, is believed to be that of a man 100,000 years ago, Sir Arthur Keith, conservator of the Royal College eof Surgeons' Museum, says. "We cannot fit in this skull with any type of man with which we are familiar," he says. The skull strongly resembles a gorilla, but the placing of the bones indicates the prehistory man could walk upright.

GEOFFRION NOT RESIGN HE SAYS IN SHARP REPLY

Montreal Recorder's Comment on Mr. Justice Coderre's Report of Montreal Conditions.

SOCIAL PROBLEM.

MONTREAL, March 18. — Recorder Geoffrion in his court yesterday dealt with the recent report of Mr. Justice Coderre, which condemned the attitude of the police authorities in Montreal towards vice.

"When I see Abbe Henri Gauthier and Abbe Perrier marching along in the same harness as the Rev. Dr. E. I. Hart, the Westmount clergyman, who wants to purify Montreal by calling down fire from heaven, who wants to abolish Separate schools, who fulminates incessantly against the magistracy, I cannot but say that puritanism, like politics, makes strange bedfellows." The recorder said that the all the world knew that puritanism led France into the terrible catastrophe of the revolution."

Continuing, the Recorder said: "May we preserve amongst us that necessity, 'the need of amusement,' of which Pascal speaks, may we never attempt to proscribe by act of parliament, not only that which a member of the committee of sixteen describes as 'wine, women and song' but also amusements of every nature —the dance, tobacco."

The recorder said that he was strongly in favor of temperance and sobriety, but he detested prohibition, which was most often but a "garment full of holes through which one could distinguish the hidden vices of the preacher of morality."

Will not Resign.

Recorder Geoffrion declared that he would neither submit to the findings of Judge Coderre's report nor resign his position.

In his announcement dealing with submission or retirement, Recorder Geoffrion said:

"Without asking permission of anyone I am about to speak concerning personal facts.

"The Devoir, in yesterday's issue, stated that after Mr. Justice Coderre's report, the recorders of Montreal had only to submit thereto or resign."

"Speaking in my own name alone, for I have not had time to confer with my colleague on this subject, I declare at the outset that I will neither submit nor resign.

"It is the right of Hon. Mr. Justice Coderre—and I do not contest it—sitting in apepal, to quash judgments of the recorders, and to reduce their sentences, too severe perhaps, of six months in jail, to a fine of ten dollars and costs or two weeks, as he did in the case of Ruth Bennett, the 'virtuoso of street-walking,' 'the queen of the sidewalks,' Tony Frank's 'beautiful friend,'—one of the worst prostitutes in Montreal. (Frank was one of the four bank bandits recently executed.)

"But I firmly but respectfully decline his jurisdiction, in so far as in a report of police matters, he allows himself to criticize the manner in which the recorders administer the criminal law.

"I declare from the bench that if it is in recompense for having given me advice that he awarded himself $8,625, he is simply throwing money away, for I will not follow it, and I will continue to apply the law as I have done in the past."

Recorder Geoffrion reviewed the evidence that he had given before the police inquiry and bitterly commented upon the fact that he had not been allowed to reply to the theologians brought into the box by the attorneys for the petitioners to contradict the interpretation given by him to the great authors on the regulation of prostitution. "I said that the clergy in denouncing vice should be careful not to criticize the magistracy."

Criticize Committee.

The recorder criticized all the members of the committee of sixteen, stating that its most enlightened and most intelligent member was Nathan Gordon. Quoting from one of the latter's speeches he said that the red light district in Montreal received 90,000 visitors per night, classified by Mr. Gordon as 'drunken sailors, society men, respectable citizens from the Eastern Townships, negroes, men who are pillars of the church, puritans of Ontario, students, bums, crooks, ruffians, and what not."

"Ninety thousand in a night!" said the recorded. 'How could our entire police force, be they ever so zealous, apply the law? Bordeaux jail can hold a maximum of 737 prisoners. To lodge the men who, according to Mr. Gordon, visit the Montreal disorderly houses in one night alone, we would have to build 90 prisons as large as Bordeaux. At an average cost of $3,000,000 each, that would mean an initial expenditure of two hundred and seventy millions of dollars."

"The Rev. Dr. Hart is the moving spirit of the Committee of Sixteen. He speaks well, but he is no fighting saint. He is horribly sincere and foolishly intrepid. I cannot say that his eloquence is always without reproach, but it certainly is always without fear. He has sometimes some strokes of real genius.

"I suspect him of being tinged with a little racial prejudice. Once in a while one can notice it in his sermons, his speeches, his writings, and his interviews. After the Federal Parliament had turned down the good legislation, I find in one of the Rev. Dr. Hart's sermons the following:

"The Liberals of Quebec voted en bloc for race track betting; this province has no idea of public morals: before all the world we stand out for the liquor traffic, the narcotic traffic, prostitution and gambling."

"If I tell you a mountain was moved you may believe me, but if I should say that a fanatic has become tolerant you rave reason to doubt.

"To protect the innocent from the criminal intent of the seducer, to prevent the first fall from grace, which never to my knowledge takes place in a disorderly house, to come to the aid of the inexperienced, to preserve the young girl from the crooks of every sort that infest a great city, to point out the dangers of the street and of the lodging house chosen without care—it is in that way I maintain, and I have always maintained—that we may best combat prostitution. In this problem it is easier to prevent than to cure," declared Mr. Geoffrion.

Praise for Currie.

Mr. Geoffrion praised Sir Arthur Currie, whom he described as an intellectual giant, a great fighter, a man of the highest talents. He was sorry that Sir Arthur had allowed himself to be made the tool, even for a few moments, of the Committee of Sixteen, whose influence he saw in Sir Arthur's speech made at the opening of the maternity hospital on Feb. 6, 1925.

"If Sir Arthur Currie would study the complex problem of prostitution" said the recorder, "I am sure he would come to share my views on the subject of its regulation. At least his spirit of loyalty would force him to recognize that one must not blame those magistrates who in good faith declare it is impossible to suppress a vice that all the sociologists, legists and philosophers declare to be inevitable."

The Rev. Canon Shatford and the Rev. Adelard Dugre both were replied to by the recorder, who quoted at length from the works of St. Thomas Aquinas and St. Alphonse de Liguori to prove the theological soundness of the propositions that he advanced. The Rev. Mr. Dugre came in for the full measure of the recorder's wrath. Citation after citation was made from the testimony of Father Dugre and denied by quotations from the works of the fathers of the church. In discussing the evidence given by Canon Shatford, the recorder declared that in the Scandinavian countries, particularly Finland, where an attempt had been made to suppress prostitution, other and more deplorable forms of vice had arisen which were scarcely heard of in those countries which regulated disorderly houses.

"If my son could not control his nature," said the recorder, "a thousand times would I rather see him in the arms of a woman than in the company of a lecherous male degenerate."

"I recommended regulation of prostitution," concluded Mr. Geoffrion, "not as a system without defect, but because I believe that with it we could ameliorate the hygienic and moral conditions in the city of Montreal."

"The suppression of prostitution in our great cities is a beautiful dream —but it is nothing but a dream. By rigorous suppression we may perhaps change its from but not its substance. It is the cancer that affects urban concentration and no one has as yet found the remedy which wil cure it."

THE PLEASURES OF MEMORY

F. M. DELA FOSSE.

We reached Swift Current Creek without accident. This may seem an unnecessary remark to make in connection with a railway journey over the Western prairie, but if the reader had been fated to travel over that line of steel just after it had been laid down there would have been no impression of feathers or down left on his mind. To me the motion seemed almost identical with that of being carried along in a farm waggon by a pair of runaway horses over a corduroy road. We debarked with thankful hearts and put up our tents in close proximity to the track. Swift Current is now and has been for some years a divisional point on the C.P.R. system but at the time of which I write the town was represented by a telegraph operator's shack and a water-tank.

After a good night's rest we set to work to pack our paraphernalia into the carts. We found, to our dismay, that far more material had been brought than could be comfortably stowed away and it was only by dint of great ingenuity that the seemingly impossible feat was accomplished of loading on everything. Then came the job of harnessing and hitching up the ponies and we were a set of as profane and perspiring individuals on the completion of the job as could have been found in the whole northwest territories. Demmit had apparently picked up the very worst specimens of bucking, biting and kicking bronchos to be found in Winnipeg. The railway journey had not made them any more amenable and when we started to try to harness them we had a fairly exciting time of it.

There were four of them, each one worse than the other. Demmit grew so infuriated at last with the beast that he was attempting to harness that he threw down his hat and began jumping on it, at every jump jerking out miscricordias or anathemas of a highly spiced and variegated description. Then he ran to the railway track and getting a piece of telegraph wire tied it hurriedly to a stick. With this improvised whip he started to belabour the poor beast. At the second stroke the blood spurted from its back and the sight so incensed us that with one accord we hurled ourselves on him and wrenched the whip from his hands. When he rose to his feet he was nearly beside himself with rage. "Is this mutiny?" he bellowed at us. For reply the most diminutive man in the crowd, feeling safe with our numerical superiority at his back, spoke up boldly and told him not to make "such a girt, big black-bearded hass" of himself. With a bound Demmit had him by the throat and had him nearly throttled before we could loosen his hold. Altogether it didn't look like a very auspicious beginning for our survey. Demmit strode off and told us darkly to go to ——— well, harness the beasts ourselves. Strangely enough, whether in gratitude for the part we had taken in regard to one of their number or from whatever cause, we experienced no further trouble with the ponies. They turned as docile as they could be, and submitted to all the preliminaries of departure without a further protest from either teeth or heels

Demmit had asked me to share his tent during the survey, and I was glad enough to be quartered with him, for, with all his defects of temper and, one may add, language, he was a well-read, cultured man, who had seen a good deal of the world and was in a position to be of service in many ways.

We were enabled to make about fifteen miles the first day and pitched our tents on the western bank of the very tortuous creek. Before turning in for the night Demmit came to me and said, "Look here, notwithstanding all that has happened today I think a good deal of you and I still think I can trust you." I thanked him for this expression of his confidence but wondered, with a certain amount of anxiety, what his kind words portended. I had already had some experience of similar sentiments. I was not left long in doubt. I was informed that he had chosen me to take charge of the provisions whilst he, with the rest of the gang, proceeded to the Forks. Carters were to be sent back from there to fetch the goods. "I was simply to have a jolly good time, doing nothing but eating and sleeping and otherwise wasting my sweetness on the desert air. "All I want you to do is ot take charge of the goods," he said. There was nothing for it but to comply, so on the following morning I helped the men load up and after seeing the last cart disappear over the brink of the hill turned to the task of piling up the provisions in my tent. There was no room left for a bed after this was done so I laid the twenty-four bags of flour six in a row and on this improvised bier I placed my blanket. It was rather a ridgy sort of a bed but was better to sleep on than the ground where there were all sorts of evil-looking cockroaches and lizards crawling about. I had been told that a man, sleeping with his mouth open, had once bitten a lizard almost in two, the creature having crept into it apparently under the mistaken idea that it was a cavern, and I intended to take no chances.

I had been left some cooking utensils, a knife, fork and spoon and a small axe. I had no firearms of any description. For literature I had a copy of Hawley Smart's Broken Bonds and the cook generously handed me a copy of a patent medicine almanac, which he informed me had some jokes in it that he had never seen before. "They'll make yer bust her sides a-laughin' at 'em," he said. "I read 'em over to the missus at 'ome and she said as 'ow she couldn't see nuffin' funny about 'em, but I told 'er as 'ow that was what made 'em so funny." I couldn't quite see the depth of his logic and after reading a few of the riddles was inclined to think his wife must be a rather intelligent woman. "Listen to this," he cried, "ain't this a scream?

"Why is a bad hotel like a musical instrument? Answer—Because it's a vile inn. Ain't that a hum-dinger! Haw-haw-haw-haw-haw." Still I was grateful for small favours and before the end of my enforced solitude came to love each and all of those flights of humour. By the end of my stay I had read the novel over about five times and certainly knew every joke by heart. I had also persuaded myself into the belief that I suffered from every ailment that was named in the almanac and whenever I felt a pain in the back or a crick in the neck, made a vow to stock up with the invaluable remedies whose excellent virtues were so eloquently testified to in the pages of that transcendent almanac.

During the day I would make circles round the tent and walk and sprint for miles to keep in condition. There was lots to interest one—gophers would creep cautiously out of their holes and peer about them and flocks of antelopes would come gambolling gracefully over the prairie within easy revolver shot of my quarters. Great white cranes would sometimes alight at the edges of the sloughs, and stand there motionless, looking for all the world like silent sentinels. Ducks and geese would pass overhead with noisy cackle and occasionally the weird cry of a loon would break the silence of the night. Coyotes also, inquisitive yet cowardly, would creep up in the shadows and sit limned against the evening sky watching and sniffing towards the tent. Sometimes in the night watches I could hear them right at my tent door poking their inquisitive noses into my pots and pans and a yell would send them scurrying with the speed of lightning over the waste. As a variation I turned my attention at last to writing and began the composition of a lengthy poem in blank verse, which I denominated "Hades." I think the steady diet of pork and beans and dried apples and alkali-flavoured tea had something to do with my morbidity of mind, but the central idea was obtained from the novel by Hawley Smart. It dealt with the escape of a convict from Portland Prison. Loneliness, diet and reading matter, all conduced to the perpetration of the lines. On my return to civilization I sent the verses to the Weekly Globe, and they were published in extenso in that journal. I am only going to inflict part of them now on my readers. The passing of years tends to make us all more merciful to each other.

HADES.

'Twas but a dream—dreamt many a year gone by.
Yet all its imaged horrors—gloomy fantasies,
Do throng my memory yet—methinks, even now
The cachinnations of the demon crew
Salute my ears—ev'n now the awful sights
Witnessed in death's dread image, pass arrayed
In all their carking terror — pristine strength.
Oh, God—w hat torments did that dream portray—

Quicker than lightning's flash I was encaged
Within a prison cell—'twas dark as night—
Through crack or crevice shone no welcome ray
No voice—God's sweet evangel—cheered its gloom
Yet on my limbs no weighty gyves were laid
They mattered not, for none could hope to break
The mighty strength of adamantine walls.

Long, long, I lay in stupor, on the ground,
'Twas damp and cold and reptiles round me swarmed,
Seeking to gain the shelter of my breast—
O'er me, around me—under me they crept—
Convulsive shudders shook me head to foot—

Dela Fosse Article Galley 3 Zeihr

I strove to clutch them but did pow'rless seem
To cast the loath some creatures from my form—
And from the dark recesses of the cell
Gigantic gnomes did peer at me and laughed—
The harsh, blood-curdling laughter of the mad—
And ever and anon they gnashed their gory teeth—
Glaring the while in fury pitiless—
Stooping so close their horrid, foetid breath
Did wellnigh suffflocate me with its stench.

What mighty epochs, periods limitless
Are compassed in the tenure of a dream—

In silence I obeyed—full many leagues
We traversed ere we reached a mountain range
Exceeding high—and here he spake again
"We enter Hades now," and at the words
He raised me in his arms and spread his wings—
Higher and higher in the air we rose
Until the level of the peaks was reached,
Then through the air he cleft his magic way
In might resistless, slack'ning not his speed
Till all the mighty mountain range was passed—
T hen, slowly lowering, placed me on my feet.

Does Satanas then reign in this abode?
I asked myself, for here were pastures green—
Here cooling zephyrs blew, and glistening streams
Did take their sinuous course amongst the fields,
Whilst in great gardens of magnificence
Full many a sparkling crystal fountain played—
The angel read my thoughts—he answered, "Yea,"
These are the gardens of my sovereign lord,
And all this great domain within the hills
Is his—o'er all he holds despotic sway.
Thou art not on the earth," he said, for, look,
Canst see the sun or moon or any stars?
I looked to where he pointed and beheld,
No orb did shed its glory from the Heavens.
Still, over all a mellow light there played,
A hazy, sulphurous vapour, not so dense
But that the sight could pierce a distance great.
And as I gazed I did perceive the air
Was ever darkened by gigantic forms
Flitting on noiseless wing through upper space.
I wondered greatly, and the angel said,
"These are my sovereign lord's winged messengers,
Sent forth to execute his dread commands
And work his deeds of darkness through the world."
"Tell me," I said, "the meaning of this light."
"Follow," he answered—and I followed him
He led to where, from out a forest vast
The light of many fires seemed to glow—
"From there," the angel said, "doth emanate
The light that over all this realm doth shine."

Upon the summit of a steep abyss—
So wondrous steep sight scarce could fathom it
We stood, whilst from the unknown depths there rose
Dark, sulphurous smoke that choked the very soul—
Yet, though so thick the fumes, far, far below
I saw the strange, wild light of many fires
And ever and anon the flames leaped up
In angry conflict for the mastery.
And then I heard so far, so far away,
Voices no man could number—screams and wails
Of untold agony and mortal pain—
I turned to where the angel stood and said,
"Tell me, I pray, the meaning of those cries—
Whence comes the smoke and wherefore rage the fires?"
He, answering, said, "this is the pit profound,
That none have ever fathomed, none e'er will Save those who are for all their crimes on earth
To it for ever and for ever damned.
There thou dost also go, and then—oh, God!
He stretched his arm and pushed me o'er the brink!

Germs In the Nose Cause that Cold

Head colds are caused by germs in the membranes. Combat those germs locally. Don't wait the slow results of internal remedies.

Apply Ely's Cream Balm in the nostrils and breathe it. Force the antiseptic fumes through the air passages. The head is cleared at once, the misery is ended. The cold soon departs.

Don't suffer another hour from that stuffiness. Ask your druggist for a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Your head will be as clear as a bell.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

But man dieth, and wasteth away; yea man giveth up the ghost and where is he? Job 14, ver. 10.

The above question has exercised the minds of all thinking people in every age. A great infidel lecturer once said that the cradle and the coffin asked two questions. The cradle, Where have I come from? And the coffin, Where have I gone to? But he said, We cannot tell. This is ever the limit of human wisdom, when face to face with that last enemy known as death and what comes after eternity. Where then can we turn for light on his fearful mystery from which every living thing shrinks, from the worm under foot, to the king on his throne? Is there light? Yes, I hear the Psalmist answer: Thy word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my path. Psalm 119, ver. 105. This being true let us turn to the light and see what it says.

Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance; knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath showed me. Moreover, I will endeavour that ye may be able after my decease to have these things always in remembrance. II Peter, Chap. 1, ver. 13-15. Here we have the great apostle speaking of being in a tabernacle (tent) and stating that the Lord Jesus had shown him that he must soon put it off and make his departure out of it. He does not speak of himself ceasing to exist at death or being snuffed out like a candle, as some modern would-be teachers would have us believe and take their word for it. His aged feet stand on the threshold of eternity, without fear or dread. There is no mystery here for him. He has had a revelation from the Lord Himself; from the very one who had been through death; and had risen again in triumph over it.

His be the victor's name
Who fought the fight alone;
Triumphant saints no honour claim—
Their conquest was His own.

By weakness and defeat
He won the mead and crown;
Trod all our foes beneath His feet.
By being trodden down.
He hell in hell laid low;
Made sin, He sin o'erthrew;
Bow'd to the grave, destroyed it so,
And Death, by dying slew.

Bless, bless the Conqueror slain—
Slain in His victory;
Who lived, who died, who lives again,
For thee, His Church, for thee.

In our next letter we will have the Apostle Paul's testimony in holy writ as to death and what comes after.

Very truly yours,
T. C. YONGE,
190 Park Street South,

NO LIMIT ON "KICK."

BERLIN, March 18.—All limits on the "kick" in beer made in Germany have been removed. Under regulations in force last year only 20 per cent. of the beer manufactured could have an alcoholic content of more than 10 per cent. The alcoholic content of American wartime beer was only 2.75 per cent.

ONLY THE MOTHER KNOWS ABOUT THE COUGHS AND COLDS OF THE CHILDREN

It is hard to keep them from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad, or have on too much clothing; play too hard and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night, and do a dozen things the mother can't prevent.

The prompt use of

will check the cough or cold before any serious lung trouble can possibly develop.

Mrs. Everett E. Keetch, R.R. No. 2, Fredericton, NB, writes:—"My little boy, age nine years, had a dreadful cold which left him with a bad cough. I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles he was completely relieved. I would advise all mothers to use this remedy for their children as it is an excellent medicine."

ENGLAND AND THE GOLD STANDARD

Churchill Announces Government Will Revert to Gold Standard.

By C. T. HALLINAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, March 18.—(United Press).—"The Government," said Winston Churchill in the House of Commons, "intends to revert to the gold standard at the earliest possible moment."

A buzz of excitement went through the House. The Labor and Liberal benches shifted uneasily. One Englishman cried excitedly, "Hear! Hear!!" and then collapsed into silence. Churchill sat down while the press gallery rose as one man (and one woman) and scrambled for the telephones.

That was the biggest single piece of news for England in many a day.

It is a piece of news with significance for every bank and merchant in the British Empire and throughout that large invisible empire of trade and finance where British banking matters.

Places as far apart as Tokyo and Melbourne, as Berlin and Buenos Aires, as Calcutta and New York, will adjust themselves in a thousand ways to the announcement made by the English Chancellor of the Exchequer.

To them Churchill's quiet remark means that London is again to become what she was for just 99 years years previous to the outbreak of the war, and that is a "free market" for gold.

That makes two "free markets" for gold now in this harrassed postbellum world:

NEW YORK.
LONDON.

When this has come about, there are several other countries all ready to follow England's example—Holland and Sweden conspicuously, with Germany probably not far behind.

The year 1925 will see a very large part of the international balances of trade and commerce paid in gold.

While a great many experts think that the value of the gold standard is greatly exaggerated in the popular mind and that, as a matter of fact, a much better international currency could be evolved than gold, still the almost universal respect that is felt for gold—in the most civilized countries as in the most backward—gives the gold standard a great advantage.

Just to get a bird's eye view of the situation that will obtain when the British Government, making good its pledge, resumes the gold standard:

Amount of gold in the world, $19,000,000,000.

Amount of gold in England, $775,000,000.

Amount of gold in U.S.A., $4,500,000,000.

So that the two big "free markets" will control between them almost a fourth of the world's gold supply.

History Lends Another Epic to the Screen; 100,000 Wild, Stampeding Steers

Spectacular Prairie Fire and Love Story Complete Dramatic Picture.

IMMORTALIZE WEST.

Cattle From a Thousand Hills in Stellar Part of Great Rodeo.

SUNDOWN COMING.

Shows Passing of Wonderful Breed of Men and Horses and Land.

Cattle from a thousand hills, assembled in a great rodeo, carry the stellar role in the picture, "Sundown," First National's epic of the range country, which is to be shown at the Royal Theatre next Thursday.

Like "The Covered Wagon," "America," "The Birth of a Nation," it depicts a significant phase of national life—the close of the pastoral era. "Sundown" has historic perspective and scope; it is a film document of vanishing breed of men and beasts and the land they prepared for close settlement.

Human drama rides in stirrup and chuck wagon beside the hoofed legions; drama springing from encroachment of homesteaders upon the cattle provinces of the elder west, from stampede, prairie fire, financial crisis and hard straits.

But the individual actors, giving of their best, are dwarfed by the massed animals, 100,000 strong, winding from the foreground to the horizon through the picture in the slow curving line of melancholy, the line of yearning and regret which gives "Sundown" its distinctive touch.

The film is from an original story by Earl Hudson, production supervisor of First National, based upon recent cattle drives from the Southwestern States to Mexico for adequate range, and a pathetic exodus it is to folk along the Rio Grande.

Curious how moving is the sight of a great herd on the march. At rest, grazing, they are merely so many beeves. But in massed motion, they stir emotions of primal majesty. Their very docility adds to the effect of high drama.

Creatures of man's dominance, his meat and milk, in turn dominating their owners, forced to go where the cattle may graze, even to the abandonment of home, and exile to an alien land.

Then, in a moment, the placid mass converted into a terrible catapult, wiping out everything in the path of stampede, including the home of the nestor family whose daughter provides the love interest—an awesome scene that, with the girl and her lover stranded in a sea of tossing horns.

Again, poignant pathos when the cowhands, after immemorial custom, sing down the herd for the night with a plaintive chant—the prairie lullaby for animals, treated like children.

It should prove a memorable picture, this dramatic summing up of a glorious Western day now come to its sundown.

The concluding scene, where the vast herd crossed a railroad track between impatient passenger trains and go into Mexico, is symbolic period to the words put into the mouth of E. J. Ratcliffe, an actor giving a consummate of Roosevelt:

"You could put your cowboys and cattle a mile deep from Canada to Mexico, but you cannot stop the encroachment of civilization."

And that is the historic meaning of "Sundown." Into the wilderness, onto the desert, up into the mountains and down in the valleys moves civilization, irresistible.

Supervising Director Hudson, when the filming of the massive production was concluded and the company returned to Hollywood, gave an interesting account of the novel experience. Said he:

"Figures themselves no longer stagger the imagination—millions of men and billions of dollars carry a message to our brains, but there is no thrill to them.

"When I learned that the cattle kings of our great Southwest were being forced by the encroaching barbed-wire fingers of civilization to drive their mighty herds across the Rio Grande into Mexico, where the cattle ranges are still open, I knew that an epic thing was in progress—a change that meant the passing forever of the picturesque old West, with its herds of cattle grazing on a thousand hills, the cowboy in his chaps and spurs with a bandana handkerchief tied loosely about his neck.

"I knew that the spectacle would be unparalleled, a magnificent opportunity for the motion picture camera to record a phase of our national life which had reached its last stages; that such an opportunity would never occur again. And I wrote the story of 'Sundown,' to be photographed against this mighty herd of cattle being driven southward.

"But the thrill, the spectacle, the dusty romance, the heat, the toil, the adventure of the whole thing I did not realize until I joined Larry Trimble and Harry O. Hoyt on the ground and saw the picture in the making. It was then that the thrill that lies in numbers, when the numbers are made objective in concrete bodies, burst upon me in all its grandeur. One hundred thousand cattle! Seen from the scout plane which was utilized for obtaining 'shots' from all angles, the mass of cattle was something inspiring.

"Under the yellowish cloud of dust, stirred into slow, stifling action by a million hoofs, they appeared like a stream of lava, half a mile wide, and mile after mile long, pouring slowly and steadily forward—an irresistible mass which embraced, smothered and obliterated everything in its path. The individual cattle composing the mass were invisible because of the height and the all-enveloping dust which may be likened to the steam that ascends from a flowing lava stream. From a still greater distance, the dust raised by the trampling feet seemed like a low-lying cloud extending as far as the eye could see.

"And then there was the stampede which I had written into my script. We began to be afraid that we might not get just what we wanted, but a lost calf started it; the calf was hidden from its mother. The cow started out to find it, and her bellowing and maddened fear soon communicated itself to an entire section of the great herd.

"We've read and heard about action in motion pictures ever since they were invented, and there have been films that have carried action, it would seem, to the ultimate limit in search of a thrill; but I have never seen, or even dreamed of, such action as was aroused by that fear-maddened cow.

"The entire herd seemed to go suddenly mad, and from being a miles-long, slowly advancing, steam-covered lava bed, it spurted ahead in a roaring, rushing, blinding mass of fury, like lava tumbling down the precipitous sides of a mountain. Everything went down before it. The dust rose hundreds of feet in the air and spread out in a trailing, low-lying cloud, like a smoke screen. Nothing could be seen but the dust, but we could hear and feel the onrushing of the herd. The very earth trembled under the impact and the trampling of feet rose into a mighty roar, somewhat comparable to the rush of wind down a heavily-timbered canyon, or the roar of a suddenly loosed flood of water.

"We feared that the shack that had been erected in front of the stampeding herd in which the hero and the girl were to seek refuge from the cattle rush would be wiped completely off the face of the earth and Roy Stewart, Bessie Love and the cameraman stationed in it trampled to death. The making of the picture might have been turned to such tragedy had it not been for Stewart's marksmanship. He shot down a dozen of the plunging, maddened cattle within a few feet of the shack in order to divide the herd so that it would surge harmlessly by on either side.

"I believe that we who had watched from the edges or from our airplane were more frightened for the safety of Stewart, Miss Love and the photographer than they were themselves. Perhaps that was because we could do nothing but think of the danger and wait blindly to see what would happen, while they had to act quickly and correctly to get the great thrilling sequence of "Sundown."

"Some of the thrills of that cattle-rush—but not all—the camera caught with fidelity, and when flashed upon the screen it is going to be something entirely new in thrilling film action."

A notable cast of human actors and actresses has been given to the wonderful picture. Bessie Love is seen in the role of the Eastern girl who brings her family West for as she said, elbow room—the nestor's daughter. She is said to put forth the best enactment of her career in this character. Herbert Bosworth is an imposing figure as a cattle king, directing his army of four-footed adherents across the deserts into Mexico.

Charlie Murray is the driver of a chuck wagon, a perambulator for the march-weary—the nestor family, a spindle-legged calf and a spent old rider. His is a wry sort of humor to leaven the serious purport of the play. Roy Stewart, a real cowboy before he entered the films, does some daring riding which will thrill the most thrill-weary. Arthur Hoyt, Charles Sellon and others complete the cast.

"Sundown" will continue at the Royal Theatre until Saturday.

Lawrence spent his boyhood days in Northumberland county near Roseneath and Ontario East feels proud of the honor he has won in the western part of our province.

"BREAKING" THE NEWS.

MILWAUKEE, March 18. — Twenty-four years ago P. H. Kasper received a letter from Paris, which he couldn't read, so he tucked it away in a drawer. He came across it the other day and a translator "broke the news" to him that back in 1901 he had won the first prize for the best cheese at a Paris exhibition. He has sent for the gold medal, as directed to do by the old letter.

MILLION DOLLAR DEAL COMPLETED

Toronto Man Acquires Coal Company—Well Known in Ontario.

As a result of negotiations which extended over many weeks, the Ogdensburg Coal and Towing Co., Ltd., situated on the Island of Montreal, has been acquired by Alfred Rogers of Toronto, it was announced by Dr. W. L. McDougald, president, and practically the sole owner.

The transaction is understood to involve fixed assets and goodwill exceeding $1,000,000 in value. Operation by the new management will begin April 1.

When questioned as to his future activities, Dr. McDougald said that he was now going to devote himself to the Montreal Harbor.

Mr. Rogers, who succeeded his father, Elias Rogers, is well-known as the largest coal operator in Canada.

He makes his debut in coal trade of Montreal, though he has been identified for many years with large commercial interests in Toronto, and is very well known to commercial Montreal.

Elias Rogers, his father, was an influential figure not only in Toronto, but throughout Ontario, being at the time of his death vice-president of the Imperial Bank, president of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, and president of the National Life Insurance Company.

With the transfer goes the franchise for handling one variety of coal in this territory which the Ogdensburg Company has controlled ever since it was established in 1880 by the late John Hannan.

After the death of Mr. Hannan, Dr. W. L. McDougald, who had become identified with the business in 1909, gradually acquired control of the company, becoming its president and subsequently practically the sole owner.

PURCHASER.

Alfred Rogers, son of Elias Rogers, of Toronto, Canadas' largest coal operator.

FELL DEAD.

Immigration Officer Collapses on Sidewalk in Medicine Hat.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., March 19.— (Canadian Press). — Arnold F. George, travelling investigation officer for the immigration department stationed at Calgary, fell dead on the sidewalk, yesterday, soon after delivering an address at a combined gathering of Kiwanis and Rotary clubs.

The Wanderer's Dream

(By Jeanette.)

The "Seventeenth of Ireland" has once more passed into history, and the Irish play which forms an annual break in the Lenten observance saw a well-filled house at the Grand last evening. "The Wanderer's Dream," an Irish comedy drama in four acts, was the attraction this year, staged under the auspices of St. Peter's Holy Name Society, by a group of talented amateur actors, under the direction of Miss Lillian Simons, to whose careful coaching and untiring efforts much of the success of the performance was due.

"The Wanderer's Dream" is a real Irish play, with plenty of Irish humor to enliven the story of the hero, the "wanderer" who was sent out of the country in punishment for his rebel activities with "the boys." There is a pretty Irish maiden who loves the wanderer, and a stern parent who has turned his own wife from his door, because of her lowly birth, and who commands his daughter to marr the man of his choice, instead of her own sweetheart.

Each part as taken in splendid fashion. Charlie Carson made a handsome hero, Gerald O'Connell, enacting an arduous role in enjoyable style. Miss Jessie Hodgson was "the sweet Irish rose" of the piece, Effie Headford, making a charming heroine, and Jack McCabe was her father, Henry Blackwood Headford of Castle Headford, a stern parent, who relents later and becomes re-united once more to his wife, a role taken by Miss Annie Simons in her usual excellent style. The scheming villain of the plot is Brandon Benner (Jack Primeau), a gentleman whose nefarious schemes are carried out in a very snappy outfit. James O'Brien was as good as always as Benner's accomplice, "Con o' the Bogs," with a real Irish accent and villainous demeanor.

Felix O'Flaherty and his sweetheart, Mary Anne Malone, deserve special mention. They added immeasurably to the attraction of the play. Frank Grady as the brave gossoon, Felix, making a real hit with his audience. With Miss Minnie Allen, as his beloved Mary Anne, he had a "courting" scene that was full of fun. In the togs of a "brave broth of a boy," with bright green knee bows, he made love in true rollicking Irish fashion to his dainty colleen, in crimson cape and green skirt.

Minor characters, also were well taken, were those of Bartholomew O'Connor Malone (James Condon), a gentleman with a vocabulary of long words, and Boucher (Jack Roach) a scarlet-coated officer of the law.

With effective Irish stage settings, costuming that harmonized in every instance with the atmosphere of the scene and the role portrayed, and excellent acting, "The Wanderer's Dream" was one of the prettiest Irish plays in the long list of March 17th successes. Mr. Sam Houlihan was the satisfactory stage manager, and the musical direction was in the capable hands of Miss Lillian Hurley.

Before the play's commencement, and between cast, old familiar Irish airs were played by the orchestra, and specialties in song and dance were introduced which added immensely to the attraction of a very fine entertainment. The vocal solo by Miss Annie Simons was exceptionally effective, given as part of her role, while seated on the stage, and Miss Minnie Allen also sang during her scene with Felix O'Flaherty. The other numbers were given between acts, and were in fine voice, being greeted in every instance by enthusiastic encores, the ladies each received floral tributes.

Mrs. Joe Dyer sang "Kathleen Mavourneen," and a pretty encore in "When the Angelus Rings in Ireland," a composition by Mr. Clint of Detroit, a friend of Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer. Miss Minnie Allen sang "Ireland is Ireland to Me," with encore; Jack Roach gave a snappy modern song whose refrain was "You'll Think You Were in Ireland," and whose bright rendition brought repeated applause, and Miss Annie Simons sang "That Old Irish Mother of Mine." Ted Bartley rang "The Ould Plaid Shawl," Miss Geraldine Collins gave "Danny Boy" and a sweet encore, and Mr. James Browne sang "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Mother Machree."

Especially well received were the efforts of Miss Annie Logan and Messrs. George Wesley and D. Quinlan. Miss Logan is a clever young dancer who gave in costume, an Irish jig, a sailor's hornpipe, and a sword dance in a style that brought her much applause, and Messrs. Wesley and Quinlan had a soft-shoe number to waltz time that brought down the house. D. Quinlan responded with another step in his well-known style. The monologue hich precided this, delivered by George Wesley, was as funny as this popular entertainer always makes his contributions to any programme. Garbed in a lengthy Prince Albert, with a real Irish "tile," shamrock socks and wonderful green tie, George got off a series of local hits that tickled his audience immensely. A minor actor in this sketch was Hugh Lush, as a messenger.

EXHIBITION BOARD PLANS FOR FAIR

Some Attractions Already Booked — Another Dog Show This Year.

The Industrial Exhibition Board met on Friday for the purpose of checking over prize-lists and other routine business. James McMartin and Cecil Wolfe were appointed to represent the Board at the meeting of the Ontario Kennel Association. The Peterboro Exhibition is holding a dog show again this year, and their dates conflict with the dates of the London Fair, so they are suggesting a division of the week. Contracts have already been closed for some of the amusement attractions. Al Sweet and his Singing Hussars Band, which boasts a set of gold-plated instruments valued at $5,000, have been engaged as one of the grand stand attractions on which they intend to spend twice as much money this year as last. The Boyd and Linderman Shows will be on the Midway. They have 18 shows and 8 rides, including the caterpillar ride, the latest one out.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

PLAN MONTE CARLO OFF CANADA COAST

Californian Will Build Casino on Moresby Island.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 18. — (United Press).—Louis Bradbury, wealthy Californian, is going to capitalize on the thirst of his fellow countrymen.

He has purchased Moresby Island, one of the largest of the minor group of islands in the Gulf of Georgia, and will turn it into "the Monte Carlo of the Pacific Coast."

More than $2,000,000 will be spent in building a huge casino, residential house, summer resort and other attractions for American tourists.

Airplanes will connect the island with Vancouver and Victoria.

Special efforts will be made to entertain thirsty Americans who travel north to this oasis, Bradbury said. The island picked is between Vancouver Island and the Canadian mainland.

TOM MOORE THERE.

President of Trades and Labor Congress is in Strike Area.

GLACE BAY, N.S., March 18. — (Canadian Press).—Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, arrived here shortly before noon this morning and went into conference with officials of the United Mine Workers at their headquarters. The strike situation locally remained unchanged. Yesterday the Central Relief Committee provided for 1,181 familes, representing 6,574 dependents. Requests for relief are increasing every day.

200 HOUSES BURNED

LISBON, March 18.—Fire at Fuzadouro, near Oporto, has destroyed more than 200 houses, chiefly wooden huts belonging to fishermen. Hundreds of the latter are ruined, as numbers of boats and a fishing barque also were burned on the beach. No lives were lost.

FUR MERCHANTS ACT.

Recommend That Commercial Snaring of Animals on French River Stop.

TORONTO, March 18. — Fur merchants of Ontario through a deputation made several recommendations to the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature this morning.

They asked that the license fee for foreign buyers in Ontario be increased from $200 to $500 and asked that the Ontario fur buyers be protected in every way possible.

The committee decided to recommend that there be no closed season for foxes, and that the commercial snaring of animals east and south of the French River, be prohibited.

CURZON HAS RELAPSE.

Improvement Not Maintained —Increased Anxiety Today, Say Doctors.

LONDON, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—The condition of Marquis Curzon is calling for increased anxiety, says a bulletin issued by his physicians this morning. Yesterday's improvement was not maintained, says the bulletin.

LONDON, March 19. —(Canadian Press).— A bulletin issued at 3 o'clock this afternoon by physicians of Marquis Curzon says, the patient is showing signs of lung complications.

It was reported in the lobbies of the House of Commons this afternoon that Lord Curzon's condition was hopeless. Lord Cave made brief reference in the Upper House to-day to Lord Curzon's condition and said the bulletins had under-estimated the seriousness of his condition.

NURMI QUIT IN RITOLA CLASH

Was Leading By Half a Lap Four Laps From the Finish.

NEW YORK TRACK.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Willie Ritola, Paavo Nurmi's most consistent challenger for distance records, defeated his ancient rival last night in a five thousand meter match race, the feature event of the Knights of Columbus meet in Madison Square Garden.

Nurmi quit three laps from the tape, after setting a dazzling pace leaving Ritola a undisputed victor in one of the greatest races ever run in the famous garden.

Four laps from the finish Nurmi suddenly slowed his pace and grabbed his side bringing up into a walk from which he tried to resume the race, but after completing half a lap quit the competition and left the track. At the time of his ailment Nurmi was leading Ritola by almost a half lap and from all prospects would have chopped several seconds off the world's record.

Ritola's time for the 5,000 metre was 14.33 3-5, ten and two-fifths seconds slower than his own world's record for that distance.

FORMER MAJOR GIVES RED SOX ROOKIE BIG BOOST

NEW ORLEANS, March 18.—It is doubtful if the minor leagues boast a more successful manager than Jakey Atz. Old-time fans will recall him as a member of the Chicago White Sox, when they were known as the "Hitless Wonders."

Atz, who can appreciate a joke, even if he pulls it at his own expense, says he was one of the reasons why the Sox were so named.

Has Good Reason.

Winning pennants in the Texas League for Fort Worth has become a habit with Atz. Usually he tops it off by beating the Southern League champions. When this fact was commented upon he replied:

"You see I live in New Orleans and it wouldn't be a very pleasant winter if I let these Southern Leaguers trim me."

Two of the most likely recruits of the Boston club hail from the Texas League. No one is in a better position to pass judgment on their ability than Atz.

"Vache is a great hitter," says Atz. "It is just natural, he hits everything. He takes as healthy a cut at the ball as Ruth. He doesn't hit them as far but just as hard when he connects.

"Vache has plenty of color. If he gets away to a good start, he should be quite a card for Boston. He's almost as eccentric as some left-handers, I know, but he sure can hit.

Praises Gross Also.

"For a big fellow he is very fast and can cover a world of ground. His arm is just fair but no one in our league ran wild on him.

"Gross is a steady ball player. I think he will make good. He is a consistent rather than brilliant. A fellow who is liable to be just as good in the majors as he was in our league, where he was one of the most valuable players."

TYGERS OUT FOR RUNNING START.

Billy Evans Impressed By Thoroughness and System Attending the Workouts.

By BILLY EVANS.

AUGUSTA, March 18.—As I watched the Detroit Tygers step through three hours of fast practice, I observed these outstanding features of play:

The Tygers are eager to be in the best possible shape and get away to a good start; there is thoroughness and system to their practice.

And in pitching to the regulars of last year, the twirlers used only fast balls; against the recruits, the veteran members of the staff worked as if in a real game.

Method in Madness.

The reason for this: Cobb knows what his leftovers can do at the bat. He doesn't want his pitchers to waste energy on them. Against the rookies he desires to watch them face real pitching, hit the best stuff his pitchers have in stock.

The recruits, who show to advantage in the spring training of Detroit from now on, will have the satisfaction of knowing it is against real pitching.

As I watched the infielders in action I observed that Cobb has two or more capable men for each position. An infield of Neun, Burke, Tavener and Haney compares well with Jones, Rigney, O'Rourke and Blue, regulars of last season.

Either one of these infields is of big league calibre. Injuries to any of the regulars should not handicap the play of the Tygers.

Two Young Stars.

Neun at first base and Tavener at short are two new players who look great. On almost any other club than the Tygers Neun would just about step in and play first regularly. It is a tough break to be up against such stiff competition as Lu Blue.

Tavener is a ball hawk. He is the smallest man on the club, weighing only 140 pounds, and is scarcely five feet five inches tall. As a shortstop he greatly resembles Donie Bush as he looked when he broke into the majors with Detroit.

Tavener covers much ground and for so slight a fellow has a wonderful arm. He cuts the ball across the diamond with bullet-like speed and great accuracy.

Should Rigney be handicapped because of the hip injury that has troubled him for several years, Tavener should be able to step into his shoes and deliver.

Impressed With Doyle.

Rigney, by the way, looks fine and appears to be in great shape physically. The fellow who beats him out of his job will find him stepping at his best.

Jesse Doyle impressed me as a pitcher certain to help the Tygers. He is a husky right-hander, who won something like 25 games in the International League last year.

Doyle makes it apparent that he knows how to pitch. In baseball, no greater compliment can be paid a player than to say he has the courage of a burglar. That is what the players on the Toronto team, his former club, training here, say of Doyle.

Doyle is certain to be retained. He should help the Tygers in relief roles or as a regular.

Reminds of Cobb.

Carlyle, a 19-year-old outfielder, purchased from Charlotte, N. C., has great promise. He is a left-handed hitter, right-handed thrower, a big rangy fellow, who reminds you much of Cobb as he looked when breaking into the majors.

The diversified pitching of the club also impressed me. Cobb has capable left-handers and right-handers of the veteran and rookie type.

Unquestionably Detroit is a better club than last year. It is up to the athletes to prove it.

Mickey Walker has finally got around to picking on the set-ups.... We see where he wants to fight Tony Fuente, the heavyweight.

Babe Ruth thinks this will be his biggest year....Judging by the proportions of his waistline we are willing to agree with him.

The Celeveland ball club sent out individual letters forbidding its players to take a drink....It's little things like this that put real humor in baseball.

The papers are carrying long stories in which Benny Leonard repeats that he has retired....It may be true that Benny has, but his press agent hasn't.

Mr. Lefty Wiseman, the only Scandinavian trainer in baseball, has asked us to see that the following gag bounces into type:

You are supposed to ask Mr. Wiseman if he knows Ben Turpin, whereupon Mr. Wiseman replies:

"Know him! I was with him the night he was "cock-eyed."

Willie Hoppe has no one to blame for his defeat but himself....He had plenty of time to retire on account of his mother.

Big Munn, we are told, has given wrestling a higher tone.....And Strangler Lewis seems to have given it a louder squawk.

Lefty Groves of the Athletics shouldn't have any trouble delivering the goods for Connie Mack... He used to be a shipping clerk.

Mack and Edison met in Florida the other day. It is presumed the following courtesies were exchanged:

"You are surely a live wire, Mr. Mack."

"And more power to you, Mr. Edison."

TERSE TIPS ON SPORT

NEW ORLEANS, March 18—Mr. Fohl's Boston Red Sox have gone farther south to train this year. If they try to go farther south in the percentages they'll land on the outer rim of Nome, Alaska.

The Red Sox finished a bang-up seventh in the American League in 1924 after getting a running start that would have left Nurmi gasping for breath, like a flying fish with engine trouble.

Mr. Fohl explains all his veterans, O'Neill, Harris and Veach, stopped at once. The soot-bag zephyrs of May kept them on their toes but the sizzling heat rays of July tossed them on their backs.

The handsomely priced Dudley Lee at short was a bigger disappointment than an egg omelet constructed of white door knobs. He was about as helpful at the bat as an air rifle would have been at the Seige of Troy.

Mr. Fohl threatens to rebuild his whole infield with the exception of Bill Wamby at second base, author of the only unassisted triple play ever made in a world series. Wamby has promised to repeat the act if the team gets into the big dough next fall.

The triple-play genius gets little chance to work his favorite racket with the Red Sox. As a general proposition it takes the whole Red Sox roster to get the side out. The task is entirely too complicated for one man.

One of the newcomers in the Red Sox camp is Thompson Prothro, third baseman, who was goaled from the Washington club last summer with a batting average of .333. Prothro is the only hired hand who ever lost his job because he hit too frequently.

Mr. Fohl refuses to make any forecasts. Last spring he predicted his team would not be last. It took some of the worst playing of which the White Sox were capable to keep Mr. Fohl from looking like a bum.

The Red Sox boast a snappy quartet. Its favorite annoyance is "Memories." It's dedicated to the days when Speaker, Duffy and Lewis roamed the outfield at Fenway and Joe Wood had a fast ball that whistled.

LED IN NEWSPRINT OUTPUT.

Canada Beat United States by 1,793 Tons in February.

MONTREAL, March 18.—Production of newsprint in Canadian mills in February totalled 115,624 tons, and for the first time on record the Dominion output exceeded that of the United States within a given period. The American production was 113,831 tons, or 1,793 tons under the Canadian figure.

The February production in Canada was less than in January, 1925, in which month, 131,420 tons were turned out. The difference, however, is due solely to the shorter working period.

For the first two months of the year Canada's production exceeded that for the corresponding months of 1924 by 14,197 tons, or 6 per cent., while the output of the United States mills declined by 6,621 tons, or 3 per cent.

KNOX DEFEAT ST. JAMES' BOYS

Win Right To Enter Church League Final Games.

SCORE WAS 4-2.

Knox Church Hockey Team put a surprise over on the south-end St. James team at Brock Street Arena before a large number of fans who kept themselves known to both teams throughout the game by their support.

This was one of the final games in the junior group of the church league.

Although Knox team had a slight edge on the whole game their opponents made them work for every goal obtained.

It was a two period game with Knox leading at the end of the first period with a score of—Knox 2, St. James 1.

Gray and Woods did the scoring in the first period.

The second period opened with a break at an early stage for St. James crew, when Knox boys tore up the ice from the face off only to loose the rubber when they came to St. James defence pair. Here St. James did not work fast enough for Archibald who saw his chance—grabbed the loose rubber, worked close in on Rooke who missed and adder another counter for Knox. The score then being—Knox 3, St. James 1.

Here the St. James team stepped lively and had many close shots but could not defeat Chambers. After a race by both teams from end to end, Knox obtained the puck when in a scrimmage. F. Cripps kicked the puck which entered the nets. From the end, the boal being permitted.

A delay was then staged when W. Cripps was checked hard by McLeish who was benched while Billingsley replaced Cripps who was off for repairs.

No damage was done while McLeish was in the cooler.

The teams were even when the St. James Boys, at last, worked a beautiful combination down the ice and after a scrimmage in front of Knox nets, lost the rebound from Chamber's pads which Martin obtained and made way for St. James net only to be checked by Graham who made a perfect shot which beat Chambers and made the score—Knox 3, St. James 2.

Again, there was fast hockey displayed by both teams while St. James boys saw a winning light and determined to walk off with the colors with only three minutes left when Al. Gray took a splendid pass making a sure shot which landed in the corner of St. James net too far for Rooke to save.

A short period and St. James boys worked hard but father time beat thom too and the game ended in favour of the Knox crew.

It was a good game, hard to loose but had to be worked for by the Knox boys.

Woods for Knox did some splendid stick handling with Gray, McLeish and Archibald working well and were dangerous at many stages of the game.

Martin played well but seemed to have a hard man to beat when met by Wilson as both were strong on the checking.

Both goalies were splendid.

Rooke for St. James did not seem to be in the best form but turned in a good game and handled many difficult shots, especially when close in shots were made for St. James. Wilson and Graham were responsible for their counters.

The Cripp brothers need a lot of watching and were dangerous on many occasions.

Shadgett did well but has played better hockey on his home rink. He seemed to skate a lot but failed on many open chances to pass the rubber when the openings meant sure goals.

Knox, now having chased Saint James to the back ground, will now meet George Street in the final for the championship, on Wednesday evening, March 19th, from 6 to 7 at Brock St. Arena.

George st. defeated them on the first of the final 1-0. Should Knox defeat George St., a second game will be arranged for at once.

N. McDougal handeld the game splendidly and to the satisfaction of both teams. He will also handle Wednesday's game.

The Line Up:

St. James — A. Rooke, goal; W. Cripps, r. defence; W. Graham, l. defence; K. Shadgett, centre; R. Wilson, r. wing; F. Cripps, l. wing; subs Billingsley.

Knox— Chambers, goal; Woods, r. defence; McLeish, l. defence; Archibald, centre; Martinl, r. wing; Gray, l. wing.

Referee—N. McDougal.

Score—Knox 4, St. James 2.

AURA LEE PLAY JUNIOR FINALS

Beat Sons of Ireland 8-1 in Sudden Death Game.

BETTER TEAM WON.

TORONTO, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Aura Lee celebrated St. Patrick's Day in an auspicious manner, advancing to the finals for the Canadian Junior championship by an 8 to 1 victory over the Sons of Ireland, champions of Quebec, in a sudden death game at the Arena last night.

The Ontario champions were better in every department of the game and again proved that Junior hockey in the lower provinces does not measure up to the brand played in the O.H.A.

DISEASE CARRIERS

"Speaking of typhoid fever germs," Mrs. Mann continued, science has learned that some people are just natural human carriers of the little parasites.

"These people, carriers, as they are known, may be perfectly well themselves, but the germs hang on, and on and on.

"One of the most unusual carriers was a cook, known as 'Typhoid Mary.' Between 1902 and 1907, while employed in six different families, she infected 26 persons.

"In 1907 she was taken to a hospital and found to be a chronic carrier. She was released and was lost sight of for a time, but in 1915 25 cases of typhoid occurred in the Sloan Hospital of New York, and Mary was found to have been employed there.

"Many other cases were probably, though not certainly, traced to her activities, and it is even possible that she was the cause of the waterborne outbreak of 1300 cases at Ithaca, N. Y., in 1903."

VARSITY BEAT FALLS AT HOME

Winners Travel West to Play in Allan Cup Finals.

SCORE WAS 3-1.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Toronto Varsity will go west to play Port Arthur or Coleman Tigers in the final series for the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Canadian amateur hockey championship, and won last year by the Soo Greyhounds.

The Collegians qualified for the final by defeating Niagara Falls, Senior O.H.A. champions, here last night 3 to 1 and winning the round 9 to 2.

The last game to decide the Eastern Canadian championship was fast and well played, and a strenuous exhibition that had 4,500 fans continually on their feet cheering the home team's gallant efforts to win.

Beaten on the round by a better team, the Falls took their defeat like true sportsmen, and Gene Fraser, who played himself out in his anxiety to win, was carried off the ice by the Varsity players, showing the fine spirit between the winning and losing teams.

Then Fraser called for three cheers for the visitors, the fans giving it with will.

MONTREAL, March 17. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand $4.78 1-8.
Sterling cables $4.78 1-2.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 17. — Owing to another severe break in wheat futures on account of the heavy liquidation and the weak cable advices, cash prices at Winnipeg to-day broke 14 1-2 cents to 15 cents per bushel, making a net drop in two days of 19 1-2 cents to 19 3-4 cents per bushel, No. 1 Northern closing at $1.56, No. 2 Northern at $1.46 per bushel, ex-Nortehrn at $1.46 per bushel, ex-store Fort William. The only change in premiums was an advance of 1-2 cent per bushel for No. 1 Northern to 1-2 cent per bushel under the May option. No. 2. grade was quoted at 6 cents under and No. 3 at 10 1-2 cents under.

The market for local oats was again weaker at a further decline of 1 cent per bushel, with car lots of No. 2 Canadian Western oats quoted at 66 cents, No. 3 C. O. at 58 cents, No. 1 feed at 55 cents and No. 2 feed at 51 cents per bushel, ex-store.

Flour Declines.

The feature of the flour trade was the pronounced weakness that developed in the market for spring wheat grades, and millers generally marked down prices another 40 cents per barrrel, which makes a net decline for the month of March to date of $1.30 per barrel. There was no improvement in the volume of business with any source. The market was quiet, with car lots of firsts patents at the close offering at $9.80, second patents at $9.30 and strong bakers at $9.10 per barrel in jute bags, ex-track, less 10 cents per barrel for spot cash.

A fair amount of business was reported in millfeed. Manitoba bran was quoted at $28.25, shorts at $30.25 and middlings at $36.25 per ton. The condition of the baled hay market was unchanged, prices being about steady owing to the fact that there was no pressure on the part of holders to make sales.

Receipts of butter were 1,648 packages, as aginst 2,224 for the same day last week, and 29 for the corresponding day a year ago. A moderate amount of business was reported. There was no actual change in prices. Cheese receipts were 2,282 boxes, as compared with 966 for the same day last week, and 18 for the corresponding day a year ago. The increase on Monday and to-day was said to be due to the fact that further importations of New Zealand cheese have come to hand. The market was quiet with prices about the same.

Beans were quoted at $2.70 per bushel.

Never neglect lame muscles

Try this never-failing treatment

Going around half-crippled by lame muscles is needless — when it's so easy to get limbered up with this world-famous liniment.

Pat on gently a little Sloan's. It needs no rubbing. The liniment itself does the whole job. In it are stimulating ingredients that start the blood circulating swiftly through the stiff, painful muscles, and this increased supply of fresh, pure blood washes out fatigue poisons and rebuilds broken-down tissue. Marvellously—your lameness is gone.

Millions know and use Sloan's. All druggists have it—35 cents.

Sloan's Liniment kills pain!

To residents of North America no river in the world embraces such wealth of historic romance as the mighty St. Lawrence.

Up its great waters, the brave pioneers of New France travelled on their voyages of discovery and settlement—the renowned Jacques Cartier to found the city of Montreal, nine hundred miles from the sea; the courageous La Salle on his long journey to the Mississippi; the gallant Champlain to found Quebec; the devout Recollet Fathers on their missions to the Indians.

Travelling on the St. Lawrence Route to Europe one starts at Montreal and for two or three days the beauties and historic features of the river pass before one in entrancing panorama. To view them adds immeasurably to the pleasure of the overseas voyage.

PRESS FOR HIGHWAY TO LINDSAY IN 1925

Chamber of Commerce is on Trail of Big Improvement.

The following resolution was adopted at the meeting of the Executive Council of the Chamber of Commerce and copies forwarded to the Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Department of Public Works and Highways, Provincial Government The City council and the Lindsay Board of Trade.

Whereas, we believe that it is the intention of the Department of Public Highways to redesignate the county and county-provincial highways in this district, and

Whereas, we believe that the improvement of highways results in a considerable increase in tourist traffic, and more particularly when making more easily accessible our attractive lake districts ,and

Therefore, resolved, that we, the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Peterborough, would respectfully recommend that the Provincial Government designate the main highway between Lindsay and Peterborough as a Provincial Highway, which will then connect the Highways now existing from Lake Ontario to the municipalities referred to, and make the Kawartha Lake District more accessible, in addition to being of immense service to the residents of the County of Victoria and Peterborough.

KINGSTON GETS THEM.

Boys Who Stole Money From Milk Bottles Rounded Up.

KINGSTON, March 18.—(Special)—For some time complaints have been received from various sections of the city about money being stolen from milk bottles left for milk vendors. Detective Thomas Mullinger has been working on the case and succeeded in rounding up three boys, who pleaded guilty to the theft. One was sentenced to one month in jail, as he had been convicted of a similar offence in Napanee, and the other two were given suspended sentence as they were never before the court before.

ST. PATRICK'S DANCE.

Fifty Booster Club Held Successful Affair Last Night.

A St .Patrick's Dance was held under the auspices of 50's Booster Club last night and was a huge success. About two hundred and fifty people were present, some from Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and Lindsay. Everybody took advantage of the good music supplied by Mr Follis' Orchestra. Lunch was served at 11.30. After lunch was over the step dancing and waltz competition took place. Mr. M. Toomey won first prize, a smoking stand, for step dancing, the prize being donated by Mr. Walter Belleghem. Mr. Clayton Freeburn won second prize, a side of bacon, donated by Mr. J. R. Childerhose. Miss Olive Neals and Mr. George Robertson won first prize for waltz —half dozen sherbert glasses, which were donated by Mr. E. V. Warne. Mrs. J. R. Childerhose and Mr. E. N. Austin won second prize—a box of chocolates donated by Lowe and Outram, wholesale confectionery.

Mr. E. Rice, general foreman for the C.N.R., Montreal, and his assistant, Mr. Edward Pearson, also of Montreal, and Mr. J. R. Childerhose handled the judging in a very able manner.

Mr. Al. Spencer, president of the club, was floor manager, handling the position in his usual good form. Mr. James Pickering introduced the visitors from out of town. Mr. M. Sproats handled the candy booth, which was appreciated by the visitors.

Mrs. A. Spencley, Mrs. F. E. Dunford, Mrs. George Raines, Mrs. James Pickering, Mrs. H. Robertson, Mrs W. Bertrand, Miss Rose Foster, Miss Myrtle Frost served the lunch, assisted by the male members of the club.

SHAMROCK TEA.

South End Sewing Circle Entertained at Home of Mrs. B. Cunningham.

A very pretty Shamrock Tea was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. Cunningham, 227 Perry street, under the auspices of the South End Sewing Circle of Knox Church.

Despite the inclement weather, there was a good attendance of ladies, who were received by Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. J. J. Polock, —convenor of the Sewing Circle.

The house was artistically decorated with a profusion of shamrocks, and the tables were centred with shamrocks and a huge silver basket of daffodils, with yellow candles in silver holders. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. Benson,assisted by the Misses Helen Wedlock, Dorothy Gillespie and Annie Cunningham, wearing dainty shamrock-sprinkled aprons and caps. Ladies in charge of the refreshments were Mrs. J. Ego, Mrs. J. Girard and Mrs. Whitfield. The guests were ushered into the tea-room by Mrs. D. Batteer.

During the afternoon, vocal solos were given by Mrs. Walter Byers, Mrs. H. Doig and Miss Ethel Kennedy, and instrumental selections by Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon, and the Misses Josephine Arthur, Alma Blanchard and Alma Girard. Miss Helen Ross also delighted her audience with two splendid readings.

LONDON, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—King George leaves to-morrow on the Mediterranean trip prescribed by his physicians during his recent attack of bronchitis.

King George will arrive at Calais, to-morrow afternoon, en route to Italy, for his health cruise in Mediterranean. He will cross France as a simple private citizen without any official attentions by the French Government. The government desired to arrange a reception fitting to his rank, but King George requested that he be allowed to maintain an absolute incognito. His Majesty will take a round about Schedule Completed in Win For Mr. Runnett—11 to 10.

A schedule of games, which have been in progress for some time by the All Saints' Club, after much excitement and close competition, was completed last evening, Mr. Runnett winning the hat by defeating Mr. Waudby in the finals by one point, the score being 11-10. A new schedule will be formed on Tuesday, March 31st. The Sons of England will play a game in the hall on Tuesday evening next, March 24th.

OMEMEE LEAGUE HEARD LECTURE

League of Nations Ably Discussed by F. G. Sandy.

CITIZENSHIP NIGHT.

OMEMEE, March 18.— Monday was Citizenship night in the Young People's League of the Methodist church. The meeting was in charge of the president of that department of league work, Mr. Vernon Lang. During the evening vocal selections were rendered by Rev. E. W. Rowland and the Misses Pearl Widdis and Lila Parsons.

Mr. F. G. Sandy kindly contributed the topic for the evening and chose the subject of the "League of Nations" for his address. This address proved most interesting and instructive and at the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the speaker.

A unique contest was put on by Miss Violet McBain, which provided a merry half hour.

The following is, in short form, some of the address Mr. Sandy gave:

Before commencing his talk the speaker modestly said he did not feel equal to his subject. "The League of Nations," but if he could arouse interest, secure more public sentiment in favor of one of the greatest movements of our day, he would be satisfied."

The League was formed to settle disputes between nations, and avoid war. Just now, when everyone is feeling the burden of taxation, it is interesting to note that we in Canada are paying about $15,000 per hour as our share of the cost of the war. Out of every $1.00 of taxes paid in Great Britain, 75c. goes to pay our war debts—no treasure of art, and greatest of all, of the flower of young manhood, 60,000 of our brave young men, are gone.

The speaker then told of the formation of the League of Nations, thehope of the world. How it functioned. First the Assembly, second the Council, and third the Secretariat or Civil Service. He gave some notable examples of what the League had accomplished in stopping a war between two small nations and then compelling one of the great powers to pay for the loss she had caused another member of the League.

The object of the League is to bring peace to the world, not a peace of stagnation or of oppression but of justice and to settle disputes between nations according to law.

Mr. Sandy then discussed the protocol and condemned the United States for not fulfilling the pledge President Wilson had given, but hoped yet that she would take her place with the other great powers and so ensure the peace of the world.

None of us can afford to ignore this great subject. Sir Oliver Lodge said, "There is power enough in a trifling amount of radium to blo wup the German fleet, may God grant that we may not discover the way to unlock it until the world knows how to use it."

The speaker then appealed to the church for support, reminding them that they were followers of the Prince of Peace and further that Christ did not advocate the peace of his nation only, but universal peace. Such is the vision of the men who have organized and are fighting for the League of Nations. Is it not worthy of our support.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG WAREHOUSE

Large Section Gutted— Loss $50,000—Firemen Injured by Wire.

HYDRO HERO.

TORONTO, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—Loss estimated at $50,000 was incurred when fire gutted a large section of a three-storey warehouse in the downtown section of the city this morning. Two firemen were injured and two narrowly escaped death when a high voltage wire dropped on them. Their lives were preserved by the quick action of Norman Ashley, of the Hydro-Electric emergency staff, who cut the wire.

ST. PATRICK'S TEA.

St. Andrew's Church Auxiliary Entertained in the Church Parlors.

Under the auspices of the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church, a St. Patrick tea was held yesterday afternoon in the ladies' parlors, followed by high tea from 6.30 to 8 p.m., served in the Sunday School Hall.

Guests were received by Mrs. R. M. Wadell, president of the Auxiliary. Decorations on the tables were green candles and silver holders and shamrocks. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. J. Eaton and Mrs. J. Jamieson. The sale of home-made cooking and candy was in charge of Miss Sadie McCormack and Miss Lena Shearer.

The musical programme included vocal solos by Mrs. L. Spriggs and Miss Ida McBride, and instrumental selections by the Misses Cora Smith and Alice Riley. High tea was in charge of the Social Committee, with Mrs. Crawford as convenor, assisted by Mrs. A. Wood and the Misses Helen Henry, Bella King and E. Richardson.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

WHIRL OF GAIETY IN LEONARD FILM.

"Cheaper To Marry" Colorful Picture of New York Life.

Given a lavish setting in the whirl of modern social life, "Cheaper to Marry," Samuel Shipman's big New York stage success, was filmed by Robert Z. Leonard and the result, regarded by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials as one of the most dramatic pictures of the year, will be seen at the Capitol Theatre to-night.

Brilliant social events in the luxurious surroundings of New York hotels and clubs, intimate glimpses into the life behind the doors of an exclusive women's athletic club, and thrilling scenes in the stock exchange all go to make the film version of the play an unusual picture.

War of Sexes.

Threading through the picturization is a powerful story of the age-old war of the sexes, which comes to a startling and realistic climax.

Jim Knight, played by Lewis S. Stone, one of the finest actors of America, wages a bitter fight in conventions and loses. Matrimony, the film discloses, is the best and cheapest policy.

The cast is an exceptional one. Besides Stone, it includes Conrad Nagel, Paulette Duval, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Richard Wayne.

A "Follies" Graduate.

Miss Duval, former French dancer in Ziegfeld's "Follies," is seen in her first big screen role since "Monsieur Beaucaire," the Valentino film in which her characterization of Madame Pompadour won wide acclaim. She is the mistress of Jim Knight, while Nagel and Miss de la Motte play opposite each other for the first time in their careers. A rich vein of comedy runs through the picture, capably handled by Miss Fazenda and Mr. Gillingwater.

Alice D. G. Miller write the scenario, and is given credit for bringing a stage play to the silver sheet without a single fundamental change in the original plot.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH TEA.

St. Patrick's Day Event at Home of Mrs. Roland Denne.

The Church Women's Association of St. John's Church were hostesses yesterday at a St. Patrick tea and musicale, held at the home of Mrs. Roland Denne, who received the guests, assisted by Mrs. R. C. Blagrave, officiating in the absence of the president of the society, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard. The tea-table, presided over by Mrs. A. H. Stratton, was charmingly arranged in green and white, with a central basket of white carnations and pussy willows, surrounded by white tulle with dainty little marionettes in cutouts of Irish men and maidens, and green candles in silver holders. Mrs. C. L. Brewer was convenor of arrangements, assisted by Mrs E. B. Clegg, Mrs. A. W. Turner, Mrs. J. J. Howden, Mrs. R. E. Clark and Mrs. V. Tully. A musical programme included vocal solos by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, Mrs. Dickenson and Mrs. G. S. Parlour, instrumental numbers by Mrs. F. Hills and readings by Miss Ethel Cooper.

SUNDOWN

By E. J. HUDSON

An intensely dramatic and thrilling story of pioneer life with the biggest idea behind it the period has produced.

A hundred thousand steers thundering across the plains in a wild stampede, eyes bloodshot, bellowing in rage and terror — and in their path one lone man stood undaunted to protect a girl and a child. Here is the thrill of a life time.

CLAYTON HAMLIN.
(Contributed.)

This afternoon the body of Herbert Clayton Hamlin the 11-year-old son of Mr. Herbert E. Hamlin was laid to rest in the Little Lake Cemetery. Two members of his Sunday School Class and two members of the class he attended in the Public School, playmates of his own age, bore the casket to the grave. A few days ago he was alive, well, a joy to his parents, to his teachers and to his companions. Now his voice is silent, his laughter but a memory an inscrutable Providence has deemed it best that his spirit should leave us, but "He is not dead, the child of our affection,

But gone into that school
Where he no longer needs our poor protection
And Christ Himself doth rule."

Clayton was a member of the Murray Street Baptist Sunday School and one of its most faithful members. He was only absent once during the past year. His classmates will miss him sorely. At the Queen Alexander School his tragic death aroused the deepest sympathy among the pupils and teachers. At his home besides his sorrowing father and mother he leaves two younger brothers, Robert and Norman; and a sister, Margaret, to whom Clayton will soon be but a memory.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Rose, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, and was marked by many expressions of sympathy from all parts of the city. Among the many floral tokens received were wreaths from the Canadian Packing Company, the Queen Alexander School, the Murray Street Sunday School, all testifying to the sympathy felt by all the community in the tragic bereavement of this home.

Larned, furthermore, in 17 out of 20 seasons of active competition ranked one-two-three in the national ratings. He was placed first, eight times; second, five; third, four; fifth, once, and sixth ,once. In only one year, 1898, did he fail to get in with the first 10.

Larned's performances on the court doubtless stand without equal and they aren't likely to be approached, either, unless Bill Tilden, present champion ,can hold to the pace for several more campaigns.

The aged mother of Mrs. Fairfield who lives about three miles north of Omemee, had the great misfortune to fall a few minutes after her arrival from Haliburton district, to visit her daughter, breaking her hip. The unfortunate woman is under the care of Dr. Earle, who is doing all in his power to alleviate her suffering.

Friends of Mrs. William Best will be pleased to hear she is on the way to recovery, after a severe attack of influenza. Miss Brass of Lindsay was the attending nurse, but having contracted the disease, another nurse was summoned, who is looking after the two patients.

Mrs. G. Cook of Mount Horeb, who recently resided here, is seriously ill with the "flu." Dr. H. T. Carmichael is in attendance.

The Young People of Christ's Church are planning to repeat the play, "Nothing but the Truth," on Easter Monday evening, in Coronation Hall.

Service of Song.

A Service of Song was held on Sunday evening last in the Methodist Church, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregation. The regular choir contained about twenty voices, while the echo choir in the gallery at the back of the auditorium had about the same number, and the juvenile choir in the front pews ontained even more. The hymns chosen were old and familiar, among them being "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," "I've Found a Friend in Jesus," "Will Your Anchor Hold," "Happy Day," and many others.

Special numbers were rendered by Misses Mary and Katy Weir, who contributed a very pretty duet "Dear Spirit Lead Me," and Mr. T. J. Parsons rendered in his clear bass voice, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," the choir joined in the chorus. The Juvenile Choir entered heartily into the chorus "Win Them One by One," and the regular choir contributed a number; all of which made the service one of enjoyment.

WOOL GROWERS TO CO-OPERATE

Maintaining and Expanding the Wool Using Industries of Canada.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Increased co-operation among wool-growers, wool manufacturers, subsidiary industries and supply houses towards maintaining and expanding the wool-using industries of Canada is evident from the programme of the seventh annual meeting of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, which has been called for Wednesday, March 25th, at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto.

George A. Dobbie, of Galt, the President, will give a survey of conditions in the industry in the past year, W. A. Dryden, Director of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, will speak on the possibilities and advantages of increasing wool production in Canada, and Mr. H. G. Foster, of the Ontario Minimum Wage Board, will speak on labor conditions in the industry, with special reference to the effect in Canada of competition from cheap European labor existing on lower standards of living.

Besides a large gathering of members and associate members, the latter representing subsidiary industries and supply houses, invitations to attend have been sent to all woollen and knitting mills in Canada, and Col. Robert McEwen, President, and the Board of Directors of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association, will be present at the annual luncheon.

HASTINGS DEBATE.

Public School Pupils Succeed in Proving Canada Better Than U. S.

HASTINGS, March 18.—A very interesting debate was dealt with on Tuesday afternoon at the Public School by the pupils.

The subject of the debate was, "Resolved that Canada has Greater Natural Resources than United States." Dorothy Johnson acted as chairman and Rev. D. A. Thomson and C. P. Doughty were chosen as judges.

The affirmative was taken by Annie Spooner, Jean Baker, Thelma West and Pearl Abbot, while the negative side was supported by Dorothy Kerr, Elna Killenbeck, Marion Clapper and Jean McKee.

Much interest was taken in the debate by the pupils, and after summing up the points made by both sides, the judges' decision was awarded the affirmative by only one point.

Rev. D. A. Thomson gave an address on the life history of St. Patrick.

A spelling match was given by the second and third classes. The second class match was won by Pansy Killenbeck, and the third class was won by Iden Bonds.

At the close of the afternoon's programme a vote of thanks was tendered Rev. Thomson by Everett Whitred and Jean Baker.

PRISONER IS ON HUNGER STRIKE

Foreigner at Portsmouth Has Been Forcibly Fed For a Year.

WEIGHS 160 LBS.

KINGSTON, March 18. (Special.)—It was learned to-day that a foreigner confined to the Portsmouth Penitentiary has been on a hunger strike for a year, enduring forced feeding in the big prison at Portsmouth. The foreigner is serving a term for shopbreaking, and in making a break for freedom was shot in the leg. On being examined at the "pen" hospital he was found to have $80 on his person and this was taken from him. This fact constitutes his grievance.

'You may hang me, you may cut my t'roat, but you no make me eat!" he reiterates from day to day. 'In this country there is no justice. Policeman he shot me, and then rob me. For that I no eat."

When the prisoner first went on the hunger strike in February, 1924, it was thought that he would soon have enough of that peculiar method of revolt, but when his weight had gone down from 140 pounds to 90 pounds it was seen that something must at once be done, and forced feeding was resorted to, and has continued without interruption ever since. He now weighs 160 pounds.

The convict has been examined by the psychiatrist, who pronounces him rational in every way. Neither reasoning nor confinement nor corporal punishment have had the slightest effect in altering his determination.

"I am not a gypsy to change my mind," he said proudly. He is convinced that an injustice has been done him and until it is made right he will not yield.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of my dead Husband, John Adams Turner, who passed away on March 18th, 1924.

Rest, dear Husband, gently sleep,
"Them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him."—I. Thess, 4; 14.
My heart is sad today, and yet,
Faith can in triumph sing,
O, grave, where is thy victory?
O death, where is thy sting?
Till then, we'll dry each falling tear;
The prospect—O how fair!
It shall be soon, perhaps, today,
We'll meet Him "in the air."

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT.

Private Bills Committee Adjourns in Hope of Agreement.

TORONTO, March 19 (Canadian Press).—Further postponement of the discussion of Church Union bills was made by the Private Bills Committee this morning until next Tuesday, at ten o'clock, in the hope that an agreement will be reached by the church bodies in the meantime. A report was made that the conferences held Monday and Tuesday had ended in failure. Several members of the committee pointed out the desirability of a settlement being reached and W. S. Haney moved a resolution viewing with regret the failure to reach an agreement regarding the division of church properties and urging another effort. This resolution was adopted and the committee forthwith shelved the subject till next Tuesday and the church forces went into conference again.

Tornado Kills Hundreds in Towns Wiped Out

1,000 REPORTED DEAD AND MANY TOWNS IN RUINS MARKING DESOLATE TRIAL OF TERRIFIC CYCLONE ACROSS THE STATES OF ILLINOIS AND INDIANA

Nearly 1,000 Dead in Mining Town of West Frankfort, Ill., First Estimate.

DEATH LIST 250 IN MURPHYSBORO

Towns Filled With Frantic People Searching Wreckage for Friends and Relatives.

FIRES BROKE OUT

CHICAGO, March 19. — (Canadian Press).—More than 1,800 persons are reported killed or injured by a tornado which swept through Southern Illinois and Indiana late Wednesday, causing great property damage and virtually wiping out two or three towns in its path, from Missouri to the north-east. Wires were down in every direction under the fury of the wind, and it was impossible, even late to-day, to check the reported casualties.

West Frankfort, Illinois, a mining town, on the face of last night's reports, suffered the greatest loss of life, estimates of the dead running as high as 1,000.

Murphysboro, thirty miles southwest of West Frankfort, with a population of 11,000, suffered severely with a casualty list reported as high as 250. Great havoc was wrought to buildings in this city and fires broke out in the debris. On reports of this situation an effort was made by Governor Len Small to send troops to Murphysboro, while relief trains and Red Cross workers prepared to depart from Chicago and St. Louis for the storm area.

Estimates High.

While railroad despatchers from previous experiences thought that first estimates of the casualties might prove excessive, it seemed certain from reports originating in many places on the edge of the storm's path that the dead might number in the hundreds. No reports had been received at a late hour of damage in the rural regions.

Among the other towns and cities to report damage and loss of life were Desoto, Illinois, with 150 casualties reported; Parrish, Illinois, with all but 3 of a population of 500 reported either killed or injured; Princeton, Ind., with an estimate of 100 casualties; Griffin, Ind., with 20; Gorham, Illinois, with 87; Carmi, Illinois, with 150, and Crossville, Bush and Hurst, Illinois, reporting serious damage and numerous casualties.

Buried in Debris.

Darkness descended over the desolated area shortly after the wind had twisted its way to the north-east and the streets of the demolished towns were filled with frantic inhabitants climbing over the piles of wreckage seeking missing friends and relatives. From the recesses of the jumbled timbers came the cries of injured persons, who were pinned beneath the wreckage while the bodies of the dead could be seen far down in the debris whence it was impossible to extricate them.

The twisting wind apparently assumed its dangerous proportions in Eastern Missouri shortly after one o'clock yesterday afternoon. It wiped out most of Annapolis, Mo., and then tore its way across the Mississippi River into Illinois, apparently lifting its devastating force and spreading out like a river delta until the various twisters descended some 25 miles west of the Mississippi.

FACTORY DEMOLISHED.

VINCENNES, Ind., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—Fifty or sixty persons were killed in Princeton, Ind., 25 miles south of here, according to unconfirmed reports received here. Most of the casualties are said to have occurred at the Heinz Pickle Company factory, which was reported to be demolished. All available doctors, nurses and ambulances in Vincennes have been rushed to Princeton, Ind.

SCHOOL BLOWN DOWN.

BENTON, Ills., March 19.—(Canadian Press).—Unverified estimates received by the Benton Evening News last night were that perhaps several hundred persons were killed in a tornado which struck West Frankfort, seven miles south of here, late Wednesday. Between 200 and 300 children were said to have been killed or injured when a schoolhouse blew down. Between sixty and seventy-five bodies have been brought to Benton, according to reports.

Timbers 15 Miles Away.

So prostrated were portions of Illinois and Indiana through which the tornado travelled in a series of erratic hops that definite figures on the loss of life and property were impossible to-day, although available reports trickling in from territories in which communication virtually was cut off, added to an uncertain casualty list, which it was feared would be increased as the day advanced.

Several towns in the path of the twister, which apparently came out of the Oseark Kills, virtually were destroyed, while fire in many places added horror to the havoc.

So terrific was the force of the storm that bodies were reported carried a mile, while timbers from the wrecked town of Desota, Ills., were found in Duquein, 15 miles away.

The greatest loss of life, according to available reports, occurred in Southern Illinois, where more than 500 were reported killed as the tornado tore north-eastward through Murphysboro, West Frankfort, Desota and other larger towns in that area.

At Desota the school house was razed, only three of the 250 occupants reported escaping without injuries, while 86 bodies had been taken from the ruins last night.

The main path of the tornado was less than 200 miles in length, but divisions of the twister hopped off in several directions.

Relief workmen, doctors, nurses, medicine and supplies were dispatched immediately from St. Louis, Chicago and other points. Troops were rushed into the district in Illinois and in several towns in the path of the storm local companies of militia were mobilized for guard duty and relief.

Lives Lost in 26 Towns.

Loss of life was reported from twenty-six towns, most of them in Southern Illinois, but it was believed that death and destruction visited many others in the storm area from which reports were still to be received.

Thousand Dead in City.

CARBONDALE, Ills., March 19 (Canadian Press).—Upward of one thousand persons are dead and probably three thousand injured with hundreds of others homeless within a radius of 25 miles of this city as a result of yesterday's tornado, according to reports filtering in here this morning.

A tabulation based on estimates of persons reaching here from stricken and devastated towns follows:

Murphysboro, with population of 13,000 reports between 250 and 300 dead, upward of 700 injured, 1,000 to 1,200 homes wrecked or burned and 4,000 to 5,000 made homeless.

Four Houses Remain.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., March 19 (Canadian Press).—Griffin, Posey County, Ind., a town of 750 people was almost completely obliterated in last evening's storm, only four badly damaged houses standing. Forty bodies were found in the streets.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., March 19 (Canadian Press).—Southern Illinois today presented a vast tableau of death and destruction as its horror stricken inhabitants awaited more definite reports on the toll of lives taken by yesterday's tornado, which swept clear across the central-southern port of this State.

With stricken towns almost completely isolated, definite reports as to general loss of life were lacking, but estimates placed the number well above the one thousand mark, with many more injured.

Bert Scoby, an undertaker from Marion, Ill., who came through West Frankfort en route here, said two undertakers there had sixty or seventy bodies each.

"The whole northwest corner of West Frankfort is razed and conditions there are as bad as they are here," Scoby said. "Three school buildings were practically destroyed. The tornado scooped out the entire of the High School, turned houses end over end and devastated block after block."

Seven Hundred Dead.

Dynamite was used here late last night to stop the fire. At Parrish

CHICAGO, March 19.—(Canadian Press). — Casualties with towns listed in order in which the storm struck are as follows, according to the fragmentary reports available from the devastated area to-day:

Annapolis, Mo., 2 dead, 40 injured; Altonbury, Mo., 1 dead, 10 injured; Murphysboro, Ill., 300 dead, 700 injured; Gorham, Ill., 80 dead; Desoto, Ill, 150 to 400 dead; 100 injured; Bush, Ill., 5 dead, 60 injured; Hurst, Ill., 6 dead, 40 injured; West Frankfort, Ill., 700 dead, 650 injured; Benton, Ill., 50 injured; Logan, Ills., 6 dead, 30 injured; Parrish, Ill., 75 dead, 422 injured; Thompsonville, Ill., 8 dead, 40 injured; McLeansboro, Ill., 17 dead, 80 injured; Carmi, Ill., 2 dead, 25 injured; Crossville, Ill., 1 dead, 10 injured; Griffin, Ind., 60 dead, 70 injured; Princeton, Ind., 100 dead, 200 injured; Elizabeth, Ind., 12 injured.

Tornado Struck Without Warning and With Unprecedented Fury.

ONLY ONE HOUSE LEFT IN PARRISH

STORIES OF WOE

CENTRALIA, Ill., March 19.—Striking with unprecedented fury, a severe cyclone late Wednesday afternoon, virtually destroyed the town of Murphysboro, practically obliterated Parrish and severely damaged Desoto, Duquoin, West Frankfort, Thompsonville, Logan and scores of other towns in Southern Illinois, causing an unestimated number of casualties, according to reports reaching here.

The storm struck without warning, increasing in intensity as it progressed. Starting at Tamaroa where slight damage was done, the tornado struck Dubois doing considerable damage. It then skirted Hallidayboro, again dropping on Desoto, where a two-storey brick schoolhouse was demolished, killing several children and injuring many.

West Frankfort, in Franklin County, was the next town reported to have been struck, being partially demolished with a consequent heavy loss of life and property.

Unleashed Fury Here.

Reports next were received from Murphysboro. Dropping with all its fury, the storm virtually devastated this little mining town, demolishing buildings and killing and injuring almost all within its path.

In some instances the suffering from the storm was intensified by fire, which broke out.

Later reports said that the town of Desoto was laid in waste by the storm, and that the ruins were burning. Several other towns similarly said that fire followed the storm.

Hundreds Homeless.

An earnest plea for relief from every quarter has been asked. Hundreds of persons are homeless, and suffering is said to be intense.

Meanwhile reports began to be received from Logan, Thompsonville, Parrish and other intermediate towns, each detailing damage more widespread than the other, culminating in the advices from Parrish which said that only one house was left standing after the storm had passed.

But three persons out of a total population of about 500 are said to have escaped injury in the storm which struck Parrish. West Frankfort reported more than 250 dead; Murphystone in excess of 100 dead and injured, while other towns reported their casualties ranged from a few to several score.

Gorham Laid Waste.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 19.—The Western Union Telegraph Company received a message last night from a railroad man who arrived at Ava, Ills., reported that Murphysboro, a city of 11,000 population, had been "virtually wiped out" by a tornado late yesterday. Scores were dying on the streets, he said. Ava is sixteen miles north of Murphysboro.

Seven persons were killed and between 75 and 0 injured at Gorham near Murphysboro, according to reports received here by the Missouri Pacific Railroad. This town of about 500 population was said to have been virtually destroyed, fire consuming any buildings not demolished by the windstorm.

Town Blown Away.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 19.—Illinois Central operators at Christopher, drove to West Frankfort and declared the dead were strewn about the street and blocks of buildings are in ruins, according to word received at the local Illinois Central Railroad offices. The town of Parrish was reported literally blown away.

Eye-Witness' Story.

DUQUOIN, Ills., March 19. — (United Press.)—The first authentic eye witness' description of the destruction of Desota and Murphysboro was to-day told by A. W. Essick, Editor of the Duquoin Call.

Essick was the first outsider to get into Murphysboro after the storm struck.

"The storm struck the city at the south-west corner and swept directly through the business section, cutting a swath about 100 yards wide.

The dome was lifted completely off the city had and hurled down the main street. The High school was demolished and virtually every building in the path of the storm wrecked.

"Fire broke out almost immediately after the storm swept over the town. One woman was burned to death and I counted 150 bodies of storm victims in one undertaking establishment." From Murphysboro I went directly to Desota. That town was wiped completely off the map. Death and destruction were everywhere and not one-third of the population had escaped death in the hurricane.

OTHER BIG STORMS

1900— Hurricane, sweeping Texas coast Sept. 8, piled up the waters of the Gulf of Mexico miles inland. Galveston was storm centre; about 6,000 lives lost.

1919 — Sept. 14, Corpus Christi, Tex. Storm and tidal wave killed 500; property loss, $25,000,000.

1919—June 22, Fergus Falls, Minn. Tornado killed 60 injured 150.

1919— July 11, Hurricane swept Chilean coast; 87 killed, $200,000,000 property loss.

1919—April 8, Durant, Okla. Storm killed 11.

1922—Hurricane and tidal wave caused 60,000 deaths at Swatow, China.

TARIFF CHANGE ON CLACK COAL WAS REQUESTED

Deputation From Cape Breton Says Duty of 14 Cents Too Low.

AFFECTS BUSINESS

Premier Replied That Local Situation in East Not Only Factor.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 19.—(By Canadian Press).—That no Government would be justified in making changes in the tariff in order to relieve a local situation, was the statement of Premier MacKenzie King to a delegation from Cape Breton and other parts of Nova Scotia which waited upon the Government yesterday afternoon to urge an increase from fourteen to fifty-three cents in the duty on American slack coal.

Mr. King referred to the fact that members of the delegation had suggested that the tariff might be used as a means for adjusting the present strike in Nova Scotia. This was quite impossible, he said. He believed, however, that this was not the ground that the delegation was basing its request on, and he assured the delegates that their request for a tariff increase on slack coal would receive the very careful consideration of the government.

Consider General Effect.

The Premier pointed out that the Government, in making changes in the tariff, was called upon to consider the effect of such changes on all parts of the country. If only Nova Scotia was to be considered, nothing would give the Government greater pleasure than to acceed to the request. He also stated that, with a narrow majority in the House of Commons, the Government must "move charily" in making tariff changes. However, he realized the gravity of the situation, he said, and promised the most careful consideration.

The great majority of the members of the Dominion Cabinet received the delegation early in the afternoon. W. F. Carroll, federal member for Cape Breton South, spoke first, explaining the purpose of the delegation. Mr. Carroll, as well as other speakers, blamed the present situation in Cape Breton, not so much on the strike as on the tariff which permitted slack coal to be dumped on the Canadian market at a duty of but fourten cents.

Grocers Insolvent.

Judge A. B. McGillivray, of Glace Bay, emphasized the very serious situation prevailing in the mining districts, which was also touched on by James McConnell, Mayor of Sydney. The latter said that 90 per cent of the retail grocers in and around the mining areas were insolvent as a result of prevailing conditions. Hance Logan, Federal member for Cumberland, testified to the intense suffering in his constituency due to the importations of American slack coal.

REFORM OF PENITENTIARIES IS ADVOCATED BY AGNES M'PHAIL WITH APPROVAL OF ALL PARTIES

Recommended Inmates be Kept Busy With Productive Work and be Paid.

NO VOTE TAKEN

Three Parties Indorsed Resolution for Broader System of Employment in Prisons.

OTTAWA, March 19. — (Canadian Press.)—Miss Agnes MacPhail, Canada's one woman M.P., proposed in the House of Commons yesterday such changes in the administration of penitentiaries as would provide:

(1) Sufficient productive work to keep the inmates employed.

(2) That a share of the proceeds go to provide for dependents and in case of no dependents such share shall be held in trust until release.

The resolution received warm support from both sides of the House. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, Sir Henry Drayton— who at the time was leading the Conservatives—and Robert Forke, Progressive leader, announced their intnetion of voting in favor. L. A. Martell, Liberal of Hants, had an amendment to eliminate the provision in regard to the prisoner with no dependents.

But the House did not reach a vote; and hereby was a lively little incident. On Wednesdays, the House automatically adjourns at 6 o'clock and at a few minutes to six amid shouts of "vote," U. G. McQuarrie of New Westminster, B.C., rose and suggested that as the Minister of Justice approved the resolution, he should be prepared to submit it to the House as a Government Bill.

"I should have to convince the Government and Parliament of its necessity," smilingly replied Mr. Lapointe.

Miss MacPhail Breaks In.

Mr. McQuarrie was continuing to speak when Miss MacPhail sharply questioned:

"Is the hon. member strong enough to take upon himself the responsibility of defeating this resolution for the pleasure of hearing himself talk?"

There were some cries of "order" and Mr. McQuarrie replied that everybody had treated the mover of the resolution with consideration and he would not think of doing otherwise himself.

Speaker Lemieux added that a member of the House was entitled to express his views and should not be interrupted "as the hon. member was interrupted."

Mr. McQuarrie was still on his feet when the clock marked six, and the House adjourned without reaching a decision on the resolution.

In speaking on the resolution, Miss MacPhail said that a great change had come about in the public mind regarding penitentiaries, yet the Penitentiary Act to-day did not substantially differ from the original Act of 1868. Productive work with pay would solve many of the problems of penitentiary administration. Miss MacPhail quoted numerous authorities in the United States and Canada advocating the introduction of a system of employment in penitentiaries.

Miss MacPhail quoted Governor A. E. Smith, of New York State, as stating that while a convicted person was where he belonged, in being removed from society, "that did not take from the state, the obligation to look after his wife and family."

Family's Suffering.

While prisoners had broken the law, yet it must not be forgotten that the family of the convicted husband or father suffered considerably by the disgrace and society's disapproval. If the members of such families were given some support, they would have an added respect for society and feel that there was a desire to treat them fairly. It would also assist prisoners in the belief that society had no desire to be harsh, and encourage them to get a firmer griup upon themselves. The most difficult period often for a convict was at the time of his release, when, with the earmarks of a released prisoner, and without money, he was sorely tempted to return to a life of crime.

Miss MacPhail pointed out that the sum of $1,441,900.93 had been spent in maintaining our penitentiaries in 1923. Added to this, there was the cost of conviction.

All this money would be saved by carrying out her suggestion and assisting the convicts and their families in the way of wage returns. This scheme had been successfully put into effect in Minnesota and Michigan.

Miss McPhail stated that in all the reading she had done on this matter, she had never encountered any adverse arguments. The penitentiaries should become re-mak-

STAFF REDUCED BY 78.

Soldiers' Settlement Board Now Numbers 426.

OTTAWA, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—Reduction in the staff of the Soldiers' Settlement Board was enquired into in the House of Commons yesterday by A. Knox (Progressive, Prince Albert). He was informed that during 1924, 78 men were discharged from the staff, of which 51 were married men. The principle recognized was one of efficiency first, said the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. Other things being equal, men with dependents were given preference, transfers from one office to another were unavoidable, and beneficial to the service.

The present staff of the board consists of 355 married men and 71 unmarried men.

SHEPHERD AND FAIMAN JAILED

Charged With Murder of "Billy" McClintock to Get His Estate.

DIED OF TYPHOID

CHICAGO, Mar. 19.—(Canadian Press).—William D. Shepherd was turned over to the Sheriff yesterday to be placed in jail on the indictment returned earlier, charging him and Charles C. Faiman with the murder of Shepherd's ward, "Billy" McClintock.

A writ of habeas corpus obtained prior to the indictment and nullified by that proceedings, was dismissed by Chief Justice Hopkins of the Criminal Court, when Shepherd was brought before him.

The court set 10 a.m. Saturday for Shepherd to be arraigned to make his plea and to hear application for bail.

The indictment, returned before Chief Justice Hopkins of the Criminal Court, charged that Shepherd and Faiman inoculated the victim with typhoid baccili. Faiman, the head of a science school, confessed, the State's attorney has announced, that he taught Shepherd how to feed "Billy" McClintock typhoid germs to get the boy's $1,000,000 estate.

The indictment further charged that poison in the form of aconitine, prussic acid and morphine were administered.

TRAINMEN HURT.

Construction Train on Welland Canal Derailed.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 19. — (Canadian Press). — Walter Brean, engineer on a construction train on the Welland Ship Canal, and Frank Savage, brakeman, are in the construction hospital as a result of injuries received when their train collided with a stone-laden train ahead, their locomotive being thrown from the track. Fireman Ross was less seriously injured, and was taken to his home.

GIFT TO THE Y.W.C.A.

Lot and House in Charlottetown as Memorial.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., March 19.—W. K. Llewellyn has donated to the local branch of the Young Men's Christian Association a large property on the corner of Notre Dame and Summer Streets, this city, consisting of a lot 65 by 75 feet and a two-storey residence, to be occupied and used by the Y.M.C.A. at its convenience. The gift will be a memorial to the donor's mother.

Bobbed Hair Common In The Days Of Yore

GALESBURG, Ill., March 19.—(United Press).—Girls with bobbed hair today have nothing on their grandmothers, according to Dr. T. I. Hurd of Minneapolis, one of the first co-eds to enter Knox college in the class of 1865, when telling of her memories of college life at a meeting of the Twin-City Knox Club

"When I went to college all the girls bobbed their hair," Dr. Hurd said.

Young girls of today may find it interesting to cut this out and keep it to show to their grandchildren in 1965 when, in all probability, bobbed hair will again be in style.

180 Hebridean Families Will Find Farms Ready On 30,000 Alberta Acres

MONTREAL, March 19. — The Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, through which the immigration to Canada of settlers from the Hebrides has been carried out, has, through the provisions of the Empire Settlement Act, purchased 30,000 acres of land north of Vermillion, Alberta, on which it is proposed to settle this year one hundred and eighty Hebridean families, it was announced here yesterday. Through funds secured through the Empire Settlement Act the Society is building houses on each quarter section of the block. Everything will be found ready for them by the settlers on their arrival and they will be placed many years ahead of their position under ordinary pioneer settlement. Each family will be assisted with a loan to get farming operations under way.

The block of land is diagonally intersected by the Cut Knife-Whitford branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The settlement of Hebrideans in Western Canada is regarded as one of the most satisfactory phases of Dominion colonization in recent years. The settlers have been assimilated quickly and have adapted themselves to their new surroundings.

PIRIE SUBJECT TO DELUSIONS

Handwriting Expert Says Imagination of Condemned Veteran is 'Riotous."

REPORT TO VETS.

OTTAWA, March 19— That John Buchan Pirie is undoubtedly subject to periodical delusional insanity is the opinion of F. D. Jacobs, hand-writing expert, at the request of the Ottawa branch G.W.V.A. Mr. Jacobs made a thorough study of Pirie's script. For many years Mr. Jacobs services have been used by medical men and employers in determining the abilities, infirmities and peculiar characteristics which he describes as an "open book" in handwriting.

He ascribes to Pirie a riotious imagination" which when it has the upper hand, would cause "the mind to believe absolutely in its illusive images."

Vanity Filled Ego.

The report is as follows:

"The high uprearing of all the capitals is indicative of pride, self-importance and a sensitive, vanity-filled "ego." The 'P' of the surname soaring in the air like an inflated balloon, tells of imaginative riot, a diseased inflation of ideas, which as there is no controlling will, shown by the weak "To' 'bars, is apt to get out of hand at any time. When this riotous inmagination has the upper hand the mind would believe absolutely in its illusive images. This state of affairs would come and go frequently, the non-consistency of the letters and the wide break between the capital and the rest of the name showing the domination of strong and swiftly-passing moods.

"At other times good business instinct show up, shrewd reasoning, the ability to write an effective business letter ,an off-hand way of talking that would make friends, humor concentration, no mean powers of appearance, cool judgment, and then the picture would suddenly change and for a time the reasonableness would be replaced by a disordered condition that would find it difficult to distinguish between right and wrong. There are no vicious thrusts to suggest the impulse of cruelty, or any tied up a's and o's telling of cunning impenetrability.

"The act for which Capt. Pirie's life now hangs in the balance was not due to lust or to greed of money He declared he loved the victims and the script by its curvy strokes and leaning to the right reflects, along with the selfishness, undoubted affection and real kindness of heart. While physical strength is shown the script also betrays physical cowardice which with the feebleness of will, found it impossibe to commit suicide after doing away with the family.

"The hand writing reflects something like periodical delusional insanity. It shows up in the uncontrolled impulse that fails to put on brakes. The descending words and lines indicate deep moods of depression, a letting go of oneself and a mind not able for the time to assume command of the personality."

The sound of a bell which can be heard 45,000 feet through water can be heard only 456 feet through the air.

FIRE BLOTS OUT FAMOUS HOTELS AT PALM BEACH

Winter Playground of Millionaires Reduced to Ruin at Loss of $2,000,000.

TWO ARE DEAD

Breakers and Palm Beach Hotels Destroyed With Cottages Located Nearby.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 19.—The fire which yesterday destroyed two hotels here, the famous Breakers and the Palm Beach, and a number of other structures, was brought under control shortly before nine o'clock last night. Two small cottages were still burning, but firemen regarded the situation as holding no additional danger. The damage was estimated at nearly $2,000,000.

An elderly man and woman whose identity has not been learned were burned to death in the fire. Local authorities expressed fear that the rapidly spreading flames had taken other toll of life.

The Palm Beach fire chief shortly before seven o'clock last night announced that it had been determined definitely that the Breakers Hotel fire stated from an electrical appliance used by a crippled woman guest occupying an upper southeast room. When the woman was taken from the room it was said that its interior was aflame.

Firemen Failed.

For nearly an hour firemen concentrated all the water that could be mustered on the central portion of the Breakers, but the flames spread through the interior of the building, consuming it, and then to the north wing. It, too, soon fell.

Only in the north wing were any valuables saved. Here maids and chauffeurs united with their employers in hastily gathering possessions, tossed them into pillow slips and bed sheets and carried them out or threw them from windows.

About seven o'clock rapidly advancing flames spread to the Bradley Club, playhouse of millionaires, and began destruction of this exclusive and expensively equipped building.

Occupants of the Royal Poinsiana Hotel were ordered to leave. Dynamite was taken to the scene but was not used for fear of injury to the thousands of people assembled in the vicinity.

Panic raged in the Breakers as several hundred guests began to throw their belongings, gems, clothing and treasures from the windows of the hotel.

FARMERS EXTERMINATE VILNA TIMBER WOLVES

Seventeen Slain in Alberta Drive Last Saturday.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—Farmers of the district north of Vilna, Alta., no longer will have timber wolves dictate their hours of evening visits. Thirty-four farmers organized a drive last Saturday, and before the day was over seventeen of the big beasts had been slain. The settlers believe the pack has been exterminated, or so thoroughly frightened that there will be no more attacks on individuals.

PARKS COMMITTEE TALKS BETTERMENT

Chairman to Act in Several Improvements — Help King Edward Park.

The Parks Committee met last night to consider improvements to the Parks and the care and use of them for 1925. Alderman Turner was in the chair.

The City Engineer reported that it would cost about $125 to fill the corner park at Burnham and Hunter streets.

No price was quoted by the Utilities Commission for an electric fight standard.

The matter was left to the chairman with power to act.

The chairman suggested that the corner at the south-west corner of King Edward Park be fixed up as a small beauty spot. This was also left to the chairman.

It was moved and passed that the chairman ask for tenders for taking care of the Central, Victoria, James Stevenson and King Edward Parks.

A letter was read from the Kiwanis Club recommending the establishment of a tourist camp at the Exhibition grounds.

The chairman and the Mayor were appointed a committee to interview the Exhibition Board.

The question of hours for athletics at King Edward Park was left to the chairman.

A number of letters were read and received, including one from Sir Henry Thornton expressing regret that the Canadian National Railway could not build a new freight shed this year.

GRAND ORANGE LODGE MEET IN OTTAWA CITY

Over 500 Delegates and Visitors at 66th Annual Meeting.

PROGRAM BROADCAST.

Entertainment Provided For Visitors to be Transmitted By Station C.N.R.O.

OTTAWA, March 18. — (Special to the Examiner.) — The opening of the Grand Orange Lodge took place in their magnificent hall on Gloucester street, at 10 o'clock this morning. The large auditorium was crowed to the limit, over 500 delegates being present, as well as several visitors.

The committee in charge of arrangements under the leadership of Wor. Bro. H. E. Shipman, C. M., are doing their utmost to make everything a success. Bro. Shipman is a very active and energetic worker whom every lodge in British America would welcome as a member.

This is the 66th annual meeting of the Grand Lodge, and it is 10 years since it was last held in Ottawa.

The Grand Officers who are in charge of the session are as follows: R. Wor. Bro. G. A. Lount, Grand Master, Cornwall; M. W. Bro. H A. Graham, Deputy Grand Master, Kingston; W. Bro. Falls, acting Assoc, Deputy Grand Master, Ottawa; R. W. Rev. Bro. Geene, Deputy Grand Chaplain, Belleville; R. W. Bro. C. H. Wood, Grand Treas, Kingston; R. W. Bro. D. J. Sutherland, Grand Secretary, Ottawa; R. W. Bro. Scott, Deputy Grand Secretary, Lindsay, R. W. Bro. A. E. Blackburn, Grand Lecturer, Cornwall; and R. W. Bro. J. H. Spence, Grand Marshall, Peterboro.

Among the notables who were present to-day are M. W. Bro. Hon. J. W. Edwards, Grand Master, of British America; the Grand Master of the Orange Young Britons, R. W. Bro. Judge McLean, P. G. M.; R. W. Bro. George Boyce, P. G. M., R. W. Bro. Duncan Munroe, P.G.M., M. W. Bro. H. C. Hocken, M. P. and others.

One of the features of the mornmorning was an address of welcome by the Mayor on behalf of the City Council, who hoped the gathering would be productive of inspiration and helpfulness to the many delegates, and who was pleased to extend to them the freedom of the city. He was accompanied by Ald. Sam Crooks, P.C.M., a prominent member of the association.

An address of welcome was read from the Ottawa County Lodge by Bro. H. C. Shipman, C.M. He was accompanied by W. Bro. Victor Magladry, D.C.M., and Bro. Stewart Gray, County Marshal. The first address of welcome was replied to by Bro. Rev. Creggan, Deseronto, and the second by W. Bro. H. B. Feterly.

Grand Master's Address.

The Grand Master gave a very inspiring address, which, if taken to heart by the different primary delegates, will do much to strengthen the Order.

One of the most pleasing events of the day was the presentation to R. W. Bro. F. M. Clarke, of Belleville, by the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East, of a beautifully framed address. Last year Bro. Clarke resigned the position of Grand Secretary, which he had fulfilled for thirty consecutive years, and he richly deserved the honor bestowed upon him. The address contained all of Bro. Clarke's history with the Orange Order, of which he has been a member for fifty - seven years. This is a record that any man might feel proud of. Bro. Clarke was totally taken by surprise and could not help but show his emotion but in a very few words thanked the Lodge for their kindness.

Radio Programme.

The following is the programme which is to be broadcast by Station CNRO, Ottawa, from the Lodge room to-night, commencing at eight o'clock, and any replies by the radio fans who hear it will be gratefully received by Harold C. Shipman, Orange Hall, 188 Gloucester Street, Ottawa:

1. County Lodge Orchestra, Mr. Nat, director—(a) "Copenhagen"; (2) "Dear Ono."
2. Knights of Pythias Minstrel Troop. Mr. G. Ramsay, director; G. R. Hopkin, assistant.
3. Address by Rev. Wood, Supreme Grand Chaplain of U.S.
4. Chorus—"Spring Delight," by a section of the Temple Choir.
5. Recitation—"The Cattle Thief,' by Mrs. H. A. Underwood.
6. Tenor solo—'Casey the Fiddler' by Mr. Clifford McAdam.
7. Selection—(a) "Toad Tired", (b) "Big Day," by County Orchestra.
8. Address by Rev. L. L. Lawrence, Right Wor. Grand Master of Ontario West.
9. Chorus—"Invictus," by Temple Choir.
10. Contralto solo—(a) "A Song of Slay"; (b) "Tip Too," by Mr. Clifford McAdam.
11. Address by Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, Most Wor. Grand Master of British America.
12. God Save the King.

Programme director—H. C. Shipman.

TO SPEED UP MAILS

Argentine Aero Club Suggests Establishment of Many Plane Routes.

BUENOS AIRES, March 19.—A saving of one week in postal service between New York and Buenos Aires, now occupying 18 to 20 days, is one of the features of plans for the establishment of mail plane routes radiating from this city which have been submitted to President Alvear by the Argentine Aero Club. The President has promised to send a message to congress at its forthcoming session commending an appropriation for carrying out the plans. These include mail plane service to Antofagasta, Chile; Asuncion, Paraguay, and remote points of the Argentine Republic.

The week's savings on New York mails would be gained by the proposed route to Antofagasta, where the airplanes would take on mails from steamships touching that port, and arrive in Buenos Aires two days later.

OBITUARY.

MARTIN F. CLARKE.

HAVELOCK, March 19. — The death occurred on Tuesday, March 17th, of an old resident of Belmont Township, in the person of Martin Finlay Clarke, in his 67th year, after an illness of six months, three of which he was confined to his bed.

The late Mr. Clarke was born in Percy Township, and moved to Belmont when he was fourteen, where he has resided ever since.

There are left to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing wife, one daughter, Mrs. Fred. Ellis, of Belmont, and two brothers, John of Highland Grove and James of Belmont.

The funeral will take place this afternoon. Service at two o'clock in the Methodist Church at Victoria. Rev. Mr. Herrington, of Cordova, will officiate assisted by Rev. Mr. Loucks, of Cordova, and interment will be made in the Victoria Cemetery.

CAMPBELLFORD HAS CHECKER EXPERT TO MATCH BRIGHTON'S

M. O'Donohue Learned the Game From Wylie, the Scottish Professional.

WAS CHAMPION

Willing to Play Ben. Ewing of Colborne—Clashed Years Ago.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 19.—Brighton claims the champion checker player in Ontario in the person of Ben. Ewing, who resides in that village, but who was born in Percy Township, near Warkworth, 85 years ago. It is only just to Brighton, however, to state that the claim was advanced through the medium of a Toronto paper by a writer in Port Hope. Mr. Ewing, it seems, is willing to take on any expert checker player of his age for the championship.

If the Brighton man and his friends are willing to waive a few years, Campbellford stands ready to take up the challenge, the task of upholding the honor of this town devolving upon Michael O'Donohue, who resides on Rear Street, and who has a record of almose unbroken victories extending over a period of upwards of 60 years. It is five years since Mr. O'Donohue has met a foeman worthy of his steel and he longs for another worth while contest and rouses at the offer of the Brighton man as the aged warrior revives at the scent of battle. He stands ready to play for the joy of contest and for the honor of his twon. Years ago he played against Mr. Ewing with varied success, but both have developed since their last meeting and a game between them now would be an exciting affair.

Born in Seymour.

Mr. O'Donohue was born in the Eighth Concession of East Seymour and lived on a farm there until he was 33 years old. For the past 45 years he has resided in Campbellford and before he retired some time ago, operated a lime kiln on the bank of the river opposite the Fair grounds. He also carried on business as a contractor and built some of the leading business blocks and residences in town.

Learned from Professional.

Mr. O'Donohue learned his first lesson in the science—for he so regards the game—from Wylie, the Scottish professional, who made a tour of Canada and the United States and who in all his life never was beaten, the nearest he came to defeat being two drawn games with an American. Wylie spent some time in Campbellford, where he had a large class of pupils—Mr. O'Donohue being one of them—his charge for instruction being 75 cents a game. The result was that years ago checker playing became a rage in this town and Mr. O'Donohue crowned so many kings that he was himself given the trophy of champion.

In Days of Old.

The late F. E. Goodrich, was tax collector and secretary of the Board of Education, he had an office on Frank Street, nearly opposite the post office. This place was the headquarters for the local checker players. One day a commercial traveller from Montreal, who was selling dentist supplies and with whom checker playing had become almost a passion, got into a game with Mr. O'Donohue and met with defeat. He seemed surprised that a mere villager should show so much skill but acknowledged his superior and offered to bring a younger brother from Montreal for a match for $100 a side. Mr. O'Donohue, however, preferred to remain in the ranks of the amateur.

Other Local Experts.

John Johnston, who resides just outside the town limits, on the east side, was one of the best players among the old timers. Mr. Johnston is older than Mr. Donohue, old enough to be in the same class as Mr. Ewing of Brighton, and if the latter makes the age limit a condition of the match, Mr. Johnston can no doubt be persuaded to enter the lists.

Another clever player is J. D. Cumming, but he is a mere youngster as compared with the other two. Mr. O'Donohue's own son, John, who is a High School teacher at Mattawa, but who spends his holidays here, has always, the father said, been one of the strongest players whom he has ever met.

VERY MUCH ALIVE.

MONTREAL, March 19. — Pronounced dead on May 22, 1924, and his body identified in the city morgue, Armand Georges Lariviere, former Montreal policeman, was declared alive by his wife yesterday, following receipt of letters from the "departed" man, explaining that he is in the American Army at Monterey, California. He says his disappearance was the outcome of a beer party during which he lost his memory. When he revived he was in the uniform of a United States' enlisted man.

LAWYER ON TRIAL

Charged With Two Hundred and Fifty Dollar Theft From Client.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—Alex. J. Sutherland, barrister, appeared in City Police Court yesterday, charged with theft, and the case was remanded to March 24.

It is alleged that a sum of money was entrusted to him by Stanley M. Scott, a client, and he failed to render an account of it. The amount involved is said to be $200.

BRIDE DRUNK WANTS ANNULED

Says She Was Not in Sober Senses When Married.

CLERGYMAN SCORED.

TORONTO, March 19 (Canadian Press).—Declaring that she was not in her sober senses on the afternoon of her marriage to James Daniel Deadey, aged 21, Hydro Electric radial conductor, on February 15th last, Dorothy Evelyn Doyle, aged 17, told a surprising tale before Mr. Justice Mowat in the non-jury assizes yesterday. The parents of the young bride seek annulment of the marriage, to which the father of the bridegroom agrees. After hearing the evidence, in the course of which his Lordship made some sharp comments regarding Ministers of the Gospel who performed wedding ceremonies under such circumstances as related by the bride and bridegroom in this particular instance, Judge Mowat reserved judgment.

The girl is a Protestant and the young man a Roman Catholic. The young bride told his Lordship that just before the marriage, which was hurriedly arranged, the young couple and two friends had several drinks, after which one of the number suggested, "Our friends are talking of getting married, and we all should get married, too." They set out in search of a Justice of the Peace, and Deadly secured the marriage license. From there, they proceeded to the home of Rev. George W. Robinson, Methodist minister, who tied the nuptial knot.

Rev. George W. Robinson, who performed the marriage, said he had asked the usual questions before the marriage. Asked by his Lordship if the appearance of the young counle indicated that they had been drinking, the witness replied in the negative, adding "The young woman was not drunk, but I smelt liquor on the bridegroom."

Deadey, the bridegroom, told his Lordship that at the time of the wedding ceremony, he was so intoxicated that he could scarcely repeat the words of the ceremony.

ONE MAN KILLED IN TAXI ACCIDENT

Second Man Has Skull Crushed—Driver Held By Police.

MONTREAL, March 19. — One man is dead, a second has a fractured skull, and a taxi driver is under arrest on a charge of speeding as a result of a collision between the latter's taxi cab and a street car last night.

The dead man is P. Beausolei, aged 40. He succumbed to a fractured skull in the General Hospital an hour after the accident.

The other victim is Joseph Lapointe, aged 49, who is now lying in the same institution with the front of his skull crushed.

Leon Allaeri, the chaffeur, who was driving the two men, is being held by the police.

ON TIME FIFTY YEARS

Employee Receives Watch on Completion of Half Century of Perfect Time.

WARRINGTON, Eng., March 19. —Thomas Corcoran, an employe in a soap works here, believes in punctuality and devotion to duty. During his 50 years' employment at the works he has not lost a single minute of time. The reason he gave for never being late was that he always went to bed early, and had a good night's rest.

In recognition of his unique record Corcoran was presented with a gold watch by his employers.

Mrs. Sabine of Peterboro is visiting her mother, Mrs. Livingstone, Queen Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Keefe have moved into the house on Queen which they recently purchased from the Stephenson estate.

Mr. McDermott, the new manager of the local branch of the Standard Bank arrived in the village on Monday and has rented the residence of the late Dr. S. P. Ford on Ridge street. Mr. Hartle who is being transferred to the Carlisle Branch left on Thursday morning for that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clarke, who have been visiting friends in Pontypool returned home on Monday.

Miss Vera Findlay, B. A., returned to Toronto on Tuesday, after spending the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Finlay.

Mr. Bertram who represents the health department of the City of Toronto was in this district during the week, calling at the different places from which they ship milk to the dairys in Toronto.

The 40th Northumberland Chapter I. O. D. E. held a very successful St. Patricks tea and Euchre party in the Forester Hall, on Tuesday evening.

INVESTIGATE WHEAT.

U. S. Government Orders Inquiry Into Price Fluctuations.

WASHINGTON, March 19. — Secretary Jardine yesterday directed the grain futures administration to make an immediate investigation of the recent violent fluctuations in the market price of wheat.

CLAIM AGAINST HOTEL

Suit for $75,000 Follows Fatal Accident.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—As an outcome of the fatal accident at the Macdonald Hotel on December 20 last, when A. M. Knight, local solicitor, lost his life, a statement of claim for $75,000 was filed yesterday in the Supreme Court on behalf of Bertha Pearl Knight, widow of Albert M. Knight, against the Canadian National Hotels and the Canadian National Railways, proprietors of the Macdonald Hotel.

NEWS WARKWORTH

Warkworth, March 19.—Mrs. G. I. Black has been ill with a very severe cold.

Mr. Jas. A. Armstrong, provincial liquor inspector, who has been in Toronto for several weeks, has been recently transferred to Cobourg.

Mr. Bert Cole, who has had a very good run of sap, was busy on Tuesday boiling down. This is probably the first syrup made this season, although a number of farmers have tapped.

Owing to the poor health of Mr. George Cockburn, Mr. Joseph Owen has been driving the Colborne and Warkworth stage route.

RESTRICTIONS ARE REMOVED

Austrians to Allow Free Export of Austrian Money.

VIENNA, March 19. — (United Press).—Government restrictions on foreign exchange dealings will be removed shortly by the Austrian Government, the United Press is informed to-day.

Free export of Austrian money has not been allowed since the currency debacle, and the anticipated move on the part of the Government is indicative of a return to better conditions.

WOMAN FORGER CAUGHT.

Forged Ex-Alderman's Name to Cheque in Her Favour.

LONDON, March 19. — Charged on two counts of forgery, a woman giving the name of Mrs. Cortes, aged 22, is being held at the police station, and will appear in the police court to-day.

Some months ago, it is alleged, the prisoner secured a copy of the signature of former Alderman James A. Tancock, which had been attached to a document in a real estate deal and is reported to have traced the name on a cheque made in her own favor for the sum of $175.

This she deposited in another bank and opened an account. Then she drew against it, and secured cash.

Life will taste sweeter . . . When that Corn is gone

A corn isn't just a pain—it's a drain. A tax on the whole nervous system. A blight, not alone on the toe, but on the spirits and the disposition. Doctors know that a corn can darken a man's whole viewpoint on life. Headache, fatigue, irritability and indigestion are reflexes of a throbbing corn... "Pain-messages" shoot to every nerve center, when a corn starts broadcasting.... If you would know blissful relief, apply Blue-jay to that burning corn. In ten seconds, the world will seem a better place to live in.... A tiny cushion—cool as velvet—fits over the corn and stops the pain at once. You wear it two days in solid comfort. When you take it off, the corn comes with it—gently removed by the little brown disc of magic medication.

PRAISE FOR HYDRO

By U. S. Senator in Attack on Smithsonian Report.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Smithsonian Institution was assailed in the Senate yesterday by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, for issuing a report criticizing Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission's operations.

Declaring the Government-owned power system in Ontario worked to greater advantage to the people than the privately-owned system in this country, Senator Norris said the American Government ought not to be engaged in the business of putting out "propaganda."

BEANS CHOKED CHILD

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., March 19.—Robert, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Futze, Charlottetown, died Tuesday as the result of swallowing two raw beans, which stuck in the boy's throat, causing strangulation.

891 DEAD IS COUNT.

CHICAGO, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—The most devastating storm in nearly half a century swept through portions of six mid-western states last night, collecting dead and injured. The toll is estimated at nearly four thousand, and causing property damage of many millions.

Early to-day the casualties are reported as 891 dead and 2,832 injured. From some sections definite reports are lacking. Twenty-six cities and towns in five states were hit by the tornado. Fire completed the destruction of large sections of many of these cities.

The storm swept a path from Cape Girardeau, Missouri, to Elizabeth, Indiana, with one branch of the tornado over Tennessee and Kentucky.

$12,000 PARCEL FOUND.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—The Post Office Department here announced yesterday that a parcel of bonds valued at $12,000, reported lost in transit a week ago, had been located in a mail car.

THE RANEY AMENDMENT.

The full airing of the issue involved in Hon. Mr. Raney's amendment to the Provincial Treasurer's budget motion is of more importance to the people of Ontario than the speedy winding up of the budget debate—even if it causes the prolongation of the session until after Easter.

The public has never been satisfied that that the whole story of the Home Bank's transactions with the Provincial Government has been told.

The fate of the $42,500, apparently paid by the bank by way of commissions, has never been disclosed, and there are many people who feel that the Government has not been as keen in investigating the transactions prior to Peter Smith's entry upon the scenes as it was to get to the bottom of the U. F. O. Treasurer's connection with the Home Bank deals.

Mr. Raney's action has thrown the whole matter before the House, and may lead to further action in investigating the bond transactions from the beginning.

The wind-up of the debate can well wait for a few days until this very serious matter has been threshed out.

MANY NON-VOTERS.

The Ontario Government has just issued a blue book giving the complete returns in connection with the O. T. A. plebiscite last October, the details covering the number of votes polled in answer to each question, the total number of votes polled, the number of names on the lists, etc.

The most surprising feature of the records is perhaps found in the comparatively large percentage of the available vote that was not registered.

In West Peterboro, for example, there were 17,857 names on the list; yet, in spite of the apparent interest in the campaign, only 11,470 votes were cast.

Six thousand, three hundred and eighty-seven votes were not registered.

In the east riding the showing was better, as out of a total on the list of 7,964 names 5,312 votes were polled.

The plebiscite campaign, it was thought, had stirred up general interest, yet over 9,000 people in Peterboro County were not sufficiently concerned in the matter to register their opinion on the two questions submitted to the electorate.

And throughout the Province the same conditions prevailed, so that it is evident that there must be a surprisingly large number of people without any particular views one way or another on the liquor question.

PROFESSIONAL HOCKEY.

Professional hockey interests make a mistake in letting their squabbles develop to a point in which the confession is frankly made that "it is not a question of sportsmanship, but of money."

In the last analysis, of course, the public understands that professional hockey is a business, but at the same time fans like to feel that there is a large amount of sportsmanship involved, that the players feel a club loyalty that appeals to them to give their best to bring victory to their side—in a word that they forget the money element in the thrill of the competition of the fastest game of the world.

But if magnates and players continue to remind the world that commercialized hockey is nothing but a business venture in which nobody cares anything for the game itself, or for the fans either so long as they continue to pay their money in at the box-office, then the downfall of pro. hockey will be as speedy and complete as was the ruin of professional lacrosse.

Hockey is Canada's own game, and we rightly believe that there is no pastime anywhere that approaches it for speed and thrill.

There is a place for the paid hockey player; the man who is expert and clever enough to rank with the best in the game should have a field in which to display his ability for the benefit of hockey connoisseurs.

But if the sport element is to be eliminated completely the whole structure will soon fall to the ground.

JUST AN EVERY-DAY JOB.

With no flourish of trumpets, no thrilling stories in the press to herald his arrival, a British airman has just completed one of the most remarkable aerial achievements yet recorded.

This flyer, Alan Cobham, with a record of having travelled over 200,000 miles in the air—check that up with your mileage record, Peterboro motorists—left in November last with Sir Sefton Brancker as his passenger to collect information in regard to the mapping out of Imperial air routes to India.

The journey, which has just been completed, covered over 17,000 miles, and was finished without a breakdown of any importance.

Yet Cobham had none of the assistance that helped the American flyers in their round-the-world trip.

It will be remembered that in their case every resource of the United States Air Force was employed, and no precaution was overlooked that promised to ensure the success of the venture.

The British birdman had no elaborate machinery of this nature.

In fact, he had nothing but his aeroplane, his passenger, a quantity of baggage, a few spare parts and a wealth of nerve, resource and skill.

He relied for his needs on what he could buy en route, and yet he has succeeded in completing a 17,000-mile air journey with the most happy results.

Cobham's exploit was not spectacularly presagented, it was just an every-day job as he viewed it; but the facts show that he has accomplished somewhat of a record in aerial navigation in a typically British way.

UNIFORM DAYLIGHT SAVING.

In deciding upon daylight saving time for the summer months the City Council has done well, and will have the general support of the public, both employers and employed, says the Montreal Star. The point naturally arises, however, that uniformity of action would serve to augment to a material degree the advantages derivable from summer time. Britain, France and Belgium have agreed to act in concert on the matter, thus facilitating both transportation and business transactions. If there could be uniformity throughout the Dominion, it would be an excellent thing for Canada.

In the past a great deal of confusion has been created through arbitrary differences in time between city and city and between town and country. This has disorganized business and has caused irritation and interference with the routine smooth operation of both industrial and commercial undertakings, within the Province as well as outside it. So long as summer time remains a matter for local decision, this confusion will continue to exist in more or less hampering measure.

If, however, the various Provinces were to make daylight saving a matter of uniform action, as they could very easily do, the whole difficulty would be eliminated by a stroke of the pen. Business interests throughout the Dominion would benefit substantially, and the elimination of conflicting times would automatically obviate any trouble in regard to transportation, banking, industrial operations, and every other sphere of daily activity. If Britain, France and Belgium find it worth while to act in accord, the Provinces of Canada have even better grounds for common action. It only needs an initial move, and all the difficulties would soon be swept away.

GOING DOWN.

Up to and including the year 1922 it cost about $5,500,000,000 a year to operate the government of the United States, according to Mr. Fred M. Woodruff, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Michigan district. The Coolidge policy of economy, Mr. Woodruff adds, has reduced this expenditure to practically $3,000,000,000 a year and the President has issued orders that "under no circumstances" shall the operating expenses of the Government exceed $2,000,000,000 in 1926. The added saving, Mr. Woodruff points out, will naturally result in reduction of the income tax so that the man of average income can expect to pay not more than one per cent. for 1926. For the ordinary American taxpayer with an income of $4,000 or less, the tax in 1922 was 4 per cent., but it has been steadily going down. In Canada it is still 4 per cent., and a day or two ago advices from Ottawa were to the effect that no reduction was expected this year.

This is the situation faced by Canada. A steadily decreasing tax across the line is not followed by reductions on this side. And if a man resides in Windsor or Walkerville or many other cities and towns throughout Ontario, he must pay a municipal income tax as well, something that the resident of Detroit does not need to worry about at all. Is it to be wondered that Canadians have moved across the border in large numbers during the last few years? Is it to be wondered that we are losing thousands of our finest young men, those whom we can least afford to lose? And yet, we ask ourselves, what is to be done about it? Huge annual amounts come under the heading of "uncontrollable" expenditures. That is to say that they represent payments on obligations incurred, in some cases, many years ago. Others are war debts. Still another is the annual railway deficit. Obviously these must be provided for. But, in addition to them, we have much expenditure that is controllable. This includes actual cost of government, public works of all kinds, grants and various national projects. If, for instance, the work of a dozen departments were merged into six departments it is obvious that a very substantial saving of money and a decided increase in efficiency could be registered. Someone thinks thirty or forty or fifty thousand dollars is needed for this or that work, but if the expenditure is not absolutely necessary then a saving can be made there. Money is scarce and taxes are heavy, but the Government is proceeding, nevertheless, with the completion of the fancy tower that is to decorate the new Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. This is a heavy expenditure that could easily have been laid over for a few years more. No doubt there are many others. In innumerable cases, of course, the carrying out of a policy of strict economy means the sacrifice of many things for which there exists a really urgent need. As the Star mentioned the other day, Windsor needs a new Canadian National station and a new Post Office. There can be no doubt of this. It is recognized, however, that both must stand over for a time. It is unfair, though, that this city should be deprived of these needed improvements if the Government is going to go on spending money in ways and for projects not any more essential.

The facts are not always pleasant, but the wise man faces them. When a fellow's income is only $2,000 a year, he must go on laying out four or five thousand for long without getting into difficulties. Canada is spending far too much money, in a governmental way, and the time has come for cutting down. Once more let it be said: Canada's chief needs are less government and more people.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks like a wet week in the Legislature. Raney first and then 4.4 beer.

Woman's clothes this summer will weigh but two pounds—including her shoes and hat, which account for seventeen ounces—according to experts. It is to be hoped it will not be a cold summer.

At least it can be said on behalf of the Hamilton hockey strike that the players did not wait until the night of the game to walk out.

It is always refreshing to find honest advertising such as the following notice appearing in the Hamilton Spectator: "This clinic is for those who cannot afford proper attention."

The Hamilton hockey strike is no different from any one lockout. The public has to suffer.

LECTURE ON WEST TO YOUNG PEOPLE

W. R. Learmouth Tells of Great Resources of Prairies.

HASTINGS, March 18. — At the Young People's meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Monday evening an address was given by Mr. W. R. Learmouth on "My Impressions of Western Canada." The speaker gave a clear outline of the work, business and profits of the many resources of the prairie provinces, and being at one time a resident of Saskatchewan, made his address very interesting to his audience.

During the evening a solo, "The Road to Yesterday," was rendered by Mr. J. C. Wilson, and Russel Learmouth gave a recitation; Messrs. Aubrey and Bruce Clapper gave a guitar duet.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Norma Anderson.

Cheese Factory.

The March meeting of the Ormond Cheese Factory, Hastings, was held on Saturday afternoon. The object of the meeting was the letting of the milk routes and the cheese drawing for the summer. Mr. James Seymour was hired to draw the cheese at eighty cents per ton.

A few of the milk routes were let, and the whey was disposed of the same as last year.

Personal.

Mr. T. A. Coughlan was in Campbellford last week.

Mr. G. B. Stevenson spent Saturday in Peterboro.

Mr. George Oliver, from Campbellford, was in Hastings on Saturday.

Miss Cherie Turner, of Campbellford, spent the week-end the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Huycke, "Sunny Brae."

Mr. W. M. Turner spent the week-end at his home here.

Miss Della Mae Downs, of Toronto, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Down, Cobourg Road.

Miss Luella Archer, of Campbellford, has recently been visiting her sister, Mrs. W. Humphries.

Mrs. J. McLean and daughter, Joan, of Calgary, Alberta, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Humphries.

Mr. Leo Rinard has returned from Toronto, where he has spent a short time.

Mr. J. Mulholland is spending a short time in Peterboro.

A THOUGHT.

TEARS AND SMILES.

If I could sweep into one spot
From off the earth to-day
The weary and the sorry things
Which heart-sick people say,
Then hear them all in one quick breath,
Perhaps I'd cry myself to death.

If I could only sling a net
Into the world to-day
And gather the amusing things
That happy pepole say,
Then read them all at one quick breath,
I'll bet I'd laugh myself to death.
—H. S. Haskins.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

ST. PATRICK'S SOCIAL.

HASTINGS, March 18.—The annual St. Patrick's social of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church was held on Friday evening. The programme was held in the auditorium of the church and opened with the chairman's address, the Rev. M. L. Hinton acting in his usual efficient manner in this capacity.

Miss Carrie Doxsee, organist of the church, gave a splendid solo on the pipe organ. Miss Cherrie Turner, of Campbellford, was present and rendered two vocal solos. Mr. Charles E. Jones gave a reading, "My Rival," taken from Kipling's writings. Miss Jessie Wilcox sang "The Midnight Fire Alarm." Mr. A. Shand favored with a violin solo, "Come Back to Erin," with variations. Miss O. Doxsee gave a humorous reading, "How Miss Dorothy Entertained the Minister," and Miss Mae Huycke rendered a vocal solo.

After the programme, lunch was served in the school-room of the church.

More than 35,000 lost umbrellas are turned in at London police headquarters each year.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Trade was fairly active with a slightly better tone to the market all round. Prices were not materially changed from yesterday, except for a few odd extra choice weighty butcher steers and handyweight butcher steers and heifers, and these in a few instances were a little better, one or more choice heavy beef steers going up to $8.25 and $8.50. With two export buyers out of the market this week the heavy steers have not been too plentiful, the local packers taking good care of the few available. All other grades are in good steady market, with the exception perhaps of the common fat cows, and these are a little draggy, while the choice fat cow is in demand, and firm from $5.25 to $6.

Export buyers will be in the market again next week.

With the held-over cattle there was a total of about 1,700 in today's offering, but the prospects are for a good clearing.

Small meats steady to firm.

Hogs continue to advance, and today were again quoted 25c higher at $13 f.o.b.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, March 18.—(Canadian Press).—In sympathy with the renewed strength in the future wheat situation to-day at the leading grain centres and the good enquiry for cash wheat in the Winnipeg market, prices were stronger and scored an advance of 7 3-8 to 7 7-8 per bushel, but the volume of business was not large. No. 1 Northern closed at $1.63 7-8, No. 2 Northern at $1.57 7-8 and No. 3 Northern at $1.53 3-8 per bushel, ex-store Fort William. The premium on No. 1 Northern advanced 1-2 per bushel to the May option price, but the other contract grades were unchanged.

There was some demand from exporters for Canadian Western oats in the local market. A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for car lots and prices were marked up 1 cent per bushel, with No. 2 Canadian Western quoted at 67 cents, No. 3 C.W. at 59 cents, No. 1 feed at 56 cents and No. 2 feed at 52 cents per bushel, ex-store.

There were no developments in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour, except that the tone was steadier in sympathy with the recovery of 7 3-8 cents to 7 7-8 cents per bushel in prices for cash wheat at Winnipeg. Prices were unchanged, with car lots of first patents quoted at $9.80, second patents at $9.30 and strong bakers at $9.10 per barrel in jute bags, ex-track, less 10 cents per bushel for spot cash.

The improved demand for millfeed was again in evidence to-day. The tone was steady and sales of car lots of Manitoba bran were made at $28.25, shorts at $30.25, and middlings at $36.25 per ton. A moderate amount of business was done in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were unchanged at $3.65 per bag of 90 lbs., delivered to the trade.

Receipts of butter were 926 packages, as compared with 464 for the same day last week and 73 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market was reported quiet with no actual change in prices. Cheese receipts amounted to 46 boxes, as against 51 for the same day last week and 24 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market remained firm, but the volume of business was small.

Beans were quoted at about $2.70 per bushel.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, March 18.—(Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here to-day as follows:

Sterling demand, $4.78¼.

Sterling cables, $4.78 5-8.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 18. — (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices today recoiled sensationally from the severe decline of yesterday, and following a spirited session in which "bull" traders re-established their influence, the May future closed at $1.63 7-8, an advance of 7 3-8c. July scored a corresponding gain at $1.60½, while October jumped 5½ to $1.36.

The coarse grain market also experienced a strong come-back, rye recovering 8c of Tuesday's loss. The other commodities all were substantially higher.

Shortly after the opening of the session, the market was swamped with buying orders, with "shorts" particularly active. Offerings, however were extremely light and prices whirled upward, May reaching the peak at $1.67½, an advance of 11 cents over Tuesday's close. Liverpool cables, which closed 7¼ to 8 pence higher, gave a strong impetus to the local market, while the reentry of exporters added to the bullish sentiment.

The seaboard reported that all wheat and rye offered overnight had been accepted, with sales estimated at 2,000,000 bushels of wheat and 1,000,000 of rye.

Cash wheat showed increased signs of activity. There was good demand for the four top grades. Offerings were light. Little interest was shown in the coarse grain and flax, trade being confined to small orders.

EGG MARKETS.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 18.—(Canadian Press).—The market remains fairly steady with practically no change in prices. The Chicago market is a quarter of a cent lower and the New York market one cent lower. Latest report from Great Britain states that that market is being flooded at the present time with home produced eggs and heavy shipments from the continent. The demand is reported poor and retail prices in London in some instances down to 1-6 a dozen.

Toronto jobbing special 39, extras 37, firsts 35, seconds 32.

Montreal steady and unchanged. Quebec firsts jobbing 33 to 34, seconds 32.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—Soaring prices in wheat today accompanied big buying in which foreigners took the lead. The pinnacle for the day was reached after word came that the secretary of agriculture directed an immediate investigation of the unprecedented violent changes that have dazed the grain world of late.

After touching $1.64 a bushel, May delivery, an extreme rise of 11 cents over night wheat closed unsettled at 4 to 9 cents gain, May 161¾ to 162 and July 141¼ to 143. Corn finished 2⅛ cents to 3 cents higher, oats 1¾ to 2¼ cents up and provisions varying from 17 cents decline to 12 cents.

Before the wheat market opened today, opinion was general that Federal investigation had already started and that a swift reaction from yesterday's selling panic would be witnessed. A rapid advance in wheat prices at Liverpool gave further emphasis to belief that a big upturn in the market here would take place. Offerings were, therefore, next to nothing when trading began. Instead frantic bidding hoisted prices straight up 10 cents a bushel. Then the volume of transactions broadened out to a wonderful extent but at no time was the selling pressure sufficient to force a greater setback than 4½ cents from the initial top figures. Trading diminished later but rallies in prices carried the market one cent above the early high levels with profit-taking sales weakening values somewhat at the last.

In addition to foreign purchasing of future deliveries of wheat here on a large scale today, it was estimated that export interests acquired ownership of 2,000,000 bushels of wheat for immediate shipment and 1,000,000 bushels of rye. This new export buying received particular attention in view of the fact that the present stock of wheat in Chicago available for delivery on May contracts amounts to only about 900,000 bushels. With export demand active at Kansas City and Omaha, much uneasiness was apparent at times as to a possible tight squeeze in prices here before May contracts are filled.

A red ferocity grew in Baree's eyes as he snarled in the direction of last night's fight with the wolves. They were no longer his people. They were no longer of his blood. Never again could the hunt-call lure him or the voice of the pack rouse the old longing. In him there was a thing new-born, an undying hatred for the wolf, a hatred that was to grow in him until it became like a disease in his vitals, a thing ever present and insistent, demanding vengeance on their kind.

CHAPTER XIX.

At the cabin on the Gray Loon, on the fourth night of Baree's absence, Pierrot was smoking his pipe after a great supper of caribou tenderloin he had brought in from the trail, and Nepeese was listening to his tale of the remarkable shot he had made, when a sound at the door interrupted them. Nepeese opened it, and Baree came in. The cry of welcome that was on the girl's lips died there instantly, and Pierrot stared as if he could not quite believe this creature that had returned was the wolf-dog. Three days and nights of hunger in which he could not hunt because of the leg that dragged had put on him the marks of starvation. Battle-scarred and covered with dried blood-clots that still clung tenaciously to his long hair, he was a sight that drew at last a long breath from Nepeese. A queer smile was growing in Pierrot's face as he leaned forward in his chair; and then slowly rising to his feet, and looking closer, he said to Nepeese:

"Ventre Saint Gris! Oui, he has been to the pack, Nepeese, and the pack turned on him. It was not a two-wolf fight—non! It was the pack. He is cut and torn in fifty places. And—mon Dieu, he is alive!"

In Pierrot's voice there was growing wonder and amazement. He was incredulous, and yet he could not disbelieve what his eyes told him. What had happened was nothing short of a miracle, and for a time he uttered not a word more but remained staring in silence while Nepeese woke from her astonishment to give Baree doctoring and food. After he had eaten ravenously of cold boiled mush she began bathing his wounds in warm water, and after that she soothed them with bear-grease, talking to him all the time in her soft Cree.

In a week or two the heavier snows came, and Pierrot began making his trips over the trap-lines. Nepeese had entered into a thrilling bargain with him this winter. Pierrot had taken her into partnership. Every fifth trap, every fifth deadfall, and every fifth poison-bait was to be her own, and what they caught or killed was to bring a bit nearer to realization a wonderful dream that was growing in the Willow's soul. Pierrot had promised. If they had great luck that winter, they would go down together on the last snows to Nelson House and buy the little old organ that was for sale there; and if the organ was sold, they would work another winter, and get a new one.

This plan gave Nepeese an enthusiastic and tireless interest in the trap-line. With Pierrot it was more or less a fine bit of strategy. He would have sold his hand to give Nepeese the organ; he was determined that she should have it, whether the fifth traps and the fifth deadfalls and the fifth poison-baits caught the fur or not. The partnership meant nothing so far as that was concerned. But in another way it meant to Nepeese a business interest, the thrill of personal achievement. Pierrot impressed on her that it made a comrade and co-worker of her on the trail. That was his scheme: to keep her with him when he was away from the cabin. He knew that Bush McTaggart would come again to the Gray Loon, probably more than once, during the winter. He had swift dogs, and it was a short journey. And when McTaggart came, Nepeese must not be at the cabin—alone.

Pierrot's trap-line swung into the north and west, covering in all a matter of fifty miles, with an average of two traps, one deadfall, and a poison-bait to each mile. It was a twisting line blazed along streams for mink, otter, and marten, piercing the deepest forests for fisher-cat and lynx and crossing lakes and storm-swept strips of barrens where poison-baits could be set for fox and wolf. Halfway over this line Pierrot had built a small log cabin, and at the end of it another, so that a day's work meant twenty-five miles. This was easy for Pierrot, and not hard on Nepeese after the first few days.

All through October and November they made the trips regularly, making the round every six days, which gave one day of rest at the cabin on the Gray Loon and another day in the cabin at the end of the trail. To Pierrot the winter's work was business, the labor of his people for many generations back; to Nepeese and Baree it was a wild and joyous adventure that never for a day grew tiresome. Even Pierrot could not quite immunize himself against their enthusiasm. It was infectious, and he was happier than he had been since his sun had set that evening the princess-mother died.

One afternoon early in December, as they were returning to the Gray Loon, Pierrot stopped suddenly a dozen paces ahead of Nepeese and stared at the snow. A strange snowshoe trail had joined their own and was heading toward the cabin. For half a minute Pierrot was silent and scarcely moved a muscle as he stared. The trail came straight out of the north—and off there was Lac Bain. Also they were the marks of large snowshoes, and the stride indicated was that of a tall man. Before Pierrot had spoken, Nepeese had guessed what they meant.

"M'sieu, the Factor from Lac Bain!" she said.

Pierrot, deep in his own sombre thoughts, scarcely heard the strange laugh that came suddenly from her lips. Nepeese was listening to the growl that was again in Baree's throat. It was a low but terrible sound. When half a mile from the cabin, she unstrung the panniers from his shoulders and carried them herself. Ten minutes later they saw a man advancing to meet them.

It was not McTaggart. Pierrot recognized him, and with an audible breath of relief waved his hand. It was DeBar, who trapped in the Barren Country north of Lac Bain. Pierrot knew him well. They had exchanged fox-poison. They were friends, and there was pleasure in the grip of their hands. DeBar stared then at Nepeese.

DeBar lost no time in explaining his mission, and before they reached the cabin, Pierrot and Nepeese knew why he had come. M'sieu, the Factor at Lac Bain, was leaving on a journey in five days, and he had sent DeBar as a special messenger to request Pierrot to come up to assist the clerk and the half-breed storekeeper in his absence. Pierrot made no comment at first, But he was thinking. Why had Bush McTaggart sent for him? Why had he not chosen some one nearer? Not until a fire was crackling in the sheet-iron stove in the cabin, and Nepeese was busily engaged getting supper, did he voice these questions to the fox-hunter.

DeBar shrugged his shoulders.

"He asked me, at first, if I cou'd stay. But I have a wife with a bad lung, Pierrot. It was caught by frost last winter, and I dare not leave her long alone. He has great faith in you. Besides, you know all the trappers on the Company's books at Lac Bain. So he sent for you, and begs you not to worry about your fur-lines, as he will pay you double what you would catch in the time you are at the Post."

"And — Nepeese?" said Pierrot. "M'sieu expects me to bring her?"

From the stove the Willow bent head to listen, and her heart leaped free again at DeBar's answer.

"He said nothing about that. But surely—it will be a great change for li'le m'selle."

Pierrot nodded.

Pierrot nodded.

"Possibly, Neetootam."

When DeBar was about to leave the next morning, Pierrot said:

"Tell M'sieu that I will leave for Lac Bain the day after to-morrow."

After DeBar had gone, he said to Nepeese:

"And you shall remain here, ma cherie. I will not take you to Lac Bain. I have had a dream that M'sieu will not go on a journey but that he has lied, and that he will be sick when I arrive at the Post. And yet, if it should happen that you care to go —"

Nepeese straightened suddenly, like a reed that has been caught by the wind.

"Non!" she cried, so fiercely that Pierrot laughed, and rubbed his hands.

So it happened that on the second day after the fox-hunter's visit, Pierrot left for Lac Bain, with Nepeese in the door waving him good-bye until he was out of sight.

On the morning of this same day Bush McTaggart rose from his bed while it was still dark. The time had come. He had hesitated at murder—at the killing of Pierrot; and in his hesitation he had found a better way. There could be no escape for Nepeese.

He ate his breakfast before dawn, and was on the trail before it was yet light. Purposely he struck due east, so that in coming up from the south and west Pierrot would not strike his sledge tracks. For he had made up his mind now that Pierrot must never know and must never have a suspicion even though it cost him so many more miles to travel that he would not reach the Gray Loon until the second day. It was better to be a day late, after all, as it was possible that something might have delayed Pierrot. So he made no effort to travel fast.

There was a vast amount of brutal satisfaction to McTaggart in anticipating what was about to happen, and he revelled in it to the full. There was no chance for disappointment. He was positive that Nepeese would not accompany her father to Lac Bain. She would be at the cabin on the Gray Loon—alone.

"Was staring as if stunned for a space of what he saw."

This aloneness was to Nepeese burdened with no thought of danger. There were times, now, when the thought of being alone was pleasant to her, when she wanted to dream by herself, when she visioned things into the mysteries of which she would not admit even Pierrot. She was growing into womanhood—just the sweet, closed bud of womanhood as yet—still a girl with the soft velvet of girlhood in her eyes, yet with the mystery of woman stirring gently in her soul, as if the Great Hand were hesitating between awakening her and letting her sleep a little longer. At these times, when the opportunity came to steal hours by herself, she would put on the red dress and do up her wonderful hair as she saw it in the pictu es of the maga; zines Pierrot had sent up twice a year from Nelson House.

On the second day of Pierrot's absence Nepeese dressed herself like this, but to-day she let her hair cascade in a chining glory about her, and about her forehead bound a circlet of red ribbon. She was not yet done. To-day she had marvellous designs. On the wall close to her mirror she had tacked a large page from a woman's magazine, and on this page was a lovely vision of curls. Fifteen hundred miles north of the sunny California studio in which the picture had been taken, Nepeese, with pouted red lips and puckered forehead, was fighting to master the mystery of the girl's curls!

She was looking into her mirror, her face flushed and her eyes aglow in the excitement of the struggle to fashion one of the coveted ringlets from a tress that fell away below her hips, when the door opened behind her, and Bush McTaggart walked in.

BURNBRAE NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Smith Honored on Occasion of Marriage.

BURNBRAE, March 18.—A very pleasant social time was spent at the home of Mr. Wm. Miller on Friday evening last, when friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Thos A. Smith gathered together to welcome them in honor of their recent marriage. During the evening a short programme was given—piano solos by Mrs. Fred. Hav and Mrs. Robt. Miller, and recitations by Master Don. Lloyd.

The following address was then read:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Smith, — We have gathered here this evening to convey to you our best wishes on this occasion. Such occasions serve as happy opportunities for the interchange of kindly feeling, and we would not like it to pass without assuring you of our deep and sincere interest in all that concerns you.

It gives us all great pleasure to wish you much happiness and prosperity in your new married life, and we ask you to accept this token of our regard for you, not for its own value, but for the sake of the thoughts it represents.

We rejoice that your marriage does not necessitate your removal from our midst, and as we look forward to the future we hope that life may give you largely of its best, and that you may long be spared amongst us.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

Ed. Wilson.
Wm. Miller.
Geo. Anderson.

During the reading of the address Mr. and Mrs. Smith were presented with a mantel clock and fern stand.

Mr. Smith replied in a few well-chosen remarks, expressing his surprise and his appreciation of the gifts and the welcome he had received on coming into the neighborhood.

Mr. Smith has been a resident of Prince Edward County, while Mrs. Smith, formerly Mrs. Rachel McMullen, has lived in this district most of her life. They will reside on Mrs. Smith's farm on the 8th Concession, Seymour.

The balance of the evening was pleasantly spent in social intercourse, music and dancing.

The meeting of the Young People's Guild on Monday evening was well-attended in spite of bad roads. Mrs. John Rannie was in charge of the programme, and James Thompson acted as leader for the evening. Rev. Mr. McKenzie gave a talk on the life and work of St. Patrick, while Mr. Geo. Donald rendered an Irish song. Other numbers were: Devotional reading by Mrs. W. S. Milne; piano solo, Miss Marjory Rannie; reading, "The Advance Agent," by Mrs. Frank Little; current events, Miss Borland.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie continued his series of sermons on the Prophets, speaking last Sunday from the Book of Jeremiah.

Some of the farmers who own maple woods have already begun operations, but the run of sap has not been heavy yet, as the weather is unfavorable.

The patrons of Brae Cheese Company held their spring meeting in the factory on Monday afternoon to make plans for the opening of the plant and discuss needed repairs. Mr. John Murray, dairy instructor, was present. The patrons decided to continue selling through the U.F.C.

A few cases of mumps are reported in the district. It is to be hoped the outbreak will not become too general.

CODERRE SAYS HIS DUTY DONE

Restrained by Dignity of the Bench from Replying to Geoffrion.

EXPECTS APPROVAL.

MONTREAL, March 19. — "The dignity which surrounds the Bench does not permit us to reply to the diatribe delivered by Mr. Recorder Geoffrion, said Mr. Justice Coderre, in an interview yesterday, concerning the recorder's statement Tuesday on Justice Coderre's report on the local police inquiry. "So far as I know, there is no appeal from my report. It is immaterial to the court if preachers, magistrates or others criticize us. We have done our duty, and we believe that we will be supported by the people of Montreal. Even if we do not receive the cachet of popular approval, we are satisfied that we have done our duty."

J. P. Lanctot said yesterday that an attemt was being made by the civic authorities to smother the salient points of the report by calling attention to the cost involved. "We will have a meeting of the interested parties," he declared, "and at that meeting it will be decided whether or not the matter will be introduced at the Legislature as an amendment to the Montreal bill. In any event, I will attend the sessions as a private citizen. My mandate from the citizens of St. Edward Ward and from the large business firms whose powers of attorney I hold, has been accomplished. When I appear at Quebec, it will be as a private citizen, demanding that the findings of Mr. Justice Coderre be given effect by Montreal's authorities.

"Mr. Recorder Geoffrion must be crazy to attempt to set his opinion up in defiance of the theological and sociological brains of the age."

SEVEN STEAMERS SOLD

Sum Realized by Government Was About $745,000.

OTTAWA, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—Seven steamers of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine have been disposed of since the line was established, it was stated in the House of Commons Wednesday, in answer to a question from A. W. Black, Conservative, Halifax. They are the T. J. Drummond, the J. A. McKee, the Sheba, the Canadian Settler, the Canadian Logger, the Canadian Miner and the Canadian Sealer. IVORIES TAUGHT MAN TO COUNT

Many Races Have Played With Dice Since History Began.

ORIGIN LOST.

Little does the urchin shooting craps in a hallway realize that he is perpetuating one of the world's most ancient games.

"The game of dice is one of the oldest and most nearly universal pastimes of man," said Dr. David Eugene Smith of the Department of Mathematics at Teachers' College, who has devoted many hours to the investigation of number games and their history. Cat's cradle, tag, cards, backgammon and dice belong to the earliest childhood of man.

"Although we do not care to confess it," Professor Smith said, "it was by means of such pastimes that people learned the elements of number, and more human beings have come to know of the relations of the smaller numbers through gambling and through trade than from direct influence of the school-room."

No traces of the game of dice are to be found in any of the remains of the stone and the bronze age, according to Dr. Smith, and it was not until the half-mythical story of early Greece was told that it was mentioned, the tradition being that dice was invented by one Alea during the Trojan War. Plato attributes their origin to Thoth, who was to the Egyptians what Cadmus was to the Greeks, and who introduced not only numbers and geometry but various kinds of games among the inhabitants of the Nile Valley. From the pages of Plutarch one learns that the ancient Egyptians mentioned dice at an early date, saying that Mercury threw dice with the moon before Osiris was born, winning thereby the five days that were added to the 360 to make the year complete.

"It is difficult," remarked Dr. Smith, "to find the origin of any game. It can only be said that dice were used by the Etruscans, the Romans, the Greeks, the Egyptians, the Persians and the Hindus, and that the game became practically universal in the West."

In Chinese literature dice (shik tsai) were first mentioned in the time of Ts'ao Chih, the learned son of the great usurper Ts-en Tsan, who overthrew the Han Dynasty. He lived from 192 to 232. The Chinese dice differs from that of other countries in that the 4 and the 1 are marked with red spots, "shik" meaning color and "tsai" little thing. They are not made in pairs, but usually are sold in sets of six.

So popular was the game of dice in India that it is recounted how, in the post-Vedic days, two kings of Mahabharata—Yudhisthera and Naia—staked and lost their kingdoms while shaking the spotted cubes.

Frequent mention of dice was made in the literature of ancient Rome, and a large variety of specimens have been found among its remains. Dr. Smith recalled that the gambling spirit had ever been prominent in the Italian people: "The visitor to the Forum may still see scratched in the old pavement practically the same lines that the Roman boys make to-day with chalk in the side streets." Gambling among the later-day Romans became so serious that civil and ecclesiastical laws were made to check the evil."

In the collection of old dice owned by Dr. Smith there is one from Egypt having hieroglyphics not in any numerical system on its sides. Many were the shapes and forms given to the specimens of ancient days. Roman dice have been found with fourteen sides, while from Egyptian ruins have been taken octahedral pieces. One was found in the shape of a truncated pyramid. Down through the centuries bone has been the favored material

"It is with such material as this," said Professor Smith, referring to the cubes of bone, "inexpensive, easily made, universal in the lower social strata of the East and the West, and all too common in the middle and higher, that many men have found their only exercise in quickly recognizing simple numeral relations. Of course, the gambling feature is pernicious, but as a number game furnishing all necessary combinations and relations that of two and three dice has never been equalled by anything as simple, as inexpensive, as free from fraud and as entertaining."

WON'T SEE SNAKES

BELFAST, March 19.—St. Patrick's Day in Ireland will be dry under the new liquor bill recently passed. The three week days of the year on which the liquor shops must stay closed are Good Friday, Christmas Day and St. Patrick's Day.

RANEY CHARGED WITH BLAME IN RIDOUT PROFIT

Progressive Leader Responsible for Financial Deals Adverse to Province.

GASOLINE TAX BILL

Tax to be Applied to All Motor Vehicles Operating on Highways.

TORONTO, March 19.—Continuing yesterday the debate on the budget and the amendment moved by W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, W. Finlayson, Conservative member for East Simcoe and chairman of the public accounts committee of last year, made an attack on Mr. Raney. He accused the Progressive leader of being responsible for many of the bad financial transactions made by the Drury Government, contending that, as a lawyer, Mr. Raney was the only one of that administration who knew anything about the technical ends of the loans. The debate on the budget will probably extend into next week. Both the Premier and Hon. W. H. Price will speak and the Liberals will also get back into the argument.

Apart from the attack on Mr. Raney by Mr. Finlayson, the outstanding feature of the afternoon's session was the introduction of the gasoline tax. The tax will be applied to all gasoline vehicles used for locomotion on highways, and the method of its collection is being left to regulations.

"Toll Gate" Search.

Mr. Finlayson declared that every possible effort had been made by the public accounts committee last year to trace the commissions paid out by the Home Bank for provincial business, and since referred to as the "toll gate." He declared that the committee had got no assistance from the Progressive or U.F.O. party in its investigations, and least of all from W. E. Raney. "That party today is left in a position which no other party in the British Empire was ever left in," said Mr. Finlayson. "The Conservative party is proud of being a party of discipline which lends itself to masterly government under good leadership. This party does not change its leader yearly, its name yearly nor its purpose whenever it can gain advantage.

Puts Blame on Raney.

"The late Attorney General is now willing to blame Smith and willing to blame Drury for the messes that government made. He is ready to blame everyone but himself. We don't propose to let him hide behind the dead now." Mr. Finlayson said he had made a mistake in saying that Mr. Raney had never attended a meeting of the public accounts committee last year. The records showed that he had attended one meeting.

Mr. Raney: I never attended any meeting. The record must be wrong.

Hon. W. H. Price: I remember seeing the Hon. Member (Mr. Raney) at the committee.

Mr. Raney explained that he might have walked into the room, but he had never listened to any evidence.

Mr. Finlayson said that he had been informed that Mr. Raney had been at the committee when Mr. Smith was arrested and had refused to go bail for his cabinet colleague.

"That is absolutely false," said Mr. Raney.

Mr. Finlayson accepted the correction, stating that he had been told differently by certain of Mr. Raney's colleagues.

Mr. Finlayson went into what has been called the Ridout deal in which D. E. Ridout made a big profit on Ontario business in 1923. He declared that Mr. Raney was responsible for that deal and supported it at the time.

"Now in 1925 Mr. Raney condemns the deal, and the only reason he does so is because one of his colleagues is in Kingston," said Mr. Finlayson.

Mr. Raney asked if Mr. Finlayson said that he had arranged the Ridout deal.

"No, but I repeat you were responsible," was the reply. "Premier Drury was not at council when it went through, and Mr. Raney was presiding." Mr. Finlayson said it was up to Mr. Raney to explain this matter to the House.

Gasoline Tax Bill.

Hon. George Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways, introduced his bill to impose a tax on gasoline. He said that the bill proposed to tax all gasoline used in highway travel. He said that the manner of imposing the tax was left in the bill to regulations. He will explain further on second reading. The tax proposed is three cents a gallon.

Hon. W. F. Nickle introduced a bill allowing municipalities to assess telephone associations which were not formed into companies. In reply to a question, Hon. Jas. Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, informed the House that notices had been sent to E. W. Backus some time ago that his water rights at Fort Francis would be cancelled if he did not live up to the stipulations of the lease. The time for performing these conditions, said the Minister had now elapsed without them being done.

J. A. Fisher (Liberal, West Ottawa) in introducing a private bill concerning Ottawa hospitals ran against a snag. He was informed that the time was now past for introducing private bills. The Premier stated, however, that the remainder of this week would be allowed. He still thought the House should finish by Easter, but did not want members infringing on the rules and asking special privileges for private legislation.

Change Nomination Day.

Bills were introduced to amend the surrogate courts act so that county judges could arrange their own circuit work; to make nomination day in municipalities where elections are held in November to be the 21st day of November instead of the third Monday; to restore the old system of having certain persons appointed issuers of marriage licenses instead of confining the appointees to clerks of municipalities; to impose a tax for fire protection on those townships in Northern Ontario given as railway subsidies. In the latter case such townships have not been contributing heretofore towards fire protection, and Hon. Jas. Lyons, the Minister, asks that they be compelled to pay their share.

Use Separate Schools.

Second reading was given a bill by which separate schools as well as public schools may be used for election polling divisions. Another bill given second reading gives the right to villages of declaring half holidays weekly the same as cities and towns. F. Spence (Conservative, Fort William) got second reading for a bill providing that insurance on property must be made by an insurance agency existent within the same province as the property. W. E. Raney thought it might be a breach of the constitution as it interfered with free commerce and trade between provinces. He doubted also if the legislature should interfere with contract freedom. Mr. Nickle also saw objections, but the bill was sent to the legal committee for consideration.

R. L. Brackin (Liberal, West Kent) got second reading for a bill to license poultry dealers. He told the House there was a considerable amount of chicken theft in his county. There were objections to the bill, but it went to the legal committee.

How Fat Actress Became Slender

Many stage people now depend entirely upon Marmola Prescription Tablets for reducing and controlling fat. One clever actress tells us that she reduced steadily and easily by using this new form of the famous Marmola Prescription. Now, by taking Tablets several times a year, she keeps her weight just right. All druggists sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar for a box or if you prefer can secure them direct from the Marmola Co. General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. If you have not tried them, do so. They are pleasant to take and effective.

FIND RING IN BIRD.

SYRACUSE, Neb., March 19.—Five years ago Mrs. James Crory lost a signet ring in a plum thicket. Recently, her husband shot several prairie chickens about 100 miles distant. In dressing one of them, Mrs. Crory found a black corroded ring, which, when cleaned, proved to be the one she lost five years before. Initials made identification positive.

BIGELOW HOUSE BURNED AGAIN

Cavan Farmer's Second Loss in Few Years—Occupies New One.

FARM STOCK SALE

CAVAN, March 19.—Last Saturday morning the farm dwelling occupied by Mr. H. Bigelow and family on the eighth concession Cavan, was destroyed by fire.

A part of the furniture was saved. A few years ago Mr. Bigelow had the misfortune to have a fine new house on his farm on the boundary between Cavan and Manvers, burned. He moved into a house on the other part of his farm and last summer started to rebuild his former home. It was not quite ready for occupation when this fire occurred. However, they had to move in to it.

Visit Of Claims' Agent.

Mr. Thornton, the C.N.R. claims agent from Montreal was along the line last week investigating claims against the company.

He was at Dranoel on Thursday investigating the fact of a brood sow being killed on the track past the overhead bridge, in the direction of Dranoel Station in January. The sow was the property of F. M. Staples.

Farm Stock Sale.

Last Thursday Mr. Edgar Fallis had a sale of farm stock and implements on the line directly west of Millbrook. There was a good crowd and things sold pretty well.

In reading the reports of farm sales it is noticed that horses, unless extra good ones, are selling low and brood sows very high. At a sale in Warsaw it was reported that sows brought as high as sixty dollars, while in Manvers a man who had seven or eight offered for sale, in his farm sale, received fifty dollars apiece for them.

$12.60 For Hogs.

S. S. Staples shipped hogs from Cavan on Monday. The price paid was $12.60. Even at this higher price farmers are not making much, because feed is also very dear and those who feed many pigs at this season of the year, have to buy most of the feed.

At Cavanville the price paid for butter and eggs is twenty-five cents a pound for butter and 25 cents a dozen for eggs.

Cars Reaching Out.

Cars are quite common on the highway but only a few other lines have had any motor traffic yet. Last Thursday a car was driven from Bethany to Dranoel; but for a time the roads will be unfit for that use as the frost will be coming out.

Flu Prevalent.

Flu or la grippe is prevalent throughout the community. Many school children are out of school with it, and in some cases whole families are affected by it.

A play is being prepared to be given at a later date for the Community Hall.

Mrs. L. Parnell and Miss Jean of Newcastle visited friends in Cavan over the week-end.

APSLEY MAN'S HOME BURNED THIRD TIME

William Marshall Lost Nearly All Their Furniture.

APSLEY, March 19.—For the third time in about two years William Marshall, who lives about ten miles north of Apsley, has had the misfortune to be "burnt out" while away at work on Friday, and his wife at home with a baby and three little children, the house caught fire and was burned to the ground. Everything was lost with the exception of a little bedding and the sewing machine. Revs. Spence and Ogden have gathered up a quantity of clothing and despatched it to the unfortunate family and other neighbors are helping out in food and other necessaries.

A very severe thunderstorm broke over the village on Tuesday evening but with the exception of a few trees struck by lightning no damage was done. The rain was heavy, totalling .20 of an inch in less than an hour. The storm was followed by colder weather and as a consequence the first good skating of the winter was provided. The A.Y.P.A. held a skating party on Silver Lake Thursday night which was quite an enjoyable event.

Camps Breaking Up.

The snow storm on Friday evening just saved the sleighing which was getting very poor, and the lumber men were able to get out a few more loads of logs. Most of the camps are breaking up and the teams going home, as the draw road are in poor shape.

Literary Evening.

Saturday night was Literary evening for the A.Y.P.A. and the members held a competition, prizes being awarded for the longest list of authors and poets. Mr. G. Kilborn won the former and Mrs. Windsor the latter. Mrs. Westmacott, of Millbrook very kindly presented a number of games to St. George's Institute, a gift that is much appreciated by the young people.

At the vestry meeting of St. Andrew's, Owenbrook, Fred Wheeler was re-elected church warden for the twentyninth consecutive year, a record for the Apsley Mission which is celebrating its jubilee this year.

Roy Brown who cut his foot severely in the woods two weeks ago is able to get about with the aid of crutches.

The many friends of Mrs. William Tucker, who is on a visit in Toronto, will be sorry to learn that she is seriously ill.

ENGAGEMENT REPORTED.

Lady Mary Carnegie, daughter of the Earl of Southesk and sister of Lord Carnegie, who married Princess Maude of Fife, is reported engaged to a wealthy member of nobility. Lady Mary is a noted beauty and one of the most popular members of the younger set at the court of St. James.

CAVAN COUNCIL MEETS

Passed Bylaw to Abolish Statute Labor and to Appoint Officials.

Cavan Council held their regular meeting on Wednesday, March 11, the members all being present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and on motion of Deputy-Reeve Fallis and Councillor McKnight were approved.

Communications were read from: R. C. Muir, Chief Engineer of Municipal Roads, enclosing a summary to show the amount of subsidy due Cavan for 1924, namely $1,553.85.

From D. W. Bews, Engineer offering his services for engineering work.

From the Deputy Registrar General, advising the Council that a new system of recording the return of births, marriages and deaths, had been adopted to replace the annual certificate now used.

Deputy Reeve Fallis introduced by-laws to appoint pound keepers, fence viewers, also to abolish Statute Labor and to provide for the expenditure of money on the roads for the current year.

These by-laws were passed signed and sealed.

A. H. Stratton, Peterboro, waited on the Council asking to have arrangements made for the proper location of the road fences on his property, Lot 1, Concession 13. It was decided to have a committee appointed to meet Mr. Stratton on the grounds, at a date to be decided on later, when his request would be complied with.

A bill for repairs was presented by F. Smith and on motion of Councillors Fallis and McKnight was paid.

The following orders were paid: Telephone Co., account, $2.72; J. N. McGill, registration, births, etc., $15.50; Board of Health, $8; C. Thorndyke, taking affidavits, $2; D. Gallagher, work Concession 4, $8.50; C. W. Richards, printing cont., $50; C. W. Richards, account supplies, $5.60; W. H. Husk, gravel, $1.60; W. Wood, road through farm, 1925, $10; J. F. Smith, account, $16.80; J. L. McCamus, expenses Good Roads Convention, $10; M. Brock, work, Concessinon 3, $6; Council pay, commission work, Reeve, $4; Council Hunter, $6; Hooton $4; total, $34; J. N. McGill, $37.50.

Council adjourned to meet April 8, at 1.30 p.m.

COBOURG MARKS IRELAND'S DAY

Dances, Balls and Teas Marked March 17—Colborne Had Good Year.

GENERAL NEWS.

COBOURG, March 19. — There were an unusual number of social gathering locally held to mark the birthday of Ireland's patron saint. A dance was held at Gore's Landing under the auspices of a committee who had arrangements in charge.

A ball was held in Boyle's Hall at Harwood in aid of the Harwood Memorial Park fund. An orchestra supplied excellent music. The ladies of St. Michael's church, Cobourg held a euchre and dance and the armouries here, which was very greatly enjoyed and well attended.

A bazaar and concert were also held in Coldspring's Presbyterian church at which Rev. Adam Hamilton gave a short lecture, taking as his subject "A Box of Matches."

Invitation to Pastor.

Orono Junior Baseball Club are starting the season by a dance and progressive euchre in the town hall. The proceeds are to be devoted to financing the team for 1925 in the Durham and Ontario League.

Colborne Council Had Good Year.

When the auditors, J. M. Snetsinger and F. C. Morrow presented reports on 1924 accounts of the Corporation and Board of Educatin in the village of Colborne, it was found that the Corporation accounts show receipts of $402.15 over expenditures for the year, while current liabilities over assets at Dec. 31, 1924, stood at $183.43.

The Board of Education carried a surplus of $2,740.89 in Public School accounts, and a surplus of $6,584.25 in High School accounts, a total of $9,325.14. The surplusses from 1923 totalled $9,717.08, a difference of $391.94. In 1924, the tax rate was reduced three mills, one mill by the Corporation and two by the School Board. This appears to be a most satisfactory report, as most of towns are finding it necessary the last two years to increase the tax rate.

The Colborne Council is considering the advisability of finishing off the upstairs rooms over the firehall, providing a room that may be used for various purposes. Two dressing rooms, a large stage, swing doors, etc., are items discussed.

Bewdley Man Killed.

Word has been received here that Walter Northcutt was accidentally killed while getting gravel out of a pit at Selkirk, Man. He was a son of Mr. William Northcutt, Bewdley and 37 years of age. After returning from overseas he took up a farm at Selkirk under the Soldiers Settlement Board.

Invitation to Pastor.

Rev. J. J. Mellor, a well-known Bay of Quinte clergyman, has been invited by the Official Board of Picton Methodist church, it is stated, to remain for a fourth year.

Presentation at Hillier.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were pleasanty surprised by the patrons of Cloverdale Cheese factory near Hillier, who assembled at their home with well filled baskets for a surprise visit and presented them with a purse of money before their departure for Teeswater.

Shower For Respective Bride.

About twenty young people met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Porter here on Friday evening and presented Miss Evelyn Brown, whose marriage is to take place shortly, with a miscellaneous shower. A pelasant evening was spent.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Haig have leased their house here and expect to leave town in the spring on an extended trip to western points.

Dr. J. T. Vance of Saginaw, Mich., is expected to come to town shortly to locate.

Mr. Wm. Davey has sold his residence here and left at the week-end for Creelman, Sask., where he has a farm. Mrs. Davey will go a little later.

Mr. James Quinn, who has not been in good health of late, has gone up to Toronto for special treatment.

Mrs. Thomas Montgomery of Milestone, Sask., is visiting friends in the district.

DIED IN BELLEVILLE

John McIntosh, Proprietor of Campbellford Store, Passes.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 19.—The store of McIntosh Bros. here was closed Wednesday on account of the sudden death of the proprietor, John McIntosh, at his home in Belleville. The deceased started business here many years ago in the store now occupied by John L. Hay on Bridge street. His brother, who was associated with him, dropped out of the firm some years ago. Mr. McIntosh at the time of his death owned six successful dry goods stores in different towns and cities of Ontario, his headquarters being in Belleville where he resided. He made occasional trips to this town, both on business and as a visitor in Masonic circles. He was about 55 years old, and is survived by his wife and seven children.

D. A. Montgomery has been manager of the local McIntosh store for the past five years.

INVESTIGATION MADE.

Nothing Made Public About Enquiry Among Striking Miners.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 17.—Replying to a question in the Legislature today as to the result of the investigations made by Hon. A. S. MacMillan, Minister of Public Highways, into the conditions existing among the idle members of Cape Breton, Premier Armstrong said that there was nothing ready to be made public. The Government had considered the Minister of Highways' report, but was not ready to divulge any part of it, nor to make any announcement in that connection. The question was asked by R. H Smith, Farmer, Colchester.

Hon. J. C. Tory, member of the Government without portfolio, arrived from Montreal and took his seat in the House for the first time this session.

J. B. Douglas, Liberal, Halifax, introduced the bill by which the City of Halifax seeks sanction for financial aid sent to the fund for the distressed Cape Breton miners.

HEART WAS WEAK NERVES ALL GONE

Mrs. J. H. Hallenbeck, 1171½ Welland Avenue, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"I was in a gas explosion; it left me with a weak heart, and my nerves were all gone. I suffered everything; couldn't sleep, or endure any excitement, and when left alone I felt as if I could scream. I took dizzy spells, often falling and bruising myself. My mother read about your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and bought me a box, but having taken so many different kinds of medicine it just seemed that I did not have any confidence in any of them. I took one box of H. & N. Pills, and felt so much better I continued with them until I had used five boxes, and after I had taken them I did not need any more. I cannot praise, or recommend, Milburns Heart and Nerve Pills too highly after all they have done for me."

CARD INDEX INDUSTRY

British Board of Trade Will Compile "Doomsday Book of Business."

LONDON, March 19.—The new president of the Board of Trade, Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, is not satisfied with records kept by the board regarding British industries, and intends to compile a "Domesday Book of Business."

He is sending out 350,000 questionnaires to British firms as to their production costs and methods; which will be regarded as strictly private, but which are expected to assist the government of the day in making plans for the future.

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N.E., Portage La Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks Vapo Rub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed in" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action; internally medicated vapors are inhaled while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin

ENGLAND AND THE GOLD STANDARD

Business Men of England Declare Government is Making a Serious Mistake.

By C. T. HALLINAN
(United Press Staff Corespondent)

LONDON, March 19.—(United Press).—There have been murmurs of downright mutiny in the British ship of state since Winston Churchills announcement that England would revert to the gold standard "at the earliest possible moment."

Granting that the ship is moving through a fog and that the officers on the bridge are the best judges of the course, still that doesn't prevent something like a panic below in the fo'castle, and hoarse voices coming up in angry protest.

For example, the Federation of British Industries—which includes such large and powerful manufacturers as Baldwins, Ltd.—declare flatly that Churchill is making a serious mistake.

These manufacturers do their entire business on borrowed money and they want money to be "cheap" and easily accessible. Some of them, in their hearts, would like to see just a tiny bit of inflation, so as to make business "good." But if England adopts the gold standard, then one of the first effects will be a period of "dear money." It is quite possible that the Bank of England will be forced to raise the bank rate. Money will be harder to get and these manufacturers will find their output—and hence their profits—curtailed.

Hence the mutiny.

Another mutineer is J. M. Keynes, the Cambridge economist. He is not only a school teacher but he is also a business man, the head of a very successful insurance company. He is a clever man and the heads of the five great joint stock banks in England dread his devilish comments on their annual reports in which they attempt solemnly to lay down the law on matters financial. And although the heads of these great joint stock banks believe that Churchil is doing the right thing, it disturbs them not a little when Keynes declares with great precision that Churchill is doing absolutely the wrong thing.

The result of Keynes' steadfast opposition to England's adoption of the gold standard is that the bankers have toned down their enthusiasm for the gold standard to a surprising degree.

Reginald McKenna, for example, says that the gold standard will need a lot of managing when adopted. This guarded statement has rather shocked the man in the street who thinks of the gold standard as one of those beautifully automatic things that are foolproof. Another great banker, Walter Leaf, says that there ought to be an international conference to protect the gold standard.

In short, while America takes it for granted that England will be wise to adopt the gold standard as soon as the pound reaches par, there is no such widespread assumption over here.

CONTROL COFFEE SALE

Brazil Ships Only Limited Quantity Each Day to Stabilize Price.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 20(Associated Press)—The present system of storing coffee in the state of Sao Paulo is the result of three previous experiments along this line, the first of which was in operation when the World War broke out. The second endeavored to meet conditions in 1917-18, and the third, started in 1922, is said to have brought an enormous profit to the federal government.

At the present time Sao Paulo coffee growers store this product in warehouses scattered throughout the coffee growing centers, and owned by the state. All marketing is done through the port of Santos. Farmer's secure loans against storage receipts. Shipments from the various storehouses are under a central control scheme, and state exports are said always to be based on a daily shipment which will exhaust the entire harvest in a year's time, thereby holding the level and preventing speculation in stocks by foreign importers.

WAHABI VICTORY?

London Paper's Report Contradicts Cairo Dispatch.

LONDON, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Daily Telegraph says it has information that King Ali's forces at Jeddah, in the Kingdom of the Hedjaz, were driven back to their trenches by the Wahabi tribesmen on Sunday after a sortie which was encouraged by the apparent apathy of their besiegers.

A Jeddah despatch through Cairo Tuesday reported that the Hedjaz forces had severely defeated the Wahabis, who had lost 300 killed.

BRAMWELL BOOTH SAYS—

"World is in a Sorry Mess, Churches Too Occupied With Themselves, But There is Hope for Christianity in Future."

(By Milton Bronner.)

LONDON, March 16. — The world is in a sorry mess—people are restless and unhappy—but the teaching of Christ brings hea'l and salvation and, therefore, General Bramwell Booth, the head of the Salvation Army, to-day declared himself to me to be an optimist.

It's an important message because General Booth is an important man. As the head of a religious organization which pursues its unflagging activities all over the globe, he is in close touch with what men and women are thinking. And as the Salvation Army concerns itself especially with the humble and the lowly, General Booth understands what the mass of mankind are thinking.

From all over the world daily and hourly the reports come to him from his trusted lieutenants. The great organizer, the great preacher, the kindly faced, white haired chieftain, who knows the world as a vicar knows his parish, said to me:

"I am of a hopeful spirit as to the future of Christianity or as I prefer to state it, of Christ.

"There is no doubt that the world is still a prodigal—it has left the Father, cast of His restraints and abandoned His laws. The result is a sorry mess, a mess only too apparent alike in the moral, the intellectual, the spiritual spheres. But I can see that it is a restless, hungry and unhappy world, not perhaps altogether without discernment as to the cause of its miseries.

"The churches of every name seem to be too much occupied with themselves, occupied that is with the maintenance of their own numbers and learning and influence, too little alive to the appalling needs of the people as a whole, and too little confident in the power of the message of Christ which they have to deliver. They do not see how really powerful the weapons of theri warfare may be in their hands, how destructive of the forces of sin are the explosives within their control.

"I do not know that I have any special authority to speak to the churches of the United States but if I had I think I would say your great need is intensity, enthusiasm, confidence in yourselves and your own doctrine—the truths you teach.

"I rejoice in the many benevolent activities of one kind and another which the churches maintain, but it is necessary to recall the familiar truth that movement is not the same thing as progress, and that interest in the Lost Sheep will do little for Him unless it is inspired by holy love.

"But I am an optimist. I move about the world, East and West. And I have not found any land in which I do not see the Cross of Jesus uplifted and undefeated. Little known, scarcely understood, strangely doubted I know it often is, but still there it stands and sheds its sad but glorious radiance of love over multitudes.

'But is not the deepest question after all for each one of us this—whether there be for us in Christ a present conquering Saviour?

"I was struck one day with the following words by Johnston Ross: 'No historic research, no exposition of the doctrines of the old world teacher removes the burden of the friendliness of my sin-stained soul in a universe ruled by a Holy God. If by your scholarship you so make to live again the classic scenes in which the Nazarene moved and taught, that I am made conscious of the long centuries that divide Him from me. then all the more if you would secure the abiding of my faith in Him you must let me see how He can still reach me and stand for me; how the wings of His gracious personality can be outstretched to cover me.'

"It is because we of the Salvation Army do see how that ca n be, nay, see daily and hourly as the hands move around the dial of the clock, that these wings are outstretched to cover the most needy, that the progress of our work continues to be one of the greatest spiritual facts of the world's history."

CHATHAM WINTER FAIR GRANT IS CONTINUED

Assuring Message From the Minister of Agriculture.

CHATHAM, Ont., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—Definite assurance that the Provincial Government will continue a grant on the present basis, towards the Chatham Winter Fair, was indicated by a message from Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, read yesterday at the annual meeting of the Peninsular Winter Fair Association.

The telegram said that "in view of special circumstances and conditional upon satisfactory buildings being provided, the Government will continue the grant on the present basis for a five-year period."

Although there was a measure of disappointment because the grant was not materially increased, the meeting was unanimous in deciding to continue efforts for the establishment of the winter fair on a permanent basis.

The financial report showed that the past exhibition had been very satisfactory from the financial standpoint, and that a deficit of $3,000 had been reduced to $800.

TOO MANY CROOKS?

LONDON, March 19.—Buckingham Palace, the home of the royal family of Great Britain, has four chefs, 16 cooks and a large number of kitchen helpers. One chef devotes his time to roasts, another to entrees, a third to soups and the fourth to pastry.

POLICE HUNT BOOKS

LONG BEACH, Calif., March 19.—So many books have not been returned to the public library here that a new police job of book collector has been created for a member of the force. He spends most of his time collecting books and fines.

Sore?

Rub with Red Pepper Instant relief

The way to relieve soreness, lameness, rheumatic pains, etc., is red pepper.

That's the new-way, the quick, efficient way, No old way compares. Nothing else creates such concentrated such penetrating heat. And a heat that doesn't hurt you.

You feel that heat instantly when you apply Red Pepper Rub. In three minutes it seems to penetrate the depths. The circulation is started, congestion is relieved. The soreness and pain depart.

Think of how many hours of pain Red Pepper Rub may save you. Everybody finds many needs. Have it ever ready. Get it now. Then when pain starts, or a chest cold, turn to this jar for relief. It is usually but a matter of minutes.

Do this for comforts sake.

DUTY OF COLLEGE HEADS IS LIGHT

Invite Students Once a Year to Breakfast and Attend Convocation.

OXFORD, England, March 19.—The twentieth century fashion of raising young men to high place has yet found no champions in Oxford. The average age of the present heads of colleges is just under 70 years, despite a number of recent elections. A master once lived to somewhat over 100, and several heads who are now well on in the eighties are ambitious of bettering his record. The prodigious age and spryness of these very learned men proves the error of the old monastic founders who, with a belief that a sane mind could not exist in a sound body, are said to have picked upon Oxford as the most unhealthy town of their acquaintance.

The duties of an Oxford College head are neither onerous nor agitating. He personally admits all new undergraduates into his college, invites them to breakfast once a year, and besides that sees very little of them. Heads of colleges are not called upon to teach or to lecture, they do not speak at Rotary Club lunches, or indulge in frenzied financing campaigns.

Curiously enough, these men who have so little to do in managing their respective colleges, have everything to do in the administration of the university. While they dispute with the university and deny its powers and authority and object to its schemes, the fact remains that they are, for all practical purposes, the university themselves. Meeting in solemn and heavy conclave called convocation, they transact university business, choose the university proctors and elecet one another in turn to the office of vice-chancellor, an annually created office analogous to the presidency of a great American university.

Convocation meets with much ceremony in a room where no artificial light is permitted, and its meditations cease with the coming of darkness. As it is an afternoon function, much more busines is transacted in the lighter months than in winter.

The headship of a college is a life job, regulated only by the statutes. Here a life job is a long job, some of the present heads having held their places for nearly 40 years. The average age of the present heads at the time of their selection was a little over 50 years. Older and older men are being selected, most of the recently elected heads having passed 60 years of age.

GREAT CHANCE FOR RADIO FANS

Listen in on Addresses by Canadian and U. S. Orange Leaders at Ottawa.

In connection with the annual session of the R. W. Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East, at Ottawa, there will be a meeting on Thursday night, March 19th, at which M. W. Bro. Hon. W. D. McPherson, K.C., Immediate Past Grand Master of British America, and M.W. Bro. Hugh Wilson, Supreme Grand Master of the United States, will give addresses, which will be broadcasted by the Canadian National Radio Department, through their station, C.N.R.O. The addresses will be delivered about 8.30 and all listeners in should make arrangements to hear these addresses if at all posible. M.W. Bro. McPherson's address will deal with the Orange Association and the benefits derived therefrom.

This is the first opportunity that prominent speakers of this nature have had of broadcasting on one of the large and most important radio stations. Listeners in are requested to write or telegraph Harold C. Shipman, Orange Hall, Ottawa, advising how the concert is being received by them so that in this way an extensive check may be made on the different locations at which the addresses will have been received.

GOOD RECRUITS SCARCE

London Police Force Gets Five Policemen From 100 Applicants.

LONDON, March 19.—The after effects of wartime privations on the nations physique are shown up strongly in the number of police recruits rejected on medical examination, says Sir Leonard Dunning, reporting on the County and City of Borough Police Forces in England and Wales for 1924.

"Perhaps," Sir Leonard continues, "90 per cent of the applicants for appointments never got so far as the doctor because they are manifestly unsuitable, while the single educational test knocks out so many more that the chief constable is lucky if he finds five suitable men among 100 applicants."

BEATTY SUGGESTS WINNIPEG MUSEUM

Would Illustrate Progress of West, C.P.R. Head Says.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19. — (Canadian Press).—The establishment of an elaborate museum in Winnipeg, illustrating on a broad and comprehensive scale the historic, artistic and cultural progress of the West, was suggested by E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an address at the inaugural banquet of the Winnipeg Tourist, Publicity and Conventions Bureau, here last night.

Such an attraction, Mr. Beattie asserted, would place Winnipeg among the outstanding centres of interest to tourists generally. Scientists, he said, were digging up and reconstructing prehistoric animals, the bones of which were taken from the prairies, only to be shipped to museums in other parts of the continent. "You are blending into Canadian life races from all over Europe, why not have reproductions by means of models of the customs and manner of life of the countries from which these races came?" he asked.

The tourist traffic was of great importance to Canada. Tourist traffic, Mr. Beattie continued, was unquestionably one of the best means of interesting foreign capital in the development of the natural resources, which was one of Canada's greatest needs to-day.

Mr. Beattie appealed for closer co-operation between the East and West in eliminating misunderstandings and overcoming the country's economic ills.

IMMANUEL'S LAND.

There is a land, a glorious land,
Just beyond Jordan's stream it lies
A land of sweet, salubrious air,
Of sunny clime, and cloudless skies

The sun that lights that beauteous land,
With radiant lustre ever shines;
And, through verdant vales life's river rolls,
A tide of bliss, which ne'er declines.

A land it is to be desired,
Whose fields are robed in verdure bright,
Where fair immortelle blossoms blow
Secure from chilling frost, winds, blight.

A land that to its utmost bound,
From sickness is, and suffering free;
For by its crystal river blooms
With healing leaves, life's fruitful tree.

No lonely, aching hearts are there,
And there no tears . , sorrow swell;
Care enters not, nor pain nor death,
No sigh, nor sadness of farewell.

But those who wash, and make them clean
In Jesus' blood, from sin's dark stain,
And seek and serve Him here below,
Shall see Him there, and with Him reign.

High on her hills a city stands,
With pearly gates flung open wide,
And there that many mansioned home,
Where all His own with Him abide

And some glad day, Ah, who may tell,
If near or distant it may be?
In His own time, by His good grace,
God grant us all that land to see.

And rest us in those blissful bowers,
'Neath trees by softest zephyrs fanned,
Praising His name for evermore,
Who brought us to Immanuel's land.

KING GEORGE LEFT ON HEALTH CRUISE

Big Crowd Gathered to Say Farewell to Recently Ill Sovereign.

LONDON, March 18. Canadian Press. —King George, accompanied by Queen Mary, and members of their suite, left Buckingham Palace quietly this morning en route to Genoa, Italy, where the Royal yacht awaits to take His Majesty on the cruise prescribed by his physicians, following his recent attack of bronchitis.

Although the morning was cold and misty a big crowd had collected along the route to Victoria station, and there were cheers for the Sovereign who responded by lifting his hat.

At Dover Their Majesties will embark on the steamship Biarritz, and at Calais they will Loard their special train, proceeding direct to Genoa.

W.M.S. MEETING.

St. Andrew's Ladies Hear Talk on World Mission Conference.

The monthly meeting of St. Andrews Missionary Society was held Tuesday afternoon, in the church parlour, the President in the chair. The meeting opened with devotional exercises, followed by the minutes of the last meeting being read by the secretary, and Scripture reading by Mrs. W. J. Henry. Miss Craw's talk on items taken from the Messenger which is always so interesting was then given.

A vocal solo, in splendid voice, was rendered by Mrs. Spreggs.

The principle speaker was Mrs. Mackinnon of Knox Church who gave a most interesting address on her trip to Washington where she attended the World's Mission Convention. The speaker pointed out very clearly the outsanding features of the conference, her address being thoroughly enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to hear her. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Harstone on behalf of the Societyy, moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. James Mackintosh who acted as pianist in the absence of Mrs. Wilgar.

EARL OF YPRES ILL.

Operation To-day — Condition Gives Rise to Considerable Anxiety.

LONDON, March 18. — The Earl of Ypres, who as Field Marshal French commanded the British army in the field during the great war, underwent a severe and prolonged operation to-day, a medical bulletin says.

"Lord Ypres' condition after the operation is as satisfactory as could be expected but it must of necessity give rise to anxiety for some time."

The Earl of Ypres early in December underwent what was termed a minor operation for the removal of a small fleshy tumor. There have been no recent reports of a further illness.

RETURNS TO GET BATH.

NEW YORK, March 18. — A small young man with a red face, and dark hair, walked into the Hotel McAlpin on Friday night, registered as Selig Horowitz, and asked for a room without a bath.

Informed that there was no such room in the hotel he accepted one with a bath, and paid for it in advance. He obtained a receipt.

He gave up the room on Saturday but kept the key. Last evening at 6 o'clock he walked back into the hotel, went up on an elevator to the third floor and used his key to enter his old room, No. 306. Then he proceeded to take the bath which he had purchased but neglected to take on Friday, and which he regarded as being in law and fair play still due him.

He told the police afterwards that he had bought and paid for it in a strictly cash transaction and that he could not see why a fuss was being made about it.

At the time that Horowitz collected the bath, however, the room was another's. She walked in while the business man was in the tub, and then hurried downstairs for the hotel detective, who arrested Horowitz.

He was turned over to the police of the West Thirtieth Street Station, who passed him on to Bellevue Hospital.

HARD TIMES—NO WINE.

VIENNA, March 19.—Because of the general impression prevailing here, the apnual carnival here was tame. Champagne was too expensive for most of the revelers, so they had to try to have a good time on lemonade and soda water.

SPRING WORK STARTS.

Cheese Factory Plans to Start and Farmers Tap Trees.

ORLAND, March 19.— Mr. Fred Peister, who purchased the Codrington cheese factory from his brother Harper early this spring, called a meeting at the store in this place for the purpose of contracting with patrons and letting routes for the territory south of his factory.

The meeting was well attended and prospects looked good for the getting of many who patronized the butter fatcory for the past several years. Mr. Walter Reycraft put in a tender to haul the route through here which will be the product of some sixty cows.

Start Tapping Trees.

All the farmers who have maple bushes around here are tapping, but so far the weather has not been good for a big run, yet a good season is forecasted. The recent snow still clings to the ground with foggy days but the syrup makers are optimistic and say the frosty nights followed by bright sunny days will yet be plentiful, while the farmer who has a large acreage of fall seeding and clovers are hoping that kind of weather will not materialize as it will put a big crimp in the coming harvest of fall sown crops.

DOES EVERY MEAL CAUSE YOU DISTRESS?

If It Does You Should Take Burdock Blood Bitters

Mr. M. P. Eldrige, Beaver Harbor, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with my stomach for some time, and everything I ate seemed to distress me I tried many different medicines, but without any results. Finally I was advised to try B.B.B., and after having taken several bottles I was completely relieved of my trouble. I can now eat anything I wish, thanks to B.B.B."

Burdock Blood Bitters puts the stomach into perfect shape by promoting proper digestion; and during the past 46 years it has been on the market has made a reputation, second to none, for relieving all stomach troubles.

BOILER JAZZ NEXT

Ballet Mecanique Includes Parts for Electric Bells and Circular Saws.

PARIS, Feb, March 19.—A new kind of music, which will sound very much like a boiler on a busy day, has been written for the "Ballet Mecanique," to be presented shortly in Paris. It is the work of George Anthell, an American musician, and Ferdinand Leger, a French painter.

The orchestral instruments will include four electric-player pianos going simultaneously, four electric bells, a steel propeller, a wooden rattle and two tins beaten furiously Circular saws, biting their way through steel, furnish one of the themes.

"Something new is needed in music, and we are trying to produce it," says Anthell.

IN FOGGY LONDON

LONDON, March 19.—It has become so dangerous for pedestrians to cross streets during the famous London fogs that a London man has patented a small red electric light which a man can wear on his shoulder and thus warn the fast driving autoist.

Suffered Misery With Itchy Eczema Cuticura Healed

"I was troubled with eczema for over two years. At first it appeared in small spots and then began to spread all over my face and head until I suffered awful misery. The itching and burning were terrific. At times I thought I would go crazy, and was obliged to give up my work.

"I was treated and tried different ointments without any benefit. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and decided to try them. After the first application I felt relief. I continued the treatment for a time and now I am healed." (Signed) Miss Y. Wood, 886 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Quebec.

ROAD ROLLER IS OVERHAULED BY BOARD OF WORKS

A Verbal Discussion of Its Frailties Does Not Decide Settle Treatment.

TRY REPAIRS.

Foundry Will Not Give Guarantee and Engineer Wants a New One.

The purchase of a new road roller or repairing the old one was the cause of considerable discussion at the meeting of the Board of Works last night. Alderman Fife was in the chair.

The city engineer reported that the steam roller had cost on an average $460.00 a year for the last six years and was badly in need of repairs. As the roller is 26 years old he recommended that a new one be purchased at an approximate cost of $7,000.

A letter was read from the William Hamilton Co., quoting a price of $600 to repair the roller, also saying that they could not guarantee to put it in perfect condition.

Harry Evans said that the boiler was always leaking and it was not worth repairing unless the William Hamilton Co. would guarantee it for the season. Alderman Turner moved that they should ask the Hamilton Co. if they would guarantee the work for a year. It was seconded by Aldermen Stocker and carried.

Mr. Westbye was called by phone and said that the estimate of $500 did not include any unforseen repairs that might be found after the roller was dismantled. He would not make any guarantee until he consulted Mr. Baker.

Letters were read from the Waterous Engine Works, the G. I. Case Co., the Sawyer-Massey Co., giving prices on road rollers.

The city engineer favored the purchase of a gas roller at a cost of about $1,000 more than a steam roller, owing to convenience and time saved.

The Mayor moved, seconded by Alderman Turner, that the city engineer get a definite price and information on gas and steam rollers. The motion was carried.

Rebuild Bridge.

The city engineer reported that the foot bridge across the ravine at the end of Conger street would have to be rebuilt. The Ontario Government, said the Mayor, will grant $375.00 toward the bridge. Moved by Mayor Turner, seconded by Alderman Turner, and carried, that Mr. Parsons be authorized to replace the bridge as economically as possible.

A letter was received from E. G. Patterson asking for pavement on Park street from Charlotte street to Lansdowne street. This will be considered when the question of further paving comes up.

A letter was read complaining of the dumping of ashes in a lane north of 547 George street. Alderman Jones said that the fire chief had notified the people to stop putting ashes there and the practice had been stopped.

A letter was received from the Utilities Commission asking for notification as to what streets would next be paved so that they could do any work necessary to the water mains. It was decided to send a letter to the commission stating that they would be notified in good time of any intended paving.

A letter was read from Belleville city council agreeing to support a petition to the government asking them to suspend work on suburban roads for five years except those already approved.

Road Oil.

A letter was read from the deputy-minister of highways stating that the department had asked for tenders on road oil and could not yet quote on resale.

The Sun Oil Co. quoted on 50,000 gallons at 12.5 cents per gallon. The Imperial Oil Co. quoted 12.5 cents per gallon for liquid asphalt and 10 cents per gallon for Imperial dust layer. Alexander and Murray quoted rostar B. at 17.5 cents per gallon. The Barrett Co. quoted on tarvia B. at 17.88 cents per gallon. It was moved by Alderman Turner and Stocker that the matter be laid over till the department of highways is heard from.

The city engineer reported that sewage lines for the Quaker Oats Co., Peterborough Cereal Co., Canadian Packing Co., Canadian Pacific Railway Co. and the gas plant, with a pumping plant, would cost approximately $9,000.00.

The cost of laying pipes to the pumping station from each plant would be borne by the people, served according to the amount of pipe each required.

The board recommended to the council that two thirds of the cost of the pumping station be borne by the Quaker Oats Co., and the balance be borne by the other three companies.

A motion was passed authorizing the purchase of a car for which money had been put in the estimates.

The question of better light for the corner of Romaine and George streets was left to the chairman of the Board of works and the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

A letter was read from John Fligg asking permission to put stucco on the second story of an apartment house on Hunter street. The matter was left to the engineer.

The questions of drip from the eave troughs of the city hall and the sale of the pumping station at Romaine street were brought up.

The chairman and city engineer will be asked to report to the council about hiring a man to operate the sweeper.

WOMAN BURNED.

Couch in Front of Fireplace Caught Fire—Condition Serious.

TORONTO, March 19. — (Canadian Press.)— When the couch on which she was reclining in front of the open fireplace caught fire shortly before midnight and subsequently the flames ignited her clothes, Mrs. A. C. Smalley was badly burned about the body and is now in a serious condition in Western Hospital.

THE LEGISLATURE VIEWED THROUGH PARTY SPECTACLES

THE GOVERNMENT SIDE.
(Supplied by Conservative Press Bureau).

TORONTO, March 18. — It has been mentioned that criticisms on the budget have been few, from the Opposition side. The fact is that this session there is much more business and far less politics than is usually the case. "That is the way things should be discussed in this House—on a business basis," remarked Sam. Clarke, Liberal member for West Northumberland, and dean of the Assembly, in his address of Thursday evening. No more striking illustration of the new atmosphere could be quoted than the attitude of F. C. Biggs, former Minister of Highways in the Drury Government. In the debate he declared the budget "a business-like job" and the Treasurer "a good man on the job." The Minister of Mines, Hon. Charles McCrea, he described as one well trained for his position. He said the aim of the Minister of Highways, Hon. George Henry, was to "give the people the best possible value for the money," and expressed personal appreciation for the work of the Department's engineers in the Hamilton district during the year. He suggested that no one would care to avoid levy of the new gasoline tax if it meant a return to the road conditions of a few years ago, and the House approved by applause. Mr. Biggs specifically commended the work also of the Minister of Health, Hon. Dr. Godfrey, and that of other heads of departments. All of which is a first-class testimonial from one who can by no means be regarded as prejudiced in favor of this Government.

The Treasurer's bill providing for the acquisition by his Department of Succession Duty-exempt bonds, when held by an estate being wound up, went through the House without difficulty. Hon. Mr. Price estimates the saving to the province in future at $25,000 to $35,000 a year, and some Opposition members thought it would be more. W. E. N. Sinclair suggested that the Treasurer, in stopping the passing of these securities from one large estate to another, to avoid succession duties, was not dealing fairly with investors but the Liberal leader added, somewhat humorously, that he was "strong on this breach of faith stuff," and did not press his point, particularly as W. E. Raney warmly approved the bill on behalf of the Progressive group. There are over $4,000,000 of these securities still outstanding, although an issue has not been made since 1917 with the exemption clause.

The House received with much enthusiasm an announcement by the Prime Minister on Tuesday that the Government, in view of favorable reports received from the mining country, had decided to authorize an immediate start upon extension of the T. & N. O. Railway into the Rouyn gold and copper district. The work will involve building 37 miles in the Province of Quebec—an extension of the Swastika-Kirkland branch built under Nipising Central Federal charter. Transportation is now very costly and laborious, although augmented by a private company's airplane service, and the new line, as well as giving work to several hundred men, will mean a great deal to the mining industry in the new field. The Government hopes that the extension will also prove a paying venture to the Provincial railway at an early date. It will be complete by December of this year.

A bit of legislation bequeathed to the Government by the late administration is to be cleaned up in the near future, in the case of the 1923 amendment to the Medical Act bringing drugless healers under the definition of "practice of medicine." Regulations were to be framed, under the amended Act, governing the admission to practice of future graduates in drugless healing, but it has been found impossible to interpret the new legislation to the satisfaction of those concerned. Attorney-General Nickle held a long conference on Thursday with representatives of the Medical Association, osteopaths and chiropractors, and stated afterward that new legislation would be framed.

With the Premier at the helm, the House on Friday almost cleaned up a fairly heavy order paper. About 50 questions by members were disposed of by the Ministers, a batch of public and private bills advanced and five Government measures given second reading or put through committee of the whole, not without discussion, but subject to no opposition. The second readings included Hon. W. H. Price's amendments to the Succession Duty Act and Audit Act, and also the Treasurer's bill authorizing the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to guarantee payment of certain Englehart debentures. It is not very long since Friday afternoon brought a remnant of members together for the purpose, apparently of the opening prayers, for little else was done. It has become the heaviest business day of the session.

Beniah Bowman's bill to deal with animals running at large in unorganized districts led to discussion of a somewhat larger subject, the desirability of unorganized townships assuming municipal duties when able to do so. Premier Ferguson pointed out that Hon. James Lyons and previous Ministers had grappled with the problem, but it was hard to determine a population unit or other basis upon which residents of these districts should begin to take charge of their affairs and pay their way. The Government has expended millions each year for roads and schools in the north country, and there is no question but what it has all been worth while, but the Prime Minister intimated that some means would have to be found to encourage organizations, though probably not at the present session.

THE LIBERAL VIEWPOINT.
(Supplied by Liberal Organization).

Despite the prospects for continued deficits in Provincial financial affairs, budget discussions in the Ontario Legislature are to be cut shorter this year than on any previous year in the annals of the Province. Commencing March 5 with the address of Hon. Mr. Price, the wind-up is heralded for March 17—less than a week's consideration to be given to the problem of Ontario financial affairs involving millions of dollars which are at the root of Ontario's heavy burden of taxation.

For the first time in some years at least, the demand has emanated from the Legislature for a thorough consideration of the whole field of taxation in Ontario with a view to systematic readjustments. Speaking on the budget, H. Fisher, K.C., Liberal member for West Ottawa, declared that for years imposts had been imposed without any thought of effects upon industry in Ontario, and consideration given only to the availability of the money it was proposed to collect.

Ontario public men repeatedly found industries locating in Quebec which might reasonably be expected to build up their institutions in Ontario, and in the hit and miss policy of taxation in vogue in Ontario Mr. Fisher thought there might be found a reason for this economic loss to the Province.

Although Provincial Treasurer Price estimated the per capita debt at only $39.60 per person in Ontario, it has been worked out by other statictians as vastly greater than this figure. And without any reductions in the present plethora of taxes the citizens of Ontario must continue to contribute year in and year out a mighty big portion of his or her earnings to provincial coffers. It is toward some relief in these quarters that the Liberals in the Legislature are bending their efforts in their calls for an overhauling of the whole system.

Nobody in the Legislature, perhaps, took the Premier very seriously when he accused the prohibitionists of the Province of laying in wait for Sir William Hearst and hitting him over the head with a black jack, but it remained for the veteran of the Legislature, Sam Clarke, Liberal member for West Northumberland, to publicly puncture the bubble which the Prime Minister had created.

"Rot," said Mr. Clarke, according to reports in dealing with the Premier's statements on this subject. "It was the liquor people that laid the black-jack on the head of Sir William Hearst." He went on to remind the House that Toronto had returned five Liberals in the 1919 election—an unprecedented political upheaval, and Hamilton and London, solidly Conservative after the 1923 election, had returned not a Conservative in 1919. What earthly object, asked Mr. Clarke, would Ontario prohibitionists have of deliberately bringing about the downfall of Sir William?

LITTLE CHANGE LATEST REPORT

Fire and Tornado Damage Not Exaggerated in Early Reports.

CHILDREN DIE.

CHICAGO, March 19 (Canadian Press).—The toll of death and destruction as a result of the tornado which ripped its way through portions of five states of the middle west in mid afternoon yesterday, when children were in schools and workers in stores and factories, was still indefinite this afternoon. The latest estimates were:

Dead	500 to 1000
Injured	2300 to 3000
Homeless	8000 to 10000

Fires are still raging or smouldering this afternoon, and the scattered wreckage of millions of dollars' worth of property made an accurate count of victims impossible.

The hardest hit places were two cities in Southern Illinois—West Frankfort and Murphysboro. Several smaller communities were practically wiped off the map. Next to Illinois the sufferers were in Indiana and Missouri, with fatal echoes of the twister coming from Tennessee and Kentucky.

Reports received up to two o'clock this afternoon from points which suffered heaviest damage showed:

Murphysboro, Ills.—152 bodies recovered and from 100 to 150 more believed to be in the wreckage; 250 people seriously injured. A school house among the many buildings destroyed and 85 school children killed. Most of the business section and one-fourth of the residential district is in ruins. In all, 100 city blocks were destroyed; 70 blocks were swept by fire.

West Frankfort, Ill— 102 bodies recovered from wreckage; 200 people seriously injured; 250 buildings levelled. Property loss more than $2,000,000.

One Home Spared.

Parrish, Ills. — Entire village wrecked, with the exception of one home and a school house. Twenty-five known dead. From 40 to 150 believed also to have perished. 200 injured.

Griffin, Ind. — Only four badly damaged houses left standing in the community, which numbered 750. 40 bodies recovered.

POST CARD RECORDS.

BERLIN, March 19.—Sending of messages by tiny phonograph records attached to post cards has been patented by Charles Rammelsberg. A small phonograph is used by the receiver to obtain the message.

TEA AT HOME OF MRS. J. J. TURNER

St. Patrick's Talent Tea and Sale Under Ladies' Auxiliary to Y.M.C.A.

There was a good attendance yesterday afternoon at a very successful St. Patrick's talent tea and sale of home-made cooking, held at the home of Mayor and Mrs. J. J. Turner, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Young Men's Christian Association. The large, handsome rooms lent themselves admirably to the lovely decorations in green and white. A large Irish flag was draped in the entrance to the double drawing-rooms, the hangings were festooned with shamrocks and an Irish harp decorated the mantelpiece. In the tea-room, the table was centred by a silver basket of green carnations, surrounded by tulle in which Irish favors were placed. Green candles in silver candlesticks were at the corners of the table. The guests were received by Mrs. Turner and Mrs. G. H. Roper, president of the auxiliary. Mrs. P. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Detcher acted as treasurers, and Mrs. Thos. Brown was in charge of the tea-room. Tea was poured by Mrs. Thos. Barrie and Mrs. F. L. Robinson. Tea-room assistants were Mrs. M. A. Morrison, Mrs. C. A. White, Mrs. R. J. Martin, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. W. J. Preston and Miss Margaret Turner. Assistants in the drawing room were Mrs. E. F. Mason, Mrs. D. Jordan and Mrs. W. R. Breyfogle. A sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. M. Garbutt, Mrs. B. H. Poole and Mrs. D. Loomis. During the afternoon, a very enjoyable musical programme was rendered with vocal solos by Mrs. J. E. Middleton and Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, accompanied by Mrs. T. Cruickshank and Miss Marjorie Turner, a pianoforte duett by Mrs. C. C. Cragg and Mrs. T. Cruikshank, and an instrumental solo by Miss Marjorie Turner.

ARRESTED FOR FALSE PRETENCES

Isaac Mitchell Selyeh Pleaded Guilty in Police Court To-day.

Police Inspector J. F. Reid last night arrested Isaac Mitchell Selyeh on a charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretences. The accused pleaded guilty this morning of trying to obtain money and furniture from Morris Atkin and A. Cherney with a cheque for fifty dollars on the Dominion Bank, in which he had no account. He admitted having stolen a car in Marmora last year, but said he had served three months for the offence. He was remanded till March 25 in order that his record can be looked into.

Y.W.C.A. MASQUERADE.

Jolly Party Last Night Marked End of Campaign.

A very jolly masquerade party was held at the Young Women's Christian Association Rooms, last evening, when the losing side, captained by Miss Gladys Mulholland, in a recent membership campaign, held by Peter Robertson Chapter, I. O. D. E., were hostesses to the winners, captained by Miss Geraldine Glover. About forty young ladies attended the party, garbed in masquerade outfits ,th prize for the best costume going to Miss Mamie Drope, as Old King Cole, and Miss G. Glover capturing the award for the funniest outfit, as Aunt Eppie Hogg. Prizes were also bestowed on the winners in the campaign, Miss Glover and her five councillors; Mrs. J. Gillespie, and the Misses Ethel Nichol, O. Johnson, M. Drope and M. Hartstone.

Games and dancing were enjoyed during the evening, followed by refreshments served from a table decorated with spring flowers and presided over by Mrs. E. Morrison, superintendent of the 'Y' boarding home.

AMEND STOCK ACT.

Changes in Live Stock Products Act Will Be Proposed.

OTTAWA, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—The Minister of Agriculture will propose in the House of Commons shortly amendments to the Live Stock and Live Stock Products Act by making provisions:

1—To facilitate business on the stock yards by providing that all moneys received on account of sales of live stock sold by a commission firm on behalf of the owner thereof shall be deposited in the shippers live stock commission account instead of the shippers' trust account as at present.

2—To provide for the licensing of egg buyers, egg collectors and exporters of live stock, meat, poultry, eggs and wool.

3—To amend the power to make regulations as to the manner in which eggs found to be unfit for human consumption shall be valued and disposed of.

BIBLELESS TOWN.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—The Women's Bible Society of Philadelphia says it has found a town in the United States which is without a sinngle Bible. This town is Line Fork, Ky. A correspondent of the society was unable to find a Bible after visiting every house in the village.

EDGE OF STORM WAS FELT HERE

Heavy Rain and High Winds Cause Some Damage in Peterborough.

FIRE AND FLOOD.

The edge of the storm which devastated part of Illinois, passed over Peterboro last night and this morning, bringing wind and rain. The rain raised the Jackson Park creek so that the debris and ice jammed under Hunter Street bridge. The water was backed up, flooding the cellars of the houses around Brock and Aylmer Streets. A great deal of damage was done to hides stored in Brightman's cellar ready for shipment. The City Engineer's men blasted the obstruction just as the water started to come up on Hunter Street.

The high wind this morning gave the Fire Department four fires in an hour and a half. At 8.38 they were called to 495 Romaine Street, where overheated stove pipes caused a small amount of damage. At 9.20 they were called to 240 Munro Avenue to extinguish a similar fire, and had hardly returned to the Hall when they were summoned to extinguish a fire on an electric pole on Homewood Avenue. This was apparently caused by a short circuit over the wet pole. At 9.56 a chimney fire at 149 Rutherford Avenue called them out again. The fire alarm system was put out of commission in the south part of the city early this morning.

The wind blew down wires in several parts of the city, including a high tension wire at the corner of George and Dublin Streets at noon to-day. This wire was blown across another wire with every gust of wind sending up a flame several feet high. The Utilities Commission men repaired the break before any damage was done.

The chimney at the Peterboro Canoe Company's plant was blown down at 10.30 this morning. The stack was broken and dragged down some wires with it, but did no damage to the roof on which it lit.

CAUSE OF TORNADO TOLD BY SCIENTIST

High Temperatures and Humidity Near Ground With Colder Above.

(By the United Press)

CHICAGO Ill., March 19.—High temperatures and humidity near the ground and very low temperatures and humidity at about 1,000 feet above the ground combine to generate a tornado, Henry J. Cox, local weather forecaster explained today.

The average tornado usually travels a path about a quarter of a mile wide, at the rate of between 200 and 300 miles an hour and spends itself inside of forty miles, he said.

"I imagine it was about 70 degrees above in the stricken territory, Cox said, "up around 1,000 feet, it was probably freezing. A combination of this sort vastly accelerates the whirling motion of the wind. The centrifugal force of the rotating wind exhausts the air within the area covered by the tornado, producing a vacuum.

This is why the walls of buildings hit by the tornado burst outward as though an explosion had occurred inside."

OWEN SOUND IS IN STORM'S PATH

Trees Blown Down —Power and Light Lines Severed —Roads Blocked.

OWEN SOUND, March 19. — With the power and light service temporary tied up and the roads practically blocked with eight or ten inches of wet, clinging snow, Owen Sound is suffering under the most destructive storm of the season.

Equinoctial gales from the north brought with them one of the worst blizzards of years.

Trees were blown down, over on the roads, and somewhere between Owen Sound and Eugenia the source of power for the city, all the transmision wires were cut off by the storm.

NEEDED SMELLING SALTS.

Dowager Countess Carnarvon Underwent Ordeal on the Witness Stand.

LONDON, March 19. — Canadian Press. — The Dowager Countess of Carnarvon, now the wife of Lieut.-Colonel Ian Onslow Dennistoun, underwent an ordeal on the witness stand to-day in the trial of the suit brought by the Colonel's former wife for the money she alleges she had loaned him.

Once while testifying Lady Carnarvon nearly fainted, but with the help of smelling salts recovered and resumed her testimony.

Lady Carnarvon said Sir John Cowans had been a friend of their family for twenty years.

The intimacy which long existed between General Cowans and Mrs. Dennistoun has figured largely in the trial, the plaintiff charging that it had been encouraged by Colonel Dennistoun to further his ambitions.

Mrs. Dennistoun's own description of her husband, Lady Carnarvon said, was: "An awfully sweet man, very kind, a great gentleman, but an absolute 'washout.'" and West Frankfort the number of dead was estimated at 700, while the toll of human life in this city was believed to be around 150. From 150 to 400 are said to have been killed in Desoto, where most of the victims were children either buried under the ruins of their schoolhouse, or trapped in the flames that burst out after the structure had tumbled into a mass of twisted steel and crumbled bodies.

1000 REPORTED DEAD

About one-third of West Frankfort, a town of 9,500, was nearly wiped out by the wind.

Freak incidents that accompany a tornado were numerous. At Desoto the hurricane raged with such fury that planks torn from piles of lumber ewre carried to Duquoin, 18 miles away.

Every Building Wrecked

At Annapolis, Mo., where the first blow fell, every building was wrecked or damaged with a property loss in that town of 1,200 population alone placed at a half million dollars.

Small loss of life, but considerable property damage occurred in three other Missouri towns—Bichle, Altenburg and Cape Girardeau—all on or near the Mississippi River. But it was not until the storm jumped across into Illinois and moved on into Indiana that its most devasting effects were felt.

At least 200 were thought to be dead in Southern Indiana, with principal damage to Prince ton, Griffin and Poseyville, where death lists ranged from 6 to 100. Thousands were homeless and the arrival of shelter and supplies was looked forward to eagerly.

Picture of Desolation.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. Mar. 19 (Canadian Press).—Early this morning 102 bodies had been extricated from buildings wrecked here in yesterday's tornado and more than 20 seriously injured taken to the hospitals. Two hundred and fifty buildings were levelled and Sheriff Dorris estimated the property loss at more than $2,000,000.

Two national guard units are in control here, but the town has not been placed under martial law. Dawn today in West Frankfort presented a picture of desolution that rivalled the war stricken portions of France in the most hectic days of the struggle. As far as the eye could see the landscape was a huge irregular mas sof twisted debris.

Child Cries—Mother Dead

It was extremely difficult in many instances at first to determine accurately the details of the picture. Here a whole house has been moved completely from its foundations; at; another place the side had been ripped off; while in other cases what had once been homes were nothing but little piles of twisted wreckage. Here and there could be heard the pitiful cries of the injured, still pinned beneath the wreckage.

One of the most pitiful sights that greeted the rescue workers was that of a mother lying terribly mangled with a tiny infant, crying lustily, crawled about her inert form. A miner from the Orient mine near here still in his pit clothes and carrying the limp form of a five-year -old child, walked dejectedly in the path of rescue workers to a pile of debris that until yesterday constituted his home. In the debris were found his wife and another son, both terribly injured. The morgue was filled to overflowing with the bodies of victims.

RECEPTION AT MOUNT ST. JOSEPH.

(Contributed.)

To-day a two-fold ceremony of distinctive significance to countless numbers of friends, was held at Mt. St. Joseph, when seven young ladies were invested with the Holy Habit, and eight pronounced perpetual vows.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien celebrated Holy Mass,assisted by Revs. Fathers Butler and Finn.

Present in the Sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. Fathers E. G. Bartlett, McRae (St. Augustine's Seminary), Cote, O. P., O'Neill (Ottawa), O'Toole (Pakenham), O'Leary (North Bay), Bunyan (North Bay), McAuley (Enniskmore), Meagher (Lindsay), O'Sullivan, of the Catholic Truth Society, J. J. O'Brien, Costello and Maloney, of the city.

Rev. Father Bartlett, director of the retreat, in a realistic manner, indicated the similarity of the character of the dedication made by the young ladies of their lives with the nature of the daily oblation of our Lord on the altar. The same impressive words, "The Lord be with you," uttered immediately before the consecration can be applied to their oblation, as these words epitomize the religious life, an attempt to anticipate living with God.

Endorsed with the gift of Faith, these young ladies subjected themselves to the example of holy lives and man, with their souls imbued with the real meaning of life, were desirous to unite themselves with Him.

In the ceremony everyone must realize God's nearness to us, and the gradual of human beings into the benevolence of His love. Such a ceremony is manifestly inspired in a pervading heavenly atmosphere.

Father Bartlett, S. J., concluded by aptly showing that the blessing about to be imparted by the Spiritual Father of the flock would be but the earnest of the happiness of this life, and a foretaste of the bliss in the life to come.

His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, in a brief impressive manner explained the meaning of the two ceremonies. The ceremony of Reception is but a link in the endless chain of religious life which has its origin in the adm-sson of the Apostles to His sacred band of Christ Himself. Like the Apostles, these young women have left the world to follow His standard, and as His soldiers, they have solicited a distinctive uniform emblematic of His service—the habit of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

More significant, however, is the ceremony of Profession. After five years' probation, the petition of the Sisters to pronounce the three vows of religious life is symbolic of the stability of such a life. hey have contracted with God to devate their whole interests to His. They have undertaken what? The cause of God? From what motive? The love of God.

His Lordship exhorted that others who received the Divine call answer it readily and willingly after the example of the obedience of St. Joseph, the patron of the community.

The following young ladies received the Holy Habit:

Miss Juliana Palleck, Fort William,—in religion Sister Mary Rose of Lima.

Miss Alice O'Neill, Pakenham,—in religian Sister Mary St. Claire.

Miss Thelma Sinclair, Wiarton,—in religion Sister Maris Stella.

Miss Kathleen Burke, Peterboro,—in religion Sister Mary Alicia.

Miss Mary Nolan, Peterboro,—in religion Sister Mary Marina.

Miss Mary Kelly, Sudbury,—in religion Sister Mary St. Damien.

Miss Evelyn Cote, Lindsay,—in religion Sister Mary Denise.

Sisters M. Annette, Modesta, St. Louis, Geralda, Dolores, St. Victor, Julitta, Teresita pronounced their perpetual vows.

Bank Manager Provides $10,000 For Daughter at 30 Years of Age.

TORONTO, March 19—(Canadian Press).—An estate of $89,986 was left by the late Donald A. Cameron, formerly manager of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who died on January 30 last, just as he was about to assume the duties of assistant general manager of the bank. Mrs. Winnifred E. H. Cameron, his wife, is bequeathed the household effects for life and the income from the whole estate, subject to the payment of $10,000 to the testator's daughter, Winnifred, when she reaches thirty years of age. On the death of Mrs. Cameron the income from the estate is to be divided equally between the children.

Roof Blown Off Church At Niagara Falls To-day

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., March 19 (Canadian Press).—A high wind of almost gale-like proportions struck Niagara Falls today. The roof was blown from St. Stanislaw Church and crashed onto the roof of the Convent of the Felician Sisters. No one was injured.

Many signs were blown down about the city and scores of windows smashed.

Fire recently destroyed part of the Louvain University chemical laboratory. The university was wrecked by the Germans during the war.

ALLEY RATS WON FROM THE FALCONS

Fire Hall Crew Are Beaten 2 Goals to 1.

The Alley Rats hockey club won a hard fought victory at the Brock Street Arena last evening when they defeated the fast Fire Hall Falcons by 2 to 1 in a game that was chuck full of thrills, fast hockey and clever stick-handling and few penalties. The game opened at a fast clip, both teams going the pace. The Falcons had a shade the best of the argument in the first two periods, with Cheu and Danny White leading the attack, but the Alley boys' defence was not easily drawn out, and Warde saved nicely when the Fire Fighters did get a chance to draw a bead on him. Cheu and Smith teamed nicely in the defence together, their defence work being done up in good shape. Delehaye, in the Falcons' goal, did great work. He saved more shots than the German war debt. The two that passed him were from the corner of the rink, where he had no chance to save. The Falcons expect to play the Alley Rats again this evening from 7 till 8 at the Brock Street Arena, when the hose crew are confident they can reverse last night's decision.

The line-up:

Falcons—Goal, Delehaye; defence, Cheu and Smith; wings, McNeely and Lundy; centre, D. White; sub., L. White.

Alley Rats—Goal, Warde; defence, Johnson; wings, Robinson and Dundas; centre, Roach.

Bus. Picard refereed to the satisfaction of both teams.

It was not until the third period was near over that Cheu, the Fire Boys' speedy defence man, took the puck up the ice, and, beating the Rats' forwards and defence, came right in on top of Warde and gave him no chance to save. The Alley boys are a fast checking crew, their persistent checking and stick-handling giving them the victory. Johnson was the king pin on the Rats' line-up, the two goals being credited to him. Dundas and Robinson also turned in a good game. Warde's work in the nets was spectacular. Danny White went great guns all night for the Falcons, while Lundy, L. White and McNeely were dangerous on every rush.

FISH AND GAME

The other day in Atlanta, Ga., a friend of mine said he never cared for bass, but was "very fond of fresh-water trout."

I went to the market with him to get the trout—two fish, each weighing a pound. They were small-mouth bass. The market man had on display "fresh-water trout" up to 10 pounds in weight. These were large-mouth bass from Florida waters.

From Arkansas to the Atlantic the southerners pride themselves on a native food fish. It's called the Crappie in the south. In the north this fish is quite frequently referred to as the speckled bass.

In Quebec the natives refer to the small grass-pike as "pike" and the big grass-pike as "maskinonge." The short designation of muscalunge in Ontario is "lunge" and in Wisconsin and Minnesota it's "musky."

The wall-eyed pike is "dore" in Quebec and "pickerel" in Ontario and Michigan. In Ohio it's "salmon"; in Pennsylvania, "Susquehanna salmon"; in Manitoba, "Jack salmon," and in Wisconsin and Minnesota, "wall-eyes." The experienced angler knows this fish as "pike-perch," the proper name.

In a few States and across Canada from Quebec to, and including Alaska, you catch a great trout in the deeper lakes. In some places this fish is designated as "grey trout," in others "lake trout," still others "salmon trout" and now and then is called plain "salmon."

The speckled trout or brook trout is known in some streams as "speckled trout" and in lakes at the head of those streams as "red trout." In Newfoundland the brook trout is referred to as "mud trout," if it doesn't migrate into the sea, and "sea-trout" if it does migrate. In most States this same fish is known as "native trout."

This misnomer of our game and pan fish is bad enough, but the commercial dealers in fish have the hook-and-line angler stopped. They put such a fancy name on a Lake Erie carp or Mississippi River catfish that the carp or catfish is said to improve in flavor and texture under the price influence.

CANNED GOODS WEEK

British Canners Set Aside Week to Push Sale of Products.

LONDON, March 19 (Associated Press)—A movement is on foot to start a British Empire Canned Goods Week, to advertise and sell British canned commodities.

Writing on the subject Godfrey Cheeseman, general secretary of the National Union of Manufacturers, says everybody is being urged to eat more fruit, but it is not suggested that they should eat fruit produced within the British Empire. He expressed the belief that a week devoted to the advertising and sale of British canned commodities would show most beneficial results.

OVER CONFIDENCE IS BIG BUGABOO

Has Lost Titles and Caused Many Upsets in Dope.

By ART CARLSON.

Over confidence is one of the biggest bugaboo items in sports. It has brought defeat to more than one individual or team. It has wrested titles away and has caused countless upsets in old dope column.

Football coaches, boxing managers and various other sport leaders have long sought to keep the veteran jinx out of the clubhouse, gym and off the field of battle. But is has been a tough task. For a string of victories usually brings out a sort of dominant attitude that is exceptionally hard to overthrow. It has ever been thus.

Some 15 years or so ago, I saw Battling Nelson in Detroit. He was doing a vaudeville turn at the time. His appearance there was of more interest, too, because within a few weeks he was to battle Ad Wolgast, the "Michigan Wildcat," for the light-weight championship of the world. Nelson was then the title-holder, having wrested the honours from Joe Gans a couple of years before.

Nelson ws all confidence over the approaching fight. Wolgast would prove easy for him. There was no question about it. Not in the Danes mind at least. In other words he would make short work of the challenger.

The night or so before the encounter, Nelson still bore the same much-cherished crown, Nelson's seconds tossing up the sponge in the 40th round with their man virtually out on his feet.

Over-confidence may not have actually lost the championship for Nelson and started him on the down ward trail but it no doubt had quite a bit to do with the outcome. And that isn't taking any credit away from Wolgast either.

When I heard the result of the fight late on the night of Feb. 22, 1910, I couldn't help but reflect back to the cocky attitude the Dane had displayed in Detroit a few weeks before.

Nelson's "sure thing" had proven otherwise. For old Mister Over-confidence had been entertaining even the great Battling Nelson.

HEART TROUBLE

Prime Killer Once Was Tuberculosis, But Today People "Drop Dead."

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Mann were upset very much over what the doctor told Mr. Mann about his heart. Both were tickled, and could hardly realize that they were not more seriously ailing with some sort of malady.

The hint of a possible heart weakness, however, stirred their interest, and they began a study of the heart, its troubles and what to do to keep from "dropping dead" suddenly as folk do in the papers.

Their interest was heightened when they learned that heart trouble is responsible for one-ninth of the deaths at all ages, and for one-sixth of the deaths in persons of 40 and over.

Heart trouble kills more people than tuberculosis, more than cancer, apoplexy, pneumonia or Bright's disease.

In addition there are thousands suffering from some kind of heart disorder. It is estimated that more than 2,000,000 persons in the United States are subjects of serious heart defects.

Tuberculosis once was the prime killer. The anti-tuberculosis crusades throughout the country have served to educate the people against the "white plague," however, until today, the death rate from tuberculosis, is comparatively low, in comparison to the death rate from heart disorders.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Editor,

Dear Sir:—As a Unionist, I have had many times to listen to insinuations and statements that my love for the Presbyterian Church is a slight thing, when I could give up that Church so readily.

I can only speak for myself, but for myself I say that the Presbyterian Church is very precious to me. About it cluster the dear associations of childhood, it is hallowed by the memory of those "loved long since and lost awhile," and the very name is music in my ears. Yet with sacred joy I lay it—no mean unworthy gift, but a thrice costly sacrifice on the altar of God, for what I sincerely believe to be for His greater glory and the extension of His Kingdom here an earth, and my small part in helping to bring about the answer to the age-old petition, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven."

Love the Presbyterian Church? Yes. Glad am I that I have something so precious to sacrifice for His Kingdom. It were unthinkable to render to Him a gift that was of slight value in my own eyes. Yet what sacrifice, however costly, looms large when placed beside the sublime sacrifice of the ages, the Cross of Calvary?

"Were the whole realm of nature mine.
That were a present far too small;
Love so amazing, so divine
Demands my life, my soul, my all."

GAS SHOWS MEALTIME

English People Still Like Hot Mid-day Meal on Sundays.

LONDON, March 19 (Associated Press)—The hot Sunday mid-day dinner is still a fetish among the majority of English people, says a report on gas consumption, which in England is at its maximum between 11 o'clock in the morning and 1 p.m. on Sundays.

Close observers of gas consumption say that the hours of cooking vary in different towns. Brighton, for instance, spends more time on the seafront and pier and goes on cooking until nearly 3 p.m. Nottingham inclines to the Continental style and uses more gas for cooking in the evening. Scotland, with stricter observance of the Sabbath, does most of its cooking for Sunday on the previous day.

SUBWAYS FOR VENICE.

VENICE, March 19.—This city of canals may have a subway under its famous thoroughfares. A subway eight miles long and reaching all parts of the city is being considered. Tubes which would be built in the bed of the canals may be used.

HEREDITARY PRINTS.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, March 19.—Finger prints are hereditary, and each family has a distinctive pattern which differs in a few details for the various members, says Mlle. Kristine Bonnevie of the Royal Frederik University of Norway. She also believes there is a relation between the finger prints of related races.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

ROUGH AND TUMBLE SCREEN FIGHT

Wallace Beery and William Collier, Jr., have challenged each other to a finish fight with bare fists and boot heels. The battle is to take place in Peterboro on Friday. The place is the Capitol Theatre—and there is no way of cancelling the battle other than by changing the play dates of Victor Fleming's latest production for Paramount, "The Devil's Cargo," in which the belligerent pair are featured with Pauline Starke and Claire Adams in the leading roles.

Collier is barely five feet ten and weighs 140 pounds; Beery is six feet one and weighs 235. Beery is the favorite in such wagers as are being made regarding the outcome.

Our advice is to save your money, see the picture and enjoy yourself.

"The Devil's Cargo" is a love melodrama, adapted from Charles Whittaker's story, "The River Boat."

SCREEN IMPROVES ON SHIPMAN PLAY

"Cheaper to Marry" More Effective Than Ever As Picture.

While holding all of the intense dramatic appeal of the stage play, the screen version of "Cheaper to Marry" which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre, is far more colorful than Samuel Shipman's original story.

This is because the motion picture takes advantage of wider latitudes, and Robert Z. Leonard, in making this picturisation for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has brought a lavish production of society and near-society life to the screen.

In addition to an exceptional cast, Leonard brings into this film noted dancers for his cafe scenes, and fifty of the most beautiful bathing girls in California to the sequence devoted to showing intimate happenings in an exclusive women's club. Limitations of the speaking stage made such elaborate settings impossible.

The cast includes Lewis S. Stone, Conrad Nagel, Paulette Duval, Marguerite de la Motte, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Richard Wayne. As the cynical Jim Knight, who does not believe in marriage, Lewis Stone adds to his fame as an actor. Paulette Duval of "Monsieur Beaucaire" fame, is seen as a modern vampire for the first time, gowned in beautiful creations and jewels. Conrad Nagel, always a capable actor, plays his role with rare accomplishment, as does Miss de la Motte, seen opposite Nagel for the first time.

The comedy is handled most admirably by Louise Fazenda and Mr. Gillingwater, while Richard Wayne is the "other man" in the love affair between Mr. Stone and Miss Duval. Frederick and Fanny Hatton are given credit for bringing this powerful Shipman indictment against social radicalism to the screen without a change in the original plot. Alice D. G. Miller did the continuity.

AT THE ROYAL

HUGE PICTURE COMPANY LIKE REGULAR ARMY

Airplanes, "Blimp" and Motor Live in Tent City on Mexican Ranch to Film "Sundown." At Royal Theatre To-night.

The location company used by First National in the filming of "Sundown," its most recent gigantic production, was one of the largest ever sent out by a motion picture company.

Accompanied by air-service, cavalry, motor transport, signal corps, medical detachment, commissary and a battery of cameras, the company crossed the Mexican border into a two million acre cattle principality—the largest in the country—where scenes showing 100,000 head of cattle were filmed.

A cast of world famous actors and actresses played their roles against the moving panorama of American beauty which is to be the background of this unusual picture. Bessie Love, Roy Stewart, Charlie Murray and Hobart Bosworth headed the cast.

Earl Hudson, supervisor of First National Productions and the author of the story, sent the expedition out under army discipline. David Thompson, production manager, was in command.

From Columbus, N. M., a motor transport fleet carried the company to headquarters, an adobe building at a strategic point on the ranch. From this building a company street of tents was built out into the desert. There were forty tents in the double line, in addition to mess and hospital shelter.

Available for reconnoitering and courier service was a fast scout plane with a pilot and observer, while a captive blimp was anchored over the scene of action as a camera base for aerial views of the mighty herd.

While a gripping and thrilling love story, "Sundown" also is an historic film, recording as it does the picturesque passing of the pioneer cattle kings from the Southwest.

Driven by the fast encroachments of homesteaders upon their grazing lands, the old time cattlemen of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California are compelled to seek the open lands of Mexico. They mass their cattle into great herds—thousands of them—and start the long, tedious drives over the desert and across the Rio Grande.

The First National cameras caught the oceans of cattle in actual movement to their new grazing lands. Never before has such a sight been filmed, and never will be filmed again, since the cattle kings are now gone from the Southwest, and that country has lost its picturesqueness of pioneer days in the avalanche of civilization which is flooding over it.

This epic of the screen will be shown at the Royal Theatre to-night.

AT THE REGENT

"FOOLS IN THE DARK": MATT MOORE'S GREATEST THRILL

Of all the risks which a motion picture actor endures—and they are many—what is the greatest. Not doing the thrill stunts. Not putting one's well-known neck up for auction on the block of the great God Chance by jumping over a cliff on horseback, leaping chasms in automobiles, or tumbling blithely out of airplanes. Not by a jugful!

The greatest risk the motion picture actor takes is getting into the automobile of a Los Angeles real estate agent; believe Matt Moore, star of the Al Santell production of "Fools in the Dark," which opens at the Regent Theatre to-night. And if you don't believe Matt, you don't know the breed of Escrow Indians who operate in Hollywood and environs.

Mr. Moore had recently been considering buying some land and building a house. Indiscreetly, he mentioned the fact to a casual acquaintance who happened also to be a Soil Sheik—otherwise, a real estater. Before he could catch his breath or urge postponement, he was forced into the salesman's big car and headed for the upper stretches of the Santa Monica mountains.

It was dinner time, but neither that nor the gathering dusk had any effect upon the real estate gent. He swooped up the grades which wind around the Hollywood hills, at thirty an hour, intent on showing Mr. Moore all there was. His enthusiasm bubbled and gushed like an artesian well.

"Lookit that site for a home," he shouted, waving an arm outward and surveying the beautiful landscape below. "Just lookit that view! Why a man—"

"Hey!" yelled Matt. "Look out for that car coming!"

The real estate genius swerved sharply, narrowly escaping a collision, and swirled on up hill, rounding a turn where the ground fell away into a steep defile.

The real estater stepped on the gas and hurried on. "This piece can be bought for a mere song; a mere song," he stated confidently, gesturing up the hill.

"Hey! For Gawd's sake!" squeaked the prospective purchaser. "Go slow, will you? I'm too scared to sing!"

Matt insists that when he returned, it was eight o'clock and his nerves were in a raw and bleeding condition. He further avers that he purchased a lot he didn't want because he was too scared to know just what he was doing.

"The title of the picture I'm working on is a coincidence," he remarked. "'Fools in the Dark' is right! Anybody's a fool who goes with a real estate man in the dark, take it from me!"

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

Progress is impossible if there are none who dare take a step forward, unless they see the footprints of those that went before. Those who are living under the "law of the spirit," are not tied down to creeds, theories, forms, and customs; but are free to track out in obedience to the spirit. They oftimes are branded as fools and heretics. Nevertheless, those who are living in the will of God are doing the best and most. Much is little, without God, and little is much when God is in it. Those who come under "the law of the spirit," may at times have to walk alone, as far as human companionships are concerned ,and have to fight single handed. This may cause some to marvel, especially when they notice, with what authority they speak.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

BARACA CLASS BANQUET.

Ladies' Classes Entertained at Murray Street Church—St. Patrick's Event.

The Baraca Young Men's Class were hosts to the two young ladies' classes of the Murray street church on Tuesday evening at a very enjoyable St. Patrick's Day banquet Over one hundred and t enty guests sat down. The banquet room was decorated by the class in the typical atmosphere of St. Patrick's day. The tables were prettily decorated in green and white, while shamrocks added to the effect. Place cards of white with a blue "B," the class colors, were by each plat, and dainty favors of blue and white added distinction to the effect.
The orchestra of five pieces was ensconced in a small room, with an Arabian touch in decorating and supplied a musical treat throughout the entire course of the banquet.
Graham Eastwood had charge of the musical entertainment and amused his guests by turning his white-coated waiters to a male voice chorus and back to waiters again as he desired. A much appreciated cornet solo by Cecil Gallagher was rendered during the course of the banquet, while several very suitable rollicking Irish songs by Miss Pierson put the guests in proper St. Patrick's day mood.
At the conclusion of the meal the two young ladies' classes gave the Baraca Class a very pleasant surprise by presenting them with a table, which in a few words of acceptance, Roy White, the president, stated was the thing most needed by the class.
The programme:
Opening remarks, Roy White. Toast—"King and Country," proposed by William Yelland. Toast—"Our Church," Percy Johnston, responded to by Dr. Rose. SHEPHERD CASE STRANGER THAN DOYLE FICTION

Another "Master Crime" Alleged by Chicago Authorities Against Heir to Millions.

A LONG ENQUIRY

Features of Investigation That Culminated With Shepherd's Arrest for Murder.

CHICAGO, March 20.—The story of the investigation into the death of William N. McClintock, millionaire orphan, of Chicago, reads rather more like a mystery tale from the pen of a Conan Doyle than a story from real life.

Young McClintock, barely of age, only a few months in control of a $2,000,000 fortune, died Dec. 4 in the home of William D. Shepherd, old friend of McClintock's dead mother. Dr. Rufus B. Stolp, family physician, signed the death certificate, giving hemorrhagic typhoid fever in severe form as the cause of death.

It was revealed that the estate had been bequeathed to Shepherd, foster father of the youth, except for an annuity of $8,000 given Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancee, who had nursed him in the earlier stages of his illness.

The funeral was held, and the Shepherds left Chicago for Albuquerque, N.M., for the announced purpose of recuperating from the strain of attending to the wants of the sick boy, and the shock caused by his death. Everything appeared regular and above board.

But Harry Olson, chief justice of Chicago's Municipal Court, a friend of the McClintock family, and coguardian with Mrs. Shepherd, wasn't satisfied in his own mind. Why should the boy have left his entire fortune to Shepherd, ignoring all of his cousins, and why was Miss Pope denied the privilege of marrying McClintock, even on his death bed, after she had obtained the license and the two had agreed to advance the marriage date which had been set for December 6?

Acts on Tip.

Then someone, whose identity has not been divulged, gave Judge Olson some additional information and shortly after the Shepherds left the city he made a statement to the coroner.

Acting upon this information, the coroner ordered the body exhumed and an autopsy was held to determine the cause of death. The examination showed death was caused by typhoid fever and that there was no trace of poison.

One of Shepherd's mistakes was made here. Instead of accepting the investigation gracefully he became abusive, asserting he would file suit for slander against Judge Olson. He issued a statement, saying the autopsy had proved the allegations of Judge Olson false and claiming complete vindication for himself and family. He charged that Judge Olson and the natural heirs of McClintock were instigating the charges purely as a basis for a contest of the will.

Shepherd's attitude spurred the investigators and they turned to the possibility that typhoid germs had been administered artificially.

The nature of typhoid contamination supplied another question to be cleared up. The disease usually is contracted through impurties in water or food. If the disease had been contracted from water, the Shepherd family would have been infected with the disease, it was argued. There had been a typhoid fever epidemic contracted in Chicago from contaminated oysters, but there was no evidence that McClintock could have gotten it from this source. Then, too, none of the other members of the household had the disease.

Check Cultures.

Investigators were sent into every laboratory in Chicago in which typhoid cultures are made for the purpose of medical study. A careful check was made on every disbursement of typhoid cultures, of every odd request of every person who seemed to show an unnatural interest in the germ cultures.

Soon the first threads of a clue were picked up. From one source it was revealed that Shepherd had made inquiries about the disease. From another it was learned that a man, identity unrevealed, had inquired about a course in bacteriology and after a few lessons had failed to continue the course.

These and other less important facts were revealed in testimony before the coroner's inquest, which sat throughout January, February and early this month, without substantial results other than a suspicion.

Chief Of Berlin Police Throws City's "Lid" Away

BERLIN, March 20.— Berlin has a new chief of police in the person of Dr. Friedensburg. He began his new job yesterday with an announcement of his principal aims, as follows:

1—To create a healthy, sparkling night-life in the metropolis.

2—To extend the police closing hour for cafes, restaurants, cabarets and other places where wine and song flow freely from 1 a.m. to some hour closer to the dawn of the morning after.

3—To introduce complete fredoom for dancing, which is now limited to three days a week.

He declared:

"Berlin is a world city and must present itself as such to its numerous visitors, especially those from abroad."

ROOMS RIFLED DURING BLAZE

Thieves Reaped Harvest of Valuables in Doomed Hotels at Palm Beach.

SOME CAPTURED

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 20.—Thousands of dollars worth of valuable dresses, cash and jewelry were stolen during Wednesday fires at the Breakers and Palm Beach Hotels, from the guests rooms, to which almost anyone was permitted access through the absence of police fire lines.

Gangs of corner loafers from West Palm Beach reaped a harvest by helping themselves to the most choice wearing apaprel and whatever articles of jewelry had been left in bureau drawers. Frantic women ran about outside the hotel, pleading for some one to save their clothing.

One man offered $20 to a negro bell-boy to get a single suit of clothes from his room. In numerous instances where numbers were given to youths who volunteered to go for clothing, neither youths nor clothing ever returned.

Martial law was put into effect at the request of local authorities after police in West Palm Beach had captured two motor trucks and several automobiles loaded with valuables stolen from the ruins, arresting eight negroes and one white man.

Few managed to save their own belongings. Among those was Norman E. Mack, former Democratic National Committeeman from New York. Mr. Mack was absent from the hotel when the fire started. He returned just before the collapse of the south wing. Taking two bell boys with him Mr. Mack went to his

HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS MAY SELL NEW 4.4 BEER, LICENSES FOR DELIVERY GRANTED TO GROCERS, IN FERGUSON'S SOLUTION OF TEMPERANCE PROBLEM

Amendments to the O.T.A. Brought Forward by Hon. W. F. Nickle in Legislature on Thursday—Sale Will Be By License—Bars Are Prohibited in Hotels—Minimum Fine for Having Liquor Illegally Reduced From $200 to $50.

BREWERIES WILL BE BONDED FOR $10,000 TO KEEP THE LAW

TORONTO, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—There were no surprises in the amendments to the Ontario Temperance Act introduced into Legislature yesterday by Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney General. Every feature of it had been forecast or hinted at during the past few weeks.

The outstanding features of the amendments are:

That beer containing two and half per cent volume of alcohol may be sold and that any beer exceeding that amount of alcohol shall be deemed intoxicating. The beer allowed at present under the O.T.A. contains not more than two and half per cent proof spirits. The new beer is approximately double the strength of that now sold.

That the new beer shall be sold by those who get permits from the Board of License Commissioners.

That those places granted permits shall be standard hotels, good restaurants and cafeterias for consumption on the premises and grocers for delivery for outside consumption.

That in hotels the beer must be sold from tables and not over a bar.

That beer shall not be sold to those under 18 years of age.

Nominal License Fee.

That the fee for a permit to sell beer will be nominal and that the permit is for regulation and not for profit.

That all supplies of alcohol required by wholesale druggists shall be purchased hereafter from the license board direct and not from the distiller.

That the board may prohibit any druggist from selling or suppyling liquor on the written prescription of a physician.

That no qualified practitioners shall issue in any one month more than 30 prescriptions for liquors.

That the time allowed for an appeal from a magistrate's judgement in an O.T.A. breach action shall be 20 days instead of ten as at present.

That the Department of Health may cause an analysis to be made of any patent medicine and may prohibit the sale of such medicine if it is found to contain alcohol in contravention of the act.

That a druggist may keep a supply of liquor for sale for strictly medicinal purposes in packages of not more than six ounces.

That a dentist may have in his possesion in addition to what he is otherwise entitled to, one quart of ethylic alcohol for purely mechanical purposes.

That clubs may sell 4.4 beer under permit, and that such premises shall be open to inspection at all times.

Minimum Fine Reduced.

That the minimum fine for having or drinking liquor in a public place be $50 instead of $200 as at present and that the maximum remain at $1000.

That the 4.4 beer shall be in bottles with tin stoppers inlaid with cork and the name of the brewery stamped and the alcoholic content plainly marked. When sold in kegs or barrels these must have the same information stamped in the wood.

That those places found guilty of infractions of the law may be closed for not less than a month and not more than three and to be placarded.

That the permits for selling beer may be cancelled at any time by the board.

That breweries be bonded to the extent of $10,000 not to infringe on the law and that in cases of being found guilty of infringement the minimum fine be $1,000.

That permit holders may eject persons from their premises when such person or persons is or are there for improper cases after he or she has refused to leave by request.

Practical Solution.

There was no discussion on the bill as that will come with the second reading next week although Mr. Nickle after his brief review of the main points of the measure answered a few questions. He said the government had decided that the time had come to get away from mere theoretical principles and meet a problem in a practical, common sense way. "The present limitations in the O.T.A. are artificial, illogical and certainly unscientific" said Mr. Nickle. "We feel that these amendments are in the interests of true temperance. We do not think that 4.4 beer is intoxicating and we feel that by this measure the way of the bootlegger will be made hard, and, that he will be made to feel the full rigors of the law."

Mr. Nickle said that the permit fees would be nominal as they were for regulation and not for profit. In the matter of regulation Mr. Nickle said that it was the policy of the government to put the beer in the window and not in the cellar "We want to get away from the hypocricy that has characterized the administration of temperance not only in Ontario but in other parts of the world. You can't sweep back the tide with a broom but you can regulate its flow. He thought that the best way to serve beer was at tables and chairs "so that we get away from the brass rail where men stood up and drank until they could stand no longer."

The Premier said that due notice would be given as to the time of second reading for the bill.

MEIGHEN DEALS WITH PETERSEN SHIP CONTRACT

House Asked by the Government to Ratify Principle Contained in Contract.

SHIFTING POLICY

Real Question Was Government Control by Subsidy—Accept or Reject.

OTTAWA, March 20 (Canadian Press).—Resuming the adjourned debate on the Petersen ship subsidy in the House of Commons yesterday, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, read to the House clauses from the contract, because, he said, members had been "carried far over the waters of controversy" in the course of the debate and it was advisable that they should know exactly what was before Parliament.

From the speeches of the Prime Minister, the House had been informed that the principle which they were considering, was one of examination of the contract by a committee.

The principle which the House was asked to ratify, was the principle contained in the contract, and none other. The history of Parliament could be searched, and no instance found where an agreement signed and sealed by a government could be subjected to anything save acceptance or rejection.

The Prime Minister, in his speech, had said that the resolution was to be accepted or rejected, but as he had proceeded, and as the clouds had gathered around his government, he had altered his position, by a "slow curve." The resolution must pass, the Prime Minister had intimated in the later stages, or possibly any amendment could be taken to Sir William Petersen, to find out whether or not he would agree.

But if he did not, the Prime Minister had intimated at first, Parliament must accept the contract as now worded. Then, said Mr. Meighen, the member for Red Deer, A. Speakman, had made it clear that the

DEATH CLAIMED MARQUIS CURZON EARLY TO-DAY AFTER LONG FIGHT

Lord President of the Council Battled Since Collapse Early in Month.

BRILLIANT CAREER.

LONDON, March 20 (Canadian Press.—Death today claimed Marquis Curzon of Kedleston, Lord President of the Council and former Foreign Secretary. The end came at 5.25 o'clock this morning after a fight against pneumonia which developed following his operation of two weeks ago. The marquis was 66 years of age. The first intimation of the break in his health came on March 5th, when he collapsed while dressing for a public dinner at Cambridge, at which he was to have delivered a speech. The collapse was marked by faintness and nasal hemmorrhage.

An operation was performed four days later in London, but the nature of the trouble was not given out. Regular medical bulletins regarding his condition also failed to name the malady, but "bladder trouble," was generally given as the cause of his collapse.

The Marquis Curzon (George Nathaniel Curzon) from the cradle to the tomb, exemplified to perfection in every detail the type of superior personality known as the ruling aristocrat. He was bred for public life and followed the career of politics and government with such success that he held almost every great office under the crown except the highest of all—the post of prime minister. Ironically enough, it was the honors he accumulated while working his way toward the premiership which more than anything else, militated against his ambition for the post and; when it seemed almost surely his, kept it from him. Had he been born 30 years earlier he undoubtedly would have become prime minister. When he came to the threshold of that office, it was in 1923, the day of noble lords occupying No. 10 Downing street had set. Prime ministers no longer were nominated from the aristocracy, but from the Commons.

Like many other young men who came to be statesmen of the British Empire and peers of the realm, Lord Curzon was trained at Eton and Balliol College, Oxford. At the latter he was president of the Union, the all-embracing students' organization, many of whose leaders in after life became prominent.

Upon quitting the cloisters of Oxford with high honors, young Curzon polished off his university education with travel. Having become familiar with Paris, Rome, Vienna and the Rhine during his vacations at Oxford, he passed these places by for more extensive tours and went into Central Asia, to Persia, Siam, Korea, Indo-China and the Pamirs. He had the leisure and the purse and the purpose of a gentleman and travelled with thoroughness, reading volumes beforehand and then recording his own discoveries and impressions for future books.

Returning home in 1885 he entered politics as one of the private secretaries of Marquis Salisbury, then the Prime Minister. He stood for parliament immediately in South Derbyshire, but was defeated Then turning to the constituency of the Southport division of Lancashire he was elected and continued to represent that division until 1898, when he was made a baron. In his sixth year in the House of Commons, Curzon recived a post in the government, being made under-secretary of state ofr India. At that time, he was only 32 years old. His political achievements brought him promotion to under-secretary of state for for-

DEAD IN THE TORNADO.

Tabulation of Latest Reports Available Puts Deaths at 845.

CHICAGO, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Reports received yesterday from the towns in Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee that suffered from Wednesday's tornado show the following dead and injured:

Illinois—682 dead, 1,960 injured.
Indiana—93 dead, 575 injured.
Missouri—26 dead, 299 injured.
Kentucky—17 dead, 25 injured.
Tennessee—27 dead, 53 injured.
Total—845 dead, 2,912 injured.

Migratory Birds Are Early on the Wing

KINGSVILLE, March 20. — Migratory birds are early on the wing this year in their travels from the south to their nesting haunts in Canada. This is indicated by the populous activity here in the neighborhood of Jack Miner's sanctuary, close to the shores of Lake Erie. Large flocks of birds of small variety and large, have already partaken of the hospitality of Miner's place on the way north.

Mr. Miner, who has recently returnd from the United States, after a long trip, is also kept busy interviewing government officials from the departments of natural history in Canada and the United States, who are particularly interested in bird life at miner's this time of year.

TORNADO'S DEAD NEAR THOUSAND

Casualties Tended to Increase as Reports Were Received Last Night.

3,000 INJURED

CHICAGO, March 20. — Casualties in the storm and tornado which on Wednesday swept over portions of five central states, had a tendency to mount as more authentic and complete reports from the stricken cities began to reach the outside.

Late yesterday these reports indicated that the total dead would range between 600 and 1000 while the injured would exceed 3000.

The latest advices from Desoto, a village in southern Illinois, showed possibilities of a death list of from 125 to 150,and no approximate estimate as to the injured. This report replaced one previously which estimated the deaths there would be about 50.

McLeansboro in Hamilton county, in the path of the Illinois twister, increased its known deaths to 34 on late reports. Gorham in the same section of the state, said that 65 bodies had been counted there with prospects of the total reaching to 90.

From Murphysboro and West Frankfort, the two most populous Illinois cities in the tornado's wake, despatches indicated that the death total would be larger than was at first estimated.

Only fifty of the 400 inhabitants of Griffin, Indiana, escaped unscathed. The recovered dead there numbered 33 with scores of others missing.

From Princeton, Ind., came a late day report of 20 dead and 200 hurt.

RISING RIVERS FLOOD STREETS

Ground Floors of Houses and Stores Are Inundated.

STOCKS RUINED.

TORONTO, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Swelled by heavy rain which fell during Wednesday night and Thursday morning, rivers and creeks throughout Southern Ontario yesterday rose in one of the worst floods in years. Roads were inundated and in some places streets were blocked for hours by the presence of several feet of water which flooded the cellars and the ground floors of stores or dwellings, extinguished fires and ruined large stocks of merchandise.

Brampton, Woodbridge, Oakville, Guelph, Kitchener, Waterloo, Woodstock, Tilsonburg and Port Hope were some of the towns where damage was done by rising rivers.

PARTIES CAN'T AGREE.

Differences Between Unionists and Antis May Come Before Committee.

bers of the Ontario Legislature are very doubtful whether representatives of the Church Unionists and the Anti-Unionists, now negotiating in an effort to agree to the terms of the Bill will be able to come to any decision acceptable to all.

The corridor gossip is to the effect that the committee itself will have to settle questions which it was thought would have come to it as settled by the two parties.

WHISPER OF COLOR WAR IS HEARD IN EAST, SAYS RAMSAY M'DONALD

Labor and Liberal Groups Denounce Singapore Naval Base in Commons.

MENACE TO JAPAN

Merely Defensive Project, is Reply of First Lord of Admiralty.

LONDON, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—In the course of a discussion on the naval estimates in the House of Commons Thursday an animated debate arose over the Singapore dockyard. This resolved itself into a contest between the Laborites and Liberals on the one side denouncing the project as a menace to Japan and to world peace, and W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Government members, on the other, who contended that the project was one merely of defense, menacing neither Japan nor any other power and needful to protect the great trade reutes of the British Empire.

The head of the Admiralty explained that it was intended in the coming three years to install a floating dock—one of those obtained from Germany—in the old Straits between the Island and the Johore Peninsula. The dock would accommodate the largest warships. There would also be a graving dock, but that could not be started for a year or two.

Threat of Color War.

Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, laid stress on the effect of the project upon Eastern peoples, who already were talking of war between the yellow and white races, and also of Russian influence in the East. He asked Mr. Bridgeman whether he had heard of the projected summoning of a great pan-Oriental conference of Eastern nations.

Mr. MacDonald wanted the House to avoid delusions and to realize that Australia expected Singapore to be the true naval base for the Pacific fleet, like Portsmouth for the home fleets. He asserted that the Labor Government's rejection of the Singapore scheme had as a sequence the Geneva protocol, and that there was not a single person at Geneva but knew perfectly well that only for that rejection it would have been impossible to get the other nations to consent to a disarmament conference.

The former Labor Premier maintained that the policy the Conservative Government was pursuing was leading in the direction of another war.

Young Edison's Wife To Do Own Housekeeping

EAST ORANGE, N.J., March 20.—Miss Mary L. Osterhout, of Cambridge, Mass., fiancee of Theodore M. Edison, youngest son of the inventor, will begin housekeeping in an apartment here without a servant after her marriage, according to Charles Edison, chairman of directors of the Edison enterprises and brother of Theodore. The marriage is to take place in April. Discussing a report that Miss Osterhout would enter the Edison laboratories after her marriage, Charles said:

"That story must be a romance. Many queer things come over the wire. Miss Osterhout may potter about the laboratories here, but she will do no more than that."

FAILED TO LAND LOAD OF LIQUOR

Cargo of 20,000 Cases Shipped From England to New York.

SOLD TO QUEBEC

QUEBEC, March 20.— The purchase of 20,000 cases of Scotch and Bourbon whiskies in England for $228,000 at the end of 1922, by a syndicate including Ludger Brien, A. Brosseau, Mayor of Montreal North, Narcisse Lord of St. Johns, Que., J. R. Lavallee, and its subsequent shipment to New York where disembarkation could be effected in January, 1923, was told to the public accounts committee on Thursday at the continuation of the inquiry into the affairs of the Quebec Liquor Commission, by Ludger Rien, insurance agent of Montreal.

This witness declared in his evidence that $5,000 had been put into the enterprise by J. Allan Bray, then an alderman of Montreal.

Protest by the Opposition that the committee had no right to inquire into liquor traffic between England and the United States, which had been declared legal by the judgment of Mr. Justice Archer, in the case of Wilson vs. Lord, was overruled.

Alfred Duranceau (Montreal-Laurier) later again stressed the legality of the deal between Marcellin Wilson and Narcisse Lord, declaring that he was informed that a cheque for the Quebec Liquor Commission had bene given to Lord for $5,000 to pay for the liquor, which, the member claimed, would tend to show that at that time, at any rate, the Liquor Commission did not consider the trade with the United States to be illegal.

THE WEATHER

This is the season for equinoctial storms, and while scientists ridicule the idea that storms are more frequent around the 21st of March and the 21st of September than at any other season, they seem to come to confound the scientists. Witness the terrible storms that have visited some parts of the Central States within the past few days. While we escaped very largely the wind, the rainfall was exceedingly heavy. In Peterboro it amounted to nearly an inch (.96.)—W. P.

C.N.R. ROUYN LINE

May Leave It to Private Company for Number of Years.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 20. — The Canadian National Railway believe that it is desirable to have a line from their main line into the Rouyn Territory which, said Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, "Is an eyen more promising district than the general public realize." The matter came up in the House Thursday afternoon when Sir Henry Drayton asked what the Canadian National Railways proposed to do in respect to the new mining area.

Mr. Graham said that the C. N. R. had suggested to certain capitalists that a line might be built into Rouyn and that the company would be prepared to lease the line for a number of years provided an acceptable contract could be made. The Government, the Minister said had "Practically approved the suggestion," an dthat parliament would have an opportunity to discuss it before any progress would be completed.

TEACHERS' ALL EXPENSE TOUR TO THE PACIFIC COAST, INCLUDING CANADIAN AND AMERICAN NATIONAL PARKS

A complete thirty-day All-Expense Tour is being arranged from Toronto to the North Pacific Coast special train leaving Toronto via Canadian National Railways July 9 next.

Westbound, the party will pass through some of the most important cities of Western Canada—Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton, stopping over at Jaspar National Park, thence to Prince Rupert and via Canadian National Pacific Coast Steamers through the wonderful scenic seas of the North Pacific Coast to Vancouver, returning via Portland, Yellowstone National Park, Salt Lake City, Estes National Park, through Chicago, thence back to Toronto.

The tour is being arranged under the direction of Mr. A. E. Bryson, Principal of Silverthorn School, Toronto, and Mr. Martin Kerr, Principal of the Earl Kitchener School, Hamilton, Ont. Full information may be secured from Mr. Bryson, 44 Silverthorn Avenue, Toronto Junction 2543W, also from Mr. Kerr, 4 Beulah Avenue, Hamilton, Regent 842.

While primarily designed for the benefit of teachers in the Province of Ontario, the tour is open to members of the general public, and any who care to join the party will be most welcome.

Automobile Went Flying With This Man's Family

DESOTA, Ills., March 20.—(Canadian Press.) — Jesse Pankey, of Haroo, who was returning to his home from St. Louis with his wife and two small children in an automobile when Wednesday's tornado approached, to-day described the fantasy of the winds.

He swung into his garage to escape, Pankey said, and as he stepped from the auto, the roof of the garage was whirled away.

Next, he asserted, his car was tossed into the air and carried off with his wife and children in it. He also was lifted and blown five blocks alighting uninjured on the Illinois Central Railroad tracks, he continued.

His wife and children later were found in a freshly ploughed field and they were only slightly injured, Pankey stated. He added that the last time he saw his automobile it was sailing.

LUMBERJACKS DISAPPEARING

Loggers of the Old Days Are Being Replaced by Farm Youths.

BOSTON, Mass., March 20 (Canadian Press).—The old time lumberjack of the north is fast becoming a memory. In the early days of logging it was he on whom the logger depended for the labor of cutting, skidding, hauling and driving the logs from the stump to the mill, writes J. W. Morrison in "American Forests and Forest Life."

He was a hardy, raw-boned product of French-Canadian blood, who felt more at home in the companionship of tall trees than anywhere else. He was proud of the hair on his breast, which he showed through the unbuttoned collar of his large checked black and white or black and red flannel shirt.

He will tell you of the days he logged in Maine, in the Saginaw country of Michigan, Wisconsin or Minnesota how he slept ate and cooked in the one log cabin (his stove was a firepit in the centre of the cabin, in which he cooked his sow belly and beans, which was the principle food three times a day) how they slept on hay and straw on the ground, with their boots to the fire and would not stay in a camp where they found a Balm of Gilead log used in its construction, because of the old superstition of bad luck, based on the tradition that our Saviour's cross was made of this kind of wood.

It was he who would tell the tenderfoot of Paul Bunyan's logging operations who logged off all North Dakota in one winter of the blue ox that used to haul quarter sections of timber from the interior down to the Superior shore to save hauling the logs of the blue snow, when it was so cold it did not thaw during one whole summer, and it was known as the logging season of the two winters.

Things have materially changed since those early days. Now the lumberjack is Ole from Norway, Hans from Sweden, the Finnish boy or the farm boy who goes to the woods for the winter. Now they have separate cook shanties, bunkhouses, storerooms and office.

LIVERPOOL MORE SOBER

About Half the Cases of Drunkenness There Were in 1920.

LIVERPOOL, March 19.—The inhabitants of this city are not consuming as much liquor as in 1920 or else they are taking it more wisely. At the recent annual session of the licensing committee Chairman Joseph Hunter said convictions for drunkenness in 1924 were 4,434 as against 8,506 in 1920. The healthier condition of things was due in great measure to the action of the bench and the supervision of the police.

TALK SUMMER SPORTS NOW

Campbellford Athletes Planning Baseball and Other Games.

A SPLENDID OFFER

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20. — The curling season is over and the books show a successful financial record. The membership has reached a record figure and the bonspiel was one of the best put on by the club.

One seasonal sport here is no sooner over than the citizens begin preparations for another.

The Bowling and Tennis Club members will soon call a meeting to get ready for the season's program. The green will be got into shape as soon as the weather permits. J. R. Wilkinson will again act as caretaker.

Besides a baseball team Campbellford will have a lacrosse club in one or other of the leagues, and football and cricket players will also organize.

Motor Leagues' Offer.

The members of the local branch of the Ontario Motor League, of which Fred Wood is president, and J. A. Irwin secretary-treasurer, have not held a meeting for some time, and for that reason have not been in a position to file a formal protest against the proposed tax on gasolene. Individual members, however, have voiced their objection. The annual meeting will soon be held when the Association will go on record.

The local branch has some money on hand and it is proposed to send a delegation to the town council with an offer to donate this fund for the purpose of providing suitable signs to be placed at the town limits on all the roads leading into Campbellford. Two years ago small signs were put up bearing the notice "Go Slow; Speed Limit 15 Miles." The name of the town does not appear so that visiting motorists might pass through the municipality without any idea of their whereabouts.

Members of the League would like to see the name of the town given prominence and instead of the arbitrary setting of a speed limit that motorists be politely requested to observe the law regulating this class of traffic.

As it is seldom that a delegation appears before the council with an offer of money it is not likely that the motorists' request will receive other than a cordial reception.

Died at the Soo.

Relatives have been notified of the death in Sault Ste. Marie, of Charles Atkinson, a former resident of this district, the first death to occur in a family of nine brothers. Surviving brothers here are William, George and Alfred of Seymour, and Thomas of town. Miss Hazel Atkinson, a teacher in the Campbellford public school, is a niece of the deceased.

Buried at Napanee.

After a service in St. Mary's church, the remains of Mrs. Ann Fitzmartyn, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas McAvoy, were taken on the morning train east to Napanee, there to be buried by the side of her husband who passed away 36 years ago.

Goes Farming Again.

Thomas H. Watters, who gave up farming five years ago, and who has enjoyed a holiday ever since, has returned to his former home on the Tenth Concession, West Seymour, and will carry on the farm this year He has been compelled to purchase a complete outfit of seed grain, stock and machinery and was surprised to find how the price of everything has risen since he sold out.

For the past five years the place has been rented to Mr. Watters' nephew, James Watters, who has purchased and taken possesion of the farm of the late Ira Loucks.

Birthday Party.

Relatives of Mrs. M. McGregor, who resides with her daughter, Mrs. Walter Rutherford, entertained her at a party on the anniversary of her birthday. Over 20 guests assembled to wish Mrs. McGregor many happy returns.

Hot Lunches for Pupils.

Miss Freda Nelson of Warkworth, who is teaching in West's school, held a box social in the school house on Tuesday eevning. The sum of $50 was realized and this will be used for the purchase of a cooking outfit to provide the pupils with hot lunches.

FACES BIGAMY CHARGE.

J. W. Wheeler, of Cobourg, is Said to Have Married Too Often.

COBOURG March 20 (Canadian Press).—John Westley Wheeler of Cobourg came up in the police court yesterday before Magistrate W. H. Floyd on a charge of bigamy. Evidence taken showed thta Wheeler was married at Napanee on August 16 1918, to Miss Cassie Lee Babcock of Napanee by an Anglican minister.

After time, a separation was was granted, Mrs. Wheeler returning to her former home in Napanee. Wheeler remained in Cobourg. On January 28 last he was married to Miss Mabel Eley, of Cobourg, by Rev. W. A. Bremner, then pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Wheeler taking an affidavit that he was unmarried. He was committed for trial and bail admitted in surety of $500.

NO COMPENSATION TO TOWN EMPLOYEE

Thomas Baker Injured While Engaged in Campbellford —Lost an Eye.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20. — Thomas Baker, a town employee, returned to work a few days ago after being idle for five months owing to the loss of his right eye. Mr. Baker was working on the Sebastopool street sewer last fall and while shovelling gravel on a windy day a piece of grit was blown into his eye. He spent several weeks in a Peterboro hospital and the doctors were finaly obliged to remove the injured optic.

Mr. Baker has a family of dependent children, and some of his friends have expressed wonder that he received no aid from the Workmen's Compensation Board. While he was laid up his wife received a small allowance from the town.

It is explained that the employees of the municipality are not entitled to anything from the Board referred to as they are not regularly and steadily employed like wage earners who are benefitted by the act. The only civic workmen entitled to such assistance are the men engaged by the water and light commission and who are engaged by the month. The Commission pays the tax levied by the Board to provide for this fund.

Cooking by Electricity.

Mrs. M. Barrett of Toronto, demonstrator for the Hotpoint Electric Range manufacturers, is giving a demonstration of cooking by electricity in the store of P. C. Denyes.

FLOOD DAMAGE.

BRAMPTON, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Only the oldest inhabitants can remember a flood similar to that which covered the low-lying sections of Brampton yesterday and threatened for a time to cause serious damage to property in the business section of the town. The interior of one store on Main Street North is turned upside down, counters are standing on end and groceries are scattered in all directions. On both sides of the main street, north and south of Queen Street, but particularly on the west side of the eign affairs and a few months after he was made baron in 1898, he was sent to India as viceroy and governor-general a post he retained until 1905, Lord Curzon made a notable record in India, his regime having been highly satisfactory to both the ruling race and the native.

In the years that followed many honors were conferred upon him, Oxford made him Lord Chancellor in 1907 and the next year Glasgow made him Lord Rector. The honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred by Cambridge, Manchester, Glasgow and Durham. In 1911 the king raised him to a Vicount and the Royal Geographical Society elected him president, which office he filled for three years.

Lord Curzon was named one of the Imperial War Cabinet members in the Lloyd-George Coalition Government and was made leader of the House of Lords in 1916. He continued in that position throughout the war and the reconstruction period. He became Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in 1919 and continued in that office in the Bonar Law government after the Lloyd-George rule had been smashed by the Tories. Meanwhile he had risen two more steps in the peerage—to an earldom and then to a marquisate. There remained only a dukedom to be obtained and Lord Curzon generally was credited with a burning ambition to achieve this highest of titles for those outside of Royal blood.

It was at that time that his accumulation of honors operated against Lord Curzon in his ambition to become the British Prime Minister. When Bonar Law retired in 1923 because of ill-health, there was besides Lord Curzon only one other man regarded as likely for the post—Stanley Baldwin. In Curzon's favor there was his long and notable record in politics and the government service, while Baldwin virtually was a novice in politics, but had proved a strong Chancellor of the Exchequer who had settled the American debt question with honor and satisfaction. Weighing in opposition to Curzon was the new twentieth century tradition against appointing as Premier a peer who could not meet attacks on the government in the House of Commons. Hence, Mr. Baldwin, being a commoner, received the place.

Lord Curzon consented to remain in the foreign office in the Baldwin government. He went to Lausanne ot lead the Allies in making their peace treaty with the Turks, who had re-entered Europe and avenged against the Greeks the expulsion of the crescent from Europe in the World War. The treaty let the Turks back into Europe and returned to them a large part of what they had lost in the war. For this Lord Curzon was severely criticized and in the grumbling that preceded the fall of the Tories and the rise of the Labour government in the winter of 1923-24 much of the dissatisfaction was directed against him.

With the fall of the Conservative government Lord Curzon was obliged to relinquish his post as foreign secretary. Some persons thought that in the Prime Minister's parting page of honors, the name of Curzon would head the list, with adukedom at last. But there was no dukedom in the list.

Lord Curzon was born at Kedleston, January 11, 1859, the eldest son of the Rev. Alfred Nathaniel Holden Curzon, the fourth Baron Scarsdale. He married twice, taking an American as his wife on both occasions. In 1895, he married Miss Mary Victoria Leiter, daughter of L. Z. Leiter of Washington. She died in 1906, the year after they returned from India, leaving three daughters. His second wife, whom he married in 1917, was Mrs. Elvinda Hinds Duggan, a daughter of J. Monroe Hinds, who had been United States Minister to Brazil, and the widow of Alfred Duggan of Buenos Aires.

The travels of Lord Curzon and the books they engendered were recognized with a gold medal by the Royal Geographical Society. Among his published volumes were: "Russia in Central Asia," 1889; "Persia and the Persian Question," 1892; "Problems of the Far East," 1894; "Lord Curzon of India," 1906; "Principles and Methods of University Reform," 1909; "Modern Parliamentary Eloquence," 1913; "War Poems and Other Translations," 1915; "Subjects of the Day," 1915; "Tales of Travel," 1923.

OBITUARY.

MARY McMULLEN.

The death took place yesterday (Thursday) of Mary McMillen, relict of the late Robert Hunter, of Smith Township, who predeceased her in September, 1918. The deceased was born in Clark Township, but for the last 45 years has resided in Smith Township.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons: Joseph of Smith, Arthur and James of Peterboro, and William of Bethany, and one daughter, Mrs. John Irwin of Smith.

The funeral will be held from the residence of her son, James Hunter, 172 Dufferin Street, on Saturday, March 21, at 3 p.m., and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery for interment. The Rev. G. Craw of Springville will officiate.

HELEN KERR.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 20.—A long line of autos yesterday morning followed the remains of Helen Kerr, who died Monday in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro, from the family apartments on Front Street to St. Mary's Church, which was already filled with friends of the deceased, waiting for the arrival of the cortege and the beginning of the services. A car in the procession was completely filled with floral tributes from relatives and friends of one who in her short life time had been a favorite with all who had the privilege of her acquaintance.

Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan, who in his address referred to the bright personality and kindly disposition of the deceased, and extolled her loyalty to her church and her devotion to her religious duties.

Mr. Eli Brunelle and his sister, Miss Alexandra, feelingly rendered a duet, and Mrs. F. Daly sang two solos, Miss Murphy, organist of the church, playing the accompaniments.

The remains were interred in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: M. Moran, of Codrington; Charles English, Forrest Dennis, Victor Brunelle, Ed. O'Connor and Clarence McKeel, all of whom were intimate friends of the deceased.

MEIGHEN DEALS

Progressives would not be satisfied with that. And so, the Premier had then declared, that all that anybody in the House wa svoting for, was that he desired the control of ocean rates. The premier had declared that the Government was prepared to change its policy to the left or to the right "provided it can save its precious existence."

Subsidy Principle.

Mr. Meighen thought that in spite of all the Prime Minister might say, the Clark amendment to the Government's motion challenged the Government policy, and that the real question before the House was whether or not it would accept the principle of government control by subsidy, as embodied in the Petersen contract. The decision of the House must be reached on the first or second reading, by reiterating his promise that nobody was pledged to anything more than an abstract principle, then the House never would get a chance to make its attitude clear.

Mr. Meighen thought that all parties in the House would be agreed on some phases of this question. Nobody had ever disputed that there was a conference or a combine in North Atlantic shipping, to fix rates. Not even the shipping men who testified before a special committee of the House last session, had attempted to deny that.

At this point, Andrew McMaster, who was chairman of the special committee of two years ago, interrupted to say that some shipping men had denied that there was a combine.

Mr. Meighen retorted that he had not found that in the evidence, but that in any case, he felt sure that all parties in the House were prepared to agree that there was an understanding about ocean rates except those on grain, and possibly on flour and cattle. It would also be admitted that there had been a very material advance in rates since prewar days, and that Canadian industries could build up a bigger export business, if there had not been. Altogether, said Mr. Meighen, as much was admitted on all sides as would render unnecessary at least three hours of the Prime Minister's speech on Tuesday.

Result Might Be Worse.

But the leader of the Opposition did not think that the North Atlantic conference could entirely eliminate the element of competition. It might very well be claimed that some sort of uniformity of rates was necessary to the proper conduct of Atlantic shipping. A system of individual and independent effort by the shipping company would very likely produce a system or rebates and special concessions which would be worse in the long run. The big companies might use such methods to get business as would entirely eliminate the smaller lines.

The conference system was not as evil in itself, Mr. Meighen said. He did not argue from that, however, that it should be allowed to continue without control. That would be dangerous. He pointed out, however, that the world had not yet reached the point where control over ocean rates was as essential as over land rates. The tramp steamer was still a very important factor in respect to a vast range of commodities, while on land, competition of this kind had been absolutely eliminated.

The only way to establish the increase in ocean rates over a period of years was by taking the whole field of rates. It was of no value to select a special commodity, such as clothes pegs, and deduce from that a great increase in general ocean freight rates. He proceeded to quote from a summary of comparative rates for the North America region. This summary placed the average rates over the 13 years from 1898 to 1913 at 100. On this basis, the rate in September of 1924, was 138.94, in November of the same year, 137.52, and in February of the present year, 146.54. This percentage of increase was less than the prime minister had given as the increase in land transportation. Such evidence was better than a plethora of letters complaining of increases on particular commodities.

Empire Control.

It seemed reasonable that a supervisory authority should be developed to control ocean rates. It was wrong that an authority which did not represent all the people should have the power to dispose of the world's freight. But, what must necessarily be the status of any body which supervised the fixing of rates? Had Canada the right to control the rates between this country and England? asked Mr. Meighen. If so, hadn't England also the right to control these rates. Or, to reverse the situation; supposing Great Britain decided to control the ocean rate on our wheat, would not the Prime Minister be protesting loudly again such control? Mr. Meighen said that he believed there could not be control over ocean rates save by a body on which was represented all parts of the Empire. The people of the British Empire had an inherent right to control shipping between the different parts of the Empire. They had no right to control it anywhere else. But control in the British Empire was a first step which promised a chance of success.

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE.

There is cause for satisfaction in the figures just issued showing Canada's foreign trade for the twelve months ending February 28th, which indicate that the Dominion's business abroad is steadily improving.

The total net improvement for the year reached the large figure of $136,263,314, the imports decreasing by $99,060,870, and the exports increasing by $37,202,444.

The improvement in foreign trade revealed by these statistics gives real cause for being optimistic as to the outlook for Canada.

The Dominion is still importing a tremendous amount of goods, the total for the year under review being $799,278,046, but there is a large favourable trade balance as Canada's exports during the same period reached a total of $1,066,681,325.

SAVING THE ROADS.

The Highways Department of the Provincial Government is appealing to motorists to do their best to preserve Ontario's roads, believing that much of the damage done is through carelessness or ignorance.

The appeal is timely inasmuch as the road surfaces receive the worst usage at this season of the year when many of the roads are just being re-opened, and motorists should recognize the wisdom of assisting the department in this respect.

Heavy trucks should be kept off the roads until the surface is back to its normal condition, and even then care should be taken not to overload the cars, while it is pointed out for the benefit of motorists generally that speeding is responsible for a large amount of wear and tear.

The motorist derives the most benefit from good roads, and therefore it is to his interest to help to save the highways and reduce the maintenance cost, particularly as the Government has chosen a very pointed way of reminding car-owners that they will have to pay their share both of building new roads and of their upkeep.

FEWER "SCRIPTS."

To those who know the conditions that have arisen in connection with the sale of liquor in Ontario under doctors' prescriptions—and the facts must be pretty generally known—the announcement that the Ontario Government has decided to amend the Ontario Temperance Act by limiting the number of prescriptions issued by each doctor to 30 per month, will not cause any surprise.

The majority of physicians have lived up to the spirit as well as the letter of the law, but there is no disguising the fact that much of the liquor purchased ostensibly for medicinal purposes has been in reality bought for beverage purposes.

If there was no other proof of this the great increase in the number of prescriptions issued before holidays, especially at Christmas, would supply fairly conclusible evidence that there is a leak in the system that is being taken advantage of by the thirsty.

The reduction in the number of prescriptions from 50 to 30 per month will not make much difference to many Ontario doctors, who have been very sparing in prescribing liquor for their patients.

It will, however, make a large hole in the revenue of the members of the profession who have not been so scrupulous and reduce the camouflaged purchase of liquor by a considerable amount.

GOOD-BYE THAT MILLION.

Some time ago when glib-tongued visitors were selling German marks on the local market the Examiner pointed out to its readers that there was not a chance in a million of the old German currency being worth any more than the paper it was printed on.

In spite of these warnings many Peterboro people spent a dollar or two in the purchase of marks, and no doubt have them carefully stored away awaiting the day when they will grow valuable.

They may as well throw them in the garbage can.

It is announced that the old marks will cease to be legal tender on July 5th, and that the holders who want to cash in must do it before that date.

The old currency is to be exchanged for the new gold reichsmarks on the basis of one gold mark for a trillion—1,000,000,000,000—marks.

As the new gold mark is worth about 25c, the individual who bought two or three million of the old paper marks for 50c can figure out for himself just how his investment is panning out.

He will find forty thousand million marks are worth about a cent, or, in other words, that he has paid 50c for something that has a cash value of about one-thirteen thousandth of a cent.

The only consolation he has is that the capital he invested was not large—about all he loses is the castle in Spain he was building with the fortune he was going to make.

USEFUL SETTLERS.

Although the Examiner does not believe that the time is opportune for Canada to extend a welcome to immigrants generally, there is no disputing the fact that settlers of the type brought out by the Scottish Imigrant Aid Society would be gladly received in large numbers, particularly under the conditions that have governed the immigration in this country at the different quotas from the Hebrides.

There is no chance of these particular settlers landing in the bread-line.

The society will bring out 180 families this year, and the newcomers will find everything ready for them when they arrive.

Thirty thousand acres of land have been purchased, houses are being built on each quarter section of the block, and when the families reach their new homes they will be assisted with a loan in beginning their farming operations.

Under these conditions the Hebrideans will have every chance to succeed, and judging by the manner in which their fellow-countrymen have adapted themselves to western conditions, there is every reason to believe that the latest quota will quickly become good Canadians.

Colonization of this nature is of the greatest benefit to Canada, and it is satisfactory to know that there is every prospect of more immigrants being brought out under a similar plan, which affords the settler every advantage to make good.

THE FALL OF NURMI.

We read with horror that Nurmi, the great Finn, whilst well on the way to create a new record for long distance running at Madison Square Garden, was suddenly bent double on the track and compelled to withdraw from the contest, says the Montreal Star. "Veal," said the doctors, was the rebellious subject which caused capitulation. Here is a chance for the food faddist. Any vegetarian worth the name should grasp this opportunity to emphasize the superior food values of roots and fruits and such-like fodder; and red-blooded men of Teutonic origin should not miss this chance of advertising blood sausage and beer. Armies march on their stomachs, said a competent military authority, and it appears to be the same with athletes. But there is a difference. Soldiers never get enough—it is a question of sufficiency with them; whilst long-distance runners must consult their stomachs. Nurmi, whose efforts have rivalled the fabled exploits of the Inca runners, and who stands with Pheidippides himself, has been defeated by the cunning of a New York chef.

Herein lies a dreary observation. With all our vaunted progress, it is clear that mind cannot yet claim a mastery over matter. We are ruled by our digestions. The Romans knew this better than we and placed the seat of the emotions in the pit of the stomach. The breast to them was nothing more than a breathing apparatus. Whereas we, in our sentimental ignorance, keep up the illusion that it has something to do with the heart. A few of us indeed vaguely perceive this already, for Englishwomen, with a frank but embarrassing sagacity, do not hesitate to declare that the way to an Englishman's heart is through his stomach. Which only goes to prove that his traditionally phlegmatic nature is broad based on the solid reality of anatomatical fact. Nurmi would be well advised to try the roast beef of Old England rather than the milk-fed veal of the Latin races.

THE DIVORCE EVIL.

The divorce evil in the United States has become a most serious menace to the nation's life. In 1923, 165,000 divorces were granted, or one divorce to every 7.5 marriages. In eighteen years the number of divorces has increased by 100,000, or over 140 per cent., while the population has increased but about 30 per cent. The evil is specially rampant in certain States, Oregon having in 1922 one divorce to every 2.5 marriages; Wyoming, one to 3.9; Montana, one to 4.3; Missouri, one to 4.7; Oklahoma, one to 4.8; Texas, one to 4.9; California, one to 5.1; Ohio, one to 5.2; Indiana, one to 5.4; Colorado, one to 5.5; Kansas, one to 5.7, and Maine, one to 5.8. In Switzerland, where divorce is as easy to obtain as it is in the United States, there is only one divorce to every sixteen marriages; in France, there is one to twenty-two; in Germany, one to twenty-four; in Norway, one to thirty; in Sweden, one to thirty-three; in Britain, one to ninety-six, and in Canada, one to one hundred and sixty-one. In Japan, in 1919, there was one divorce to every eight marriages.

What is the reason for this high divorce rate? No doubt the lax laws may have something to do with it, but the real source of the evil lies further back than this, and is probably to be found in the family. One prominent religious worker in the city of New York declares that family life in that city is largely pagan. He declares that it is materialistic, self-seeking, dominated by business and commercial interests, and subordinated to everything save the welfare of humanity. Professor Charles A. Ellwood of the University of Missouri, discussing this matter in the Michigan Christian Advocate, says: "We have tried to build the family life upon selfishness, and we have failed. The family life must be centred in the child, for the child stands for humanity. We need more Christianity in the American home, not simply to make marriage and the home life more stable for adults, but, above all, to make a proper environment for the child. We will have a Christian world just as soon as all children have the opportunity to grow up in a Christian atmosphere."

We fear that this accusation is only too well-founded, and applies to more countries than one. The refusal of young married people to subordinate their own interests to the interests of the family cannot fail to wreck the family. When the child is displaced by business or pleasure, and the affection which God intended to be lavished upon children is wasted upon frivolous or worse objects, it may mean the speedy decadence of the individual and the destruction of family life. When a man refuses to tie himself up to the financial burden of a young family, and a woman refuses to spend her life in caring for the little children that God might send, the sacred ideals of marriage are desecrated and family life, properly understood, must cease to be.

We have need to emphasize mor ethe sacredness of the marriage tie. It may be old-fashioned to plead for the preservation of that tie, but it is certainly safe. The idea that marriage is simply a trial affair, that is to be dissolved in a few months or years if one gets tired of it, or if, perchance, one meets a new "soul mate," is a deadly menace to national purity, and strikes at the very heart of the family relation. Situated as we are in closest proximity to our great American neighbor, we cannot help but feel the strength of the thought-currents which sweep across the Republic, and there is no doubt that in certain circles there is already a disposition to regard marriage as purely a civil contract to be dissolved at any time by mutual consent. Against any such tendency we must protest most strongly. It is the Church's privilege and the Church's duty to hold before its young people, steadily and consistently, the high ideal of the Christian home, and true marriage as the development of that ideal, and silence upon this subject will minister to the spread of the lower ideals which are expressed in a high divorce rate. — Christian Guardian.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The member for New Westminister must have been trying to show Miss Agnes MacPhail that woman does not always have the last word.

So long as Premier Ferguson and Hon. Mr. Raney are both members of the Legislature there is little chance for world peace.

HAVELOCK SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

Much Routine Business Transacted by Trustees at Meeting.

HAVELOCK, March 19. — The Board of Education met on Monday evening in the School-room. Members present: Chairman H. W. Roche, Trustees John Moore, James Barlow, D. A. Forde and Dr. A. S. Thompson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and a discussion ensued. Dr. Thompson withdrawing his support from the motion of last meeting, making distribution of the added fire insurance.

Accounts.

A. C. Denike $48.36; G. W. Chiles $88.50; Hydro-Electric Commission, $1.98—$138.84.

On motion of D. A. Forde and J. Barlow, the secretary-treasurer was authorized to pay the accounts.

Moved by J. Barlow, seconded by D. A. Forde, that the secretary communicate with Council with a view of obtaining the services of Provincial Health Nurse, Miss McKeown. Carried.

Moved by Dr. Thompson, seconded by J. Moore, that the chairman be a committee to arrange the time for Cadet Corps drill. Carried.

The secretary was instructed to write the Dennis Wire and Iron Works Co. of London again with reference to fire escape.

James Barlow was appointed to interview the Tweed School Trustees as to the efficiency of coke as fuel.

The matter of ventilation as suggested by Inspector Lees and improved heating was left over for future consideration.

The regular meeting of the Young People's Union of the Methodist Church was held in the basement of the church on Monday evening, and took the form of a St. Patrick's social. Games and contests were the order of the evening, and it was the wind-up of the membership and attendance contest between the two sections of the Society, namely, the Red and Blue.

The section who had the least number of new members and the smallest attendance to their credit since the society was organized the first of the year, was called upon to supply the refreshments for the occasion, and fell to the lot of the Blues.

There was a large number in attendance and a very enjoyable social time spent.

Tea at Knox Church.

The St. Patrick's Tea, in the basement of Knox Church under the auspices of the Young Women's Auxiliary, on Tuesday evening, attracted a big crowd, and the girls had their hands full in handling the large number that came to partake of the good things provided for them.

The decorations were in keeping with the occasion. Green tissue paper shamrocks adorned the walls, while hyacinths and shamrocks made the tables very attractive. The proceeds amounted to $32.00.

Women's Auxiliary Meets.

The St. John's Women's Auxiliary met on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. Isaac. There were ten members present, and a very pleasant social as well as profitable time was spent quilting. At the close a very dainty luncheon was served by the hostess.

Euchre Party.

A very successful euchre party was held on Tuesday evening in the Orange Hall under the auspices of the Loyal Orange Benevolent Association. Twenty-four tables of cards were played, the prizes being awarded as follows:—Lady's prize (China berry set)—Mrs. P. Logan; gent.'s prize (fountain pen), Mr. P. Logan; consolation prizes—Mrs. Fred. Scott and Mr. Jas. Cook.

The hall was nicely decorated with orange and red tissue paper. Refreshments were served at eleven-thirty, after which dancing was enjoyed until the "wee sma' hours."

A THOUGHT.

THIS RESTING RACE.

The human race is planning, shrewd
ly planning every day
To find some new device to drive its weariness away,
The only thing 'tis weary from is trying to devise
This resting scheme it ever seeks,
with roving, anxious eyes.
But every day from morn till night,
from rise till set of sun,
The race is sadly seeking rest from work it hasn't done.

If half the time and half the brains were spent in doing work
That people daily squander seeking pleasant ways to shirk,
This world would be a million years
And not a blessing could be wished but man could call it his.
But that is not the way, alas, the universe is run—
We're all too busy resting from the work we haven't done.

The only work we're weary from is that which lies ahead—
Its simple contemplation makes us wish that we were dead.
So straightway we begin to use such vigor as is left
In planning out a future of employment bereft.
Wherefore we sit and plan and plan,
from morn till set of sun,
Some means of relaxation from the work we've never done!

—Strickland Gillilan.

GOOD MANNERS

The brides mother, before the wedding date is decided, must find out definitely on what day the clergyman is disengaged, and make sure that the church is bespoken for no other service.

OTTAWA, Que.—There was a heavy increase in the quantity of Canadian wheat supplied to the United Kingdom in 1924, amounting to 50 per cent over 1923, according to a report of the Department of Trade and Commerce.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 19.— With nearly 1,700 cattle sold on Wednesday at the Union Stock Yards the market was pretty well cleaned out, only a few coarse steers and a couple of loads of stockers being left on hand. Nothing of consequence came in this morning, the receipts being 9 cars, 75 cattle, 16 calves, 266 hogs and 3 sheep and lambs. Stockers and feeders sold at their highest prices this season on Wednesday afternoon. One load of 1,000-lb. feedrs went out at $6.75 and two loads of 800 to 850-lb. stockers sold at $6.60 a cwt. Rogers & Maybee are carrying 140 head of export cattle on hand.

It is thought that about 1,000 head of cattle will be wanted for export next week. Of these 700 are needed for a Liverpool shipment on Tuesday. Butchers' cattle sold well this morning. Choice medium weights were $7.75 to $8 and choice handyweights $7.50 a cwt. Good butchers were up to $7 and mediums $6.40 and $6.50 a cwt. Butchers' cows were also firm with a choice cow at $6.25 and all the good cows brought $5 to $5.50 a cwt. The market had a good undertone.

The market closed firm on Wednesday for calves and no change was noted today for the handful on sale. Top calves were 12¾ cents and bunches of good medium calves sold at 11 cents a pound. Common calves were 7¼ to 8½ cents a pound.

The lamb and sheep market is steady and more spring lambs are now being looked for. A couple of spring lambs, 50 lbs. each, sold at $14 each.

At least $13 a cwt. f.o.b. and $14.50 a cwt. off cars was paid for hogs on Wednesday and there is no change today. Sellers were taking advantage of the present shortage and put the prices up a notch as fast as the packers are compelled to follow.

EGG PRICES.

OTTAWA, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—The general tone of the market is firm at the recent advance. There is a good demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies and as the offerings are ample to meet all requirements a fairly active trade is being done.

Toronto firm, jobbing specials 39, extras 37, firsts 35, seconds 32.

Montreal consumption good. Jobbing extras 40 to 42, first 36 to 38. Quebec jobbing firsts 35 to 38, seconds 32 to 34.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 19.—(Canadian Press).—With government orders out for a sweeping scrutiny of the circumstances which attended recent violent fluctuations trade dwindled in the wheat market today to the smallest amount in several weeks, but prices averaged higher. May delivery wheat showed at one time an over-night advance of nearly four cents. Closing prices for wheat were irregular at one cent net lower at 2½ cents advance. May $1.63¾ to 164¼ and July 142 to 142¾. Corn finished ⅛ to 1¼ cents off, oats showing ¼ and ¼ to ⅜ cent gain and provisions 12 to 27 cents down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Man., March 19.—(Canadian Press).—In contrast to the extreme price fluctuations of the past week, the wheat market this morning developed in an orderly an inactive affair, closing prices showing May at $1.65⅝, and advance of 1¾ cents, July $1.62¾ also up 1¾ cents and October 1¼ cents below yesterday's final figures at $1.34¾.

A good class of buying was in evidence during the early part of the session, this business being credited to exporters against sales worked at seaboard overnight. The demand was quickly satisfied and while prices held firm, trade became listless with sales of the small order variety.

Sentiment was decidedly mixed and while the undertone failed to show marked strength, short sellers were unable to force prices downward to any extent. There was considerable spreading, Winnipeg May being bought against Chicago sales of the same future. Winnipeg May also was being bought against sale of Winnipeg July. Liverpool cables closed 2 to 2½ pence higher imparted a stabilizing effect to the local market.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, March 19.— The strength which developed yesterday in the Canadian cash wheat situation was fully maintained today and Winnipeg prices scored a further advance of 1 3-4 cents to 2 1-4 cents per bushel, No. 1 Northern closing at $1.65 5-8; No. 2 Northern at $1.60 1-8 and No. 3 Northern $1.55 5-8 per bushel, ex-store Fort William. No. 2 grade was half cent per bushel higher at 5 1-2 cents under the May option, while No. 3 improved 1-4 cent per bushel to 10 1-4 cents under.

The domestic cash grain market was quiet, there being little demand for supplies from exporters or local buyers. The volume of business was small but the tone of the market for oats was firm, with car lots of No. 2 Canadian Western quoted at 67 cents; No. 3 quoted at 59; No. 1 feed at 56 and No. 2 feed at 52 cents per bushel ex-store.

The feature of the flour trade was the renewed demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat grades but there was no improvement in the domestic trade, the demand being still of a very limited nature. There was no change in spot prices, car lots of fruit patents being quoted at $9.80, second patents at 9.30 and strong bakers at $9.10 per barrel in jute bags, ex-track, less ten cents per barrel for spot cash.

Receipts of butter were 577 packages, as against 141 for the same day last week and 13 a year ago. An easier feeling developed during the day and prices fell half cent per pound. Cheese receipts were 1,048 boxes as compared with 916 for the same day last week and 23 a year ago. Prices were strong, scoring a further advance of 1 cent per pound.

Beans were quoted at $2.70 per bushel.

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Is Your Birthday

FRIDAY MARCH 20—Persons born this day seem to lack the ability to stick to one thing until they have accomplished something. They like to flit about from "pillar to post." If they will just learn the value of concentration, they will be very successful in whatever line of endeavor they undertake. A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

CHAPTER XX.

The Willow's back was toward the door when the Factor from Lac Bain entered the cabin, and for a few seconds she did not turn. Her first thought was of Pierrot—for some reason he had returned. But even as this thought came to her, she heard in Baree's throat a snarl that brought her suddenly to her feet, facing the door.

McTaggart had not entered unprepared. He had left his pack, his gun, and his heavy coat outside. He was standing with his back against the door—and at Nepeese—in her wonderful dress and flowing hair—he was staring as if stunned for a space at what he saw. Fate, or accident, was playing against the Willow now.

It was not a long interval in which their eyes met in that terrible silence—terrible to the girl. Words were unnecessary. At last she understood—understood what her peril had been that day at the edge of the chasm and in the forest, when fearlessly she had played with the menace that was confronting her now.

A breath that was like a sob broke from her lips.

"M'sieu!" she tried to say. But it was only a gasp—an effort. She seemed choking.

Plainly she heard the click of the iron bolt as it locked the door. McTaggart advanced a step.

Only a single step McTaggart advanced. On the floor Baree had remained like a carven thing. He had not moved. He had not made a sound but that one warning snarl—until McTaggart took the step. And then, like a flash, he was up and in front of Nepeese, every hair of his body on end; and at the fury in his growl McTaggart lunged back against the barred door. A word from Nepeese in that moment, and it would have been over. But an instant was lost—an instant before her cry came. In that moment man's hand and brain worked together swifter than brute understanding; and as Baree launched himself at the Factor's throat, there came a flash and a deafening explosion almost in the Willow's eyes.

It was a chance shot from the hip with McTaggart's automatic. Baree fell short. He struck the floor with a thud and rolled against the log wall. There was not a kick or a quiver left in his body. McTaggart laughed nervously as he shoved his pistol back in its holster. He knew that only a brain shot could have done that.

With her back against the farther wall, Nepeese was waiting. McTaggart could hear her panting breath. He advanced halfway to her.

"Nepeese, I have come to make you my wife," he said.

She did not answer. He could see that her breath was choking her. She raised her hand to her throat. He took two more steps, and stopped. He had never seen such eyes.

"I have come to make you my wife, Nepeese. To-morrow you will go on to Nelson House with me, and then back to Lac Bain—forever." He added the last word as an afterthought. "Forever," he repeated.

He did not mince words. His courage and his determination rose as he saw her body droop a little against the wall. She was powerless. There was no escape. Pierrot was gone. Baree was dead.

He had thought that no living creature could move as swiftly as the Willow when his arms reached out for her. She made no sound as she darted under one of his outstretched arms. He made a lunge, a brutal grab, and his fingers caught a bit of her hair. He heard the snap of it as she tore herself free and flew to the door. She had thrown back the bolt when he caught her and his arms closed about her. He dragged her back, and now she cried out—cried out in despair for Pierrot, for Baree, for some miracle of God that might save her.

And Nepeese fought. She twisted in his arms until she was facing him. she could no longer see. She was smothered in her hair. It covered her face and breast and body, suffocating her, entangling her hands and arms—and still she fought. In the struggle McTaggart stumbled over the body of Baree, and they went down. Nepeese was up fully five seconds ahead of the man. She could have reached the door. But again it was her hair. She paused to fling back the thick mass of it so that she could see, and McTaggart was at the door ahead of her.

He did not lock it again, but stood facing her. His face was scratched and bleeding. He was no longer a man, but a devil. Nepeese was broken, panting—a low sobbing came with her breath. She bent down and picked up a piece of firewood. McTaggart could see that her strength was almost gone.

She clutched the stick as he approached her again. But McTaggart had lost all thought of fear or caution. He sprang upon her like an animal. The stick of firewood fell. And again

"Many times in his life he had fought, but he had never felt a grip at his throat like the grip of Pierrot's hands."

fate played against the girl. In her terror and hopelessness she had caught up the first stick her hand had touched—a light one. With her last strength she struck at McTaggart with it, and as it fell on his head, he staggered back. But it did not make him loose his hold.

Vainly she was fighting now, not to strike him or to escape, but to get her breath. She tried to cry out again, but this time no sound came from between her gasping li...s.

Again he laughed, and as he laughed, he heard the door open. Was it the wind? He turned, still holding her in his arms.

In the open door stood Pierrot.

CHAPTER XXI.

During that terrible space which followed an eternity of time rolled slowly through the little cabin on the Gray Loon—that eternity which lies somewhere between life and death and which is sometimes meted out to a human life in seconds instead of eons.

In those seconds Pierrot did not move from where he stood in the doorway. McTaggart, huddled over with the weight in his arms, and staring at Pierrot, did not move. But the Willow's eyes were opening. And a convulsive quiver ran through the body of Baree, where he lay near the wall. There was not the sound of a breath. And then, in that silence, a great gasping sob came from Nepeese.

Then Pierrot stirred to life. Like McTaggart, he had left his coat and mittens outside. He spoke, and his voice was not like Pierrot's. It was a strange voice.

"The great God has sent me back in time, m'sieu," he said. "I, too, travelled by way of the east, and saw your trail where it turned this way."

No, that was not like Pierrot's voice! A chill ran through McTaggart now, and slowly he let go of Nepeese. She fell to the floor. Slowly he straightened.

The eyes of madman met the eyes of madman now. Between them was death. Both saw it. Both thought that they saw the direction in which its bony finger pointed. Both were certain. McTaggart's hand did not go to the pistol in his holster, and Pierrot did not touch the knife in his belt. When they came together, it was throat to throat—two beasts now, instead of one, for Pierrot had in him the fury and strength of the wolf, the cat, and the panther.

McTaggart was the bigger and heavier man, a giant in strength; yet in the face of Pierrot's fury he lurched back over the table and went down with a crash. Many times in his life he had fought, but he had never felt a grip at his throat like the grip of Pierrot's hands. They almost crushed the life from him at once. His neck snapped—a little more, and it would have broken. He struck out blindly from his back, and twisted himself to throw off the weight of the half-breed's body. But Pierrot was fastened there, as Sekoosew, the ermine, had fastened itself at the jugular of the partridge, and Bush McTaggart's jaws slowly swung open, and his face began to turn from red to purple.

Cold air rushing through the door, Pierrot's voice and the sound of battle roused Nepeese quickly to consciousness and the power to raise herself from the floor. She had fallen near Baree, and as she lifted her head, her eyes rested for a moment on the dog before they went to the fighting men. Baree was alive! His body was twitching; his eyes were open; he made an effort to raise his head as she was looking at him.

DOHERTY DEFENDED DRURY FINANCING

A. C. Lewis Renewed Attack on Raney in Budget Debate.

TORONTO, March 20. — The budget debate was carried on Thursday in the Legislation by Beniah Bowman (U.F.O., Manitoulin), A. C. Lewis (Conservative, Northeast Toronto) and Mannning Doherty (Progressive, East Kent). The latter defended the financing of the Drury Government, and declared that he had not agreed with the entire report of the public accounts committee of last year as W. Finlayson (Conservative, East Simcie), chairman of the committee, said he had. He quoted from newspaper reports of last year, quoting him as criticising the report of the committee when it was presented to the House. He also stated that Mr. Raney's absence from the committee was easily explained. Mr. Raney had told the Progressives that he would be unable to attend night sessions or committee meetings.

Mr. Lewis continued the attack on Mr. Raney by Mr. Finlayson. He said that in the big deal over which Peter Smith and Jarvis went to jail that there had been a five way split. "Smith got one-fifth, Jarvis got one-fifth and Andrew Pepall got one-fifth. What we want to know is, who got the other two-fifths?" He also accused Mr. Raney of being responsible for many of the financial transactions of the late government.

Mr. Bowman was critical of Mr. Raney. He said Mr. Raney had withheld information which he should have given the public accounts committee last year. Mr. Bowman stated that he had been accused himself once of withholding information from the timber commission. This he strenuously denied.

PIGMY MICE IN ZOO

London Receives Rodents Smaller Than Bumble Bees From West Africa.

LONDON, March 20.—(Associated Press).—The smallest animals at the London Zoo are a family of pigmy mice, which arrived recently from Gambria, in western Africa. They are smaller than bumble bees, and a pair could easily set up housekeeping in an ordinary safety match box. While the pigmies were being shipped to London 15 of them escaped through a hole smaller than might be made by a slate pencil, and none of them was ever seen again.

UNIQUE CHURCH SERVICE

REV. CHARLES BRASHARES (ABOVE); RABBI SAMUEL MAYERBERG.

DAYTON, O., March 20.—Possibly the first time in history a minister and rabbi stood side by side in the pulpit and declared that God is "our father" and that Jew and non-Jew are brothers and sisters.

This unique religious service was held here recently when Rev. Charles Brashares, Methodist minister, and Rabbi Samuel Mayerberg, brought their congregations under one roof for a night of worship.

And it was not "My God" whom the Methodist minister invoked; it was not "My God" to whom the rabbi led them in prayer. It was "Our God" every time.

The service was unique. Rev. Brashares sent out word that the doors of his church would be open to the Jews of the city, so that the people of his congregation and of the Jewish congregations could establish a ground for understanding.

Headed by Rabbi Mayerberg, one of the youngest and most progressive rabbis in the Jewish church, more than 300 Jews attended the service.

The rabbi and his people and the Methodist congregation sat side by side and lifted their voices in praise to the same Creator.

On March 27 the services will be repeated at the synagog, at which time Rabbi Mayerberg will preach the sermon, and Rev. Brashares will ask the benediction.

ROOMS RIFLED

rooms, packed all his and Mrs. Mack's clothing in bags and trunks then supervised their removal to a place of safety.

Ontside the scene was a veritable bedlam. Well-dressed women walked up and down wringing their hands, helpless to save their belongings. One entire wing of the hotel was now a seething mass of flames while from the other wing, from every door, emerged men of all descriptions carrying clothing and articels of furniture.

There were many in bathing suits who came from the building with the costliest wraps and gowns draped over their shoulders and two or three ladies hats atop their heads.

One man risked his life to save his golf clubs, which he had left in a room on the third floor.

And all the while from the windows of the upper stories there rained a shower of trunks, suit cases and clothing, hurried out indiscriminately and frequently without even the formality of a "look out below."

Among those who were routed from their rooms when the fire started were Mme. Louise Homer, the opera singer, and her husband, Sydney Homer. They were dressing for a tea at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. Seward Webb when the alarm bell rang.

"There goes the fire alarm," exclaimed Mrs. Homer.

"Ridiculous, my dear," said Mr. Homer. "It's a perfect afternoon. There can't be any fire here."

But Mme .Homer insisted. At first she tried to telephone the office but she could get no response. Then she opened the door to the corridor, and upon seeing men running about she and her husband seized their clothes in their arms and descended the stairway clad in dressing gowns.

Many of the hotel guests who were on near-by golf links returned in time to have salvaged their belongings, but the hugeness of the building and the inability of the limited police force to cope with the situation rendered impossible any attempt at systematic salvage work.

The volunteer firemen in some cases, seeing flames dart through windows, gave way to hysteria and rushed down the stairs, shouting that the building was about to collapse. At another time the report spread abroad that the building was about to be dynamited and scores of guests preferring to lose all their beongings to being blown up, abandoned all ideas of salvaging property.

N. Y. TRICKSTERS SEEK NEW VICTIMS

Financial Underworld Near Wall Street Hits Upon New Methods.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(Associated Press.)— The financial underworld which fringes Wall Street steadily hits upon new methods to keep up with the times and ahead of the law. Its jargon is elastic, impromptu and bizarre.

For example, swindlers who fleece the public through sales of fake stocks work by telephone in what is called a boiler room. Telephone salesmen are said to "hook the suckers." Dynamiters, so-called, "build up" the victims and hoodwink them into switching from standard securities, first held out as bait to attract investment, to worthless stocks which the conspirators are in business to unload.

Gone is the "gold brick," gone the bunco man who struck up acquaintance with prosperous visitors from the interior at metropolitan railway depots in the '90s. The get-rich-quick man of to-day has imagination. Avoiding the mails as much as possible, he strikes over the telephone and telegraph, often to bring down quarry as much as several states away.

These swindlers operate from offices thta usually are obscure, sometimes merely desk room, so customers will find telephone calls hard to trace. In the larger plants there often is a battery of as many as eight telephones. This is the boiler room, the term being derived from the practice of creating an atmosphere of bustling activity to impress inquisitive suckers who cannot be kept away.

The bustle is not wholly fictitious, the Better Business Bureau investigators have found Hour in, hour out, salesmen with good voices canvass by wire a list of names selected either from a secret "sucker's list' 'or the telephone directory.

They hook their man by offering to let him buy some active standard stock guaranteed to advance, on a partial payment plan. He can sell out at the rise and take a profit perhaps equal to as much as he paid in. The money is duly received, but the stock is never bought.

When the stock goes up and the customer has a substantial paper profit to his credit, the dynamiter steps in to give him high-pressure treatment.

"Bully!" comes a smooth, congratulatory voice over the telephone. "Didn't we tell you? See what a concern like ours can do for you?"

The dynamiter if he is a good one, persuades the happy plunger to switch to another stock, equally guaranteed, which will bring far higher profits. This will take a slight additional investment, of course,—"it takes money to make money, but you know by this time you can trust us!"

The new stock, the luckless customer finds, is worthless. If he threatens to make trouble he sometimes gets an adjustment. Not often. Usually salesmen and dynamiters quietly pack the boiller room in a suitcase and fade away—to bob up elsewhere to-morrow.

An attorney in Toledo, Ohio, was reached by long distance tlepehone from Philadelphia and New York. He placed $515 on a curb stock here, and won. He was persuaded to switch to a worthless mining stock, and agreed to send $2,500 more. Postal inspectors nabbed one of the swindlers at a telegraph office as he was waiting for the remittance. Later they caught two others.

ENDS LIFE AS WHEAT DROPS

Dr. Mosher of Chicago Was Reported an Investor at $2.05.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Wheat market losses were the cause of the suicide of Dr. George W. Mosher, friends revealed after the inquest.

Testimony was that the despondency which caused Dr. Mosher to shoot himself Wednesday might have resulted from a recent illness from ptomaine. Persons acquainted with him, however, said the sudden drop in the price of wheat brought drop in the price of wheat brought on a spell of melancholia that led him to shoot himself.

Dr. Mosher, it was said, had been attracted to the wheat market several months ago, and is said to have invested when the price was $2.05 a bushel in January, May wheat selling Tuesday at $1.51 a bushel.

EMPLOYEES BUY STOCK.

The Simpson Company Will Eventually Be Under Their Control.

REGINA, Sask., March 20.— Ultimately the employees of the Robert Simpson Company, Limited, will own the entire concern under the new scheme by which they will be able and encouraged to purchase stock in the compnay, said Sir Joseph Flavelle ,Toronto, chairman of the Board of Directors of the reorganized company when he arrived in Regina, yesterday. "At the present time about four-tenths of the stock is in the possession of employees and in the course of time it is expected that the company will be entirely controlled by the employes."

WOMEN STUDY WELL

Spanish Women More Brilliant Than Men at Higher Subjects.

MADRID, March 20.—(Associated Press).—Spanish women, albeit slowly, are seeking higher education. During the academic year that ended in 1923 there were 363 female students at the institution as against 60 in 1917.

Pharmacy attracted 128 women, philosophy 105, science 78, medicine 46 and the law 6. They are good students, and their work is much more brilliant than that of the men, according to the university authorities.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE BY GALE

All Parts of Ontario Report Effects of 60 Mile Wind.

ROOFS RAISED.

TORONTO, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Ontario did not escape the gale which on Wednesday afternoon and evening caused hundreds of deaths in several central states. The wind reached a velocity of 60 miles in some parts of Southern Ontario, the maximum being reached in some sections yesterday morning.

The Niagara district probably suffered most damage, but the destruction was considerable also at St. Thomas, Owen Sound, Peterboro, Prescott and other places.

At Niagara Falls the roof of the Cristolon building at the big Norton plant at Chippawa was torn off and part deposited on the railway tracks nearby, and the remainder of the wreckage on a field some distance away. Thirty men were employed in the buildings, but were not injured.

Most of the damage is reported from both cities of Niagara Falls and Stamford Township and the villages of St. David's and Queenston. Street car traffic was stopped by the falling of power poles and trees across the lines. In Niagara Falls the streets were littered with debris from falling chimneys, radio aerials and shingles. A huge sign outside the Web Theatre was torn down and splintered to matchwood.

At Prescott waves several feet high rolled over the docks. The ferry service between Prescott and Ogdensburg was abandoned, a number of travellers being marooned on both sides of the river. Boat houses along the shore suffered considerable damage, and in some cases were demolished.

Fences, signs, steps, etc., were blown down and portions of roofs were lifted from buildings and large branches were broken off shade trees. The Hydro power service was out of commission for some time.

TAX DETECTIVE BOTHERS GERMANS

Keep Watch on How Professing Poor People Spend Their Money.

By CARL D. GROAT.

BERLIN, March 20.—(United Press).—"Tax detectives" are the latest unpleasant novelty in Germany.

The suave, well-groomed man at the next table to you in the flashy wine restaurant, who seems to have an undue interest in how many lobsters, oysters and bottles of champagne you consume, is, just as likely as not, one of these detectives.

It is the tax detective's duty to spy on prosperous members of the community, whose tax returns, however, resemble the report of a man who has just been through the bankruptcy court.

By the time that the tax detective gets through with this particular citizen, this latter party wishes he had adopted George Washington's principles of veracity earlier in life.

For the tax detective sticks closer than a brother to the tax dodger.

He finds out how many servants the poor taxpayer has, how many gowns his poverty-stricken wife can afford, what pleasures the poor man himself affords, how large his tailor bills are, how his business goes and whether the big limousine was bought out of this or last year's profits.

The next time the taxpayer walks up to the tax bureau to pay in a small sum for his income tax, he is politely asked if he hasn't made a mistake. Of course, he hasn't, he tells the tax collector.

Then the fun starts. What the collector doesn't tell him about his income and outgo for the previous year simply doesn't exist.

The near-bankrupt thereupon generally digs deeper into his "depleted" pocketbook, and pays, lamenting and cursing the while.

CADET INSTRUCTION AT COLLEGIATE HAS BEGUN

Student Battalion Preparing for Inspection in June.

Sergeant-Major Gilbert, cadet instructor for Military District No. 3, has been in the city the past two weeks drilling pupils of the P.C.I. in preparation for the annual inspection. The drills by small squads have been held in the armouries and the officer has had the youngsters doing their work "right smoothly."

Sergeant Gilbert reports that the P.C.I. boys are improving in their drill and that they promise to march out a first class battalion for their inspection in June. He remarked favourably upon the size and the individual bearing of the P.C.I. boys.

Sergeant Gilbert received word from Captain Heron, cadet commandant of District No. 3, stating the practical examination of physical drill for the Peterboro Normal School will take place on April 1, 2 and 3 in the local armouries.

The date of the inspection of local cadets, P.C.I. and public schools, has not been set definitely, as yet, but it will likely take place early in June.

ENGLAND AND THE GOLD STANDARD

People Asked Not to Demand Sovereigns From Banks.

By C. T. HALLINAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, March 20 (United Press).—It will be a gold-less gold standard that England adopts when she adopts it.

Of that paradoxical statement everybody apparently is agreed.

At present the law says that you may not export gold from England in payment of England's international balances. When Parliament, at the behest of the Government, abolishes this law, then England will be on the "gold standard"; she will stand ready to pay her international trade balances in gold if anybody wants gold. Having once agreed to pay her international trade balances in gold, she will have to do it, no matter how much of her comparitively small store of gold the new system drains away from her. She will have to shut her teeth and go through with it. But there is one drain she can stop. She can say to the ordinary, romantic Englishman:

"Now look here, don't be an ass! It is very nice to handle gold sovereigns again as you did in the good old days before the war but we aren't as rich as we were in those days and our supply of gold is strictly limited. Furthermore, you know jolly well that a nice clean pound note or ten-shilling not is pleasant to handle, so why not be satisfied? We freely admit that under the new law if you holler for gold, we shall have pay you in gold, but why not be patriotic, go along as you have been going since the early days of the war, take the paper currency without murming and leave the gold in the Bank of England wher it can be checked off in payment of our international obligations.

This campaign began the other day. Every financial editor in London was summoned by telephone to the great oak-panelled room in the Bank of England where Norman Montagu keeps his powerful fingers on the pulse of British trade and finance. The Governor of the Bank of England sketched the situation; the financial editors saw the point, and the very next morning every big newspaper in England began a campaign to educate the patriotic Englishman into the necessity of going without gold under the "gold standard."

The Morning Post alone permitted itself a half-humorous editorial protest against the notion that Englishmen should themselves forgo the rich pleasant jingle of the gold sovereigns to foreigners.

It has never been done before here, but it has been done in the States where people have long done without gold coins for actual currency though standing ready at any moment to pay their international trade balances in gold. They didn't care to carr the gold. And oddly enough, it has been done in Scotland.

But what America has learned to do, and what Scotland very early did from a sort of fiscal sixth sense, England must now learn to do.

SPRING SINGING AT PETHERICK'S

Robins, Bluebirds and Blackbirds First Arrivals in Vernal Symphony.

OPTIMISM STIRS

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Mar. 19.—Spring has arrived at last, robins, bluebirds and blackbirds are seen and heard once more.

The sap is running quite freely but the buckets have never overflowed yet.

Farmers are expressing the opinion that better times are coming to rural Ontario, manufactured articles are gradually coming back to their pre-war prices and the stock market is gradually improving. Hogs sold for 13 cents a pound this week. They are also prophesying a very prosperous season, the clover, timothy and fall grain still looking quite promising.

L.O.L. met in Sentinel Hall on Tuesday evening with a very good crowd in attendance. Wor. Master, Bro. Wilfred Spencer being absent, Bro. Everett Fairman, Dep. Master took the chair.

Young People's League.

The weekly meeting of the Young People's League was held on Thursday evening and was in charge of the missionary department, the programme consisting of the following items:

Song service, under the leadership of the president, Mr. Fred Barnum.

Missionary topic: "Missionary Progress", by Mr. Everett Fairman.

Scripture Reading, by Miss Cora Irwin.

Devotional Talk, by Rev. Chas. Daniels.

A communication was read by the secretary with regard to an invitation from the English Line League to attend their social evening on Thursday, March 19. It was decided unanimously that the invitation be accepted.

The next meeting will be in charge of the citizenship department under their vice-president, Mr. Morley Petherick.

Miss Agnes Thomson entertained a number of young people at her home on Monday evening.

Mr. Wilfred Spencer is in Otonabee this week attending the annual meeting of Grand Lodge of British America.

PREPARE TO FLY ACROSS THE POLE

Ellsworth Goes to Join Amundsen in Norway—Start in July.

NEW YORK, March 20.—(Canadian Press)—Lincoln Ellsworth, who will attempt to fly across the North Pole with Capt. Amundsen next summer, sailed yesterday on the Oscar II. to join the explorer in Norway.

Capt. Amundsen, after spending most of the winter here, sailed for London last month, and will be joined at Oslo by Ellsworth in about ten days.

Ellsworth, who served in the French and American air service during the war, said the Norwegian Government had donated $10,000 for the expedition, and will furnish transportation to Spitzenberg, from which point he and Captain Amundsen will hop off for the Pole in July or August.

ISLANDERS SUFFER

Storms Isolate Inhabitants of Isles on Irish Coast.

TRALLE, Kerry, Ireland, March 20.—(Associated Press).—The inhabitants of the Blagkett Islands, off the coast, who ran short of food recently during the gales which swept over this part of the world, lit bonfires at night as signals of distress. The fires were seen by people along the coast and life savers were sent to the rescue. The islanders who were able to travel were brought to the mainland, and food was sent to those who remained behind. A bad fishing season, due mainly to the stormy weather, was the principal cause of the distress among the island inhabitants.

FRANK CAREW BUYS OLD MILL FOR $100

Carries Liability of $8,500 Unpaid Taxes in Lindsay.

LINDSAY, March 20.—The large stone flour mill, formerly the property of the Flavelles, situated on the Scugog near the locks and which has been idle for the past few years, a monument to Lindsay's industrial past, was purchased on Tuesday by ex-mayor Frank Carew, the purchase price being $100.00. The plant carries with it a liability for $8,500 taxes, which the purchased will have to pay. The mill was sold some years ago to the Canadian Cereal & Flour Mills, Limited, which also operated a mill at Tillsonburg and Embro. These properties were sold on Tuesday to satisfy creditors. Besides the stone mill at Lindsay, there is a brick oatmeal and chop mill and several frame storehouses. It is rumored that the mill will be occupied by the Beal Leather Company, which is at present operating in a portion of the Dominion Arsenal plant.

YOUNG FARMERS OF BAILIEBORO DANCE

South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. Social Well Attended.

BAILIEBORO, March 19.—The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. club held a very successful dance last Friday evening, and despite the disagreeable weather a goodly crowd turned out to enjoy a real good dance and excellent music provided by the seven piece Centreville orchestra.

The club hall at Centreville was nicely decorated for the occasion, and the floor was in excellent shape for dancing. A dainty cafeteria luncheon was served in the basement at eleven thirty o'clock p.m..

The committee in charge were Miss Margaret Greer, Messrs. Harold Dawson and Fred Barnard.

Among those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Isbister, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Finnie, Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Perrin, Mr. and Mrs. H. Moncrief, Misses M. Greer, L. White, V. White, J. Eagleson, K. Isbister, A. and C. McConnachie, B. Montgomery, Millbrook, T. Ball, Millbrook, L. Stutt, M. and L. Earle, M. Wood, E. Huggins, I. and J. Pue, S. Rutherford, R. Kidd, M. Fair, E. and M. Donaldson, E. NEW OFFICERS ELECTED BY GRAND LODGE Kingston Man Heads Orangemen of Ontario East For Next Year.

PROGRESS MADE.

Grand Organizer's Report Shows Advances Made by Order.

OTTAWA, March 20.— (Special to The Examiner.)— Rain did not dampen the enthusiasm of the members of the Grand Orange Lodge meeting here in the second day of their session. Many more delegates arrived yesterday. In the absence of R. W. Bro. Lount, who was suddenly called to his home last night, the Deputy Grand Master, M. W. Bro. H. A. Graham occupied the chair.

During the morning session an address was delivered by the Rt. Wor. Bro. Rev. W. L. L. Lawrence, Grand Master of Ontario West, who spoke as a representative of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, West and also of the True Blue and Orange orphanage home. He also enlarged upon the progress of the Order as well as the great work done by the home.

At the Chateau Laurier the reverend members of the association were given a banquet at which M. Wor. Bro. Rev. Andrew Woods, of Imley City, Michigan, Supreme Grand Master of the United States, was the guest of honor.

During the afternoon a delegation from the L.O.B.A. of Ontario East brought a message of welcome to the lodge and were responded to by His Honour Rr. Wor. Judge McLean. The members of this delegation were Rt. Wor. Sister Clarke, D.G.M. and Sisters Cook, Gank and Gillespie.

Rt. Wor. Bro. Foster, Grand Organizer, spoke at some length on the progress he had made during the past year.

The election of officers took place under the control of his Honor Judge McLean and the installation by his Honor Judge Scott, Past Grand Master of British America. The result was as follows:

G. Master—Bro. H. A. Graham, Kingston.

Dep. G. Master—Bro. Col. T. A. Kidd, Kingston.

Assoc. Dep. G. Master—D. Armstrong, Ottawa.

Chap.—Bro. Rev. H. T. Robinson, Ottawa.

Treasurer—Bro. Wood, Kingston.

Secretary—Bro. D. J. Sutherland, Ottawa.

Dep. Sec.—Bro. Scott, Lindsay.

Lecturer—Bro. Blackburn, Cornwall.

Dep. Lect.— Bro. S. B. Feterly, Ottawa.

Marshall—Bro. H. C. Shipman, Ottawa.

Auditors—Bro. Birtch, Bro. G. Reid, Belleville.

Wednesday Night Meeting.

At the night session on Wednesday the Ottawa Count Degree, composed of Past Masters, conferred the first degree upon three new candidates.

The two speakers of the evening were Most Wor. Bro. J. W. Edwards, Grand Master of British America and Most Wor. Bro. Rev. Andrew Wood, Grand Master of the United States. Both speakers delivered good and lengthy addresses, which were listened to by a very appreciative audience.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

Several Pieces of Property in Cobourg District Change Hands.

COBOURG, March 20.—The executors of the estate of the late Hon. Geo. T. Oliver of Pittsburg, here sold the family country home near Cobourg to Mr. Geo. Sturges Oliver. This is one of the finest properties at Cobourg and one that is very greatly admired. It is situated just a little north of the town.

T. C. Cruise has sold a part of Lot 33 in the 8th Concession of Hamilton Township to Robert Campbell. Another sale in Hamilton Township is that of part of Lot 15, Concession 4, by Charles Carroll to John F. Carroll.

The Canadian National Railway has sold a small piece of land in Hamilton Township to Frank H. Benedict.

Mr. T. Dennis has sold a property in the south side of King street in the town of Cobourg to Garnett T. Green, formerly of Campbellford.

Charles A. Burkell has sold a part of Lot 28, Concession 8, Haldimand Township, to Wm. H. Sandercock.

Have Purchased Manse.

The managers of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Colborne, which by a majority vote elected to remain Presbyterian, have purchased for use as a manse by their minister, the J. W. Phelp place, from the estate of the late Alfred Dwiney. A call to Rev. R. McCullough by this congregation has been sustained and he will be inducted on April 7.

GUILTY OF ABDUCTION

Sentence on Montreal Man Was Postponed.

MONTREAL, March 20.—In the Court of Sessions Thursday, J. W. Hue, 35, pleaded guilty of abducting Amy Cowan, 15. Chief Judge Decarie, who was presiding, postponed sentence. The abduction took place on February 22. The couple were traced to Bainsville, Ont., by the father of the girl, who went there himself to get her back and caused Hue's arrest.

STUDENT BAND 'LIT' FEATURE

Collegiate Orchestra of 12 Pieces Gave Entertaining Programme.

"ECHOES" APPEARS

The P.C.I. Literary Society held a most successful meeting yesterday afternoon. The programme consisted chiefly of musical selections which went off with plenty of snap and "go."

The school orchestra consisting of twelve instruments, played several numbers in a fine manner. Miss Musa Cox played a fine piano solo. Miss Alida Stinson ,secretary of the "Lit." read a report on the various activities of the society.

Then came one titbit of the programme, several jazz pieces by the Undertakers' Union Orchestra, a group of musicians with set faces dressed in sombre black who played upon a heterogenious set of instruments of doubtful extraction. Al. Neal added some comedy to the act.

Miss Irene Brickenridge gave reading with a low musical accompaniment, entitled "My Old Sweetheart."

Stewart Widdess "Garnet and Grey Music Makers," who have brightened all the "Lit." meetings with their numbers, outdid themselves yesterday. The Boys' Chorus sang some of the latest popular song numbers accompanied by the orchestra.

Mr. Pettit reported on the judges' decision in the inter-form stunt contest. He presented the banner to Form Four B, who staged "Music Hath Charms," the winning play.

School Activities.

The P.C.I. "Echoes," the student magazine, came out today hot from the press, and created no little excitement in the corridors of learning. The "Echoes" this year had Allan Neal as editor in chief and he and his staff worked long and hard over their work. They succeeded in printing an "Echoes" which contains some real humor and it is filled with "wise cracks" on pupils and teachers. It ranks favorably with "Echoes" of the past.

School Play.

The P.C.I. have planned to put on their annual play on the dates of March 30 and 31, in the Assembly Hall. The play this year is entitled "Come Out of the Kitchen," and practices have been held regularly during the past month. The play this year is under able instructors and the play this year promises to be as great a success as that of the past years.

SENATE ADJOURNS

No Legislation for Upper Chamber Before April 21.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 20. — Royal Assent having been given Thursday in the Senate by Chief Justice F. A. Anglin, acting for the Governor-General, the Senate adjourned until April 21. Senator Dandurand, Government leader, explained that with the debate on the Petersen contract and on the budget intervening, the Upper Chamber would have no legislation to review before that date. Senator Robertson, acting opposition leader ,thought the attention of the commons should be drawn to the lack of legislation in that Chamber in the earlier part of the session. Royal assent was also given to the interim supply bill.

LITTLE TREATING AT DENMARK BARS

Results Reflected in Few Arrests for Drunkenness.

CHICAGO, March 20.—"There is no treating between friends in Denmark and other Scandinavian countries," said Dr. Max Henius, President of the Wahl-Henius Institute, 1135 Fullerton avenue. "And especially is this true in matters pertaining to the consumption of liquor and wines and beer. It has never been the custom to drag Harry, Bill and Charlie up to the bar, introduce them to a few friends and keep the bartender busy the rest of the day. That and high Government taxes on all strong drinks are considered the prime reasons for the low percentage of arrests for drunkenness in Denmark in general, and Copenhagen, the capital, in particular."

Dr. Henius, internationally known as a consulting chemist to the fermentation interests, arrived in Chicago yesterday from New York, where he had completed his fifty-seventh trip across the Atlantic Ocean—enough mileage to cover the distance between the earth and the moon.

Arrests Increase in Oslo.

Official Governmental reports on the arrests for drunkenness in the four Scandinavian capitals were gleaned from a little red book that is closely guarded by Dr. Henius. In it, he said, are figures and quotations which are known to only the high officials of the four countries, himself and the printers of the pamphlet.

During the four-year period between 1920-1923, Oslo, the capital of Norway, with a population of 268,000, reported that the percentage of arrests for imbibing well, but not wisely, in alcoholic liquors, had jumped from 5.28 to 8.72 of the total population. And there is a strong drink prohibition to contend with in Oslo.

Helsingfors, Finland, which has total and supposedly absolute prohibition, reports that in 1920 6.15 per cent. of the 200,000 persons residing there had at one time or another had their names inscribed on one or more police blotters. In 1923 the figure had risen to 7.77. Curiously enough, 1922 was the low year of the four-year stretch, when only 5.46 per cent. were caught too full.

Denmark Has Fewest Drunks.

Stockholm, Sweden, had only 1.90 per cent. of its 425,000 persons before judges on the charge of intoxication. Liquor there is controlled and restricted by the Government.

Copenhagen, Denmark, with 706,000 inhabitants, points with pride to its low marks of 0.52, 0.63, 0.64 and 0.66 for the four years. And Copenhagen is the only one of the four cities that is free and wide open. Bootleggers in Finland and Norway are accountable for the high figures, according to Dr. Henius.

"In Denmark the Government had put a terrific tax on all alcoholic liquors," said Dr. Henius, "and while nothing is prohibited by law, the average man's pocketbook takes care of his thirst. And that means one whiskey in place of the old-time ten cracks at the bottle. A leading distiller makes 1-60th of what his Government does on his products."

"For all washing and cleaning you can't beat this soap —" says Mrs. Experience, who chooses soap for its economy and labour-saving value.

"Sunlight puts the sunshine of cleanliness into the home! For washing clothes, dishes, wood-work, linoleums, in fact, for anything that can be cleaned with soap and water—I call on Sunlight. And Sunlight does its work so well and leaves everything sweet and clean.

"Sunlight really is economical, too! You see, every bit of it is pure, cleansing soap, containing no filling or hardening materials, which are only waste as far as we women are concerned.

"You get greater cleaning value out of a pure laundry soap—and so I say, 'Always keep a good supply of Sunlight on hand'. It really improves with age. And because of its purity, Sunlight is kind to your hands and keeps them smooth and comfortable." Sunlight is made by Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto.

CANOEIST AT LYONS

Canadian Paddling From Paris to

LYONS, France, March 20. — (Canadian Press Cable Via Reuter's).— The Canadian canoeist, S. C. Smyth, who is paddling to Rome, arrived here Thursday after a journey of almost eighteen days from Paris. He negotiated the Seine from the French capital to Montereau, then along the Yonne River to Laroche where he struck up the Burgundy Canal for this city. Smyth experienced very bad weather with snow, rain and hail accompanied by a biting cold. He leaves Lyons to-morrow for Valence, then to Marseilles, and hopes to reach Rome on April 25.

FARM PROBLEMS WERE DEBATED

Is Drift to Cities For Social or Economic Reasons?

AT BRIGHTON.

BRIGHTON, March 19.—On Monday evening in the auditorium of the Methodist Church, the Colborne Young People's League met with the local league and a pleasant evening was spent. The chief part of the programme was a debate, "Resolved that the drift of population to urban centres is due more to social than economic reasons." This is the first of a series of debates which are being held in this district, the winner of which is to be presented with a cup donated by Rev. Mr. Whattam, ex-pastor of Colborne. The affirmative side was upheld by Miss Pearl Bellamy and her supporter Mr. Tom Goldie of Colborne. Mr. Gordon Lapp, supported by Miss Vera Greenfield, clearly showed that the drift of population to urban centres was for economic reasons rather than social reasons, thereby winning the debate. Both sides were about evenly matched, and many interesting points were presented. The debate was followed by a musical program, consisting of: Vocal solo — Miss Irene Sandford; reading—Miss Ola Greenfield; instrumental—Paul Farman; vocal solo—Miss G. Frise.

Partners were found, after which light refreshments were served.

A real old-fashioned St. Patrick's dinner was held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church on the evening of Tuesday, March 17. The men waiters, attendants and carvers were dressed as typical Irish gentlemen, and the large dining-room was profusely decorated, emblematic of the day dear to the men of Erin. This event is an annual one, and as usual a large crowd was there, numbering approximately four hundred. An excellent programme was afterwards given in the auditorium of the church, with St. Andrew's Orchestra in attendance.

Personals.

Mr. Geo. Powell, of Barry, was in town for the week-end.

Mr. Ralph Cheer of Brighton spent the week-end in Campbellford.

Mr. Jay Potts, of Queen's University, has returned to Kingston, after spending a few days with his parents.

Mr. Chas. Langdon, barrister, of Toronto, was at home over the week-end.

Fresh Maple Syrup.

Mr. Harry Sauva, who has a large sugar bush north of Brighton, reports a good run of sap, and Brighton residents were treated to fresh maple syrup for the first time this year on Saturday morning last.

The garage and service station on Yonge Street, formerly conducted by Mr. Ray B. Goheen, has recently been sold to a well-known resident of Brighton, Mr. Guy Taylor.

The roads in Brighton and vicinity are in a very poor condition, and a number of travellers have had to be towed out of the mud.

Mrs. Bawden, widow of Wm. Bawden, deceased, after a lengthy illness, passed away on Monday. The funeral was held on Wednesday at 2 p.m., and the remains were interred at Mount Hope Cemetery. Her husband, Mr. Wm. Bawden, a highly respected Brighton citizen and a distinguished Orangeman, passed away scarcely six weeks ago.

BASKET SOCIAL AT EAST EMILY LODGE

Very Enjoyable Programme Put on by Orange Lodge—Personal Notes.

EAST EMILY, March 20.—The Orangemen of L. O. L. No. 294 held a basket social and entertainment on Wednesday evening, March 11th, in their lodge room. The programme consisted of music, dialogues and recitations. Mr. Walter Magee ably filled the chair.

The first item on the programme was the chairman's address, followed by a musical selection by Miss Pearl Reid and Mr. Elwood Harrison on guitar and organ.

Reading—Miss M. Carey.

Duett—Misses Eileen and Marion Pogue of Omemee.

Quartett—Mount Pleasant talent, consisting of four young men, Messrs. McLean, Best, Bland and Jamieson.

Solo—Miss Eleanor Sherin.

Dialogue—"Don't Count Your Chickens Before They Are Hatched," by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jackson, Bert Edwards and Harry Deyell.

After the programme Wm. Howden conducted the sale of baskets some of which were bid up to $1.65. The young men who were fortunate enough to secure a basket paired off with their partners and partook of their lunch, while the remainder of the audience were served by the young men of the Orange Order.

After an enjoyable and social evening was spent the entertainment was closed by singing the National Anthem.

Attended Funeral.

A number from this section attended the funeral of the late George Franks of Smith, which took place to Emily Cemetery on Friday, March 13th. Rev. Mr. Weir of Omemee conducted the services. The pallbearers were Messrs. Wm. Franks, Arthur Franks, George C. Franks, Thomas Calvert, Wm. Nurse and George Haggart. Many and beautiful were the floral tributes, showing the high esteem in which Mr. Franks was held by his many friends and neighbors.

Personal Notes.

Wilfred Jackson was called to Peterboro on Sunday owing to the sudden death of his mother.

Mrs. Alvin Drain, accompanied by her sister, Miss Ida Switzer, has returned to her home at Clarina.

Mr. Eugene Switzer was a visitor to Peterboro on Tuesday.

Mr. William Harrison, while moving his sawing outfit last Thursday, had the misfortune to upset on the icy roads and broke parts of the engine.

Friends of Miss Flossie Casey are pleased to know that she is recovering from her serious illness, her nurse, Miss Wood, having returned home.

Friends of Mrs. Robert McElwain are sorry to learn that she is confined to her bed through illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wilson and their two children of Peterboro are visiting friends in East Emily.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Calvert of Ennismore were visitors to Omemee recently.

DELICIOUS!

OXO Scalloped Potatoes

4 Potatoes — A little salt
1 Egg — 1 Oxo Cube

Pass the potatoes through a sieve, add yolk of egg, and salt, whip up the white to a stiff froth, dissolve the Oxo Cube in a little hot water. Mix together. Butter some shells or a cooking dish, fill with the mixture. Cover with browned bread crumbs and tiny pieces of butter. Put in the oven for 10 minutes to cook.

OXO CUBES

DO YOU COUGH, COUGH ALL NIGHT LONG?

Terribly distressing and wearing on the system is the cough that comes on at night and you cough; cough all night long and can't get to sleep.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP WILL GIVE YOU RELIEF

Mrs. John Lyman, Enterprise, Ont., writes: "After having had whooping cough I contracted bronchitis, and for days and nights I coughed continually, and could get no rest or sleep, but after taking one bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I found great relief, and after having taken several bottles I was relieved of my trouble."

This valuable cold and cough remedy has been on the market for the past 35 years; you don't experiment when you buy it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OBITUARY

MISS LUCILLE SLEEMAN.

COBOURG, March 20.—The funeral of Miss Lucille Sleeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sleeman, took place yesterday here. She had been ill for about fifteen months and had submitted to several operations. She was a young lady who was highly esteemed, and the funeral, which was conducted by Rev. W. A. Brenner, was largely attended, and there was very many floral offerings. Miss Sleeman is survived by her parents, by three sisters, Mrs. H. Hollingsworth of Renfrew, Mrs. Alfred Gamble of Lindsay and Mrs. Vernon Little of Rochester, and by four brothers, Douglas and Eugene of Cobourg, Lyle and Jack at home.

DANCING TEACHER BURNS TO DEATH

CLEVELAND, March 20.—Mrs. Mabel Wheaton, aged 35, a dancing teacher, was burned to death and four firemen were injured when fire destroyed a hotel Wednesday.

A Famous Man

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood, as well as the "Favorite Prescription" for women, was Dr. Ray V. Pierce, a practising physician in Western Pennsylvania right after the Civil War. He early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established The Invalids' Hotel, then he put up his home remedies in the World's Dispensary, where they were carefully prepared from roots, barks and herbs, and placed them with druggists all over the U. S. and Canada.

For over half a century, Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effect on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's family medicines, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for a trial package of tablets to Doctor Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

FALSE PRETENCE CHARGE

They Have Bad Cheque Artists in Cobourg as Well as Peterboro.

COBOURG, March 20.—H. J. Brady, alias Stanley, who pleaded guilty to receiving $12.00 from the Standard Bank here by means of a worthless cheque, came up before Judge Cameron here today for sentence, and was remanded until March 31.

Dr. Blair Gave Address.

A meeting of the local Child Welfare Society, and representatives from different organizations met during the week in the Town Council Chamber. Dr. Blair of the Health Branch of the Department of Education addressed the meeting. The Public and Separate School Boards and Board of Health were represented. The speaker defined the new regulations providing for a more thorough examination of the school children by the Medical Health Officer, and the employment of a Public Health Nurse by the Board of Health for which service the Department give an annual grant of $500. Dr. Blair said the system was a new one and had been adopted by several towns. The Department of Education recommended its adoption. At present the system was introduced and it was expected that later on it might be made obligatory. The matter, it is stated, may be taken up at a future meeting.

Trappers Are Busy.

Trappers are busy at Percy Boom and at different points on Rice Lake waters. They report a much depleted area for trapping as farmers and others have staked off their property and will allow no trespassing. These things may deplete the catch for the season.

Motor League Meeting.

An open meeting of the Cobourg Motor League was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Capitol Theatre, when addresses of much interest were given in connection with the paving of our highways and their general upkeep and condition for motor traffic. Mr. W. G. Robertson of the Ontario Motor League was unable to be present, but his place was ably supplied by other speakers. Mr. Smith of the Department of Highways, went into the roads question in detail, and outlined the paving that is to be done the coming year. It will not be long before the entire Provincial Highway from Kingston to Toronto will be paved. Tenders have not been called for the construction of several unpaved portions.

Dr. Doolittle of the Canadian Autmobile Association gave an illustrated talk on his pathfinding trip from Halifax to Vancouver, that was of exceptional interest.

Mr. Gay of the Ontario Motor League was another interesting speaker, and all were heard with much interest. The meeting was well attended.

Big Demand For Summer Houses.

Those in touch with the situation locally state a strong demand for summer houses to rent this season, especially for the larger houses. Quite a number of these have changed hands during the past few years, and are not now available, which makes the demand all the keener.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wood have leased Ravensworth, the home of the late Gen. and Mrs. Fitzhugh.

Mrs. James E. Baker of Lancaster, Penn., has leased, it is said, Dr. Willoughby's residence on George street.

It is customary among certain sects of Algiers to bury the dead with the bottles of medicine used during their last illness.

MANY HAVE EYE DEFECTS

NEW YORK, March 20.—(United Press).—Forty-seven per cent. of the candidates for admission to the College of the City of New York had eye defects serious enough to require glasses, it is disclosed in a special report by Dr. Frederic A. Woll, acting director of the Department of Hygiene, to the Eye Sight Conservation Council of America.

I.O.O.F. HOLD IRISH SOCIAL

Millbrook Lodge Hold Enjoyable Celebration on St. Patrick's Day.

ATTENDANCE GOOD

MILLBROOK, March 20.—The officers and members of Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F., No. 308, were hosts for a very enjoyable "St. Patrick's Day" social evening on Tuesday, March 17th, about sixty guests being present.

The attendance was considerably lessened by the unfavorable state of roads and weather, and the amount of sickness in the vicinity. The invitation asked that the guests come in costume, and a few did so, the majority, however, not finding it convenient, apparently, to respond to the request of the committee in charge in this particular. Probably the short time for preparations was a hindrance.

Community singing, led by Brother Chas. Thorndyke, P.G., whose excellent make-up proclaimed him a "real, Irish Paddy," was heartily entered into as the first item on the programme, Miss Hattie Ba.nard presiding at the piano.

Brother H. A. Fallis, P.G., then took the chair, the following contributing to the entertainment provided:

Selection by the Byam family orchestra, Miss May Byam at the piano, violins, Messrs. J. L. and Lloyd Byam, traps, Billie Byam.

Solo, "Pat O'Reilly," by Bro. C. Thorndyke; encore, "Give Old Ireland to the Irish."

Solo, "Mother Machree," by Bro. V. R. Hunter, P.G., Miss Hunter playing the accompaniment.

Selection, Byam's Orchestra.

Solo, "The Photo of the Girl I Left Behind Me," by Bro. Fred Wells; encore, "I'll Have to Ask My Mother to Let Me."

An intermission ot this point gave opportunity for all to take part in two appropriate contests one of which required the word, "Pat" in the answers, and the other word, "Green." Two solos, "Sweet Molly Malone," by Mr. Thorndyke, and "Moira," by V. R. Hunter, completed the programme, and the guests were asked to adjourn to the dining-hall for supper, Byam's Orchestra furnishing the music while this move was made.

Streamers and table runners of paddy green, shades of the same emerald hue on the lights, green candles burning on the tables, and green-covered holders for the flowers placed at intervals down their length, made a most effective and appropriate decorative scheme, which called forth many expressions from the guests as they took their places and prepared to enjoy the excellent menu which the social committee, Brothers C. C. Garside, D. Sheppard and F. Wells, had provided.

Brother H. R. Armstrong moved the hearty vote of thanks which all felt was due the committees in charge for the pleasant evening arranged for, Bro. H. A. Fallis seconding the motion, Bro. C. Thornryke responding on behalf of his fellow-workers. The entertainment committee included: Brothers Wilbert Thorne, H. A. Falls and Chas. Thorndyke.

Cards and dancing, Byam's Orchestra furnishing music for the latter, continued for some after supper, the gathering finally breaking up about one o'clock. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tate, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McGill, Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thorndyke, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ibister, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mrs. J. A. Vance, Misses Thelma Ball, H. Barnard, Ada Attwooll, Irene Francey, C. Hunter, I. Syer, G. Harkness, M. Byam, E. Lowery, B. Montgomery, Alice Armstrong, Messrs. H. R. Armstrong, E. Armstrong, Bert Armstrong, R. Hutchison, F. Wells, Dr. L. J. Stuart, T. Harkness, J. Bingham, E. Morden, W. Thorne, D. Sheppard, J. Yake, J.L. and Lloyd Byam, F. Lowery, H. Jordan, V. R. Hunter, S. Donaldson, Ronald Hutchison and others.

Personals.

Miss Mamie Collins has left for an extended visit with her cousin, Miss Helen Armstrong, of Fergus, her brother, Mr. Walter Collins, of Kitchener, and will stay with friends in Toronto on her way home.

Mrs. James Dawson of Peterboro was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dawson over the week-end.

Mrs. F. W. Burnham of Peterboro is visiting Mrs. G. E. Burnham for a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Jones of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley over the week end.

The basket social which the C.G.I.T. and C.S.E.T. groups of the Methodist church intended holding on St. Patrick's Day was unavoidably postponed, on account of the 'flu outbreak, many members being ill thus making it impossibe to carry out the programme arranged for. The date for the event will be announced later.

The series of slides on "Canada's Water Power", which the C.G.I.T. group is securing from the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, will be presented at the meeting of the Young People's League on Monday, March 30th, at 8 p.m.

C. Thorndyke was a visitor to Toronto last week, and attended the annual meeting of the Canadian Order of Home Circles.

F. N. Alcorn, head clerk in W. H. Coombe's grocery, has been absent from his duties this week owing to a severe attack of 'flu which developed on Sunday.

During the Lenten season service is held in the school house of St. Thomas' church on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m., and on Thursday evenings a series of lantern slides is being shown.

Miss Annie McConnachie, who has been a popular member of the local Bank of Toronto staff for some years, has resigned her position as teller, and is at present holidaying with her parents, Rev. A. H. and Mrs. McConnachie, at the Manse, Centreville.

Arnold Armstrong is the new member of the Bank staff, Mr. R. Hutchison has assumed the duties of teller.

Mr. J. A. Vance was a visitor to Peterboro on Tuesday. His brother Mr. Jack Vance, of Toronto, who came to Millbrook for a visit, is ill in the Nicholls Hospital, an operation being necessary.

SILVER PLATE TO OPERATORS

Cramahe Telephone Staff Receive Handsome Gift From Subscribers of System.

AT CASTLETON

CASTLETON, March 20.—Miss Cora Gooderich and Miss Sara McCombe, operators for the Cramahe Telephone System were given a surprise on Tuesday evening March 17, when a large crowd gathered in the town hall for the purpose of expressing their appreciation for the services which the girls rendered them.

An excellent programme was given after which the following address was read by Miss Vance Pomeroy: Miss Gooderich and Miss McCombe.

We, the subscribers and renters of the Cramahe Telephone System, together with your many friends take this opportunity to express our sincere appreciation of you diligent and most accommodating service to us as operators during your residence in Castleton.

Miss Gooderich who has been with us for six and a half years has performed her duties faithfully. Service from the Castleton switch board has been of the very best and desiring of expressive praise.

Miss McCombe too has performed her duties without fault and although she has not been with us for so long a period as Miss Gooderich yet perfect satisfaction describes her work.

Taking all these things into consideration we ask each of you to accept this little token in remembrance of those you leave behind.

We wish you all the good fortune that Providence may heap upon you and that you may have success in any line of work you may undertake.

Signed on behalf of subscribers and renters of Castleton switchboard and friends.

Helen Cameron.
Mrs. Vance Pomeroy.

Directly after the reading of the address, Miss Helen Cameron presented each of the girls with silverware of Old Colony pattern, consisting of half dozen knives and forks, half dozen teaspoons, half dozen desert spoons, four tablespoons, berry spoon, meat fork, pie knife, pickle fork, sugar shell and butter knife.

After the presentation Miss Gooderich and Miss McCombe in a few well chosen words expressed their gratitude.

A dainty lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

A few minutes at the Laura Secord Shop will show you the very interesting way these dainty morsels are made. You are welcome at 380 George Street.

PRESENTATION TO MONAGHAN COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Willan Receive Gifts in Honor of Their Wedding.

A very pleasant evening was recently spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Willan of South Monaghan township, where a number of their friends and neighbours gathered to wish them happiness and prosperity on their new journey through life.

Two mahogany chairs and a jardinner stand were presented by Mr. Stuart Darling, while the following address was read by Mr. McIntosh Brandshaw.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Willan:

We, a few of your friends and neighbours have assembled here this evening to extend to you our heartiest congratulations, and to wish you a happy and prosperous voyagle through life.

It gives us great pleasure to welcome your young bride, to our community. We indeed feel highly privileged that you intend to gives ng the sunshine of your smile, and that you are going to remain in our midst. We also feel confident that your lives will be a blessing and benediction to all with whom you will come in contact.

We therefore ask you to accept these chairs and jardiniere stand as a slight token of our esteem.

May your pathway be strew with roses as you struggle on and up through life and when you have finished your earthly course and fought the good fight, may you find Eternal rest in the Great Beyond.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors.

McIntosh Bradshaw,
Stuart Darling.

Mr. Willan, on behalf of his wife, replied in a capable way, voicing many thanks for the useful gifts.

Mr. John Douglas gave a lengthy address which was very appropriate to the occasion. Other suitable speeches were delivered by Messrs. Joseph White, Earnest Anderson and John Willan.

A social time featured by card playing and dancing took place. The midnight lunch was all that could be desired and 3 oclock in the morning found even the young couples of ten and twenty years ago engaged in the merry whirl to music, rendered in turn by Messrs. Evans, Stewart, Harold Moncrief, McIntosh Bradshaw, on the violin, accompanied by Clifford Wood on the harp.

$500 FOR MINERS' RELIEF.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 20. — The Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, through Grand President A. R. Mosher of this city, yesterdy forwarded by telegraph to Glace Bay, N.S., $500 to be used for the relief of miners and their dependents.

CONNECTICUT 'QUAKE VICTIM DIES

HARTFORD, March 20.—Lena M. Jones, wife of Nathaniel Jones of South Windsor, died in the Hartford Hospital Tuesday as the result of injuries sustained during the earthquake on Feb. 28. During the shock she attempted to run from the house, but fell and broke a blood vessel.

In The Morning Her Tongue Was Coated HadBad Taste In Mouth

Miss Pearle L. Zinck, Barss Corner, N.S., writes:—"I was awfully troubled with my liver, and used to get such dizzy spells I would have to sit down while I was doing my work.

In the morning, when I used to get up my tongue was coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth and often times, throughout the day, I was troubled with pains in my stomach.

I suffared in this way until a friend of mine who had used your MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS, told me of having taken them, so I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they certainly did me a lot of good.

I cannot recommend them too highly to all those who suffer as I did."

You can procure Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills at all druggists or dealers; put up, for the past 30 years by the Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUIT DISMISSED

Alimony Case at Cobourg Assizes Dismissed by Judge Rose.

COBOURG, March 20.—The last case on the docket of the Supreme Court of Ontario, which concluded its sittings before Mr. Justice Rose on Saturday, was an action for alimony, brought by Rachel Graydon against her husband, Mark F. Graydon, both of Cobourg. Mr. Justice Rose suggested a settlement between the parties, but none was arrived at, and the case proceeded. After hearing the witnesses His Lordship dismissed the action. Messrs. Kerr and Cochrane acted for the plaintiff and F. D. Boggs, K.C., for the defendant.

New License Inspector.

REJECTS BIRTH CONTROL LAW

HARTFORD, March 20. — The birth control bill was rejected by the Senate, an unfavorable committee report being accepted without comment. The bill would have given legally qualified physicians discretionary powers in revealing the necessary information under certain circumstances.

HE PREDICTED TORNADO THAT HAS MADE SWATH OF DEATH

Professor H. B. Ward Forecast Sweep of Storm—Explains Its Actions.

NOT BROOM-LIKE.

CHICAGO, Ills., March 20 (United News).—The popular nation that cyclones, like great brooms sweep over the earth, brushing buildings and houses into the air by mere wind velocity, is denied by Prof. H. B. Ward, of Northwestern University, the man who predicted the tornado which has just brought destruction and death to six states. Houses are not tossed into the air, Ward says, but are literally blown up, as the air pressure on the outside drops to one-half of that on the inside. Three-fourths of the damage done is the result of varying air pressures.

Explaining how he was able to detect the coming tornado, Prof. Ward said. "The weather map showed a well developed low, centered over Northwestern Arkansas. The inner isobars were oval and extended nearly north and south, while the outer isobars formed a distinct V-shaped pattern in which there was a pronounced wind shift line.

"The general forecast issued by the weather bureau stated that the disturbance will advance northeastward—and with constantly increasing intensity."

This forecast of course included the possibility of tornado winds.

"Tornadoes often form along the wind shift line, in the southern portion of the cyclone belt from 200 to 800 miles from the centre of the disturbance. Therefore, when the storm moved northeastward toward the lower great lakes and the wind shift became more intense, there was a strong probability of tornadoes developing in Southern Illinnois and Indiana.

"By Thursday morning, the storm had moved across Ohio, and was centred near Lake Ontario and had become less intense, although gales were recorded in many places in Ohio and New York."

SOCIETY BORES WEALTHY MISS

Gives Away Fortune and Forms Community to Go Back to the Land.

LONDON, March 20 (Associated Press)—Because she was bored with London dances, theatres and dinner parties, Miss Vera Pragnell, wealthy linen merchant, gave away her fortune and retired to a tiny plot of ground in Sussex, near Chanctonbury Ring, where she has founded a small comunity of "back-to-the-landers."

There are about a dozen people in the colony, one an atheist, another a commuist and a third a poet. All are artistically inclined and make their living by handiwork and cultivation of the soil. Twenty acres have been set aside as common land, upon which has been erected a "guest house" that not only serves as a general community center, but also a haven of refuge for weary tramps. Each night food is placed in a special room known as the "tramps' room," and as there are no locks or bolts, passing wanderers have no difficulty in getting board and lodging.

Miss Pragnell lives in a small hut in the center of the common ground, and a broken-down motor omnibus has been converted into a school building for the children of the colony.

REPRIEVE FOR PIRIE.

Condemned Man Will Live Until June 20, Executive Says.

OTTAWA, March 20. — Reprieve until June 20th, has been granted by the Governor-General-in-Council to John Buchanan Pirie, sentenced to be hanged on March 24th for the murder of his wife and two children here on October 1st last, it was officially announced this afternoon.

KEEP CANADA BRITISH.

Aim of Orange Lodge Stated at Last Session in Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 20. — Canadian Press. — The Orange organization in Canada makes no secret of the fact that one of its chief aims is to keep Canada within the British Empire, and to counteract the effect of an influx of inmigrants of other than British stock, Hon Dr. J. W. Edwards, Grand Master and Sovereign of the Grand Lodge of British America, told more than 1500 people who had crowded the Orange Hall last night, at the close of the fifth session of the Grand Lodge of Ontario East.

He condemned the policy of allowing many foreign born imigrants into the country when Britain is finding it difficult to acommodate the rapidly growing surplus of population.

The next session is to be held at Belleville next year.

MEN MUST RETURN.

B. E. Steel Demands Maintenance Men Go Back as Corportion's Employees.

SYDNEY, N.S., March 20.—(Canadian Press).—The return of maintenance men to the pits as employees of the British Empire Steel Corporation must precede the resumption of negotiations by the Corporation, looking to the settlemetn of the coal fields disputes, according to a brief statement given out by J. E. McLurg, vice-president of the Corporation, at noon to-day.

Reports from the mining districts this morning showed no new developments other than an indication that relief measures were increasingly necessary among the destitute.

DOUBLE DROWNING.

Mother and Daughter Died in Hastings County—Bodies Found.

BELLEVILLE, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—A double drowning, that of Mrs. Nettie Wilson and her 13-year-old daughter, Shirley Wilson, in Fraser Lake, near Fort Stewart, in the northern section of Hastings County, is reported by Provincial Constable McCoy, who arrived in Bancroft last night from the scene of the tragedy. The bodies have been recovered. No details as to how the accident occurred have been received. An inquest will be held by Dr. Lund of Bancroft.

C.N.R. EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending March 14, 1925 were $4,284,779.00, being a decrease of $451,667.00 over the corresponding week of 1924.

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways from Jan. 1 to March 14, 1925 have been $41,573,458.00, being a decrease of $4,126,389.00, as compared with the corresponding period of 1924.

MILLBROOK FLOODED.

Furnace Fires Out—Streets Looked Like Lakes Whipped by Wind.

MILLBROOK, March 20.—Millbrook had something approaching one of its old-time floods on Thursday morning following the heavy rain which continued practically all the previous night, concluding with a particularly hard downpour, having thunder and lightning accompaniment, about six a.m. on Thursday.

Cellars on high ground had several inches of water, and those down town were flooded, making the matter of reaching furnaces and keeping fires going, a difficult problem. In fact, at the Queen's Hotel, the Bank o fToronto, and Dr. H. A. Turner's drug store the water was level with the furnace doors, and no fires could be made.

King street was a lake, with water even with the pavement, the overflow from the creek back of the town hall coming up the roadway between that building and S. Donnelly's residence, and filling the business section of the main thoroughfare for some hours. When the wind blew with force, as it did presently, it whipped the water, causing it to splash over the pavement in places.

All the creeks in the village were much higher than usual, the one from Attwool & Sheppard's pond being right across the roadway.

Evidently the main drain, which runs from the Methodist parsonage down to Coombe's corner, and then round on Tupper street, needs attention. The claim is made that this drain has been in place since before the village was incorporated in 1880, and the top timbers have become decayed, fallen in in places, and block the water, causing the inconvenience of flooded cellars and unlighted furnaces.

Probably the "city fathers" might give the matter needed attention at the next regular council meeting.

Mr. T. J. Lang was a business visitor to Toronto on Tuesday.

Lang & Madill shipped two carloads of stock, one of cattle and one of hogs, from Millbrook and Cavanville, to Toronto on Monday.

The Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Church intends having Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, rector of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, deliver a lecture under its auspices the last of this month.

Mrs. (Canon) Allen, president of the Women's Auxiliary, gave a most instructive paper on the work of the organization: "What it is, and how to accomplish it," at the recent March meeting.

The April meeting will be held in the Sunday School hall, instead of one of the homes of the members, as is usually the custom.

Many of those who heard the inspiring address of Rev. J. R. Earle, for sixteen years a missionary in West China, at the luncheon held in the Methodist church last October, will regret to learn of his death on Monday at the Toronto General Hospital. Mr. Earle's health was far from satisfactory when here in the fall, his interest and zeal in presenting the cause of missions throughout the district keeping him at work when doubtless he should have been taking a complete rest.

KILLED BY TRAIN.

Samuel Cooper, 60, Instantly Killed on Canadian Pacific Tracks.

BURY, Que., March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Samuel Cooper, 60, of this village, was instantly killed early this morning as a result of being struck by a freight train while crossing the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks near the local station.

TALES OF HORROR COME FROM AREA SWEPT BY THE TORNADO

Frantic Survivors Search the Long Lines of Dead For Loved Ones.

HELP ON WAY.

CHICAGO, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—Still prostrated but with hurried efforts at temporary relief supplemented by the arrival of trained workers, supplies and medicines, the storm-stricken area of the Ohio valley to-day continued to count the terrific loss in life and property of its greatest tornado catastrophy.

Revised casualty lists indicated little change from the first estimates as Wednesday afternoon's twister plowed its eccentric and destructive course into five mid-western states. Fairly systematic checking in thirty-five cities and towns in the storm's path indicated a death list of between 850 and 900, with approximately 3,000 injured and many other thousands homeless.

It was believed, however, that many bodies were still to be recovered as entire towns were demolished and isolated. Identified dead in the five states totalled 466.

Tales of Horror.

As relief measures got under way stories of almost unprecedented misery in the storm-swept area came in from all points.

Temporary morgues and hospitals were filled to overflowing, while frantic men, women and children searched long lines of dead for missing dear ones. In some instances doctors performed major operations out of doors or in roofless buildings without the aid of an anesthetic. The paralysis of gas, light and water facilities in some towns added to the discomfort and confusion, and through the second night of horror relief workers had only candles and lanterns to guide their efforts of mercy. No food shortage exists, however, the Red Cross at St. Louis announced.

In Murphysboro, where 147 bodies have been recovered, 8,000 persons, or two-thirds of the population, were homeless. One hundred city blocks were demolished there and the power plant wrecked.

Seventeen students were killed in the destruction of school buildings. Forty-five bodies had been recovered at Desoto, which virtually was obliterated.

More than a dozen other Illinois towns reported from one to forty deaths.

Of five towns struck in Indiana, Griffin, a Posey County village, suffered most. With 47 bodies recovered, it was believed that the death list might mount to 125. Griffin virtually was wiped out, and systematic work at rescue was held up for a time because few were left uninjured in the village. Military lines have been drawn about the entire area.

At Princeton, which counted 20 dead, the $2,000,000 shops of the Southern Railway were destroyed, throwing four hundred persons out of work. Most of the home destroyed were those of working men.

BRAKEMAN KILLED.

Foot Caught on Step and He Fell Under Engine Wheels.

PORT ARTHUR, March 20. —(Canadian Press).—Hecot J. Leblac, Canadian National Railway freight conductor, operating as head-end brakeman on a mixed train out of Atikokan, and east-bound for Port Arthur, was fatally injured yesterday morning near Keego, and died while being brought to this city.

His foot caught in one of the steps and he fell under the wheels of the engine.

WORKING TIME LOST.

Industrial Disputes Lost More Time in February Than in January.

OTTAWA, March 20.—(Canadian Press).—The time loss due to industrial disputes was greater in February than in January, 1925, but less during February, 1924, says the Department of Labor. There were in existence during the month 13 disputes, involving 3,080 employees, and resulting in a time loss of 26,334 working days, as compared with 10 disputes in January, 1925, involving 604 work people and resulting in a time loss of 4,882 working days.

QUADRUPLETS THRIVE

One of Those at St. John, N. B., Can Now Walk.

The difficulty of raising quadruplets is well known. There is now but a single survivor of those recently born. It is interesting, therefore, to note that St. John, New Brunswick, possesses four who are flourishing. They are the children of Mrs. W. Mahaney and are more than a year old. There are three girls, named Christine, Edna and May, and one boy, John.

John, who weighed five pounds four ounces at birth, is beginning to walk. He was weighed last on January 23, and tipped the scales at eighteen pounds six ounces. He gets around on his own legs without any assistance ,and is described as a sturdy youngster.

Christine is the heaviest of the lot, but so far has balked at walking. She weighed an even five pounds at birth and on January 23 last, when all four were weighed, she made an even nineteen pounds. Recently a friend gave Christine a "baby walker," but she has not yet made much use of it.

Edna and May weighed three pounds nine and a half ounces and three pounds seven ounces, respectively, at birth, and at last weighing fourteen pounds twelve ounces and twelve pounds fourteen ounces. Mrs. Mahaney says they are too small and delicate to be allowed on the floor. They take all their exercise in their cots, and whatever attempts at walking are made take place in them. The two smallest, however, like the other two, are well and growing stronger steadily.

So great was the public curiosity to see the quadruplets that they recently held a reception in the Imperial Theatre in St. John. The building was crowded. They were brought on the stage by a quartet of Girl Guides. Red Cross workers took up a collection of $53 for them.

THE HISTORY OF OLYMPICS TOLD KIWANIS

Howard Crocker of Canadian Olympic Committee, Explains Objects.

FOR UNDERSTANDING.

Rev. S. D. Gordon Also Brings Message to Local Kiwanians.

Howard Crocker, Director of Physical Education for the Y.M.C.A. was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at noon today. His subject was the Olympic Games.

Mr. Crocker said that the purpose which was in the minds of Baron Pierre de Coubertin and his associates when they started the Olympic Games in the early 90's was to get the best young men of the different nations together in athletic competition, so that they might know each other better and eliminate a lot of the national jealousies that were causing the petty wars among the nations of Europe.

It was only in comparatively recent years that people had seen the value of physical education. Only 75 years ago the State of Virginia had imposed a tax on every bathtub as a bath should only be taken on the orders of a physician and were a needless luxury at other times. All organized play, said the speaker, was modern. It was only a few years ago that a young man connected play life with education. Nowadays Universities have courses in physical education and conferred degrees on their graduates. Another body to whom the speaker gave great credit was the Christian Church, which had always upheld clean, honorable sport.

Speaking of the history of the Olympic games, Mr. Crocker said that the Greeks had recognized the value of sport to bring together the different states into a union over 3,000 years ago and the first Olympic Games were held 776 B.C. In those days the Greeks both athletes and judges, went to the temples before the games and pledged themselves to Zeus that they would play the game fairly and honorably. These games united the Greeks and made them able with twenty thousand men to defeat the Persians, with 300,000 men.

In 1896 the first of the modern games was held at Athens. They ran the races and had the field events that the Greeks had run years ago. The marathon race, which was an added feature, was run over the same course of 26 miles and 365 yards, over which Pheidippides had run with the news of the great victory at Marathon in 484 B.C. The founders of the games were not concerned with who won. They wanted the men to meet each other and recognize that the men of other countries were fine fellows. In selecting the team to represent Canada, those who were chosen had to be fine honorable men, as well as potential winners.

In speaking of the games in various years, Mr. Crocker said that it was in 1906 that they were first drawn to Canadians' attention, when several young men went over and Billy Sherring of Hamilton won the Marathon. In 1908 the games were played in London, and the rules were printed for the first time, and it was found that the rules of some countries about professionals were very lax and that physical instructors who made their living teaching gymnatics were competing.

In 1908 at London a considerable commotion was caused by a body of Finns who refused to march under the Russian flag. Now every Finn is an athlete and the spirit that actuates them was shown by the fact that every one of them whether athlete or spectator carried a small flag and when a victory brought their flag to the top of the Stadium pole, each one stood up and held out his flag in salute. This Mr. Crocker said was an example of the fine spirit the games are developing.

The disturbances recorded at last year's games were caused mostly by newspaper propaganda, said Mr. Crocker, such as the statements of the French press that their men were champions of the world at Rugby because they had beaten England, which caused the people to be enraged when the United States defeated them. The ideal of the founders had not yet been reached but it was being approached more closely every year and some day every athlete would be such a sportsman that he would count it a proud day when he met a better man than he was.

Rev. Dr. S. D. Gordon of New York was present and said a few words. He said that he was admitted into the inner circle of life in Peterboro and that the way the flags of England and his own country were crossed reminded that England had always been a leader in everything.

Walter Byers was the booster for the day, and the prizes were won by Ivan Lillicoe and Wilfred Huycke.

CONFIRMATION LACKING.

Premier Armstrong and His Government Reticent on Mine Controversy.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 20. — (Canadian Press). —No confirmation could be obtained to-day of a report published this morning that District President J. W. McLeod of the United Mine Workers of America, returned to Cape Breton, last night, with "definite" proposition for the settlement of the strike which they will submit to their unions. Neither Premier Armstrong or other members of Government would comment on the report which Hon. W. H. Chisholm, Minister of Mines, characterized as a "guess based on published correspondence preceding yesterday's conference and an intimate knowledge of the situation "but which he declined to classify as "a good or bad guess."

PROTECTION OF FISH.

Fish and Game Committee Hears Petitions From Associations.

TORONTO, March 20. — The Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature this morning heard a plea from the Ontario Hunters and the Fish and Game Protective Association, that the carrying of hunting firearms be permitted only by license except in the case of farmers hunting on their own land; that more and smaller game sanctuaries be established; that the sale of all game be prohibited; and that increased penalties be provided for infractions of the game laws.

Officers of Western Ontario game protective associations protested against commercial fishermen blocking the mouth of the Thames River with seine nets during the spawning season.

The committee promised to take the various points under consideration.

LOVE TANGLE IN ENGLAND NEARING END OF HEARING

Defense Rests Its Case With Conclusion of Mrs. Dennistoun's Testimony.

Above is Mrs. Muriel Dennistoun, the former wife of Colonel Ian Onlow Dennistoun, the centre of the sensational society case now agitating London and all England, who charges that her husband encouraged her in affairs with other men to insure his advancement. Below is Colonel Dennistoun leaving court with his present wife, Almina, Dowager Countess of Carnarvon and widow of the famous explorer of King Tut's tomb.

LONDON, March 20 (Canadian Press). — The Dennistoun case ... its concluding stages today, ... the defence rested after Mrs. Dorothy Muriel Dennistoun had been recalled to the stand for a few moments to testify regarding certain bills for dresses purchased in Paris. She is sueing her former husband, Lieut.-Col. Ian Onlow Dennistoun for money she alleges she loaned him prior to their divorce in 1921, sometime following which he married the widow of the late Earl Carnarvon.

Arguments of counsel were expected to occupy today and part of Monday. There will be no session of the court tomorrow.

NEW ALL-STEEL HOUSE BUILT

Doors, Roof and Foundation Are Only Immetalic Parts.

LIFE 99 YEARS.

LONDON, England, March 20.(Canadian Press).—London's first all steel house-steel everywhere, except for its wooden doors, tiled roof, and concrete base and chimney flues has just been formally opened. Even the walls of the room and the ceilings are of steel. Three weeks after the start every bit of furniture was in its place. It looks like a pretty country double-fronted one-floor cottage. The outer walls are made of galvanized two-foot square plates stamp galvanized two-foot square plates stamped into the shape of stone blocks, and painted to resemble the same. The roof is tiled with red Somerset tiles.

Every piece of external material is galvanized on both sides to keep it free from wet. The constructors claim for the dwelling a 99 years' life, and assert that it is warm in winter and cool in summer. The cost is about $2250, including a six-inch concrete foundation.

ACID STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Sufferers From Indigestion or Stomach Trouble CUT THIS OUT

"Stomach trouble, dyspepsia, indigestion, sourness, gas, heartburn, food fermentation, etc., are caused nine times in ten by chronic acid stomach," says a well know authority.

Burning hydrochloric acid develops in the stomach at an alarming rate. The acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining and often leads to gastritis accompanied by dangerous stomach ulcers. Don't dose an acid stomach with pepsin or artificial digestents that only give temporary relief from pain by driving the sour, fermenting food out of the stomach into the intestines.

Instead, neutralize or sweeten your acid stomach after meals with a little hot water and Bisurated Magnesia and not only will the pain vanish but your meals will digest naturally. There is nothing better than Bisurated Magnesia to sweeten and settle an acid stomach. It soaks up the harmful excess acid much as a sponge or blotting paper might and your stomach acts and feels fine in just a few minutes. Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained from any reliable druggist in either powder or tablet form. It is safe, reliable, easy and pleasant to use, is not a laxative and is not at all expensive.

Huge London Daily Halts Presses In Vain Attempt TO Buoy Up Fading Hopes Of Dying British Statesman

LONDON, March 20 (Canadian Press).—There is a story behind Marquis Curzon's death this morning that is probably without precedent in British journalism.

For days, the statesman had been lying on his sick bed, fully conscious. Every morning, he appealed for his favorite newspaper, and every morning his physicians, fearful of the effect their own published bulletins, regarding the gravity of his illness might have on their patient, were forced to refuse his request.

Yesterday, it was seen he had entered upon the last phase of his heroic struggle with death.

The physicians, searching for every possible means to buoy up the dying Marquis, appealed to the paper in question.

It is not usual for a great London daily to be willing to halt its presses, but the editor replied that they would issue a special edition of one copy announcing Lord Curzon's recovery.

And so, while Lord Curzon's life was slowly fading, this special bedside edition was prepared, but almost at the moment the huge presses had turned out their message of encouragement, the end came. The one-copy edition was never read by the one for whom it was published.

After 12 years' suffering with constipation, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought lasting relief

This woman feels ten years younger. No more headaches or medicine.

Think what it means to be everlastingly free from the dull, throbbing headaches, sallow skin and perpetual tiredness which are constipation's toll. But let Mrs. Bevis tell you her inspiring story:

Words can't express my gratitude for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. For 15 years I suffered with constipation, always taking medicine, had dull headaches and never felt well. For the past 12 months I've eaten ALL-BRAN and haven't taken one drop of medicine. I've gained in weight, my health is so improved I feel 10 years younger.
(Signed) Mrs. F. S. Bevis.
(Address on request).

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will bring sure relief to you just as it has to Mrs. Bevis and thousands of others. It is a bulk food that doctors recommend. It is guaranteed to be permanently effective, if eaten regularly, or the purchase price will be returned by your grocer. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure relief.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Try the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is nature's own way of cleaning the intestine. Made in London, Canada. Served at leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

NURMI'S RECORD.

Runs 52 Miles in Competition in 31 Meets in 13 Cities.

NEW YORK, March 20 (United News).—Paavo Nurmi has run 52 miles in competition in 31 track meets in 13 cities, since January 6. He has made 31 new world records at various stages from three quarters of a mile to 5,000 metres. Admitting that he is a marvellous athlete with unsuspected stamina in his relatively small physique, Dr. Herman Robergh, Nurmi's physician and Lawson Robertson, one of the greatest track experts in the world, both believe Nurmi ought to quit the track and train for a while. Otherwise he might break his health. Dr. Robergh is a Finn and he has an extraordinary interest in his patient.

Robertson is the chief coach of America's Olympic track team and perhaps has a keener appreciation of the powers of an athlete than any other man in sport.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Just the moment you apply Mentho-Sulphur to an itching, burning or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a noted skin specialist. This sulphur preparation, made into a pleasant cold cream, gives such a quick relief, even to fiery eczema, that nothing has ever been found to take its place.

Because of its germ-destroying properties, it quickly subdues the itching, cools the irritation and heals the eczema right up, leaving a clear, smooth skin in place of ugly eruptions, rash, pimples or roughness.

You do not have to wait for improvement. It quickly shows. You can get a little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur at any drug store.

At Paris, King George posed for press photographers and these pictures, appearing this morning, show him to be much thinner than usual.

THEATRES

"SUNDOWN" GREAT PICTURE OF WEST.

Stampede of 100,000 Cattle Forms SuperThrill of Celluloid Masterpiece.

A large audience greeted the first local screening of the spectacular production, "Sundown," at the Royal last night. It's a big picture. It has that "something you do not see on the screen" that puts it away above the average picture seen locally.

There is no one big moment. No clash of physical forces is depended upon to lift the film from the ordinary run of celluloid drama—yet it is so far ahead of the usual "big feature," in entertainment value and for its inspiring and emotion-stirring qualities that there is no comparison.

For its theme, the author, Earl Hudson, has taken a page from current history, basing the story on the disintegration of the West of yesteryear—the romantic West of story and song.

The picture dramatizes the passing of the big cattle owners who, gradually forced to the wall by the steady encroachment of homesteaders and farmers on the vast plains, are compelled to seek new grazing lands in Mexico.

"Sundown" tells the story of the last big group of cattle owners who, faced with bankruptcy, resolve to mass their herds for a long trek into a new country. As the cattle progress, the pioneers meet all of the natural hazards of the country, romance injecting itself into their grim march when the cattlemen meet a family of homesteaders, representatives of the class that is forcing them from their homes.

Throughout the unreeling of the story the cattle plod onward—a majestic background to the simple, human romance of the son of one of the cattle kings and the daughter of a city weakling. The thousands of cattle, ever moving, present an inspiring spectacle. Watching the picture one is conscious that there are millions in the massed herds rather than thousands.

The simplicity and the humanness of "Sundown" are its principal charm. One is gripped with the intensity of the drama that it pictures. And there are thrills, too. These when the huge herd stampedes and the homesteaders are caught in the path of onrushing, maddened cattle, and again when the cattle and their owners are entrapped by fire.

An ideal cast has been entrusted with the telling of this soul-stirring story. Bessie Love is most capable and captivating in the part of the city girl who finds herself homeless when the stampeding cattle wreck her little prairie home. Roy Stewart is an ideal Westerner, shy, diffident, yet romantic.

Hobart Bosworth is all that could be desired in the stern role of the principal cattle owner, who is ever conscious that he is being forced from the country he helped pioneer. Excellent comedy relief is supplied by Charles Murray, the famous movie comedian, who plays the part of a chuck wagon driver, a past master in the art of profanity.

Other well-known players in the well-balanced cast are Charles Sellon, Charles Crockett, Wilfred North, Jere Austin, Hal Wilson and Margaret McWade.

ANOTHER RUMOR!

The admission prices at the Royal for "Sundown" are advanced five cents on adult tickets. Patrons who have already witnessed the production, "Sundown," know why we slightly increased our prices. Others who see it tonight and Saturday will wonder why it is not 35c or over. On the street yesterday we heard the children complaining that their prices were raised for the Saturday matinee. This is what we want to deny. The kiddies' prices for "Sundown" remains the same. Ten cents will admit any child Saturday afternoon. The adult admissions are: Matinees, 20c; Evenings, 25c and 30c, and "Sundown" is worth a lot more than that.

AT THE CAPITOL

OLD STERN WHEELER REBUILT FOR RIVER SCENES IN "THE DEVIL'S CARGO," FEATURING A-1 CAST.

An old Sacramento steamboat, a stern wheeler of the type used on the river 75 years ago, was secured, refitted and put in shape for use in "The Devil's Cargo," Victor Fleming's newest production for Paramount which opens today at the Capitol Theatre.

The boat was found by Fleming's representatives in San Francisco. They were told that had it been considered worth while the boat would have been converted into firewood years ago. Considerable carpentry, a great deal of work on the wood burning engine and much painting put the craft into order again.

The story, dealing with the activities of the vigilantes in the early California gold days, was written by Charles Whittaker under the title, "The River Boat," and adapted to the screen by A. P. Younger.

The featured players in "The Devil's Cargo" are Wallace Beery, Pauline Starke, Claire Adams and William Collier, Jr. Others are Raymond Hatton, Dale Fuller, George Cooper and John Dillion.

AT THE REGENT

ACTOR RISKS LIFE IN DARING LEAP IN FOOLS IN THE DARK.

The jaws of death have opened before the startled gaze of many a movie actor ere now; but in the filming of one scene for "Fools in the Dark," now playing the Regent Theatre on Friday and Saturday, they yawned so near the face of Matt Moore that he could see the gold fillings in the wisdom teeth of the Old Man with the Scythe!

The plot of Al Santell's new comedy-melodrama, which was written by Bertram Millhauser, is a thriller, which combines sensatonal stunts and delightful humor in rare proportions. One incident requires the hero, as played by Mr. Moore, to swing from a speeding airplane to the top mast of a schooner. It's simple, if you make it, but very annoying if you miss!

In order not to imperil the life of the star more than once, Director Santell made arrangements very carefully to "shoot" the scene on the first try. An extra battery of cameras was placed on the deck of the schooner and another battery on a raft moored near the vessel. Ropes and running rigging along the top mast were so arranged as to afford the intrepid hero the best chance of completing his lurid leap.

Somewhat bruised from hitting the spar as he swung from the ladder Mr Moore descended to the deck rather shakily by the "ratlans," leaving his stunt of sliding down the bellying sail until another day. One like that he opined, was enough for a day's work! And he remarked loudly, calling the names of scenario writers and directors anything but blessed that a picture can have too many thrills—at least to suit the actor. For this is only one of the many which go to make up the hectic action of "Fools in the Dark."

SPEAKER'S TEAM LOOKS STRONG

Pitchers in Good Shape—No Pennant Talk in Modest Claims.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 20.—Friends and acquaintances of the Cleveland Indians are respectfully invited to attend to the ball club's claim for recognition as one that hopes to get somewhere in the flag race that will get under way next month.

Many reasons contribute to the Indians' idea that they will cut a dashing figure in the pennant gambol this year.

A couple of Tris Speaker's pitchers who were a flop last year are reported to be ready for all sorts of brave deeds. A shakeup in in the infield is expected to make its defensive performance a little less sloshy than it was in 1924. And various odds and ends that go to make the difference between a winning ball club and a loser have been collected, the camp followers say, and all is lovely.

Cleveland mind you, makes no pennant talk. Cleveland is content with the modest statement that what it has this year is a darn sight better to look at and to think about than what it had last year.

George Uhle, the pitching sensation of 1923, who was of little use last year, either because of a strained arm or a fractured disposition, is himself again. Jim Edwards, who won five games early last season and then twisted a knee and watched the proceedings from bulletin boards for practically the rest of the season, is prepared to begin where he left off.

Joe Shaute is no cause for worry, save to the enemy, and "Sherry" Smith, the ex-Dodger, is calculated to be able to drag his weary old "dogs" out to the box once a week or so and give a good account of himself.

Speece Joins Team.

Byron Speece's presence here is the signal for as much joy as was registered in the Senators camp when Stanley Coveleskie, the man for whom he was traded, began to cut loose with the old baseball.

So much for the standard pitching numbers. A few young men, Carl Yowell, "Gob" Buckley, Luther Roy and N. K. Lehr have been worth more than a passing glance. Yowell and Buckley are left handers, the other are perfectly normal.

Tris Speaker, the boss of the camp, may revert to his 1920 system of switching lineups according to the style of pitching the enemy offers. He has two first basemen, George Burns, thoroughly right handed, and Robert Knode, who is as completely left-handed.

Fewster at Second.

"Chick" Fewster will play second base. Stephenson, a great batter, may engage in the battle for the right field job, or may be relegated to duty solely as a pinch hitter.

Joie Sewell at short and Walter Lutzke at third are fixtures; Joe Klugman, who was with Brooklyn for a time, and later drifted to Minneapolis, is a second base candidate.

The only outfielding problem Speaker has, unless it is to try and improve his own play over what it is wast year, is concerned with right field. Charley Jamieson, one of the league's greatest, has left field all to himself.

For right there are more than a half dozen scrambling around. Among there are Howard Summa, Pat McNulty, Cliff Lee, Harvey Hendrick and perhaps Riggs Stephenson.

Speaker has the same catching crew—Glenn Myatt for the bulk of the work, Luke Sewell for the rest of it, and Walters for company.

FOLEY GETS DECISION.

Nothing at Stake in Bout With Jackie Johnston.

TORONTO, March 20. — (Canadian Press).— Vic Foley of Vancouver, Canadian Bantam-weight champion, who defended his title here some time ago against Jackie Johnston, local ex-amateur champion by holding the local boy to a draw at the Colliseum, met Johnston in a return bout at the Standard Theatre last evening with nothing at stake and was given the judges decision.

BASEBALL TALK ON LAKESHORE

Already Planning for Durham-Ontario and Cobourg Town Leagues.

COBOURG, March 20.—Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Oshawa are expected to comprise the junior series of the Durham and Ontario Baseball League for the coming season, for which Mr. W. E. N. Sinclair has put up a fine trophy for competition. There is considerable baseball talk in all of the lakeshore towns now that the hockey season has closed. Cobourg has plenty of material for a good junior team. Some of the boys who played on the winter's winning interscholastic hockey team are eligible for junior ball and are just as enthusiastic over that as they were over hockey.

Town League for Cobourg.

A meeting is to be held here on March 27th to organize a town league for the coming season. Last year's Town League was composed mainly of industrial teams and the C. N. R. It is proposed this year to have three teams representing the east, centre and west wards of the town.

LOOKS TO VETERAN PAIR

Manager Cobb Banking Strongly on Leonard and Collins in Box This Season.

"RIP" COLLINS, LEFT, AND "DUTCH" LEONARD.

AUGUSTA, March 20.—Manager Cobb is banking strongly on two veteran pitchers to have big seasons. Southpaw "Dutch" Leonard and "Rip" Collins, his big right hander, who has shown flashes of great stuff.

Leonard reported late last season after his reinstatement and pitched good ball. He showed he still had the great curve ball that won him fame and most of his speed.

Leonard has reported in good shape and is almost fit now. He is poitive he will win anywhere from 15 to 20 ball games.

"I figure Collins is due to have the best year of his career," says Cobb. "He always had the stuff and now has finally acquired proper poise thata enables him to use it."

Outstanding Feats—Batted .319 in 1920. Hit in 96 runs in 1923, ranking fifth in this respect. Played in 155 games in 1920.

SOCCER NOTES

Weather permitting, a number of soccer players intend holding a minor practice game down at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon.

P. and D. F. A. will hold a meeting in Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

On Friday, (Good Friday), April 10th, a real tit-bit in soccer has been arranged to take place at King Edward Park, when a select senior team and select junior team will settle the old-time argument on the field of sport. The junior boys intend carrying off the honors of this game because they think that they can beat the seniors any time. Tickets can be had from any executive member.

Next Monday, March 23rd, is the last day for any team entering the soccer league. At present, only three teams have made their initial appearance although we hear of many other teams that have not appeared befored the Board. The executive desire to get the schedule drawn up as soon as possible.

The sporting associations have again been talking "Daylight Saving" this year and they intend making a request to the City Council in favour of the extra hour that would be beneficial to health and sport. In all probabilty the soccer organizations will approve of the measure and act accordingly.

Th Football Association Referees Chart, containing all soccer rules and regulations—Text of the Laws—Official Decisions—Instructions to Referees and Secretaries—and Instructions to Players, can be obtained from Johnny Sutherland, Simcoe Street, at a small cost. This book the most comprehensive on the market to-day because it contains plans of the field of play also gives Diagrams, illustrating points in connection with off-sides—22 in all. All players and spectators should get one of these so as to study the much disputed question—off-sides.

SHEPHERD CASE

Early this month, the inquest was adjourned until next week. At the same time it was announced that the state's attorneys office had interested itself in the investigations. Various chemists and bacteriologists were summoned to the state's attorney's office. Investigators were sent to New York to interview former servants of the Shepherd household.

Letter Disappears.

Early in the investigation the school of bacteriology, of which Charles C. Faiman is the head, figured. First came the mystery of the disappearance of correspondence with a mysterious stranger. It was an important lead. The letter was one asking about a course in bacteriology. The writer hadn't followed it up by joining the school. A search of the files showed it had disappeared.

Faiman was called for questioning several times. Something in his manner of answering questions caused assistant state's attorneys to believe he wasn't telling everything. Then one day he admitted that Shepherd was the author of a letter asking information regarding germ cultures. He said he turned the letter over to Shepherd for $50. He was questioned again and again. He admitted that three test tubes of typhoid germs had disappeared from his laboratory. He had no knowledge as to where they went. Shepherd wasn't involved yet. The questioning continued.

On Tuesday the denouement came when Faiman admitted he had supplied the typhoid germs to Shepherd, that he had instructed Shepherd how to use them, that he had been promised a share in the McClintock fortune, that he had given Shepherd instructions which would hasten death after the typhoid fever had reached an advanced stage.

It is a strange tale that hangs about the McClintock fortune and all of its strange features have not yet been revealed.

Years ago a British nobleman, whose name is not known, died, leaving a large fortune. His widow married William Hickling, a commoner, and came to America, settling in Chicago, where he opened a pretentious house, filling it with priceless treasures, other art works and furniture. Mrs. Hickling did not long survive. On her death, Hickling married Sarah Gensler. After Hickling's death, the widow went to Iowa and married William McClintock, county treasurer of Boone County.

Father Killed.

Shortly after the couple returned to Chicago to live in the Hickling home, Mrs. McClintock died and McClintock married Emma Nelson, of Lemars, Ia. The latest Mrs. McClintock was the first in the American history of the fortune to provide a natural heir. In 1903, William Nelson McClintock was born. Five years later his father was killed in an automobile accident. About this time, the McClintocks made the acquaintance of the Shepherds. Two years later Mrs. McClintock died and the Shepherds took the boy into their own home and reared him. Mrs. Shepherd, together with A. F. Reichmann, of Chicago, were appointed guardians of the youth.

The boy was educated in Chicago and then entered Dartmouth University as a student. Last spring he became of age, and some time later made a will, leaving the greater part of his estate to his foster father. Last fall he came home from college ill, and his death resulted.

If Shepherd is successful in fighting the case, the state's attorney of Chicago is building up against him, the fortune probably will remain intact. If he should be convicted, it is probable that the fortune will be divided, the cousins and Miss Pope, perhaps, sharing in it.

Exhumation of the bodies of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of the orphan, and of Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of Judge Olson, who died suddenly, according to Judge Alson's testimony before a coroner jury, after eating fruit brought him by Shepherd when the physician was mildly indisposed, was planned by state's authorities.

Judge Olson said he believed his brother had been poisoned. He declared there had been a conspiracy of 16 years to obtain McClintock's estate, beginning before the death of Mrs. McClintock.

Lawyer Quits.

Edwin Hedrick, who, as attorney for Shepherd, fought hard during the long inquest and accused Judge Olson of forcing the issue because of a "regrettable mental condition," withdrew from Shepherd's defence. He announced his withdrawal did not indicate a change of belief in Shepherd's innocence, but the case had reached a stage where criminal lawyers were needed and his firm handled only civil cases.

RETAIN CANADIENS

None of the Montreal Club's Players for Sale.

MONTREAL, March 20.—"None of the Canadian players are on the market. As far as we know at the present time every member of the team will wear our uniforms again next season," said Joe Cattarinich, one of the hockey triumvirate controlling the Canadiens Club Thursday, in denying rumors that Sprague Cleghorn was to be sold to the Montreal Maroons, and that other players were to be sold.

BASEBALL

NEW YORK, March 20.—Earl Coombs will play centerfield for the Yankees this year and Joe Dugan will be the lead off man, unless plans of Manager Miller Huggins, formed during the past few days at St. Petersburg prove faulty.

With the new order of things, and claiming that they add 25 per cent. to the Yankee srength, Huggins saw his regulars trounce the second team Tuesday for the first time this season, 12 to 4.

Whitey Witt and Nick Cullop seem to be headed for bench service. The latter, a heavy hitter from Omaha, does well whenever he receives an opportunity, but lacks major league experience. Coombs' leg has mended and is said to be as goon as ever.

Collins Releases Five.

CHICAGO, March 20—The roster of the White Sox at Shreveport, La., is lighter by five names as a result of Manager Eddie Collins' axe wielding. Frank Wojack, infielder, returned to Quebec; Jess Cortazzo, infielder, was sold to Cumberland, Maryland; Ray Dearing and Alex. Hamilton, were given to Shreveport on option, and Rickman, pitcher was released outright and sent back to Chicago.

FALCONS LOSE TO ALLEY RATS

Rats Outplay Falcons From Goal Out For Second Win.

SCORE WAS 4-0.

The Fire Hall Falcons bowed down to their second consecutive defeat last evening at the Brock street arena, the Alley Rats being the victors. The score was 4 to 0. The game was a well contested battle from gong to gong, both teams hitting a fast stride. In the fatal first period the Falcons were everywhere but near the Rats' goal. They back-checked like fiends, their rushes were dangerous, and only the marvellous saves of "Horseshoe" John Warde kept them from a victory.

The game was lost by the Falcons refusing to have combination in their vocabulary, while on the other hand the Rats had a perfect pass, which the Falcons could not analyze. The Rats scored 3 goals in this period but not till after 15 minutes of hard playing.

The Rats opened the second stanza in much the same as the first — same perfect combination and harmony as before. The Hosemen begon this period to find their skating legs and for the rest of the period gave the Rats a hot argument.

Johnson and Dundas were the big lads on the Rats crew. Their rushes and stick handling were marvellous, while the rest of the crew, including "Horseshoe" Warde in goal played a whale of a game which gave them a decisive victory.

There was no star on the Firemens line-up. Every player did his best and they played like fiends, back-checking and stick-handling to the best of their ability.

Though the Falcons were beaten in two starts against the Alley boys they went down their colors flying.

Line-up:

Alley Rats: Goal, Warde; defence, Taylor, Johnson; Wings, Dundas, Robinson; centre, Roach.

Falcons: Delahaye; defence Smith, Cheu; wings, McNeely, Lundy; centre, white. Subs., L. White, Naish. Referee, T. Thirnbeck.

'SPIEL IS OFF.

Weather Spoils Millbrook Curlers' Fun—Annual Banquet Held.

MILLBROOK, March 20.—Owing to weather conditions the opportunity of completing the local bonspiel has evidently been postponed for this season.

The annual banquet with which the curling club usually finishes off the year's sport was held recently at the Waverley Inn, V. C. Lambert catering to the satisfaction of all concerned.

H. B. Allen, donor of the Allen Cup, presented the trophy to the winners for this season: Skip G. W. Sayles, A. McCorry, E. C. Richards, and D. Robinson. Reeve W. T. Wood's rink held the cup for the two precious years.

The first prize in the local bonspiel—a complete fisherman's outfit—was won by Skip R. H. Edmunds, J. Lancashire, R. W. Hutchison, and G. Raper.

The consolation went to Skip A. A. Smith, A. McCorry, W. Whyte, and C. Thorndyke.

The speeches made by the recipients of the prices, the officers, and other members of the club, carried out the impression that no season has exceeded 1924-25 in genuine sport, good fellowship, and success generally.

Though the Carew cup had a brief two weeks' sojourn in Millbrook, the Matthews-Blackwell trophy remains wit the local club until competed for again next season.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

ATHLETES NOT GOOD SPEAKERS

Very Few Can Speak Before Large Gatherings.

BY ART CARLSON

Public speaking is more or less of an art. To some it comes easy; to others not.

Take sportive celebrities for instance. A few of them can get up before a large gathering and get away in splendid style. They feel as much at home as on the field of battle. But many of them would rather be sent to the plate in a pinch with three men on, two and their team behind than appear before a throng to make a speech.

For a long time even such a great star as Ty Cobb found it difficult to speak at a public assembly. He felt anything but at ease. It was the toughest sort of a job for him. Of more recent years, however, he has mastered the so-called art and can now say his piece with the best of them.

Out at the University of Michigan is Steve Farrell. Steve is Maize and Blue track coach. Moreover, he is one of the most preminent mentors in that branch of athletics. But Farrell, while a famous tutor, doesn't like to make speeches. To him it's almost as hard a task as taking a beating.

A few years ago Michigan and Cornell hooked up in an indoor track meet. And despite the fact that the Wolverines were handing the Ithacans a sound lacing, Farrell seemed considerably worried.

At the conclusion of the affair he wore an extremely troubled look as he received congratulations on Michigan's great victory.

"What's the matter, Steve, you look worried?" he was asked.

"I am worried," he replied.

"Why, you should be the happiest man in Ann Arbor tonight," he was told.

"I am, but I suppose I've got to make a speech at the banquet tonight and I don't know just what to say," answered the celebrated coach as he slipped on his coat and hurried over to the "battle scene."

BILLY EVANS SAYS

SHREVEPORT, March 20—Manager Eddie Collins of the Chicago White Sox is giving much thought to one question: What part will southpaws play in the American League next season?

It is apparent there is going to be a southpaw epidemic in the American. The great success of left-handers last season, followed by the sensational work of the veteran southpaws, Mogridge and Zachary, in the world series, has created the situation.

In an effort to keep pace with the times every American League manager, yes big league manager, has scoured the highways and byways of baseball for portsiders.

Connie Mack and Ty Cobb, both having designs on the pennant, each has six left-handers at the training camp and most of them are rated as regulars.

Every club has at least one star regular, most of them more, except Chicago. Mike Cvengros, the mite left-hander, who at times works brilliantly, is the best of the Sox.

I put this problem to the White Sox manager.

"I have been thinking about that one thing ever since I was appointed manager. My first thought was I wouldn't be anywhere unless I, in some way, picked up a dependable left-hander who could be worked in his turn.

"Failing in that, I have tried to view what at first seemed an alarming situation in an entirely different light.

"Pitching is, of course, a concern with every manager, but I think there are several who have more to think about in this respect than me, even though I lack left-handers."

I suggested to Collins that the great number of southpaws in the American League next season might tend to make them less effective. Appareitly I struck a proper chord. He at once agreed.

"I am hoping that just such a thing will happen," Collins replied. "Knowing that my supply of southpaws does not compare with most of the other clubs, I have tried to reason that the left-handed stuff is going to be overplayed.

"I am trying to make myself believe there will be so much southpaw pitching in the American League next season that the novelty of it will wear off and the effectiveness of that style of pitching be greatly decreased.

"Working on that theory I am hopeful that a top-heavy right-handed staff will be just the thing. I have plenty of good right-handers.

"It is just possible that too much stress is being placed on the value of left-handers. I hope so."

Collins, who is a close student of play, points out an interesting question on the southpaw epidemic that has hit the majors.

NEW SPRING STYLES
Coats

THE vogue of the Separate Coat will be as important this spring as ever. Godets, ripples and inverted pleats to break the straight lines are the new features, but the straight silhouette is still the most popular.

Materials: Cameline, Mohair, Velour, Kashonia, Jacquard Velour, Poiret Twill, Morocaine, Chamo Suede, etc.

Priced from $16.00 to $47.00
